Title: The Witness, January to December, 1932

Digital Copyright Notice

Copyright 2020. The Archives of the Episcopal Church, The Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America

All rights reserved. Limited reproduction of excerpts of this is permitted for personal research and single use educational activities. Publication or electronic retransmission or redistribution are not permitted without prior consent. Online or print publication or electronic duplication of any material for a fee or for commercial purposes; altering or recompiling any contents of this document for electronic re-display, and all other re-publication that does not qualify as fair use are not permitted without prior written permission.

Send written requests for permission to re-publish to:

Rights and Permissions Office
The Archives of the Episcopal Church
Email: research@episcopalarchives.org
Telephone: 512-472-6816

THE NEW YEAR by Bishop Fiske

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JANUARY 7, 1932

BISHOP WILSON
One of Our Associate Editors

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH AVENUE·NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESTD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & Co., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
CHURCH VESTMENTS
CHOIR OUTFITS
Cassocks Surplices
Copes Chasubles
Stoles Veils Burses
Altar Linens
Metal Work Woodwork
Particulars from
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept.
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

Craftsmen in Stained Glass
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19. W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries
materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI. No. 20 JANUARY 7, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

A MIRROR FOR THE NEW YEAR

By

BISHOP CHARLES FISKE

AS WE come to the beginning of a New Year, I am thinking of the homely, practical language of St. James about beholding one's self in a glass and going one's way and straightway forgetting what manner of man it was whose reflection was seen in the mirror.

It will be profitable, for most of us, spiritually and in other ways, to hold up the mirror and let the procession of the past few years go by. Who can look back upon the "boom days" before October, 1929, without being heartily ashamed? Some may merely be mortified because they "guessed wrong" about the permanency of bull markets and the stretching of limits to the sky. Some may be humiliated at the consciousness of being just plain fools. Some may be disillusionized as to the ability and acumen of the American business man or banker.

A plain spoken acquaintance of mine recently declared in stentorian tones that investment bankers and international financiers are about seventy-five per cent fools, with a large part of the other twenty-five per cent little better than "crooks". I finally persuaded him to modify the statement, reduce the percentage of fools, substitute "greedy" for "crooked," and make allowance for a reasonable number of honest men; but it was a difficult task of persuasion. For the matter of that, as we look in the mirror we may wonder, perhaps, in which classification we should put ourselves and our friends.

There are other things which suggest that we may seek opportunity for steadily gazing into the glass. Frederick L. Allen has just written a book entitled "Only Yesterday," which reminds us of what absurd "boobs" we have been, time and again and upon every variety of occasion. Mr. Allen keeps us jumping high and fast in his quick survey of the last decade, from the week of the Armistice to the brown October days of 1929 in Wall Street. The story reflects the nervous pace of the decade and quickens our recollections of the mad excitement in which we lived, the foolish fads we followed, the national saints we canonized, the popular heroes we set up on pedestals, the silly and unwise things we did, the immoral (at least non-moral) standards we accepted, the unthinking way in which we followed the crowd, the shame and horror which sat upon our minds at the mere thought of not thinking as everybody thinks and doing what everybody does.

Perhaps by this time we are sufficiently chastened to look into the mirror, behold ourselves as we were, and then not forget. Perhaps we may see a silver lining in the dark clouds of depression in the fact that some of us, at least, are driven back to a simpler mode of life, freed from wild extravagance, orgies of deferred payment purchases, helpless submission to super-salesmanship, the jag and jazz of a hectic and artificial life, and all the ballyhoo that has muddled our American ways of thinking. If we can find some of the old values again, the price we have paid will be none too high.

WOULD that we might see clearer signs also of the liberation of religion from the conventionalities and obsessions of the decade. The American pulpit has much to be ashamed of in its recollection of the hysteria of the Great War, but it has had no better record since, with less excuse for its failure. Just as society, business, politics have been drenched with sensation, so the Churches have been deliberately drinking at the same streams.

When not sensational and with passionate attempt at the spectacular, our religion has fallen to other and lower depths. American religion is, for the most part, slushy, sloppy, sickly sentimentality, with the young men of the Associated Press acting as high priests of the Temple. Read their dreadful accounts of gangster funerals, with highly colored descriptions of weeping widows; or the stories which exploit youth in "humanizing Hoover." Read the sentimental Christmas messages of some of our Church leaders, with their high sounding words that mean nothing. It is dreadful to be forced to learn how soft and silly the ministerial mind may become. One grows sick of a Christmas which rises no higher in its thought of our Lord than to sentimentalize about God's leaving a baby on the doorstep of the world. One reaches the point of exasperation when Christmas cards come in from professed Christians to "Send us the prayer, as the Easterners do,

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

May the peace of Allah abide with you."

So, I hope that, with this new year, we may look into our hearts and ask whether our religion has very much of reality or stamina. Why need the churches and their ministers rush to "get on the bandwagon" every time some new fad leads a procession of foolish folk rushing along in their unthinking herd-mindedness? Why should we not find more church leaders brave enough to make their people face facts?

Above all, why not make them face the question as to where we are heading in our modern civilization and what we must cast overboard to escape going to pieces on the rocks? I would not have church pulpits turned into forums for debate on proposed solutions of social or economic problems, but I do believe we may in our timidity go to such an extreme of caution as to make both preaching and worship a pleasant lullaby—or what our communistic friends call a spiritual soporific.

The best remedy for that is to look into the mirror and see ourselves as we were twelve years ago; ten, five, two. I honestly think that, with all our trouble, today's reflection in the glass is more encouraging and promises better health, even though we still feel rather ill. We have lost weight; but we shall not regret that if we have learned to live more rationally.

A Variety of New Books

By
GARDINER M. DAY

THE average rector knows full well how many times he has wished he had a brief account of various phases of church history to present to the layman who asks a question requiring half an hour to answer. Two such books have just come from the presses, namely, The Church in England by F. J. Foakes-Jackson (Macmillan, $1.25) and Greek Church History by Constantine Callinicos (Morehouse $1.20). Few men are better equipped than Dr. Jackson to compress the history of the church in England in its briefest compass. In 150 pages Dr. Callinicos carries us from Jerusalem after the Crucifixion through the little known period of the spread of Christianity in Greece and Russia to the new relationship which the Orthodox Church established with the Anglican Church at the Lambeth Conference in the summer of 1930. One who knows little of the history of the church in Russia, and judges largely by contemporary events, will find particularly interesting the latter part of the volume which gives the history of the continual warfare between the Western Church and Mohammedanism. From 1454 until recent times the feeling has been intense and the martyrs evidently have been legion. The action of Mohammed II in deposing Raphael, Patriarch of Constantinople, for not being able to pay him a sufficient tribute, and sending him in fetters into the streets to seek charity from passers-by, was apparently almost a typical event in the lives of the patriarchs of the 15th century.

Turning next to the church in our own land, the Woman's Auxiliary have chosen as their book for study in 1932 Building a Christian Nation (The National Council, $1.00). The volume contains eight chapters on various phases of the work of the church in the United States. The chapters are written by eight different authors. While the book is not as fascinating reading as were the volumes which the Auxiliary has had in the past two years, namely, Roads to the City of God and India Looks to Her Future, nevertheless it will undoubtedly give the women of our church a much needed insight into the wide variety of church problems and methods of meeting them. It is difficult to single out special chapters but the section by Ernest Pugh on "Those Foreigners" gives the most adequate description of the situation of the foreign immigrant in America that we have ever seen in so short a compass. Dr. Goodwin's chapter on "The Church and Rural Life," and the chapter on the Negroes, by Henry A. Hunt who won the Spingarn Medal in 1930 for his years of "modest, faithful, unselfish and devoted service in the education of the Negroes of rural Georgia," are both chapters well packed with information and insight. Another volume which might well be used in connection with the study of this book is one called The Challenge of Change, by John Milton Moore, published by The Council of Women for Home Missions and the Missionary Education Movement ($1.00; paper, 60c). Dr. Moore is one of the three general secretaries of the Federal Council of Churches and is particularly well equipped to state the problems that face the churches in our country today and to show the lines along which the different denominations have been meeting them.

Another volume has recently appeared from the pen of Dean Washburn, of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, entitled The Religious Motive in Philanthropy (University of Pennsylvania Press, $2.00). These are the Boardman Lectures on Christian Ethics collected in book form. Using his customary biographical method, Dr. Washburn gives us his vivid portraits and charming studies of such different people as Samuel Barnett and Vincent de Paul and St. Francis of Assisi.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

JUDGING by the titles of some of the modern books, one would think there were not many religious beliefs left which one could wholeheartedly believe. Fortunately, the titles are deceiving, and in most of the books the reader will discover a good many strong convictions. Dr. Herbert Parrish, who was for many years rector in New Brunswick, N. J., has given us his philosophy of religion in a book called What Is There Left to Believe? (Sears Publishing Co., $2.50). Glancing at the table of contents, one would suspect that the subject matter was most conventional, but further attention will reveal to the reader that Dr. Parrish covers a wide variety of topics. For example, in the chapter on "Faith" a large section is devoted to the subject of sex, in the chapter on "Problems of Joy and of Life," many truths about the clergyman's position in society are elucidated, and in the chapter on "Prayer," a good deal of space is devoted to the question of church attendance. The book reads easily and part of its charm is the way in which the reader runs across these rather unexpected subjects. The author believes above all in a cosmic consciousness. When man, through dint of spiritual effort, is able to achieve union with this consciousness, he reaches the mountain peak of religious development. In the author's own words: "He feels himself to be on a new plane of existence. Here is born the sense of immortality, a realization of eternal life, not as something stretching out into time and after death, but here and now, and with this faith there is the feeling that, when one moves with the purpose of the cosmos, one moves backed by the tide of irresistible power."

Writing in a similar vein, Dr. James G. Gilkey gives his answer to the point of view of the modern sceptic in Meeting the Challenge of Modern Doubt (Macmillan $2.00). In his most charming and persuasive style, Dr. Gilkey gives the reasons for the belief that is in him in reply to the non-belief of modern youth. Dr. Gilkey is a modernist of the type that believes in conserving the best that is in the past and yet at the same time is not afraid to stand for the complete eradication of what he believes to be outworn. In contrast with this and other books of similar title, it is interesting to turn to Dr. George Buttrick's Lyman Beecher Lectures on Preaching entitled Jesus Came Preaching (Scribner's, $2.50). The title well expresses the keynote of the book, which is positive belief in the eternal centrality of Christ in religious thinking. Beginning in the first chapter with a look at the world as he sees it from his Madison Avenue study, the author considers the question of the authority of Christ in relation to it. His remarks on the subject of authority form one of the most interesting discussions in the book. The question of authority is an old one which no one has satisfactorily determined. Should Jesus' authority be based on legal considerations of supernatural deeds, or upon His own claims? Dr. Buttrick's answer to this question is that authority is itself a pretex: "It is compulsion ruling us above the vagaries of mood and conduct, yet safeguarding our freedom. It is a finality needing no witness beyond itself, yet holding within itself an unknown by which it provokes our seeking and challenges us to hazardous adventure. The paradox of authority: a compulsion safeguarding our freedom—a faculty challenging us by an unknown." After showing that this view of authority is strikingly in accord with the facts of modern scientists, Dr. Buttrick goes on to the question of how the preacher can make his message most appealing to those who live at the present day. The style of the book is exceedingly beautiful and the reader quickly becomes aware that the writer is a man not only of deep spirituality but with a soaring imagination.

LEAPING from Madison Avenue, we land in China. Here we find two recent books that we especially would recommend. The first is a novel, The Good Earth, by Pearl Buck (Abingdon, $2.50). Writing from the point of view of one who has never been to China, we can say that no other book that we have ever read on an Oriental country has given us such a real sense of having visited the country and having learned something of how most of the people live. We understand also from Chinese friends that the book gives a remarkably true picture of the Chinese life which it portrays. How anybody could read the first chapter and not finish the book, is more than the reviewer can understand. It reads with a vividness that carries one through the several hundred pages in no time. Not only is it a good novel of Chinese life, but it has the additional quality of being written in English so beautiful that today it is truly rare. It is also quite reminiscent of the Bible. Although lacking in literary beauty, Sun Yat Sen, the Liberator of China (Vol. 2) by Bishop Henry B. Restarick, is an interesting companion for The Good Earth. In this brief volume Bishop Restarick tells the life story of Sun Yat Sen. Few political leaders have had a more interesting, dramatic and courageous life than has Dr. Sun. To start a revolution in America, as our colonial ancestors did, was cat's play compared with starting a revolution in an empire whose customs and traditions were as ancient and venerable as those of the Chinese Empire with its Manchurian dynasty. A rebel at heart before he was twenty years of age, Sun Yat Sen had entered into the sacred temple in his home village of Choy Hung and defaced the images. Turned out of the village, he fled to the coast and studied medicine. Shortly after becoming a doctor, however, his revolutionary ideas forced him to leave the country. A good portion of his life was spent in Japan, Hawaii, and America, raising funds and stirring up enthusiasm for the revolution. After three unsuccessful attempts, in 1911, as is well known, Dr. Sun triumphed, becoming the first president of China. Among other things, Bishop Restarick proves conclusively the formerly disputed point that Dr. Sun was born in China. It is interesting to note, incidentally, that Dr. Sun received his education as a boy at the Iolani School for Boys, which is to be the recipient of the Birthday Thank

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Offering for the next triennium. At this school, then conducted by the Church of England, Dr. Sun learned the truths of Christianity which he held throughout his life.

Books of well told and interesting stories which may be used in the Church School are so difficult to find that it is a pleasure to be able to recommend whole-heartedly Miss Hulda Niebuhr's Greatness Passing (Scribner's $1.50). Most of the stories are from the biographies of Christ-like men and women and consequently true. Another book which deals with children, but one which is meant for parental reading is Building Personality in Children by Dr. Garry C. Myers (Greenberg $2.50). In this volume the author covers a host of the problems which the parent faces in rearing a child today. The book is not a psychological treatise exploiting new-fangled ideas, but is a nice combination of modern knowledge and what the New Englander knows as "horse sense". It is a good volume to place in the hands of anyone entering the joys and trials of parenthood.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

Declaration of Utrecht

OUR closer relations with the Old Catholics may make it advisable for us to look over their official Profession of Faith as adopted in 1889.

"1—We adhere faithfully to the Rule of Faith laid down by St. Vincent of Lerins—'we hold that which has been believed everywhere, always, and by all'. For this reason we persevere in professing the faith of the primitive Church, as formulated in the oecumenic symbols and specified precisely by the unanimously accepted decisions of the Oecumenical Councils held in the undivided Church of the first thousand years.

"2—We therefore reject the decrees of the so-called Council of the Vatican, which were promulgated July 18, 1870, concerning the infallibility and the universal Episcopate of the Bishop of Rome—decrees which are in contradiction with the faith of the ancient Church, and which destroy its ancient canonical constitution by attributing to the Pope the plenitude of ecclesiastical powers over all Dioceses and over all the faithful. By denial of his primatial jurisdiction we do not wish to deny the historic primacy which several Oecumenical Councils and Fathers of the ancient Church have attributed to the Bishop of Rome by recognising him as 'Primus inter pares'.

"3—We also reject the dogma of the Immaculate Conception promulgated by Pius IX in 1854 in defiance of the Holy Scriptures and in contradiction to the tradition of the first centuries.

"4—As for other Encyclicals published by the Bishops of Rome in recent times—for example the Bulls 'Unigenitus' and 'Auctorem fidei', and the Syllabus of 1864—we reject them on all such points as are in contradiction with the doctrine of the primitive Church, and we do not recognise them as binding on the consciences of the faithful. We also renew the protests of the Catholic Church of Holland against the errors of the Roman Curia and against its attacks upon the rights of the national Churches.

"5—We refuse to accept the decrees of the Council of Trent in matters of discipline, and as for the dogmatic decisions of that Council we accept them only so far as they are in harmony with the teaching of the primitive Church.

"6—Considering that the Holy Eucharist has always been the true central point of Catholic worship, we consider it our duty to declare that we maintain with perfect fidelity the ancient Catholic doctrine concerning the Sacrament of the Altar, by believing that we receive the Body and Blood of our Saviour Jesus Christ under the species of bread and wine. The Eucharistic celebration in the Church is neither a continual repetition nor a renewal of the expiatory sacrifice which Jesus offered once for all upon the Cross; but it is a sacrifice because it is the perpetual commemoration of the sacrifice offered upon the Cross, and it is the act by which we represent upon earth and appropriate to ourselves the one offering which Jesus Christ makes in Heaven, according to the Epistle to the Hebrews IX: 11, 12, for the salvation of redeemed humanity, by appearing for us in the presence of God (Heb. IX: 24). The character of the Eucharist being thus understood, it is, at the same time, a sacrificial feast, by means of which the faithful, in receiving the Body and Blood of our Saviour, enter into communion with one another (1 Cor. 1: 17).

"7—We hope that Catholic theologians, in maintaining the faith of the undivided Church, will succeed in establishing an agreement upon questions which have been controverted ever since the divisions which have arisen between the Churches. We exhort the priests under our jurisdiction to teach, both by preaching and by the instruction of the young, especially the essential Christian truths professed by all the Christian confessions, to avoid, in discussing controverted doctrines, any violation of truth or charity, and in word and deed to set an example to the members of our Churches in accordance with the spirit of Jesus Christ our Saviour.

"8—By maintaining and professing faithfully the doctrine of Jesus Christ, by refusing to admit those errors which by the fault of men have crept into the Catholic Church, by laying aside the abuses in ecclesiastical matters, together with the worldly tendencies of the hierarchy, we believe that we shall be able to combat efficaciously the great evils of our day, which are unbelief and indifference in matters of religion."

The Lambeth Conference in 1930 adopted a resolution saying—"The Conference agrees that there is nothing in the Declaration of Utrecht inconsistent with the teaching of the Church of England".

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Missions for Children

By

LEWIS B. WHITTEMORE

THE Church School, like patriotism, is not enough. It should be supplemented in its steady year round effort by the intensive week in which the emotions are stirred and there comes a love for the things which are noble, pure, heroic, Christ-like. In other words, there is a distinct place for the right kind of a children's Mission.

Give the emotions, the feelings, the sentiments, the youthful idealisms a chance! Frankly, some of us are not afraid of the emotions and the feelings. In a reaction from a certain type of sensational revivalism, the Church has forgotten that the feelings and the affections do play a vital part in life. Especially do they play a part in the life of childhood and in the formation of character.

The right kind of a Mission for children frankly presents the good life with a certain glamour. It is given with the lure of the heroic about it. There is an atmosphere charged with a feeling tone in which the heroes of the faith seem symbols of what the children fain would be. This, I maintain, is a character forming experience for character is the result of a succession of voluntary right choices. Now here is the point: we choose in accordance with our emotions and our imaginations. The feeling of duty plays but a secondary part. The saints are saints because they wanted to be saints—not because they felt that they ought to be saints. Please pardon me if this be heresy.

There may be some Church Schools in which the atmosphere of each Sunday has this thrilling tingle and the child leaves the session with his eyes on the Holy Grail. I have not come across them, however, in my own experience. I doubt whether they exist. The Church School corresponds with the every day tone of life with its duties and disciplines. It corresponds to the vast level of experience. But, if the average Sunday experience represents the plain, provision should also be made for the mountain peak. There should be a period set apart in which the child can look at life as a whole, see its glories, admire its heroes, feel the lure of greatness, the call to follow the gleam. Here is experienced the emotional tone which will issue during the average days in that succession of right decisions and choices which mould the character of the man to be.

This argument would help but little if the proper technique for such a Mission had not been found and made available. It does exist. I refer to the Adventuring With Christ program prepared by a committee of the department of religious education of the fifth province. It works. That is my first point. The program is fitted to the heart of childhood. It understands children. It is astounding how they will come back day after day in ever increasing numbers. Astonishing, too, how it creates that atmosphere in which the ideal seems attractive and alluring.

One mother said to me, a year after I had my first mission, "Do you know, after your mission, my boy, out of a clear sky, told me that he wanted to be confirmed. He said that he felt entirely different about things after that week." There was a right voluntary choice and it was a character forming experience.

It is also astounding to find that one does not have to be a trained missioner to conduct such a children's week, if he will follow directions. Where missions fail it is because the technique recommended both for the preparation and the week itself has been neglected. Any rector who cares at all for children (and how can anyone be a professed follower of Jesus and not) can have this invigorating experience.

It seems to me to be real news that the national commission on evangelism and the Church Army, in looking for material for children, should have decided that this is the best to be found. So now these two agencies have associated themselves with our department in the use of this material. We have joined hands for the child.

Incidentally, the whole project, which has grown into a nation-wide movement from its own inherent vitality, is one answer at least to those who ask, "Can anything good come out of the provincial system." Only a provincial department could have brought together such a group of people as have produced this program and given their means whereby they were enabled to do their work.

Five mission programs have been published, the last one being called "Ambassadors for Christ." One more is now in process of being written. The Morehouse Publishing Co. is handling all the material.

A Hymn of Liberty

By

WILLIAM PEARSON MERRILL

WE KNELT before kings; we bent before lords;
For theirs were the crowns, and theirs were the swords;
But the times of the bending and bowing are past;
And the day of the people is dawning at last.

We cringed before gold; we deified wealth;
We laid on its altar the life and the health
Of manhood and womanhood, childhood and youth;
But its lordship is doomed in this day of the truth.

The strength of the State we'll lavish on more
Than making of wealth and making of war;
We are learning at last, though the lesson comes late,
That the making of man is the task of the State.

Great Day of Jehovah, prophets and seers
Have sung of thy coming thousands of years;
Thank God for each sign that the dark night is past,
And the day of the people is dawning at last.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WOMEN HAVE BEEN REAL LEADERS FOR A WARLESS WORLD

By Eleanor H. Wilson

"We believe that the existence of armaments on the present scale amongst the nations of the world endangers the maintenance of peace and imposes a needlessly heavy burden on the peoples of the world. We therefore appeal for a determined effort on the part of our government by example as well as precept to secure immediate substantial reduction, especially at the approaching and epoch-making Disarmament Conference."

So reads the final paragraph of the resolutions adopted by the Woman's Auxiliary assembled in Denver. We pledged ourselves on returning to our own communities to conscientiously strive to create an intelligent, constructive public opinion toward making world peace a reality. I wonder if others have had the same experience I have had. The president of our woman's club appointed me to take charge of the circulation of the petition in our community in favor of international disarmament, and I was amazed at the number of women who refused to sign. It is only an indication of how much work there is yet to be done along educational lines. The responsibility does not rest alone with the statesmen who will be meeting in Geneva. The opinion of each individual in the world is a vital factor in the success of the conference. The fact that President Hoover is appointing a woman representative among the delegates is a splendid tribute to those women who have so whole-heartedly worked in behalf of this great cause.

In 1926 Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, long a leader in the suffrage cause and a keen student of international affairs, conceived the idea of forming a conference of representatives of the great women's organizations of the country to formulate a study program, so that those who really wanted authentic information might have it. Thus was created the conference on the Cause and Cure of War. Numbered in its membership are: the American Association of University Women, the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America, the League of Women Voters, the Federation of Business and Professional Women, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and six other national women's organizations. During the six years of its existence it has continued to function as an educational forum. In its program each year an attempt has been made to present both points of view on any issue under discussion. In no instance has the conference advocated radical reductions in armament not compatible with safety, nor has it urged our country to abandon a sane plan of national defense. It has brought to many women in the United States a useful knowledge of economic relations among nations, international treaties existing between our own and other countries, and the principles of arbitration and conciliation.

Its particular work during the past year has been to formulate public opinion in advance of the 1932 Disarmament Conference, to insure a favorable reception of disarmament proposals and to disseminate information about the League of Nations. This year's Conference will take place in Washington, D. C. January 18-21. The general subject of the program will be "World Paradoxes" and it will deal with those problems which handicap the progress of the coming substitution of peace for war. It will be of interest to follow the reports of the Conference.

At a service held in St. Paul's, London, on December 15th, dedicated to the success of the Disarmament Conference, the Archbishop of Canterbury said:

"The Conference which meets at Geneva in February will be the most momentous assembly since the peace conference. More than 10 years have passed, yet in spite of all the reductions achieved at the naval conferences in Washington and London, the level of armaments remain as high as ever. Our country will enter the conference in a position of strong moral authority. She has already made more substantial reductions than any other country. Many think she has already reached the lowest point consistent with her safety and obligations."

Let it be one of our New Year's resolutions to set ourselves to learn more about the institutions now functioning for the peaceful settlement of international difficulties, "to create a public opinion which will eliminate fear psychology and bring about the peace of the world and the union of Christendom through the Church of Christ."

NEW DIOCESE NAMED ROCHESTER

They have voted to call the new diocese in New York "Rochester" after the see city. But it wasn't a walk away I can assure you, the debate being long and often snappy before "Rochester" was decided upon after three ballots and then winning by but one vote. The name of "Genesee" a regional name in western New York was fought for valiantly by a considerable group. The new diocese has 69 parishes and missions, 48 parochial clergy and 13 non-parochial.

BROTHERHOOD IN JAPAN OUTLINE FINE PROGRAM

By Paul Rusch

Following the organization of a National Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Japan on St. Andrew's Day, a comprehensive program of activities was planned by the leaders of this young organization. In addition to planning for an annual national convention, to be held in a different diocese of Japan each year, there will also be a diocesan conference or convention covering a week end, in each of the dioceses. A summer leadership training camp is to be founded and will operate during the months of July and August, in weekly periods for groups of twenty-five or more members of the Brotherhood. The camp will have a chapel, dining hall, and living quarters, and will carry on a full program of educational, devotional, athletic, and recreational activities, as a part of the leadership training program of the national organization.

For the local parish chapters the following four-fold annual program has been developed: (1) Church Attendance Campaign; during the four Sundays of Advent each year, after careful planning and organization some weeks in advance, a parish-wide church attendance campaign is to be conducted. Every member of the parish will be asked to promise to make an earnest effort to attend church service on each of these four Sundays and, on the closing Sunday, to bring someone else with him.

(2) Bible Classes; through the Epiphany and Lenten seasons, short term Bible classes, or intensive effort in connection with a permanent Bible class, are to be carried on. An endeavor will be made to enlist all the men and boys within the influence of the parish in Bible study.

(3) Family Prayer Campaign; from Easter to Trinity, each year, there will be an organized effort, indicated by sermons by the parish priest, to enlist every member in the parish in the practice of regular family prayer, including the reading of the Scripture, prayer, and grace at table.

(4) Men's and Boys' Communion; with the resumption of activities in the early autumn, through the months of September, October and November, an effort will be made to develop a strong monthly men's communion on the third Sunday of each month, sponsored by the Brotherhood Chapter but reaching the men and boys of the parish generally, and culminating (but not ceasing) with the annual church-wide corporate communion on the first Sunday in Advent.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

TRINITY CHURCH HONORS THE GREAT PHILLIPS BROOKS

Each year on the Sunday nearest the anniversary of Phillips Brooks' birthday a special service is held in Trinity Church, Boston, in his memory. As time passes it becomes more difficult to find men who knew Dr. Brooks or who had the privilege of hearing him preach. Especially happy was the choice this year by the rector, the Rev. A. L. Kinsolving, of the great Congregational preacher, formerly pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, Dr. Charles E. Jefferson. Having heard Brooks while studying near Boston, Dr. Jefferson came so strongly under his influence that as a result he decided to give his life to the Church. Persons who have listened to these commemoration sermons for many years report that Dr. Jefferson delivered one of the most memorable which has ever been heard from the famous old pulpit.

* * *

The Pilgrim Press Book Store at 14 Beacon Street in Boston recently opened a Children's Corner where everything which is being published to aid in the worship and devotional life of little children is on display. Within a small doorway is a beautiful small altar exquisitely decorated to make a chapel especially appealing to children. It will be helpful in showing people how to construct such a corner in a church or parish house and already has been seen by many visitors.

* * *

A committee of leading citizens has been formed in Boston to correlate the information which is available in regard to crime. It is called "The Citizens Committee on the Cause and Cure of Crime" and held its first meeting on December 8. Among the Episcopalians on the Committee are: Bishops Lawrence and Sherrill, Mrs. Charles L. Slattery and Prof. Francis B. Sayre of the Harvard Law School.

* * *

The topic of the evening at the winter meeting of the Episcopalian Club in Boston on Dec. 14, was "The Church and Youth" and addresses were given by Pres. Sills of Bowdoin and Dr. Kinsolving of Trinity and formerly of Grace Church, Amherst.

* * *

Early in December the friends of the House of the Good Samaritan in Boston, a hospital devoted particularly to caring for children, were gratified in seeing a new wing dedicated.

* * *

A meeting was held in December in Ford Hall in the interest of the starving families of the striking miners in Kentucky. A Harvard graduate student and Churchman writes of the meeting: "Arnold Johnson, a third year man at the Union Theological Seminary, gave a very clear account of the hideous brutalities he had observed on the part of the coal operators . . . Others spoke well . . . I was horrified at the plight of these families, about which I confess I had only a hazy notion. Failing direct experience, we certainly do need detailed facts, presented by first hand observers, to shock us out of ignorance of the terrible conditions in certain parts of this country and others".

G. M. D.

WILLIAM P. S. LANDER
Rector at West Palm Beach

ST. PAUL'S NEW MISSION

They have had a difficult time figuring out the name of a mission located six miles from Amherst, Virginia. It was founded in 1908 by Mr. Arthur P. Gray, Jr., then a seminary student. For a time it was known as the "Indian Mission" due to the people to whom it ministered. Then it was consecrated by the late Bishop Tucker as "St. Paul's" but somehow or other when the Bishop's diary was published in the next diocesan journal the report of the consecration gave it the name of "Christ Church". So through all subsequent records it was put down as "Christ Mission". The chapel was burned a year ago and there was found in the corner stone a printed service for the "Laying of the Corner stone of St. Paul's Chapel". A new chapel was constructed and was consecrated this fall as St. Paul's, so St. Paul's it is to remain unless matters are again bawled up by someone. Miss B. W. Savage is missionary-in-charge.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

If you could announce to the people of your community, during the coming day of the international conference on disarmament, that meetings were to be held in your parish house to discuss these vital matters I rather imagine there would be a good response. If on top of that you told them that these meetings were to be addressed by seven or eight of the foremost authorities in the country I doubt if your parish house would be large enough to take care of the crowds.

We can't deliver these authorities to you in person unfortunately. However during this coming Lent they are going to send messages to you through a series of articles on "The Christian Way Out" in which they will deal with the present international and economic crisis. And I can assure you that these articles come to you from real experts. We will announce their names presently and then you can judge that matter for yourself.

The world is in a sorry mess. We all seem to agree as to that. We also want leadership. There are many who say that the Church can supply none. It is for us to demonstrate that the Church can.

Here is the suggestion I have to make. Organize a study group in your parish this coming Lent to discuss these subjects. They are alive, not only because of the times in which we are living, but also because the disarmament conference will be bringing them to the front. THE WITNESS will supply the leadership for your study group through this series of articles. And when you see the names of those who are to contribute to the series I know that you will agree that we have lined up the best brains in the country. There are Christian answers to the many problems that face us. Let us, together, this coming Lent see if we cannot find out what they are.

In addition to this series we are to begin, with the first Lenten Number of February 11th, a series of articles on "The Story of the Church" written by Bishop Johnson. I do not have to tell you much about that. You who have been readers of THE WITNESS know how instructive and entertaining he can make any series of articles, particularly on such a subject.

Plan now for a WITNESS Bundle during Lent. The cost is but four cents a copy for Lenten Bundles, and less when the bundle is taken for a longer period. There will be further announcements about all this, but since Lent comes very early this year I thought I had better pass the word along now so that you can plan accordingly.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

In past years the New York branch of the Church Mission of Help went in for theatre parties. This year instead of a party, on which they received a percentage on the sale of seats, they sent out "no performance" notices to their many friends and asked them to send the price of their ticket to help the ever increasing work of the society. They are selling tickets for this Stay-at-Home benefit at $25 for box seats; $15 for orchestra seats and $5 for balcony seats which makes me wonder what theatre they ordinarily go to. My limit is generally $1.10, though I do remember paying $1.65 for a seat to "The Green Pastures" since I couldn't get in for less. Well it is all a grand idea, paying for a ticket and then sitting before your own fire at home, particularly if it works. It is a worthy cause and I wish them luck.

* * *

There is an advertisement on the back page of this issue which I am sure will be of interest to many rectors and Altar Guilds. The Mary Fawcett Company, which has been serving people throughout the Church for many years, and is well known to THE WITNESS, is now offering Pure Irish Linens at prices that have not been equalled since before the war. I am no authority on Linens but the samples sent to us were examined by a man who is and he assures me that they are wonderful buys. It is a great chance to lay in a supply if you need vestments of Altar Linens.

* * *

Reports have it that Christmas services this year were unusually well attended. The weather throughout the country was unusually mild—almost too mild for Christmas—but it was perhaps partly responsible for the crowds.

* * *

Bishop Lawrence has resigned as the president of the Church Pension Fund. The annual meeting was held the other day in New York and he said that, being eighty-two years of age, he thought it should be turned over to another man. Resolutions were adopted expressing appreciation for the eminent services which Bishop Lawrence had rendered in leading from the beginning the entire movement for the establishment of the pension system, and in supervising the fifteen years of its very successful operation. Mr. William Fellowes Morgan of New York was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Morgan has been a trustee since the beginning of the Fund and has always been prominent in Church affairs, having been a deputy to three General Conventions, a trustee of the General Seminary, trustee of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and a vestryman of St. George's, New York.

* * *

Bishop Stewart of Chicago was at the Cathedral Shelter for Christmas day services. After the service he went down a long line of fully 1000 unemployed men who had gathered outside to await their turn for dinner. The Shelter serves hundreds, and in addition sent out 2400 Christmas baskets to families.

* * *

Out of the Young People's Service League at Holy Trinity Mission, Wallace, Idaho, seventeen members went away to the university this year. Handicapped by the loss, but undismayed, the League will soon be active again. The Church Club in Moscow, where the state University is situated, had fifty-four at its first meeting and more to come.

* * *

Rather late with this—even at that I rather have an idea we reported it before. In any case there was an anniversary service at St. Paul's, Syracuse, N. Y., recently when about 1000 people turned out to do honor to the Rev. Henry H. Hadley, rector there for fifteen years. Bishop Johnson of Colorado was the preacher.

* * *

The Holiday House of the Girls' Friendly Society at White Lake, N. Y., has been improved to the extent of $1000 worth.

* * *

I dislike begging but when you receive a telegram picturing distressing conditions there is nothing to do but pass it on. I have just received a wire from the Rev. James Myers, industrial secretary of the Federal Council of Churches as follows: "Tour of inspection coal fields West Virginia and Kentucky reveals alarming need. Children are without clothing. Saw them barefoot in snow. Some evicted families living in tents. Sickness is taking its toll. Starvation is stalking this country. Hot lunches served by Quakers already show good results but money is urgently needed if their work is to be carried on." We have told you the story of the mining fields of West Virginia before so there is no need to repeat that story. If any of you are able to send funds, and wish to have them go through Church channels, they should be sent to the Church League for Industrial Democracy, which has been assisting with the relief since last Spring. If you have clothing to send, particularly children's, send it to the American Friends Service Committee, Morgantown, West Virginia.

* * *

The Rev. John Edward Kinney was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Fiske on December 23rd, the service being held at Christ Church, Binghampton. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. DeL. Scovil, rector of the Good Shepherd, Binghampton.

* * *

Dr. Miriam Van Waters, an authority of international reputation on social service and kindred subjects, for a number of years the judge of the juvenile court in Los Angeles, has become the head of the Sherborn Reformatory for Women in Massachusetts. Dr. Van Waters, a Churchwoman, was the president of the National Conference on Social Work in 1930, a rare distinction for anyone and particularly for a woman, since few have held the office. Friends of Dr. Van Waters let it be known some months ago that she was available for new work, and many hoped that she might be chosen for social service work of a definitely Church character but nothing ever came of it. The Church is unquestionably the loser.

* * *

One of the first activities reported by the newly formed National Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Japan was the securing of a number of subscriptions to the National Church Weeklies in this country, through the Brotherhood's subscription campaign for this purpose. It is expected that this effort will be continued and repeated from year to year, as it is the desire of Brotherhood leaders in Japan to keep their membership fully informed on general Church activities.

* * *

Mr. Lu is a Chinese gentleman in Chicago who operates a restaurant. Dance music is broadcast from his place each evening. On Christmas Eve however, though Mr. Lu is not a

CLERICAL SKETCHES

THE Rev. William P. S. Lander is the rector of Holy Trinity Church, West Palm Beach, Florida, where he is doing an exceptionally fine piece of work, particularly with young people. Mr. Lander was born in Brooklyn, New York, attended Trinity School, New York City, later taking his academic degree at Columbia University. He graduated from the General Seminary in 1915. His first charge was at Dunton, New York, leaving there to become the rector at Glendale, N. Y., where he remained until 1924. Since going to Florida he has played a leading part in diocesan and in community affairs.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Christian, he donated the time on the air which he purchases for the broadcasting of the midnight service of the Church of Our Saviour.

* * *

Dean Powell of the Pacific Divinity School is leaving on a six months' trip to the Holy Land. The trip has been made possible partly through the contributions of a number of friends who are members of Dean Powell's Bible classes.

* * *

Fully a thousand people attended the annual service of lights held on December 20th at Christ Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The service was in behalf of social welfare and was attended by many social workers. The address was made by Mr. Monell Sayre who made an appeal for enlightened and consecrated individualism. The offering was for the associated charities of the city.

* * *

Mr. George H. Lewis, vestryman of Christ Church, Norfolk, Va., has been awarded the gold medal presented each year by a club of the city "for distinguished continued service to the community in promoting the civic and social welfare, and especially for services rendered for relief of the unemployed during the year 1931."

* * *

The Rev. Harold F. Bache was advanced to the priesthood on December 31st by Bishop Wing at All Saints', Fort Lauderdale, Florida, where he is in charge.

* * *

They are trying the experiment of a Church school at eleven o'clock for a small group at Grace Church, New York. The children come with their parents, remaining with them at the service through the first lesson. They then go to the parish house for an hour of instruction. Miss Dorothy Williams, in charge, writes: "The eleven o'clock hour is chosen, not for convenience in transportation, but particularly so that the children may be a part in worship as a common human experience. There is a difference between being sent to Sunday School and coming to church with the members of the group with which you live.

"It is around this idea of religion being an integral part of their lives that the plan for these children is being built. Since they are ready to think and to feel wonder, and no one does either of these things more directly than children of this age, we hope to help them in their religious growth through these abilities. But it must be the kind of food for growth that means something vital to them now. So we want to make as much as we can of the being together of the group, finding the religious content in situations that are in their play and work together. There should be growth in learning to make judgments about fairness, leadership, sharing, etc., that come up continually between Mary and John and David. The material of everyday life will be added to that of the beautiful stories of ethical content that we have in our religious history. That situations to make class material do arise in and out of the children's thinking was evident on the first Sunday.

"All in a few minutes on that Sunday we plunged into questions of race prejudice, the use of force and war, and of creation. Mary said, 'There are so many things I want to know. Who made the first things, for instance? I ask and I ask and I never get any answer because nobody knows.' She was much interested in the talk that followed about the first houses and how men lived before that and felt the thrill of the history of men learning to manage their environment. John said, 'I am drawing a cannon.' Someone said, I wonder why you like that so much.' 'I can kill people with it,' he said. 'Now that's funny too,' said Mary.

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

was established by the Trustees of the Church Pension Fund and is operated under their supervision for the benefit of clergymen and their families and lay-workers and their families of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

A life insurance policy,—a simple, direct contract,—with a reputable insurance company, gives one a feeling of security not inherent in other investments. Financial depressions, business conditions or other considerations will not affect the value of an insurance policy at some unknown future date. It will be paid immediately in cash in accordance with the terms of the contract. Or payments by installments can be arranged for.

The facilities of this corporation are placed at the disposal of clergymen and their families and lay-workers and their families. Its rates are NET RATES, without loading. It has also established the practice of making substantial annual refunds, which reduce the cost of insurance still further.

It has no agents, but it invites correspondence which should be addressed to

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

20 EXCHANGE PLACE—NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CALVERT-HERRICK
& RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City

—o—

STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC
AND . CHURCH
DECORATION

—o—

CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS
IN . MARBLE . STONE
WOOD . AND
METAL

CHURCH ORGANS
Hook & Hastings Co.
Main Office and Works:
KENDAL GREEN, MASS.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassacks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 22rd St., New York

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 · The Oval · London · S.E.11 · England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE
1931 Brochure
Limited edition
will be forwarded upon application from the Clergy

'Why do you want to kill people?' John thought for a minute. 'Well, I could kill the colored people.' 'Why?' he was asked. 'Because I don't like them, that's all I guess, just like the Pilgrims.' Here were several leads for following up in understanding.

"In addition to using the exploring mind and its desire to find truth, we want to feed that awareness there is in children of things spiritual, a sense of wonder and of reverence, spontaneous and not based on fear. We hope to make the most of situations when we feel the love that is around us, when we will share together experiences of fellowship in joy and thankfulness, in kindness in the fun of giving and sharing, in the thrill of discovering the beauty in life."

* * *

The Rev. George S. Gresham, rector of the Ascension, Norfolk, Va., was recently elected chairman of the Norfolk Clericus for 1932.

* * *

William Spear Knebel, whom I have erroneously referred to in the past as the Rev. Spear Knebel, was ordained deacon on December 21st by Bishop Stires. The service was held at Grace Church and the Rev. George Parkin Atwater preached. Mr. Knebel is a very live young man who is the social service secretary of the diocese of Long Island. The Rev. Joseph E. Mills, Jr. and the Rev. Louis S. Luisa were ordained priests at the same service.

* * *

Christ Church, Greenwich, Connecticut, have secured the Rev. John H. Chapman and the Rev. Clarence R. Wagner to act as priests-in-charge pending the election of a new rector to succeed Bishop Budlong.

* * *

Bishop Stewart was the speaker at the Christmas service of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club on the 27th. Bishop Anderson had given the address at this service for a number of years and in introducing Bishop Stewart the president of the club paid a tribute to the late Presiding Bishop. Many hundreds of people attend the meetings of the club which are held each Sunday evening in a large auditorium in the Chicago Loop. The speakers are always internationally known men and women.

* * *

A beautiful children's service was held at the Cathedral, Albany, N. Y., Christmas Eve when the story "When the Chimes Rang" was told by the Rev. Charles F. Brooks and enacted by the children at the creche. The organ chimes pealed as their gifts of money were laid on the parcel gifts brought for several children's institutions.

* * *

Canon Adye Prichard, convalescing

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
by
BISHOP JOHNSON
Formerly 50c a copy. Now 20c a copy as long as present edition lasts. $2.00 for a dozen copies.

Any Book Reviewed May Be Secured from
WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO, ILL.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

Home for Convalescents
St. Raphael's, Monterey, Tenn.
Large house. All conveniences. Altitude 2200 feet. In hundred acre park. Chalybeate water. Private rooms. Steam heat. Chapel. Library. Registered nurse. Quiet neighborhood. No radio. No T.B. or mental cases. Good roads. Good food. Moderate rates. Address Rector, St. Raphael's, Monterey, Tenn.

Clergyman, 39 years old; experience in parish work; also 5 years in teaching and religious work in boys' school. Desires work as school chaplain. Write Box B, The Witness. 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

from a serious infection which has had him laid up since early summer, is now on a cruise to the West Indies. He is to return the middle of this month and will be back on his job at Mt. Kisco, N. Y., but will have to take it very easy, his doctors say, throughout the winter.

* * *

The old buildings of the Berkeley Divinity School in Middletown, Connecticut, are being torn down and new buildings, to rent as commercial establishments, are to be constructed at once. The new property is to be managed by officers of the school and it is hoped that the income from the venture will be substantial. Meanwhile on the new property of the school in New Haven an extension is being made to the library.

* * *

The new St. John's church at Sandy Hook, Connecticut, was dedicated last month by Bishop Acheson. The original church was destroyed by fire two years ago. Immediately following announcement of plans to build a new church the young people of the parish manifested a lively interest and have made generous contributions to the fund which made the present building possible.

* * *

Stanley F. Hemsley and Lynde E. May were ordained deacons by Bishop Acheson at the Epiphany, New Haven, on December 20th. The Rev. Fleming James of the Berkeley Divinity School faculty was the preacher.

* * *

The last of the chancel windows in the Ascension, Mount Vernon, N. Y. was dedicated on December 20th, completing the series, all of which have been made by James Powell and Sons (Whitefriars) of London.

* * *

The Rev. William E. Cox of Bisbee, Arizona, was stricken with paralysis while preaching on a Sunday this fall. He has since been confined to the hospital where he has shown marked improvement.

* * *

The Rev. Q. E. Primo, colored priest of Georgia, has resigned as vicar at Albany and Hawkinsville, to accept a call to Delray and associated missions in Southern Florida. Mr. Primo has done splendid work in Georgia, both for the Church and for the communities which he has served.

* * *

Leaders in religious education in the 5th province are to meet at Brent House, Chicago, January 11 and 12, under the auspices of the national department of religious education. This is one of a series of such conferences that the national department is holding.

* * *

Do you know what a "mummers" service is? Neither do I. But they had one at Holy Trinity, Chicago, last week. It is patterned after a service held in the little town of Tenby, Wales. The service in Chicago was featured by the presence of Mr. Walter Kilday, expert bagpiper. Awful, bagpipes, I think, but then I presume some folks like them.

* * *

A reunion of those who attended

Just Issued

GENERAL CHURCH PROGRAM

1932 - 1933 - 1934 and Triennial Report of the National Council 1929-1931

A 220-page Book Presenting

The World-wide Work of the National Council, Its Departments, Auxiliaries, and Co-operating Agencies

Revised in accordance with the action of General Convention

Price 25 Cents

THE BOOK STORE

CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE

281 FOURTH AVENUE - - - - - - - - - NEW YORK

LITTLE BOOKS

The Personal Christ
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

History of the Church
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Evolution
By BISHOP STEWART
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Foundation Stones
By BISHOP ABBOTT
Now 75c (formerly $1.25)

Quest of the Sangreal
By IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

The Way of Life
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Lenten Addresses
By DEAN HIGH MOOR
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

Meaning of the Real Presence
By G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY
A new edition of a tract which has been in great demand.
5c a copy.

American Shrines in England
By A. MANBY LLOYD
$1.25 a copy

Cushioned Pews
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 75c (formerly $1.75)
Forty of his editorials selected by a committee as being his best. Fine for layreaders.

CASH WITH ORDERS PLEASE

Any books reviewed can be secured from us at publishers prices.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

the Sycamore Conference, diocese of Chicago, last summer, was held at Christ Church, Chicago, on January 3rd. Afternoon reception, a supper, and speeches by Bishop Stewart and the Rev. LeRoy Burroughs of Ames, Iowa.

* * *

There are 26 students this year at Seabury Divinity School. Of these nine are doing pre-theological studying at Carleton College.

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Kramer, warden of Seabury Divinity School, resigned last June and his resignation became effective the first of this year. Bishop Keeler is serving as acting dean until a new dean is elected. As the boss there is to be a dean hereafter and not a warden—a change for the better I think.

* * *

The first Church Army Men's Auxiliary has been organized. Captain Mountford went recently to Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., spoke to the men's club and as a result nineteen men agreed to stand back of the Army by prayer, influence and financial aid.

* * *

There is a men's club at Montrose, N. Y., consisting of about 75 fellows, now engaged on the very useful enterprise of building a guild hall; doing the job themselves of course.

* * *

Have you an old furnace in your parish? If it is old enough you might get it in the great Smithsonian Institute in Washington along side Lindbergh's plane and other famous relics. One that was used in Christ Church, Tarrytown, N. Y. as far back as 1836 was such a relic that it was recently given this honor.

* * *

The Rev. Bertram J. Mortlock was ordained priest on December 20th by Bishop Manning at Christ Church, Pelham Manor, N. Y. The candidate who is 53 years old, was a layreader for many years.

* * *

The Episcopal Actors' Guild, of which George Arliss, famous actor, is president, has expressed itself as definitely opposed to Sunday performances. There has been a move in that direction recently, due to the financial difficulties that many producers have run into during the past couple of years.

* * *

The new bishop of North Dakota surely was well consecrated. Fifteen bishops participated in the laying on of hands. They might have had a little General Convention of their own up there in Fargo had they been so inclined.

* * *

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Brotherhood

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

THE REDDING MASONIC SUPPLY CO., Inc.

200 Fifth Ave. Est. 1859 New York
Prayer Books - Hymnals - Bibles
Books of All Publishers
Masonic Books and Supplies
Write for circulars and special terms to clergy

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

of St. Andrew has been called for Saturday, January 9th in Philadelphia, to be preceded by a conference of the Young Men's Division Committee. At the meeting plans for the coming year's work will be considered with especial reference to the series of older boys' conferences being arranged for on the Pacific Coast, in the Middle West, and in New England.

A dinner at which Courtenay Barber of Chicago, president of the National Brotherhood, will be the guest of honor, will be given in Washington on Thursday, January 7th, and a similar dinner in Philadelphia, at the University Club, on Friday, January 8th.

* * *

On the Second Sunday in Advent, the Rt. Rev. Robert Nelson Spencer, Bishop of West Missouri, confirmed a class of 73 candidates in St. Andrew's Church, Kansas City. Through a series of parish dinners the candidates were brought together by committees from parish organizations and sponsored by individuals so that the contacts were equally made by the laity and clergy alike. The preparation for the dinners was unique inasmuch as no set charge was made for the dinners but a silver offering was taken to defray the necessary expense which in each case more than covered the cost of the dinner. Reservations were taken and an average of over 200 was made for each of the eight dinners. Through a prepared instruction and a question box many vital and pertinent questions relating to the Episcopal Church were discussed and answered in a convincing and authoratative manner by the rector. During the fiscal year of 1931 St. Andrew's has added one hundred and eleven communicants by confirmation and fifty-two by transfer, a total of 163. The Rev. James P. DeWolfe is the rector.

* * *

The biography of the late Bishop of Vermont, the Rt. Rev. Arthur C. A. Hall, written by the Very Rev. George L. Richardson, dean of the Cathedral of All Saints, Albany, is announced on sale shortly after the first of the year. The title of the book is, Arthur C. A. Hall, and the introduction has been written by the Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander. Dean Richardson was an intimate friend and close associate of the late Bishop of Vermont, and spent the summer following the bishop's death in his house at Rock Point, Burlington, where he had access to the library and papers of Bishop Hall in preparing material for his biographical volume. In addition to these advantages, Dean Richardson possesses gifts of penetrating analysis, personal appreciation and literary charm that promise a thorough and beautiful writing of the life of Bishop Hall.

* * *

Rhode Island takes care of its retired clergy who have served it for 22 years, in such generous fashion that the diocese always has an unusually large number of aged rectors, many of whom have presided over one church for a great many years. Through a fund of $234,000, the diocese permits these clergymen to retire at the age of 65, which is three years earlier than the age permitted by the General Pension Fund and pro-

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.

Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature

18 West 45th Street, New York

"FOR THE LOVE OF MANKIND"

is the title of a carefully written, beautifully illustrated brochure, which describes how thousands of churches have satisfied the spiritual hunger of the hard of hearing . . . Upon request, we will send you a FREE copy.

Dictograph Products Co., Inc., Dept. 47T
220 West 42nd Street. New York, N. Y.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: 8 and 11 A. M.
Holy Days: 7:30 and 11 A. M.

The Transfiguration, New York
"The Little Church Around the Corner"
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Sundays: 8 and 9 A. M. (Daily 7:30) 11 A. M. Missa Cantata and Sermon 4 P. M. Vespers and Adoration Thurs., Fri., and Saints' Days, 2d Mass at 10.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church
Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean Francis S. White, D.D.
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

vides an annuity of $600. At 68, clergy in this class receive upon retirement an annuity sufficient to raise the combined pensions of General Church and Diocese to a minimum of $1500. It is provided also that upon the death of any clergyman, no matter how long his term of service in the diocese his widow be given a sum of money to bring her combined pensions up to $750; the allowances for orphans are as follows: under 7 years $200, between 7 and 14, $150, between 14 and 21, $100. The schedule in these classes for the General Church is $100, $200 and $300 respectively. There are now eight clergymen receiving the two pensions and nine widows and four orphans.

* * *

There follows certain items of recent news from various sections of this wide-spread territory of early times.

Up in the northeast section lies the district of Spokane, with Bishop Cross in charge. In the city of Spokane they have a beautiful new cathedral under way, about half completed, known as the cathedral of St. John the Evangelist. The completed portion, in use for more than a year past, already is serving as a real missionary asset among the people of that section. The district, not unmindful of its duties to others, last year gave $6,000 to the work of the general Church.

* * *

Writing in the Christmas number of The Oregon Trail Churchman, The Rt. Rev. Wm. P. Remington, says: "Nothing can save our civilization but the honest effort to take Christmas seriously. It means love and peace, giving not getting, the power of a life laid down, a child cradled in a manger. The majesty of man is not what he has but what he is, not his earthly possessions but the spiritual treasure of his eternal relationship to God." Not a bad sauce for some of us to serve with our New Year's pudding!

* * *

In its announcement of thirty-one "Awards of Merit," given during the year 1931, the Order of the Sangreal, shows the name of Mr. Blaine B. Coles, Chancellor of the Diocese of Oregon. The award is made for "Service Among the Negroes."

For a number of years past Mr. Coles has served the Colored members of the Church in Portland, as Lay reader, rendering faithful service Sunday on Sunday, through rain or shine. His efforts have been rewarded not only by the friendship of these people, but by the development of a group of workers; a fine Church school; a congregation of more than fifty communicants, and church property in a splendid condition, valued at $7,000, a work not to be accomplished save by such faithful service as he has rendered. Mr. Coles, still a young man, is an attorney associated with the Securities department of one of Portland's leading banks. His is the type of character that gives promise for a new day, when the world recovers from its present spell of dizziness and frozen assets.

* * *

Word from Mississippi states that the results of the annual parish canvass were distressing beyond measure. Drought, bank failures, low priced cotton, with increasing demands for the relief of people both cold and hungry are the reasons given.

* * *

Clerical changes in Chicago; the Rev. J. H. Scambler, Belvidere, has accepted the rectorship of St. Christopher's, Oak Park; Gardiner A. MacWhorter, assistant at St. Luke's, has accepted the rectorship of Calvary, Batavia.

For the Sacristy

NOW you have a new opportunity to provide your Church with ample supplies of fresh, beautiful PURE IRISH LINEN at lowest cost since 1913. Low sterling exchange has enabled us to offer Double Discounts from our Regular Importers Price List while these conditions continue. It is wise to act promptly.

Linens for Surplices, Eucharistic Vestments, Altar Linens; all of the same high standard of excellence which has won us customers in every Diocese during the past eleven years. We have proven our value to them, why not to you . . . . . Now.

SAMPLES and LIST
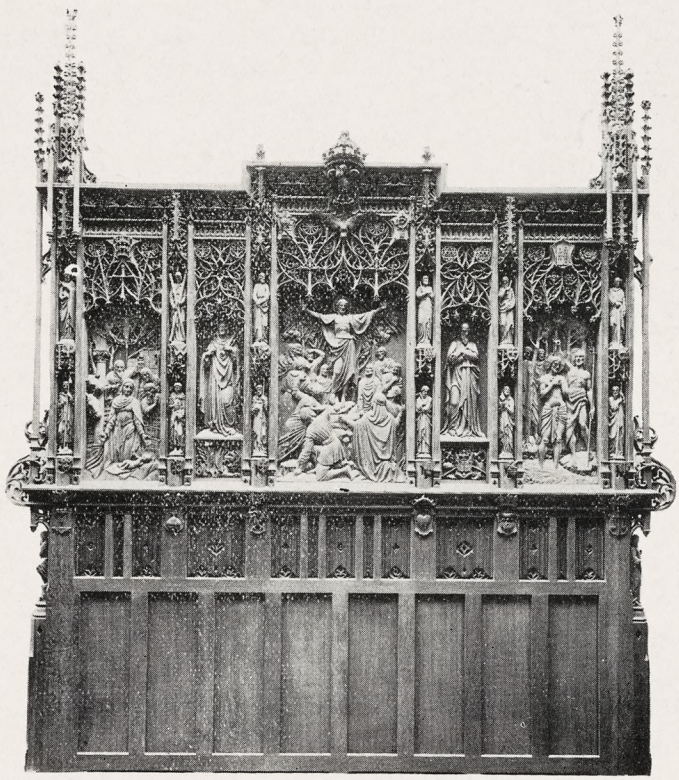
ON REQUEST



Mary Fawcett Company

Box 146 Plainfield, N. J.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JANUARY 14, 1932

NEW REREDOS
Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, Michigan

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
ECCLESIASTICAL
METAL WORK
Altar Crosses Vases
Candlesticks Chalices
Missal Stands
Ciboria Processional
Crosses
Particulars from
Vestments
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept.
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

Distinctive Church Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 21 JANUARY 14, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE LIGHT STILL SHINES

By
DU BOSE MURPHY

JUST a little over eight years ago, I sat in the great Auditorium in Indianapolis, at the opening session of the Student Volunteer Convention. Studdert-Kennedy ("Woodbine Willie") was speaking as only he could speak. And I shall never forget the half-wistful, half-triumphant ring in his voice as he said, "The Light still shines in the darkness, and the darkness—oh, thank God—cannot swallow it up. It still shines."

Has Christianity lost its radiance? Not so long as there are human lives who reveal its glory in the world. And I can think of names faster than I can write them down, names of those who have brought the light to this generation. There was Studdert-Kennedy himself, through whom the light never failed to shine. There were Charles Henry Brent and Lucien Lee Kinsolving, who carried the radiance of Christ to foreign lands, and William Hoke Ramsaur who shone no less brightly for the shortness of his day on earth. There were Henry B. Wright and George Hodges, who not only taught men about Christ but who also demonstrated Him in their lives.

Nor can I forget those who are still on this earth, for the saints are not by any means all on the other side. There is Wilfred Grenfell in Labrador and Stanley Jones in India, Albert Schweitzer in Africa and Logan Herbert Roots in China, Kagawa in Japan and Vida D. Scudder in America.

"And these are only a couple of names from a list of a thousand score
Who have put their glory on the world . . ."

For I know many others, some prominent and some humble, in whose lives Christ is a present force. And I mention some by name, not by way of drawing comparisons but simply in order to make the picture definite and contemporary.

In fact, I think that the Twentieth Century comes out pretty well when we compare it with the First. The men and women of whom I have already spoken are in themselves rather convincing evidence that the Light still shines, that Christianity has not wholly lost its radiance. It is very easy to idealize the past. The world has always been going to the dogs, and men often fail to remember that the human mind tends to attribute to the past an honor which it will not give to the present. I have no quarrel with the men of the First Century; I am very grateful to them for many things, not the least of which is the presence of human weakness.

TAKE the Letters to the Seven Churches, for example. Why are so many series of sermons preached about them? Because they are so contemporary—so full of warnings against worldliness and apathy and sensuality and spiritual slackness. Only two out of the seven get off without a sharp rebuke. Or, read the Epistle of James and you will find that even in the First Century the rich and well-dressed were likely to be ushered up to the best seats, and that faith sometimes failed to issue in good works. Or, go back earlier to the days of Paul. Paul spent a year and a half in Corinth, surely long enough to have imparted some of the first principles of the Gospel. But read his letters to the Corinthians and you will be surprised to learn that there was strife and jealousy, self-indulgence and immorality, right inside the church, even after the careful teaching of the great Apostle.

But you may say that the degeneration had already set in, that I should look at the Gospels and the early chapters of Acts, when the influence of Jesus was at its height. All right, what do I find?—the disciples disputing who was the greatest, falling asleep in Gethsemane and then running away in the face of danger. I find them rebuking Bartimaeus for bothering the Master, and criticizing Peter for eating with the gentile Cornelius. Instead of going into all the world, I find the Apostles still living in Jerusalem years after the Ascension and turning a rather cold shoulder to the missionary enthusiasts Barnabas and Paul.

I do not think that Jesus had an easy time of it, nor did He foresee a quick and speedy triumph for His followers. He warned them, "If they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also." There is much comfort in those words. If Jesus Himself did not succeed in convincing everybody, why should the Church today be blamed for failing to convert the whole world? "A disciple is not above his teacher, nor a servant above his lord."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

AS a matter of fact, the First Century is surprisingly like the Twentieth. And the truth of it all is that in both—and in the centuries in between—we have human, very human nature.

"Our Padre, 'e says I'm a sinner,
And John Bull says I'm a saint,
And they're both of 'em bound to be liars,
For I'm neither of them, I ain't.
I'm a man, and a man's a mixture,
Right down from 'is very birth,
For part ov 'im comes from 'eaven,
And part ov 'im comes from earth.
There's nothing in man that's perfect,
And nothing that's all complete;
'E's nubbat a big beginning,
From 'is 'ead to the soles of 'is feet.
There's summat as draws 'im uppards,
And summat as drags 'im down,
And the consekence is, 'e wabbles
'Twixt muck and a golden crown . . ."

And there is muck in every century, and—thank God—there are many golden crowns.

That is the challenge and the opportunity of the present day. There is a lot of muck for us all to clean up, and all around us there are brave men and women hard at work with brooms and shovels. God has never left Himself without a witness. We do not have to go back to the First Century to recapture any "lost radiance" of our religion. Nor should we sit down under a juniper tree and forget the knees that have done homage to Baal. When Paul drew near to Rome, he found brethren there already coming to greet him, and when he saw them he thanked God and took courage. When we face the tasks which God places before His Church today, we do well to remember that "The Light still shines in the darkness, and the darkness—oh, thank God—cannot swallow it up. It still shines."

Family Life

ON THE subject of Family Life, the findings committee of the Woman's Auxiliary triennial convention (Mrs. Robert Happ of South Bend, Ind., chairman) presented the following report:

Why the study of family life? Because the family unit has the central place in the scheme of life.

What is a family? A family as the phrase is usually accepted is considered to include a man and a woman living together in marriage, with or without children.

Recognizing the fact that there are both happy and unhappy families, it was considered what elements contribute to each type.

It was found that the following factors tend to make for unhappy families:

1. Lack of preparation for marriage. 2. Sexual maladjustment. 3. Selfishness. 4. Economic problems. 5. Family interference. 6. False values. 7. Intemperance of any kind. 8. Psychological factors, such as lack of balance, and fear in all its forms.

Out of these varying situations comes the question, when is separation justifiable?

Each soul is born with a definite mission in life and a duty to perform. If through contacts of marriage one's self-respect be undermined and one's usefulness to God and fellow man destroyed separation or even divorce may be necessary.

Though the Church will ever uphold her high standard of marriage, it is believed that she will not withhold the sacrament of Holy Communion from a remarried person who feels the need of its sustaining power.

One practical means by which Christian women may strengthen the Church's ideal of marriage, is to help bring about the adoption of uniform marriage and divorce laws throughout the nation.

A sense of God is the foundation stone upon which permanence in marriage is built. On this rests the structure of respect for one's self, and each for every other member of the family. Love is the mortar which holds fast the stones.

"Home is the converging point of vast biological, social, economic and spiritual comprehensions."

Preparation for marriage should include instruction in each of these fields, and should be the joint responsibility of the home, the church and the school.

A. The Biological Aspect.

Proper sex instruction is of prime importance and the knowledge of birth control of great value. Information concerning these subjects when given, should be imparted by clear-headed, high-minded persons.

B. The Social Aspect.

There must be in the home respect for the rights of others, articulate appreciation, self-control and a wholesome amount of discipline for each member of the family. Recognition of the fact that the family cannot live to itself alone, will throw into the community the best that the family has to offer.

C. The Economic Aspect.

A sense of economic security is essential. Shared knowledge of family income and expenditure, coupled with a sense of individual stewardship, makes for such stability.

D. The Spiritual Aspect.

Emphasis should be placed upon the spiritual aspect of the marriage union and an atmosphere of love developed,—through Christian training and example, which will create a Christ-centered home.

Finally, Christian women are bound to emphasize wherever they are, the possibility of every home being so established and so conducted as to contribute to the building of a Christian nation, which shall in turn help build a Christian world.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE WAY OF LIFE

By
BISHOP JOHNSON

THE Apostles were always misunderstanding Christ. They looked at things from their viewpoint, and He was looking at them from God's. While they subsequently adopted His views, they did so because He dwelt in them and guided them. In order to get Christ's viewpoint you must be filled with His Spirit. In the same way, His disciples in other ages have been guilty of the same errors. They have twisted His sayings to suit the natural man's desires, so that the Church has suffered from those who served Christ, but without His Spirit. They have tried to make His Church fit into their program, instead of seeking His Spirit, and so doing His will.

In every age the dominant Spirit of the age has endeavored to warp the Church into the zeitgeist of that particular era. So the Hebrew tried to make it a Jewish Church under the law, and the Greek tried to make it a Philosophical Church, splitting hairs over theological definitions, and the Romans tried to make it a Latin Church, regimentating everything to Church organization, and the Teutons tried to make it a National Church, reflecting the limitations of Germany and Sweden. The English have tried to make it an English Church combining princes and bishops in the bracket of ceremonial pomp, while we Americans have tried to make it an American Church, reducing it to chaos, and flooding it with ballyhoo. But the amazing thing is that through all the ages Christ has redeemed His bride from all those who have tried to capture her, and has kept her from their bondage.

I think the first thing we must learn from these facts is that Christ's promise to be with His Church until the end of time has been fulfilled and that He has kept His Church from being exploited by the long line of emperors, soldiers, statesmen, ecclesiastics, scientists, scholars and diplomats, who have tried to bring the Church captive to their one compartment minds. She has ever been delivered from the snare of the fowler and escaped from the lion and the eagle alike.

THE next thing that it illustrates is that the world never has known nor can know what the Church is and what its divine mission is, unless it get Christ's viewpoint. And first of all it is His lamp, shining through the ages, sometime dim and sometime bright, but always burning, so that the wayfarer may see the path and walk in His light. Even under its dullest and most unworthy leaders this has been done. There have been saints in all ages. Whether the Church succeeds in making many righteous it has always found a remnant who are faithful, and then it is the salt of society. Sometimes it has lost its savor as an institution, and then men have trampled it under their feet as they did in France and are doing in Russia, but the restoration of society has sprung from a new savor which lifted Europe out of the decay of the Dark Ages, and England out of the rottenness of the Georgian Era.

The Church does exist to make saints where and when it can, but that is not its fundamental mission. Christ told us what its mission was when He gave His parting orders to the Apostles—"Be ye witnesses unto me." Without that function the Church would long ago have been left in ruins. The light cannot continue to shine, if the light house falls. No age, no country can appropriate the Church to its own prejudices. It belongs to all the world in all the centuries. In order to do this and to be this it must be kept intact, so that if we are not worthy, those who follow may not be deprived of it.

The curious thing in the United States is that everyone regards devotion to the Church as a mark of weakness, but they all fall back upon the Church as their basis of operation. For example: those clergy who want to do away with the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection, demand that they shall make their experiment from a citadel which has been built upon the foundation which they themselves reject. They want to air their negations, but they want the historic Church as the platform from which to do it. I do not mean that they consciously do this, but that they actually do it. It is along the line of trying to orientate the Church to the age, regardless of the fact that the age has little to recommend it, except material things. It is a reproach which I have frequently received that I seem to put the Church first. I admit the impeachment and defend it on the ground that I believe that was what Christ intended us to do because otherwise there wouldn't be any second or third worth mentioning.

Russia has started the experiment of deposing organized religion as France did and I believe it will be with the same result. I do not expect any great harvest of love, joy and peace from bureaucratic commissions. Even in America they are not very inspiring.

IF a man puts his family first or his country first, he is conscious of rectitude, but if one believe that the Church is a divine institution for the purpose of furnishing light and leaven to a drab world, he is looked upon as a moron. If I were more conscious of my mental inferiority to those who accuse me, I probably would surrender to their demands. But as yet I have failed to see just what other institution can take the place of the Church. I prefer the wisdom of Christ in giving the Church to the world to the ability of any voluntary group of self-constituted reformers to institute something else. It isn't that the Church is impressive or particularly effective in the U.S.A. It isn't. But I prefer to account for this by assuming that the material is poor rather than that the Church is unimportant. As someone has said, "You can get gold out of low grade ore but it is hard work."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

I am not impressed with the spiritual receptivity of our people. As the manager of a radio station said to me recently, "If we put on a nutty program, we get a flood of enthusiastic letters. If we put on high class music we are not bothered with much correspondence." I wonder in the last analysis whether we will not be found wanting rather than the Church; whether the fault really lies in the instrument which Christ has proved and which has survived the centuries; or whether it lies in the fact that a nation has scrapped convictions for theories and facts for sentiments, and therefore is not able to comprehend the purpose of the Master.

His disciples, now as then, seem to misunderstand that which He said and did, and to offer their own way as a substitute for His.

In spite of all its local limitations of time and place, the Church has been wonderfully faithful in preserving the faith, in conserving the sacraments, in perpetuating the ministry, in guarding the scriptures. This is its prime function. We may use it or misuse it, but we ought not to abuse it, or substitute our theories for its experience.

I believe in the Holy Catholic Church as the medium by which all people everywhere and for all time may receive the forgiveness of sin, the resurrection of the body and the life everlasting from the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

It is the divine medium for perpetuating the faith and assembling the faithful in an adequate way. It is the way of life.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

CHAPEL

ST. MARTIN was a soldier in the Roman army toward the end of the fourth century. One bitterly cold day, when he was stationed near Amiens, in France, he met a ragged beggar shivering in the wind. Martin promptly whipped off his military cloak, cut it in half with his sword, giving one part to the beggar and using the remainder as a cape for himself. That night he had a vision of the Savior wearing the cape which he had given to the beggar. From that time on, Martin was a devout Christian.

His own half of the cloak was cherished as a relic and was carried by the French kings in subsequent wars. The tent which sheltered it came to be known as the "capella." The priests who celebrated the Holy Eucharist in the tent were called "capellani" or chaplains. In between wars the relic was kept in the oratory of the palace and the service there offered was known as the "capella." In the course of time the name came to be applied to the oratory itself and was gradually evolved into the word "chapel."

That's how we got the name for these houses of worship which are included within or distinct from the normal parochial organization. There are many kinds of them—private chapels and public ones, royal, pontifical, episcopal, mortuary and so on. The first private chapel of which there is record is the royal chapel of Constantine which was a portable affair for use in his palace in Constantinople and also capable of being carried about on his military expeditions. Several of the popes have built special chapels for their own use, the most notable one being the famous Sistine Chapel made by Sixtus IV in the fifteenth century. By ancient custom every bishop has a right to a chapel of his own in his own home. We also have them in schools, institutions, cemeteries to serve special needs for a distinct and limited group of people. Many cathedrals have chapels for extra purposes and, in the Middle Ages, these were multiplied because of a rule that no more than two Masses should be said at an altar on one day. Parish churches frequently have them nowadays as a matter of convenience, where brief services for a small number of people would be lost in the large main building.

There are also Chapels of Ease, tho they do not represent what the name might imply. These are separate structures, in fact distinct churches in everything but name, which are built in remote parts of a parish in order to "ease" the burden on the main parish church. The clergy in charge of such chapels are properly called "Vicars"—that is, deputies of the rector of the parish itself.

In any well regulated ecclesiastical organization there must be certain fairly well defined spheres of activity wherein responsibilities may be allocated and corresponding rights preserved. Hence—parishes. But no organization should ever be so rigid that it cannot meet extraordinary circumstances. Chapels within parochial limits have served just such a generous and useful purpose. St. Martin would have been greatly surprised if he could have known what a far-reaching effect upon the Church his impulsive act of charity was to produce.

Frontier Pioneers

By

HUGH L. BURLESON

BY WAY of Colorado we approach Montana, Idaho and Utah in the person of Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, who was consecrated May 1, 1867, having been compelled to wait several months after his election in order to reach the canonical age of thirty years! Now and then, in human experience, there appears a personality which seems completely to typify a certain activity, interest or ideal. Such an one was Bishop Tuttle—apostle, prophet, pioneer, patriarch—and if there be any other "p's", add them for yourself. When one thinks "missionary bishop" or even "pioneer preacher", the minds of those who knew him instantly visualize Bishop Tuttle.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

He has told his own story to the Church in a book of reminiscences, vivid with the atmosphere and color of pioneer life in the Rocky Mountain region. He tells of preaching in little towns and camps, of talks with simple sturdy men, the building of plain little churches, the starting of institutions on a shoestring; hard-fisted grappling with elementary conditions. And the tale has for its setting the peculiar prairies, bogs and streams of the Rocky Mountain region. If one wishes to understand the pioneer life of a generation past, it can be found here—the Indian troubles, the early settlers, the unique stage driver of the Rockies, the old-time mining camp, the real cowboy, those strange people called the Mormons — they are all within the pages of his book.

For thirteen years Bishop Tuttle travelled his vast diocese, establishing strong centers in places like Helena, Boise and Salt Lake, but never forgetting the scattered sheep on the outlying fringes.

I cannot resist quoting a paragraph that shows the young Bishop during his first winter: "That winter, lived in my log cabin, was an education to me. To learn to know the miners and to discern the wholesomeness and helpfulness and kindness and goodness hidden under their wildness and wickedness; to visit the sick and sad, and to see their tears and to receive their thanks and to guide their prayers; to find almost human companionship and sympathy in my cat, Dick, in the loneliness that would beset me; to gather funds and build a little church, the first one in Montana, and to enter it with every bill settled and not one cent in debt—these were my experiences, and they were indeed nothing less than a most valuable education."

At the end of thirteen years, Montana received its own missionary bishop in the person of Leigh Richmond Brewer, who gave to it thirty years of splendid service and before his death made it a diocese. Bishop Tuttle remained missionary bishop of Utah and Idaho until translated to Missouri in 1886.

The story of the nineteen years of Bishop Tuttle's missionary episcopate can never be adequately told. During that period, he had confirmed more than 1200 persons and had held 4000 services. The miles which he had travelled on foot and by stage, on horseback and by buckboard, had made him universally known and beloved. The three communicants in Salt Lake had become 300. In schools which he had established, 3000 boys and girls had been taught. Such was in part the fruitage of a life spent in what people called the Desert, but giving itself unsparingly to reproduction after its kind.

Bishop Tuttle is of course best remembered as our great Presiding Bishop. With a face and a carriage that reminded one of Michael Angelo's Moses, he led the Church through long years, but they are not the years which come within our assigned area. Nevertheless, I venture to call attention to the fact that during his episcopate he took part in the consecration of 91 Bishops and was the chief consecrator of 80. Bishop A. R. Graves is the oldest of these now living, and Bishop Carson was the last. Surely, in the lives of those who were commissioned and sent forth by this great patriarch, "He, being dead, yet speaketh."

Double Features for Lent —

The Christian Way Out

A Series of articles dealing with the Present International and Economic Situations, written by eminent authorities.

Watch for further announcements. Study these subjects during the World Disarmament Conference.

The Story of the Church

A Series of Articles by

BISHOP JOHNSON

HAVE A STUDY GROUP IN YOUR PARISH USING THESE ARTICLES AS THE BASIS FOR DISCUSSION EACH WEEK DURING LENT

Plan Now for a Witness Bundle

10 copies a week for the 7 weeks of Lent	$ 2.80
25 copies a week for the 7 weeks of Lent	$ 7.00
50 copies a week for the 7 weeks of Lent	$13.00
100 copies a week for the 7 weeks of Lent	$25.00

THE WITNESS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue

CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

RELIGIOUS GROUPS ISSUE STATEMENT ON UNEMPLOYMENT

A statement was issued last week jointly by the social service department of the Federal Council of Churches, the department of social action of the Catholic Welfare Conference, and the social justice commission of the central conference of American Rabbis, dealing with the present unemployment situation. They heartily comment the movement for relief and feel assured that all faiths may be counted upon for generous support. At the same time these committees express the conviction that relief is not enough. "The very assistance of church forces," the statement goes on to say, "makes increasingly imperative their moral duty to challenge the social injustices which have made relief necessary. We must recognize that the community relief plans as at present proposed, or even supplementary federal appropriations which it seems to us will be needed to meet the problem of unemployment, are in effect nothing but a temporary dole—a palliative, not a solution. Such relief is in fact grossly inadequate to prevent tragic demoralization of individual and family life.

"Employment is the only cure for unemployment. Yet the bald fact remains that regardless of whatever improvement may occur in general business conditions we are entering the third winter of severe unemployment without seeing put into actual operation any statesmanlike or constructive program to provide work for any but a small minority of the idle.

"We believe that immediate and adequate appropriations should be made available by national as well as local governments for such needed and useful public works as road construction, development of parks, elimination of grade crossings, flood control projects, reforestation, and the clearing of slum areas in our cities. If such a governmental program be undertaken now we will face the months that lie ahead with prospects of work for a large number of the unemployed and consequently increased purchasing power which will stimulate all business. The economic wisdom of this proposal has been attested by leading economists.

"We note with satisfaction the tendency to institute a shorter work day and week without reduction in wages in the effort to solve the problem of technological unemployment.

"Society's responsibility for the preservation of human values in industrial life makes the principle of social insurance, particularly insurance against unemployment and want in old age, an indispensable part of sound social policy and the most self-respecting form of relief. We protest against the misleading use of the word 'dole' to describe systems of unemployment insurance.

"We affirm our belief in the necessity of a more equitable distribution of wealth and income which would increase purchasing power and tend to balance production and consumption. We, therefore, particularly deplore indiscriminate wage cuts at this time as socially unjust and tending to intensify bitterness and industrial unrest, and still further to lower the purchasing power of the masses.

"We hold that it is now time that the engineering principle of planning which has been so successfully introduced into individual factories should be extended to the control of entire industries and of industry in general. The suggestions made by Mr. Gerard Swope are a welcome indication of the awareness of some of our industrial leaders of the necessity for some kind of economic planning. Participation of labor through representatives of their own choosing and an equitable distribution of wealth and income should be incorporated in any form of national planning and control.

"The principle of cooperative planning must be extended also to world economic relations including balances of production, consumption, and exchange, access to raw materials, questions of tariffs, movement of gold, intergovernmental war debts, and the economic waste of armaments.

"Unemployment is so devastating in its physical, mental and moral consequences that the present conditions constitute to our mind a national and international emergency which calls for courageous social action and the adoption of heroic measures adequate to the gravity of the situation."

PARISH ENDOWMENTS

Here is a note from the Rev. George Parkin Atwater of Grace Church, Brooklyn ("Cheerful Confidences" Atwater): "May I, through your paper, address a word to the clergy and treasurers of parishes. For many years I have endeavored by a book, and by addresses, to interest parishes in endowments. Many parishes are using the Method which I originated. I shall be grateful if the rectors and treasurers of such parishes would inform me that the Method is established in their parishes." Only one objection to that letter so far as I am concerned. I don't like that "your paper." Certainly it is "our paper" with Dr. Atwater if it is with anyone. He has been connected with it since the first copy came from the press. His address is 29 Grace Court, Brooklyn.

CLERGY RETREAT TO BE HELD AT DUBOSE SCHOOL

By Malcolm S. Taylor

During the past year or more the Commission on Evangelism and Personal Religion of the Province of Sewanee (Fourth Province) has been working for the development of a greater interest in schools of prayer, quiet days and retreats. Slowly but surely a movement along the line of the purpose common to these three forms of spiritual activity has been making headway throughout the Church and in the Fourth Province, as elsewhere, more and more of our clergy and laity are manifesting an increased interest in the movement.

Last February a most helpful provincial clergy retreat was held under ideal conditions at the DuBose Memorial Training School, Monteagle, Tennessee, (six miles from Sewanee), with forty-one clergy attending. A similar clergy retreat will be held there February 2-5, 1932—Tuesday afternoon through Friday breakfast —to which all clergymen are cordially invited. The Rev. John S. Bunting, rector of the Church of the Ascension, St. Louis, Missouri will be the conductor. The cost to each retreatant for the above period at the School will be nine dollars, payable on arrival.

Without at all stressing differences of churchmanship, the commission wishes to emphasize the fact that they especially want at this retreat men who are evangelical and men who are not familiar with retreats. The most extreme Anglo-Catholic will be just as cordially welcomed; but they are particularly desirous of giving those who do not know retreats and those who are prejudiced against them an opportunity of finding for themselves their unique and very great spiritual value. Many are convinced that they offer the line of activity most needed in the Church to-day and they hope that the opportunity for testing this idea offered by this particular retreat will be seized by many of our clergy.

The Provincial Commission has also completed arrangements for the Presiding Bishop to conduct a retreat for the bishops of the Fourth Province at the College of Preachers, in Washington, February 23-26 which it is hoped all of the bishops in the Province will be able to attend. This will be the first bishops' retreat ever held in this country.

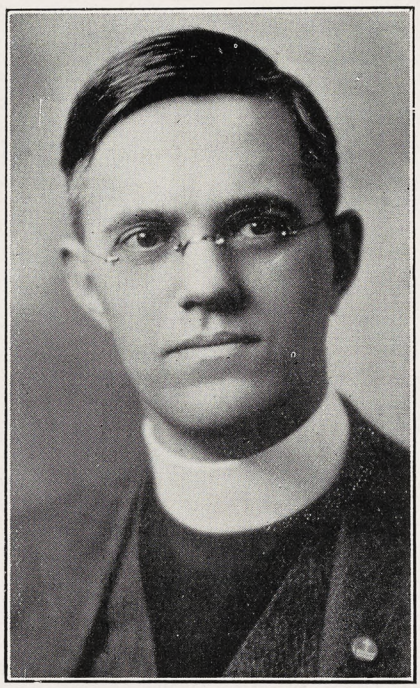
This past year was a banner one for ordinations in the diocese of Colorado, with five deacons and three priests. Confirmations for the past year were 700, well over 100 in excess of those in 1930.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHURCH LOSES A GREAT MUSICIAN IN LUTKIN DEATH

By Eleanor H. Wilson

"A great life has passed into the tomb and there awaits the requiem of winter snows." These words inscribed under a beautiful mural of the Angel of Death in the Auditorium of Chicago, for many years a temple of music, came to my mind when I read of the passing of that beloved musician, Peter Christian Lutkin.



Dean emeritus of the Northwestern School of Music and founder of the North Shore Music Festival, he was a familiar figure on the campus at Evanston. He was active in musical circles in Chicago and the north shore for more than half a century. Until his retirement last spring he had been on the staff at Northwestern University for forty years, thirty-four years as dean. The Musical Festivals were begun in 1908 in Northwestern University Gymnasium, and were eagerly looked forward to each year by men, women and children who participated in the chorus under the leadership of his kindly spirit. Madame Ernestine Schumann - Heink and Frederick Stock took part in the first Festival and last year again joined in the twenty-third Festival honoring Dean Lutkin.

A loyal churchman, member of St. Luke's church, Evanston, he was appointed by the General Convention of 1913 as a member of the Commission on the Revision of the Hymnal. The music for the hymn "Come my soul, thou must be waking" was composed by him and the melody bears his wife's name "Carman." He was a founder of the American Guild of Organists and a lecturer of Garrett Biblical institute and Western Theological Seminary.

On December 29th several hundred of his friends gathered to pay tribute to him at St. Luke's church, where the funeral was held. The services were conducted by Bishop George Craig Stewart and the Rev. Charles E. McAllister, rector. In the chancel were the Rev. Robert Holmes, honorary associate of St. Mark's, Dr. Arthur Rogers, rector emeritus of St. Mark's, and Dean Frederick Grant of Western Theological Seminary.

"Four qualities", said Bishop Stewart, "endeared Dean Lutkin to his friends—his dignity that reflected the nobility of his soul, his simplicity, his virility and his humility. He was 'a humble man who walked with child-like faith in God.' "

At the close of the service his friends bade farewell to their beloved dean with his own farewell anthem, sung by St. Luke's choir and Dean Lutkin's A Cappella choir. A full length portrait, painted recently by Paul Trebilcock, showing him in black gown, the familiar full bow necktie, baton in hand, is to hang in the Lutkin Memorial hall of the School of Music Building to be erected in the near future by Northwestern University.

Robert E. Gribbin
Rector at Winston-Salem

WILL ADDRESS FORUM ON FREE SPEECH

Mr. Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, is to address the forum of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, on the evening of January 17th. His subject is to be "What do you mean—Free Speech?" The Civil Liberties Union is an organization which, strange to say, has the reputation of being a radical organization even though its one concern is to protect the people in the rights guaranteed them by the constitution of the United States. All of which is possibly indicative of the distance we have travelled since our forefathers gave us these cherished rights which we sing about in songs and read about in histories, but which are being violated every day in the year. The Civil Liberties Union is the nearest thing to an hundred per cent American organization that I know anything about. A representative of the National Security League is also to be present, and you may be sure he will object to some of Mr. Baldwin's pure Americanism. It should be a lively evening so get over there for it if you possibly can. Service at 8 o'clock in the church, followed by the forum in the parish house.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

The Rev. Roelif Brooks, the rector of St. Thomas', New York, preached a sermon the other day that got nice big headlines in the New York newspapers. He said, according to the reports, that this business of taxing the rich and allowing the poor to be exempt was a silly idea. Sort of a Happy New Year sermon to his own fortunate parishioners I take it. Then too he spoke of Mr. Gandhi as a firebrand. There is no question about Dr. Brooks being right there. The important thing to consider, it seems to me, is whether or not he is a useful one. I am quite sure we need a great many more firebrands in this world, and the Episcopal Church is in particular need of them. Of course we never like these disturbing people. They blurt out with very uncomfortable facts every once in awhile. Then we all do our best to discredit them by calling them insane, since it is a lot easier to do that than it is to meet their arguments. But these "insane" menaces perform a very useful function. Most of us in our relaxed moments, which means such times as we ourselves are not quite so completely off the handle, are willing to admit it. Check up on the heroes of the past whom we honor today. It is startling the number of balmy folks there are among them. The strange thing about Mr. Gandhi, menace or no menace, is that he is recognized by the majority of his own generation as a saint. Most people have to wait a hundred years or so for the honor. Gandhi certainly is a disturbing person to have about, particularly to those people who wish to exploit their fellows, but to condemn him by calling him silly names is not to injure his character but rather your own.

* * *

The Witness will announce next week the names of those who are to contribute to the series of articles on "The Christian Way Out" which is to be our Lenten Feature for this year. The articles, coming at the time of the disarmament conference, will deal with the international situation and the underlying economic causes. They will be written with study groups in mind by people who speak with authority. You can judge that for yourself after you see their names. We hope that you will organize a study group in your parish this Lent to really tackle these problems, using these articles as a basis for your discussions. Harping constantly about the seriousness of the present situation is not going to accomplish a great deal. But I do believe if Christian people can come together this Lent once each week and really face up to these vital matters it would do much good. There ought to be a Christian Way Out. We certainly must believe that. If so it is important that it be discovered. And the way to discover it is to set to work at it.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Our space is limited but even so we want to make room also in the paper during Lent for brief findings of various study groups. That is the paper will be a medium for passing on the discussion from one group to another—providing you take this business seriously enough to really formulate the thoughts of your group on paper for us.

The first Lenten issue is that of February 11th. Bundle orders for this number can be filled as late as February 6th, but it will help tremendously if they are in our hands a bit earlier. The price for the seven weeks of Lent is $2.80 for a bundle of ten; $7 for a bundle of twenty-five; $13 for a bundle of fifty and $25 for a bundle of one hundred.

In addition to this series there is to be a series on "The Story of the Church", written by Bishop Johnson. This is not merely for the seven Lenten Numbers but will continue after Easter. But it will start with the issue of February 11th, and will be the sort of substantial reading that rector's will be glad to place in the hands of their people. So plan that Bundle now; look for the more complete announcement next week and then send your Bundle order in as soon as possible, please.

* * *

There is pictured on the cover a carved oak reredos recently installed in Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, Michigan. The work was executed by A. R. Mowbray and Company of England. The central panel contains a representation of the Ascension. The larger panels, from left to right, are the Nativity, St Mark, St. Paul and the Baptism of Jesus. The entire reredos measures thirteen feet in height and twelve feet in width.

* * *

Bishop Ingley, for the tenth Christmas since his consecration, took the midnight celebration in one of the missions of the diocese of Colorado which otherwise would have been without a service.

* * *

Bishop MacInnes, Anglican Bishop of Jerusalem since 1914, died on Christmas Eve, according to a delayed cable sent to the Church Missions House. He had been ill for some time but it was not considered alarming and it was thought that he would return to Jerusalem from England by mid-January. Bishop MacInnes was a visitor to the General Convention in Portland in 1922. As a result of Important New Book . . . Free

We prepared this book for architects. But now, looking it over, we see that there are no terrible technicalities lurking in its pages. So why not offer it to everybody who is thinking of buying new floors?

Probably the most valuable feature of this book is its 51 actual photographs of modern, resilient floors. These will give you a comprehensive idea of what these very adaptable materials can do for your building.

Resilient—and therefore comfortable and quiet, Sealex Floors are not costly. Even the quite elaborate, made-to-order designs (the cost of which would be prohibitive in other types of floorings) are relatively inexpensive. Maintenance costs are practically nothing—an occasional waxing keeps Sealex Floors bright and new. They never need painting, scraping or other expensive refinishing. Write for your copy of "Resilient Floors" and ask about Bonded Floors expert installation service, Sealex materials backed by a Guaranty Bond.

CONGOLEUM-NAIRN INC. . . . . KEARNY, N. J.

SEALEX
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
LINOLEUM FLOORS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

this visit the Rev. Charles T. Bridgeman became a member of the staff of the Cathedral in Jerusalem, and was placed in charge of the educational work of preparing young men for the priesthood of their native churches.

* * *

The Rev. Bertram L. Smith of Fort Worth, Texas, is to become the rector of Christ Church, Dallas, on February 1st, taking the job of the Rev. Goodrich R. Fenner, who becomes that day the secretary for rural work of the National Council.

* * *

Here are the enrollment figures for our many seminaries, conveniently arranged like a baseball score by Miss Gladys Barnes of the publicity department of the National Council.

	1929-30	1930-31	1931-32
Berkeley	28	28	25
Bexley	26	20	22
Bishop Payne ..	11	10	11
Cambridge	36	44	63
Delancy	11	10	7
DuBose	29	29	30*
General 155		154	171
Greeley	32	..	30
Nashotah	39	62	69
Pacific	9	13	13
Philadelphia ...	61	76	72
Seabury	25	26	26
Sewanee	17	24	20
Virginia	79	77	74
Western	30	41	50
	588	626	683

*Including 13 in the academic department.

Including those in the academic department.

* * *

The Rev. Gerald R. Minchin was advanced to the priesthood on December 22 by Bishop Cross at the Cathedral in Spokane. Mr. Minchin is in charge of the Okanogan County Missions comprising churches in six towns. A considerable increase in activities, especially among the young people, has been noted since his arrival last October. It is especially noteworthy that under him a church school for members of all denominations has been organized at Loomis, where for a time all religious activities had been discontinued. He has also made plans for the erection of a chapel at Twisp.

* * *

A two-light stained glass window has recently been installed in the aisle of Zion Church, Rome, New York, being one of a series executed by James Powell and Sons (Whitefriars) Ltd., of London. The window was designed by Mr. James H. Hogan in conjunction with Mr. Hobart B. Upjohn, the architect, and depicts the story of the Flight into Egypt and Christ in the Carpenter's Shop.

* * *

And here is some more on that "largest diocese" business. If people continue to send them in we will have to start a department. This is from the Rev. James R. Sharp of Nashville who wants to know why Tennessee hasn't been mentioned before. And to prove that it should have been he writes:

"Starting from three of the see cities of the 'seven churches,' Philadelphia, Sardis, and Smyrna, we can go right back through the Old Testament, by Joppa, Sharon, Lebanon, Ebenezer and Bethel (and used to have Ai too, but its name was changed) all the way to Genesis.

"Or, a little trip through ancient capitals: Rome, Athens, Sparta (also Laconia), Antioch, Alexndria, Memphis, Carthage, Palmyra and Troy. Or a swing around modern Europe: Winchester, Manchester, Rugby, Bristol, Dover, Paris, Loretto, Cordova, Milan, Florence, Dresden, Moscow, Frankfort, Hamburg, Christiana, and back to Belfast.

"Or would you like a tour of America, via Charleston, Savannah, Charlotte, Jamestown, Mount Vernon, Boston, Cleveland (if you like lakes, taking in Erie and Huron), Louisville, Denver, Santa Fe; and on down to Monterey and Bogota? Side trips to Quebec (k) and Klondike without extra charge.

"And what other diocese includes Denmark, Erin, Normandy, Wales, and Persia within its limits?

"If you need funds, we have Gold-

Add Interest to Your Work and Make it Easier with

SNOWDEN'S
Sunday School Lessons

The eleventh annual volume of this teacher's working program for 1932 is now ready. Thousands have found it a "treasure-house of brief, clear-cut exposition, pithy comment, practical application to life, and genuine spiritual insight." The Review and Expositor says: "It helps the student and teacher to understand the lesson and indelibly impresses some eternal truth. One can think of nothing, next to the Bible itself, that will mean so much to the Sunday School teacher."

Order your copy today—only $1.35

The Macmillan Company, 60 Fifth Ave., New York

GEORGE WASHINGTON
The Churchman

The Spirit of Missions will participate in the nation-wide observance of the Washington Bicentennial through the publication of a special series of illustrated articles by eminent Churchmen beginning in the January issue.

CONTENTS FOR JANUARY, 1932

Cover: Stuart portrait of George Washington
Frontispiece: The Rt. Rev. Frederick B. Bartlett
The Wisdom That Shall Dispel Confusion — The Rt. Rev. James DeWolf Perry, S.T.D.
George Washington, The Churchman — John Stewart Bryan
Day by Day Evangelism in a Chinese Hospital
Dr. Bartlett Consecrated in North Dakota — William Hoster
Four Years' Progress in Anking Mission — The Rt. Rev. Daniel T. Huntington, D.D.
BREAD is the 1932 Lenten Offering Theme — The Rev. John W. Suter, Jr.
Neighboring Mexican Villages Plan a New Church
Rural Nevada Is Athirst for God's Word — Rosalie Lascelles
Church Arouses Japan's Social Conscience — The Rev. James K. Morris
Utah Coal Region Challenges Church — The Rt. Rev. Arthur W. Moulton, D.D.
Eight Pages of Pictures From the Field
Physical Needs in Sagada Overwhelming — Hawkins K. Jenkins, M.D.
Missionary in Anchorage Cares for Native Needs
Christian Higher Education in India — The Rev. Artley B. Parson, S.T.M.
Sanctuary: A Litany for Our Nation
Who? What? When?
The National Council, Departments and Cooperating Agencies

Published monthly, $1.00 a year

THE SPIRIT OF MISSIONS
Church Missions House 281 Fourth Ave. New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Praise God

Church Furniture

Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating

American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassacks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 22rd St., New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
by
BISHOP JOHNSON
Formerly 50c a copy. Now 20c a copy as long as present edition lasts. $2.00 for a dozen copies.

Any Book Reviewed May Be Secured from
WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO, ILL.

YOUR CHURCH, SOCIETY OR SCHOOL
NEEDS MONEY
Sell finest Chocolate covered 5 cent bars and earn money quickly. Twenty varieties. Pay for bars in 30 days. Offer not good in South or West.
For full information write
L. E. AUSTIN
760 West End Ave. New York City

REUTER ORGANS
Created with the love, devotion and skill that bring out beauty of tone.
Our organs are custom built to suit the requirements of either the modest church or the great auditorium.
Write for Catalog.
THE REUTER ORGAN CO.
LAWRENCE, KANSAS

CLERICAL SKETCHES

ROBERT EMMET GRIBBIN was born in South Carolina in 1887 of Irish parentage. He graduated from the College of Charleston in 1909 from the General Theological Seminary in 1912. He was then the assistant at Grace, Charleston for three years, going from there to be the assistant at St. Luke's, Atlanta. In 1916 he became the rector of St. John's, Wilmington, N. C., where he remained until 1921 when he became the rector of his present parish, St. Paul's, Winston-Salem. He entered the war as a chaplain and has since been active in the affairs of the American Legion. He has also been active in many community affairs (Rotary and Kiwanis, Red Cross chairman, Boy Scout commissioner) and in diocesan affairs is an examining chaplain, member of the executive council and has been a deputy to the last two General Conventions. His parish has also constructed one of the most beautiful churches in the country during his rectorship.

dust and Greenback; if you are down and out, Life, Liberty and Friendship are here for you."

Who can beat that?

* * *

The Cathedral in Providence, R. I., has opened rest and recreation rooms on the first floor of the parish house for the unemployed of the city. The free lodging houses of the city are closed all day so that this provides for a part at least of the workless men who are turned out into the cold. The rooms open at ten and remain open until six. Magazines, newspapers, games and stationery are provided. On the first day they were used by 97 men but the number is increasing rapidly. To reach the younger class of men and women who have felt the effects of the depression but not so disastrously as the unemployed, the Cathedral plans to conduct a dance once a week throughout the winter.

* * *

There is to be a large missionary mass meeting as a feature of the convention of the diocese of Chicago, which meets January 30 through February 3rd. It is to be held in St. James' Church the evening of the 30th. Speakers have not yet been announced. On February 1st the Auxiliary meets and in the evening the usual Church Club dinner will be held. On the 2nd the convention proper will be held.

* * *

The Rev. Robert I. Parke, class of 1931 of the Berkeley Divinity

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida
A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.
Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Clergyman, 39 years old; experience in parish work; also 5 years in teaching and religious work in boys' school. Desires work as school chaplain. Write Box B, The Witness. 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

School, has taken charge of St. Matthew's, Grand Junction, Colo.

* * *

Robert Turner Walker, for twenty-two years ceremonarius and head of the acolyte guild of the Church of the Advent, Boston, died on Christmas Eve. He was not brought up in the Church but in later years became more and more interested in Catholicism as the true background of all Christian art, to which he dedicated his life in his profession as an architect. His real work however was always at the Church and in the Church, and it is said that innumerable boys were won to religion by his gentle and persuasive influence. He became leader of the acolytes at the Advent in 1908 and shortly after began admitting boys from beyond the bounds of the parish to the local guild of St. Vincent. This was the nucleus of what later became the national order.

* * *

The Rev. Randolph Marvin Evjen and the Rev. Claire Lee Mills were advanced to the priesthood on St. Thomas' Day by Bishop Schmuck of Wyoming. The service was held at Rock Springs, Wyoming. Mr. Evjen is serving Encampment, Saratoga, Hanna, Medicine Bow and Rock River. Mr. Mills is in charge at Jackson and at Menor's Ferry in the famous Jackson Hole country.

* * *

There is an interesting experiment being tried at Holy Trinity, Brooklyn. Instead of the clergy calling upon the parishioners, they are asked to call upon the clergy. There was a feeling that the house-to-house calling system, so long the standby of parochial work, was outmoded. The minister too frequently does not find his parishioners home and if he does his call can be a spiritual occasion only on rare occasions. The plan at Holy Trinity makes sure that those who really want to see their minister can really do so with a minimum of inconvenience. Writing in the parish leaflet of the plan the rector says:

"Two criticisms, however, have very properly been raised. There is much to be gained by both minister and parishioners for the minister to know the homes as well as the persons of his people. And there are many people in every parish, who will not call on the minister no matter how warm the invitation, and who must therefore be seen by him. These points are well taken and clearly indicate the limitations of the plan: it can only supplement other kinds of personal contacts, all of which are needed.

"The test of fruits is still the best. How does it work in practice? Up to the present time over fifty people have taken appointment cards to call on the minister and have come for a half hour conference. Many of these have been out year after year when the parish call was made at their homes. At least a real contact is now being made. If they come again each year as they have been asked to do, a very precious personal relationship will be created which it has not been possible to establish before."

Cards for appointments are placed in the pews which people sign, ask-

Just Issued

GENERAL CHURCH PROGRAM

1932 - 1933 - 1934 and Triennial Report of the National Council 1929-1931

A 220-page Book Presenting

The World-wide Work of the National Council, Its Departments, Auxiliaries, and Co-operating Agencies

Revised in accordance with the action of General Convention

Price 25 Cents

THE BOOK STORE

CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE

281 FOURTH AVENUE - - - - - - - - - NEW YORK

"I'll Never be a BURDEN to Anyone . . .

. . . and I'll be doing good long after I'm gone!"

YOU, too, can have her peace of mind and her satisfaction. By placing your surplus funds in Annuity Bonds of the New York Bible Society you assure yourself an income for life and at the same time permanently endow Bible distribution. You receive from 4% to 9%, according to your age—a check for the same substantial amount every six months. And on through the decades the interest from your money brings the unchanging Scriptures to those who need them most.

It costs you nothing to find out all about this "truly Christian investment." Simply mail the coupon for a free booklet which gives full details.

New York Bible Society

5 East 48th St., Dept. 8A, New York, N. Y.

Please send me your Free Booklet which tells all about your Bible Annuity Bonds that pay as high as 9%. Age

Name .....

Address .....

City ..... State .....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

ing for an appointment, and leave with one of the ushers. Just how the person is reached who seldom occupies a pew is not stated in the item but I presume there must be some way. I rather gather that this method is not meant to do away with home calling entirely but merely to supplement it.

* * *

On Christmas Eve the pioneer congregation of Minnesota, that of Christ Church, St. Paul, worshipped for the first time in their new church. The church was consecrated the next morning by Bishop McElwain. It is a beautiful structure, built upon the side of a hill so that it overlooks the business district of the city. An adequate parish house was dedicated some time ago. The completion of this church and parish house in so short a time, free of all indebtedness, is a real tribute to the leadership of the Rev. Walter S. Howard, rector for the past twenty years. Not that the congregation should be left out when it comes to handing out praise. They furnished the stuff which prevented indebtedness I presume.

* * *

It is a fine thing for a city of more than two hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants to induct into office the newly elected members of its city government with an invocation of the Divine blessing.

On January 1st Bishop Gailor, as has been his custom for the past twelve years, officiated at the inauguration of the newly elected mayor and board of commissioners of the city of Memphis, Tennessee.

The Bishop said a prayer at the opening of the ceremonies and pronounced the benediction at the close.

* * *

Bishop Stewart of Chicago, commenting on the new marriage canon, which became effective with the first of the year, said that he did not plan to set up an ecclesiastical court in the diocese. Cases arising in Chicago requiring adjudication will therefore be referred directly to the Bishop. Several of the clergy of the diocese have already taken cognizance of the three-day notice of intention to marry, required by the canon.

* * *

A dinner conference on the ministry as a vocation was held at Minneapolis on December 27th with about fifty young men present. Mr. Ivol L. Curtis, young student at Carleton College, the Rev. W. J. Spicer, young clergyman, and Bishop Keeler, young bishop, did the talking while Bishop McElwain, wise and silent, presided.

* * *

The Girls' Friendly of Rhode Island have a dance every year. One was held on December 28, with delegations present from a large number of parishes. The cash raised

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

THE REDDING MASONIC SUPPLY CO., Inc.

200 Fifth Ave. Est. 1859 New York
Prayer Books - Hymnals - Bibles
Books of All Publishers
Masonic Books and Supplies
Write for circulars and special terms to clergy

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

goes to the Holiday House at Saunderstown, R. I.

* * *

The entire estate of the late Joseph Jellyman, affectionately known in Chicago Church circles as "Uncle Joe," will eventually go to Church organizations, the filing of his will has revealed. It is valued at about $40,000. Those to receive money will be Christ Church, Western Seminary, Cathedral Shelter and St. James' Church. St. James' and the Shelter will receive the larger portions.

* * *

Here is a warning from Bishop Freeman of Washington:

"A man is traveling from city to city, posing as a gentleman of great wealth and well acquainted with outstanding bishops, presbyters and laymen of our Church, who is victimizing some of our people, by having them cash bad checks after he has promised aid and various forms of philanthropy, in some cases leaving his personal check in fulfillment of these promises. In some instances he is posing as a Parish Treasurer, seeking clerical assistance, and in others, as an officer of a large Trust Company. The man is wanted by the police in several large cities, including Washington, D. C., and our people are warned of his activities."

* * *

Bishop Graves, retired bishop of The Platte, and second in order of precedence in the House of Bishops died at his home in California on December 30th. He had been failing for some years. Born in Vermont in 1842 he went to the far West immediately following his graduation from the General Seminary, and was consecrated bishop in 1890 and took charge of a territory covering 50,000 square miles. This territory was later doubled by the addition of Wyoming. He resigned in 1910 after his health failed.

* * *

At the end of a year of depression in most cities in the country, it is encouraging to have a report of an "inflation" spiritually at least in Christ Church, Burlington, Ia., of which the Rev. Harold Brown Hoag is rector. The year 1931 generally speaking was not a year for breaking records, but two were broken at Christ Church this Christmas-tide. First, at the Christmas Eve Choral Eucharist, which was preceded by a candle procession of the choir and a short carol singing service in a candle lighted church, there were one hundred and forty-seven Communions made. This is the greatest number of Communions that have ever been made at any one service. Secondly, the total number of Christmas Communions made in Christ Church within the octave were two hundred and four, more Communions than have ever been made in the entire history of the parish. There are now 255 Communicants in Christ Church parish.

* * *

The Rev. George S. Pine, a retired clergyman of Rhode Island, has written a booklet called "The Shadow of Peter." In it he recounts in dramatic form a dozen or so of his experiences in hospital visiting. For sixteen years he has been going through the Rhode Island Hospital every Friday, and other hospitals only less frequently. At present he is himself a patient in the Rhode Island Hospital recovering from an automobile accident which resulted in a broken leg. The doctors and nurses, the instructors and students in the nurses training school and interested visitors have all received a copy. The stories which are brief, confined usually to two or three pages and sometimes to one, illustrate in a dramatic way the best methods of visiting the sick in hospitals. Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts has distributed a number of copies among the clergy of that diocese and Professor Angus Dunn of Cambridge Theological Seminary

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: 8 and 11 A. M.
Holy Days: 7:30 and 11 A. M.

The Transfiguration, New York
"The Little Church Around the Corner"
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Sundays: 8 and 9 A. M. (Daily 7:30) 11 A. M. Missa Cantata and Sermon 4 P. M. Vespers and Adoration Thurs., Fri., and Saints' Days, 2d Mass at 10.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church
Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean Francis S. White, D.D.
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

is using the little book for the instruction of his class in pastoral Theology.

* * *

Here is advice given to the clergy of Chicago by Bishop Stewart which is surely worth passing on: Shorten your announcements and give a three minute instruction on the customs of the Church. Explain the lights on the altar,—and why the Missal is carried over to the Gospel side,—and why we kneel to pray and stand to praise;—and the meaning of the Church's seasons and the use of liturgical colors; and the symbolism of the priests' vestments; and the reverence at the Sacred Name; and the sign of the Cross, and the Church's daily lectionary, and the plain duties of a Churchman. The prone is not a labored argument; it is a pointed, simple, definite, brief instruction. And how our people long for instruction and rejoice in it,—if it is presented clearly, reasonably, interestingly and briefly!

* * *

I do not know who the window decorating expert is at the Church Missions House. Whoever it is my hat is off to him (or her) for the grand job done over the holidays. And I like that tie-up with the disarmament, showing people the results of war and of peace and asking them to take their choice. Then too it states definitely the position of the Church on the matter. It is a grand job all around.

* * *

The Rev. Caleb R. Stetson has completed his tenth year as rector of Trinity Parish, New York. Imagine that—ten years. Funny thing about years: they roll around rather slowly for a time but as you accumulate more of them they seem to mount up with ever increasing rapidity. Maybe you have noticed it—not that it matters. The thing is that it seemed but recently that the genial Dr. Stetson became the rector of this great parish. May he go on doing his grand job for many more decades.

* * *

Preliminary steps have been taken in the diocese of Newark looking toward the election of a Coadjutor Bishop.

* * *

The Rev. John S. Cole, St. Christopher's, Oak Park, Illinois, has been placed in charge of Trinity. Belvidere, Illinois. He succeeds the Rev. John H. Scambler, who has become the rector of the Oak Parparish. Sort of swapped jobs as it were, If I read the item correctly.

* * *

Not to harrow your sympathies at all but to give you a more real appreciation of just what it means to have an epoch-making flood running in and out of the second and third story windows, you should read The Hankow and Anking Newsletters dated October but just recently issued. It is one of the queer tricks of the human mind that when history is in the making and our own friends are recording it, we exert so little effort to read their first-hand documents which a future generation may hunt for diligently. The Spirit of Missions and THE WITNESS have had a number of stories but cannot go into detail as these issues of the Hankow and Anking Letters do, with such stories, for example, as Mildred Capron's accidentally becoming the official welcomer of the Lindberghs at Wuhu, or the unexpected visit of Chiang Kai Shih, then national president, to Central China College where he found the college president, Dr. Francis Wei, dressed in shorts out helping refugees. Or the snakes and turtles roosting in the trees around St. Hilda's, or the "voyage" of a social service hospital worker to a city under thirty feet of water: "Here and there were rooftops with a half-starved dog or cat guarding what was once their home. It seemed like a dead city, with hardly a sound to be heard but the lapping of the water."

For the Sacristy

NOW you have a new opportunity to provide your Church with ample supplies of fresh, beautiful PURE IRISH LINEN at lowest cost since 1913. Low sterling exchange has enabled us to offer Double Discounts from our Regular Importers Price List while these conditions continue. It is wise to act promptly.

Linens for Surplices, Eucharistic Vestments, Altar Linens; all of the same high standard of excellence which has won us customers in every Diocese during the past eleven years. We have proven our value to them, why not to you . . . . . Now.

SAMPLES and LIST
ON REQUEST

Mary Fawcett Company

Box 146 Plainfield, N. J.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

SELF DECEPTION by Bishop Johnson

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JANUARY 21, 1932

Is There a Christian Way Out of Our International and Economic Difficulties?

The question will be answered this coming Lent in a series of fourteen articles; two each week. The names of the contributors you will find in this number.

MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH·AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·&·R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESTD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
CHURCH VESTMENTS
CHOIR OUTFITS
Cassocks Surplices
Copes Chasubles
Stoles Veils Burses
Altar Linens
Metal Work Woodwork
Particulars from
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

Stained Glass Memorials
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. Eighth & Court Sts
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet sent on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 22 JANUARY 21, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

SELF DECEPTION

An Editorial by
BISHOP JOHNSON

A PROMINENT doctor said to me recently that many people today are "kidding themselves that they can indulge in intemperate and immoral practices without being penalized in health and morale."

St. James made a similar statement nearly two thousand years ago when he spoke of those who "deceive their own selves". The laws governing physical health and our social relations are just as inexorable as the laws governing chemical reactions. I think that the first thing we need to absorb is that God is no respecter of persons; that he plays no favorites; that none of us has either a physical or spiritual anatomy which is exempt from the penalties which follow the abuse.

It is so easy to rationalize, which means that we construct our arguments to meet our wishes. For example, as Dr. Hart points out in his "Psychology of Insanity", the man who always votes the Republican or the Democratic ticket will do so again next fall. But in doing so he will deceive himself into thinking that he has arrived at the conclusion by a process of reasoning, whereas he wishes to vote that ticket, he proposes to vote that ticket, he is going to vote that ticket, and what he calls reasoning is really the same sort of thing that dominates the mentally unbalanced. Your voter goes through a process of logic in which his conclusions determine his reasoning. In the same way your insane person desires to be a very rich man. Therefore he is a very rich man and the fact that he asks you for ten cents with which to buy some tobacco has in it no element of inconsistency. He has determined before hand what he is and therefore no unfavorable circumstance can alter his conclusion.

The psalmist says that "the fool hath said in his heart there is no God", and the Russian Soviet is so confident of this rather impossible explanation of the universe that it actually legislates God out of the heavens. There is no argument which could possibly influence either the fool or the Soviet. Each of them has adopted his conclusion as his major premise, and all of his thinking is merely persuing a vicious circle of assertion, based upon his own personal bias.

NOW someone may say that the man who believes in God goes through the same process. It may be so but not necessarily. If I assert that there is no such force as electricity I have closed the door to any further investigation. The statement is final. But if I state that there is such a force as electricity I may not know much about it, yet I am still able to investigate and to reason.

Why does the atheist get so wrought up over my being a believer in God, and why does he seek to dissuade me from pursuing my investigation? If I am a collector of postage stamps you may be persuaded that it is a silly habit, and yet you do not interfere with my folly. Moreover if, as a collector, I invite you to look at my collection I have some excuse for my zeal. But if you, who scorn collecting, invite me to your room to see that you have no postage stamps it is rather absurd.

The anger of atheists is like the wrath of a savage who resents being put to work because it interferes with his hunting and fishing. After all it is the interference with some cherished desires that prompt the negative rationalist to become excited over his negations. It is because religion opposes immorality that the sensualist hates it. His major premise is found in sex relations. Anything that interferes with his passion is not only false but also irritating.

In Russia the Christian religion is hostile to the theories of Karl Marx because those theories eliminate human sympathy. The state, when administered by disciples of Marx, is supreme and its decisions are to be accepted without question. As one Russian expressed it, "If religion is an anaesthetic, communism is more so", because in religion you are permitted to think, though under certain ecclesiastical dominions you may not be permitted to act, but in Russia you are damned if you happen to be the child of a thinker, even though you do no thinking yourself.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The only difference between the old imperialism and the modern communism lies in the group who will do your thinking for you.

IN OUR own country the muckraker occupies the seat of the scornful. He specializes in pointing out the inconsistencies of decent people and the people lap it up because, not being remarkably decent themselves, they find comfort in proving that others are not so decent as they supposed. Again it is a negative complex based upon a perversion of desire. It is most comfortable to feel, if we have soiled our own lives, that we do not have to associate with the immaculate.

After all we cannot base our logic upon our wishes for then we deceive ourselves into supposing that we are reasoning, whereas we are only rationalizing.

If I pursue a study in the laboratory and learn certain relations and reactions of the chemical world, I am not impressed by the logic of the man who has never been in a laboratory and who says that my experiences are not reasonable.

Reason must follow an hypothesis worked out in experience, not a negative complex prompted by desire.

If I say that I believe in God and act upon that hypothesis I may be able to lead a reasonable, religious life, but if I begin by saying "There is no God" then I will unconsciously adapt my life to my desires. This is the logic behind behaviorism. I want to do so and so, therefore I ought to do what I want to do. God and the conscience are inconvenient obstacles to self determination, therefore there is no God and there are no morals.

The difficulty with this theory lies in the fact that it never has worked except in the mind of the theorist. It does not satisfy the equation of a world in which police courts and penitentiaries are necessary factors. If all parents were to bring up children without any moral restraints or ideals they would soon change society into bedlam. We would have an army of undisciplined adults, defying all law and order. If there be no God we are living in a purposeless world in which, strange to say, the elements have order but man has not. As Voltaire remarked in one of his lucid intervals, "If there were no God man would have to invent one."

To banish God from the educational system of our country is a philosophical game for the high brows who have attained decent habits, but it is a pathetic tragedy for the silly sheep who have no background of mental or moral training.

It is a curious nemesis of our modern educational system that crime is increasing with our universal education, until we have reached the point of saturation. If crime continues to increase under its present tutelage the time is not far distant when society will be unable to give free board and lodging to its criminal population.

If any theory were ever discredited by facts it would be the one which predicates that if you educate men they can live without God in the world. However plausible the arguments may sound it is not working out in these United States. As Judge Kavanaugh intimates, "when the churches are full the jails are empty and conversely when the churches are empty the jails are full."

Possibly we are deceiving ourselves by our rationalizing tendencies.

A Reply to the Pope

By

JAMES DE WOLF PERRY

Presiding Bishop

IN RECENT times the thoughts and prayers of Christians have been directed toward the fulfillment of our Lord's purpose that his Church may be one. Despite long delay and repeated disappointment the hopes of the faithful cling to the promise contained in St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians that in the dispensation, of the fulness of times, God would gather into one all things in Christ. By this single aim all the movements toward the union of Christendom must be estimated. There have been many such. They comprise an important chapter in modern Christian history. They have their significance and permanent value, however, in the contribution which they make to the cause of pure religion. This is the ultimate. Christian unity considered as an ecclesiastical arrangement for effective administration loses divine sanction. It is as witness to the eternal truth made manifest in Christ; and to the divine love revealed in Christ that we declare in the Nicene Creed our belief in one Catholic and Apostolic Church. Catholic Christianity is essential to a united Church because in its real meaning the word Catholic describes the whole of Christian faith which is everywhere and through all time believed.

When nearly five years ago the Christian Churches of the world were invited to meet in Lausanne for conference on the questions of faith and practice, of ministry and sacraments, it was to gain through the mutual and sympathetic understanding of each other's positions, a comprehensive outlook. The representatives of all communions gathered there manifested a desire to look beyond the sectional or sectarian lines dividing them, that they might take into their purview the Christian experience of all the world and of all time. Such inquiry offered, and still offers, the hope of union. One consequence of the event was the joint conference eight months ago, and again three months ago of Eastern Orthodox Bishops with Bishops of the English and American Church. They represented two branches of Catholic Christendom, both possessing Apostolic Orders of the Ministry, both preserving the historic creeds, both receiving as the means of Grace the Catholic sacraments. Here again is a reasonable approach toward unity through intercommunion.

The only large Communion which refused the invitation for the Lausanne Conference, making that Assembly insofar incomplete, was the Roman Catholic Church. Her absence was entirely consistent, because by her claim since the Fifth Century to Papal Supremacy, she had separated from the Eastern Church, and by the exercise of it, she had alienated from herself the ancient Church of England. This attitude under her present policy she was unwilling to discuss or to reconsider.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NOW there has come from the head of that great communion in his encyclical "Lux Veritatis," celebrating the fifteenth centennial of the Council of Ephesus an appeal addressed to Eastern Christians and to other Churches separated from the Roman See, expressing confidence that "they will feel a longing for one fold under one shepherd, and for a return to that faith which is jealously conserved in the Roman Church". It is a sincere and gracious appeal addressed as it is to the "Separated Brethren" and should have respect and reply from those whom it most concerns. The whole Christian world does indeed look with longing for the return to one fold, but it believes that this can be realized only through the acknowledgment of Jesus Christ as the sole Head of the Church, the Shepherd and Bishop of the souls of men. Thus would be fulfilled the hope that "in the dispensation of the fulness of times, God will gather together all things" —not under any earthly ruler—but "in Christ; all things which are in Heaven and which are on earth; in Him".

Speaking as one Bishop for many others, I would quote from St. Jerome writing in the Fourth Century:

"The custom of the Roman Church has no more authority than that of any other. The Episcopate at Rome has no more authority essentially than any other Episcopate. Wherever there are Bishops, at Rome or at Constantinople, or at Alexandria, they have the same merit, the same priesthood. They are all successors of the Apostles." And still more clearly St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, pointing St. Paul's words, writes: "Since the whole (Church) is made up of the Head and the Body—the Head is the Saviour Himself who...sits at the right hand of God, but His body is the Church, not this Church or that, but the Church scattered throughout the world." Here is a Catholic conception of the Church to which the Christian world waits to return that it may find its unity and peace in Christ.

A seat of Government which has been reared for the exercise of ecclesiastical power by one part of the Church, involving breach of union with the other parts, and fortifying its authority with the doctrine of infallibility, can never be accepted as the center of reunion. By substituting the part for the whole, in doctrine and in polity, it has become less than Catholic. For Anglicans and Easterns to submit to it would be to fall short of Apostolic faith and fellowship.

THE appeal of His Holiness is made not only to the Churches who cherish the ancient Order, but with equal affection and sincerity to other Christian Bodies as well. Speaking, as I may, for that great Protestant World, in the thought and life of which our Church is privileged to share, I know that the desire for reunion is no less ardently felt by Protestants than it is by Catholics. Nevertheless, with them also, the cause of pure religion has first consideration. There are two great principles which they find embedded in the life and teaching of the early Church, principles for which they have struggled at the cost of persecution and separation. One is the right of private judgment, the other the test of scriptual authority. Each of these is consciously subject to enlightenment and guidance by the corporate mind and authority of the whole Church. Neither of them can be set aside by official decrees without sacrificing the individual soul to the integrity of the organization. A united Church will give a rightful place to individual freedom within the bonds of the divine society, fulfilling its mission which is primarily the redemption of the individual through the whole body of believers.

So also must there be preserved for the protestant mind the standard of Christian teaching contained in the Scriptures. They are no more the source of authority than is the Papacy. They are, however, the record and the test of truth. This for which the Protestant contends is a Catholic doctrine, taught by St. Athanasius who insisting on the sufficiency of Holy Scriptures writes: "In them alone is the instruction of religion revealed to which let no man add, from which let none detract. They are sufficient of themselves for the enunciation of truth."

Wherever appear in any Christian Communion articles of belief, expressions of loyalty and allegiance, standards of truth and of life, these are elements waiting to be gathered into the reunited body of Christ. They must be viewed without disparagement, without prejudice, whether they be found in Rome or Canterbury, Alexandria or Geneva. They may not be excluded without loss to the whole of Catholic experience; they may not be brought under subjection to any power save to the authority of Christ as this is vested in His whole Church. It is not for any part of that Church to bear toward any other the attitude of condescension or of judgment.

IN THE sight of God we are together guilty in our responsibility for the wounds from which the Body of Christ is suffering. It is a lamentable truth that Christ's ambassadors have been never immune to weakness and temptation. Our service in His Name has suffered equally from the sins, here of worldliness, there of arrogance, or again of selfishness in the face of human need. Only He Whose power we proclaim is infallible—the Church only as embodied in Him is Holy. Before we come to one another with offers of restoration and reunion, we must kneel before Him with hands outstretched seeking His forgiveness, asking to be found worthy for communion with Him, and with others through Him. Thus with hearts absolved and sight restored there may come the vision which the Bishops who met at Lambeth eleven years ago beheld—"The vision of a Church, genuinely Catholic, loyal to all Truth, and gathering into its fellowship all 'who profess and call themselves Christians,' within whose visible unity all the treasures of faith and order, bequeathed as a heritage by the past to the present, shall be possessed in common, and made serviceable to the whole Body of Christ. Within this unity Christian Communions now separated from one another would retain much that has long been distinctive in their methods of worship and service. It is through a rich diversity of life and devotion that the unity of the whole fellowship will be fulfilled."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For the consummation of this hope the prayers of all the faithful are asked, that the whole body of disciples thus may echo the petition of their divine High Priest, "As thou Father art in Me and I in Thee, that they may be one in us, that the world may know that Thou hast sent Me."

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

A Stalwart Missionary

WHEN Philander Chase went to Ohio as its first bishop, the Episcopal Church was not very well known. Many who had heard of it were not at all friendly towards the Church. On one occasion Bishop Chase had sent word ahead that he was coming to a certain town to hold a service. Whereupon certain of the unfriendly ones arranged a "Union Protracted Meeting" (a revival on a large scale) to freeze him out before he arrived. But the bishop was equal to the situation.

He tells in his Reminiscences how he reached the scene of the revival and sent a man to the platform to call out the leaders. He reminded them that he had come by appointment to hold a service and invited them to assist him in conducting it. Then he marched straight to the platform himself and calmly took over the whole works.

"Neighbors," he announced, "I hold in one hand a Bible, in the other a Prayer Book. The one teaches us how to live, the other how to pray. I know you are familiar with the one, I doubt if you are with the other. I have brought some dozens of copies with me. With the aid of these, my good brethren, I will try to lead you in the service. If any of you, through the depravity of the natural heart, are averse to being taught how to pray, you need the teaching all the more on that account. Without confession there is, as you know, no remission of sins. We will therefore confess our sins to Almighty God, all in the same voice. You will observe that no man can say 'Our Father' until he has confessed his faults; we will now say 'Our Father who art in heaven'. The proper attitude when we pray is upon our knees, as did Solomon, Daniel, Stephen, and Paul. After their example, I enjoin upon you all to fall upon your knees." Thus the service of worship was offered—"the response from the great congregation being as the voice of many waters".

That's the kind of ground-breaking done by this hardy pioneer bishop. He was a striking figure in the Church of a century ago. Considering the difficulties of communication at that time, he covered a vast amount of territory in his ministry. Beginning as a rector in central New York, he moved all the way to New Orleans. When the malaria caught him there, he returned north to Connecticut until he had recovered. Then he struck out into the newly opened country of Ohio. After a few years he went in for the double occupation of farming and preaching the Gospel in Michigan and finally accepted an election as the first bishop of Illinois when Chicago was nothing but a swamp at the end of the lake. There he finished out his romantic career, leaving a heritage of sturdy Churchmanship to his successors.

And that was only a hundred years ago. It may seem, at times, to our impatient enthusiasm as tho the Church is doddering along without that degree of progress to its credit which we think it ought to have. But when one goes back three or four generations for a point of comparison, the present situation seems distinctly hopeful and one finds abundant cause for humble thanksgiving.

Frontier Pioneers

By

HUGH L. BURLESON

LAST of all, we come to one who is by no means the least of our missionary heroes, but who in strength of character, refinement of personality and utter devotion, even to the martyrdom of a lingering death, exemplified the best that can be rendered in service to the Christ—my own great predecessor, William Hobart Hare.

Bishop Joseph Cruikshank Talbot had been nominally in charge of the Dakotas. It was surprising that he had reached them at all. At best, his leadership there could be only occasional and ineffective. After him, Bishop Clarkson, of Nebraska, exercised oversight as best he could, but a great missionary problem had emerged in South Dakota. Bishop Whipple in Minnesota had begun an apostolic work among the so-called Sioux Indians. Many had been won to the Church, but the transfer of the tribe to South Dakota left them without a shepherd. On this occasion, at least, the Church acted as though she really believed in her missionary responsibility, and chose a Bishop for these people—the first and only racial bishop to be elected. In 1873, as Bishop of Niobrara (which is not a place at all, but the name of a river), Bishop Hare reached South Dakota. I can give only a few words concerning the man and his achievement.

Personally considered, he was a most unusual choice. He was a man of culture and refinement, the product of patrician ancestry and of city life. He was possessed of scholarly tastes, and was in the best sense a man of the world. But he was also a man of another world; he realized his duty to Him Whom he served. Great was the protest of his friends when this cultured gentleman was chosen to go out and serve the wild Indians of the plains. One Bishop is said to have exclaimed: "The Church is always making the mistake of using a razor to split kindling." Yet how his record refuted these predictions and forebodings! He became a true Father-in-God to his red children, touching their hearts and influencing their lives as no other man has ever done, and by his activities he wrote a thrilling page in the Church's missionary history.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Bishop Hare possessed three great qualities—utter personal devotion, sound judgment in administration and the capacity for winning the loyal allegiance of those who served with him. Nowhere has there been a finer record of long and effective missionary service than among the men who planted the Church in South Dakota.

Bishop Hare arrived in South Dakota to find a handful of Indian communicants and a little band of clergy in the midst of a nation of pagans. At the time of his death, among the 22,000 Indians resident in South Dakota, 10,000 were baptized members of our Church. There were more than 90 Indian congregations, 26 native clergy and 4,000 communicants.

Though most widely known for his service to the Indian people—for he was the true Apostle to the Indians—Bishop Hare also did a great work throughout South Dakota. When it was erected into a state in 1883, he became its first Bishop, relinquishing the title of Bishop of Niobrara. What Bishop White meant to Pennsylvania, Bishop Seabury to Connecticut and Bishop Kemper to the great Northwest, Bishop Hare was and will always be to South Dakota. The memory of him throughout the Church is fragrant as a box of ointment poured forth.

After thirty-seven years of service, by a most painful path of disease and suffering, he passed to his reward. His body rests in the land to which he went as a stranger, beside the Cathedral which he built, but he lives on in the hearts of thousands of our red brethren, who next to the Master they serve, cherish the memory of him who gave himself so unreservedly for them, that they might be brought out of darkness into light.

About Books

GOD'S WORLD by Cornelius Howard Patton. R. R. Smith-Ray Long Co. $2.

This is doubtless one of the finest and most convincing books on missions that has ever been written. One cannot read it without having the dull and dying embers of his interest in missions fanned into a glowing flame. Human solidarity is here made vivid, real and intelligible even for the dullest and narrowest soul. Dr. Patton shows how greatly the modern world has shrunken and how the human family is drawing together in a manner and on a scale unprecedented in history. He shames us out of our intense parochialism and little nationalism by a convincing demonstration of the need and of the opportunities of that higher internationalism which waits upon the unification of the followers of Christ. He encourages us with the fact that there is an aroused minority who are loyal to Christ and loyal to their world and who are aggressive and determined as never before to win the entire membership to the ideal of a world embracing Church. We often pray God has made of one blood all nations of men in the collect for missions. If we will read Dr. Patton's book we will realize the full content of that sentence and perhaps guard ourselves from the danger of pious sentimentalism with which the prayer is often offered and because of which our missionary spirit is prone to languish.

Irvine Goddard.

* * *

HEATHEN RACE. By Gerald Stanley Lee. R. R. Smith-Ray Long Co. $2.50.

This is a clever but somewhat futile book. It is clever and entertaining in its structures but futile in its remedial proposals. This must be said in spite of the fact of the judicious criticism which the author received when he submitted his manuscript to members of the various professions he castigates. In the main we agree with him when he says that doctors, clergymen, artists, lawyers and educators have fallen into evil days and no longer command the awe and respect which fiction would have us believe were once theirs. This misfortune has come about says Stanley Lee because the majority in each profession are utterly lacking in creativeness. They have nothing fresh or original to offer; more repeaters of what others have done or said better. There is hardly a doctor to be found today who can be said to know man in his entirety. The lawyer is still in his adolescence, an imitator and a slave to precedents. The parson has simply bed sores on his brains due we fancy to so much intellectual slumber while fussing on committees. The artist and educator are dealt with in much the same strain. It is all very fascinating and delightful, even though the facts are deplorable.

Where Mr. Lee falls down is in his proposals to remedy the situation. For instance we may all admit that Harry Emerson Fosdick is a charming and very human personality and has a wide appeal, but to expect every parson to pattern himself after Dr. Fosdick, and to maintain that if he did so the mouths of the heathen would be stopped and our churches filled to overflowing—this is hardly what you would call convincing. The same sort of dreamy and impractical proposals are offered for the other professions. That is why we are forced to say of an otherwise entertaining and readable book that it is amiably futile. We venture the opinion that the heathen have long since ceased to rage and are now expending their energies chasing vain things. Their rage in regard to the professions has largely been stilled into a deadly indifference. —Irvine Goddard.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Photo by Underwood
ARCHBISHOP TEMPLE

DR. VIDA SCUDDER

DR. BUTLER

The Christia

of Our International and

A Series of Four to appe

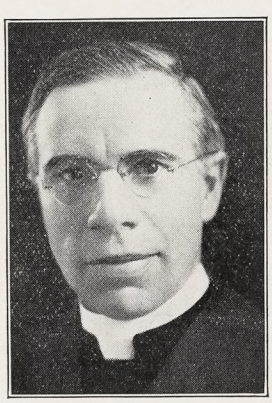
THE W



During

SPENCER MILLER

DR. B. I. BELL

DANIEL MCGREGOR

CONTRIBUTORS

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER
President of Columbia University and Winner of the Nobel Peace Prize

EDWARD L. PARSONS
Bishop of California and President of the Church League for Industrial Democracy

HARRY W. LAIDLER
President of the National Bureau of Economic Research

WILLIAM TEMPLE
Archbishop of York and famous as a sociologist

SPENCER MILLER, JR.
Consultant on Industry to the National Council of the Church

REINHOLD NIEBUHR
Professor at Union Theological Seminary

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD
Managing Editor, who will write a concluding summary of the series

WILLIAM GREEN
President of the American Federation of Labor

MARY SIMKHOVITCH
Head Resident of Greenwich House, New York City

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT
Research Director of the Christian Social Council, England

BERNARD IDDINGS BELL
Warden of St. Stephen's College, Columbia University

VIDA D. SCUDDER
Professor at Wellesley College and Officer of the Church League for Industrial Democracy

DANIEL MCGREGOR
Professor at Western Theological Seminary and Secretary of Adult Education

W. G. PECK
Rector at Manchester, England, and author of "The Divine Society"

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ian Way Out

and Economic Difficulties

Fourteen Articles appear in

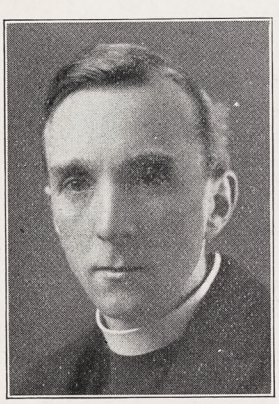
WITNESS

ng Lent

BISHOP PARSONS

MRS. SIMKHOVITCH



Harris & Ewing
WILLIAM GREEN

REINHOLD NIEBUHR

DR. H. W. LAIDLER

V. A. DEMANT

Two articles on "The Christian Way Out" will appear in each of the seven Lenten numbers, in addition to articles on

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

A Series on Church History to Start in the First Lenten Issue
by

BISHOP JOHNSON

We urge the formation of discussion groups in the parishes to study these vital questions.

While the children of our parishes are studying "BREAD", under the auspices of the Department of Religious Education, and while the International Disarmament Conference is in session, have the adults also study these problems, using this exceptional series of articles for their material. If there is to be no study group in your parish be sure to subscribe to THE WITNESS so that you may have these articles yourself.

ADOPT THE BUNDLE PLAN

10 copies a week for 7 weeks of Lent.. $2.80
25 copies a week for 7 weeks of Lent.. 7.00
50 copies a week for 7 weeks of Lent.. 13.00
100 copies a week for 7 weeks of Lent.. 25.00
10% Discount for Cash with Order

—o—

Single Subscription: Year, $2; Six Months, $1.

—o—

THE WITNESS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave. Chicago

All Orders Must be in the First Week in February

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHURCH HOSPITAL IN CHINA AIDS OPIUM SMOKERS

By W. G. Browning

A Chinese army officer who was an opium addict was among the patients at Church General Hospital, Wuchang, late in the summer. He knew a great deal about Confucianism, Taoism and Buddhism, and a little about Christianity.

The chaplain of the hospital is the Rev. Newton C. Y. Liu, a young Chinese priest. He has been especially interested in the opium addicts who come to the hospital for cure, and the work of his ministry, helping them find the moral power which is so necessary a part of the cure, has spread to many who are enchained in the miseries of the habit. Sixteen came in one month last summer. In a personal letter he describes his dealing with the army officer above mentioned. Written with no thought of publishing, it is a rare instance of recording day-by-day evangelism in a Church hospital.

The first and second days the chaplain listened to the talkative patient airing his wisdom, and said little.

The third day the chaplain spoke out and told the patient that "we should have vitality in life," and that "merely to know means little but to practice what we know is all-important."

Thus driven to cover, the patient on the fourth morning presented a counter-attack and accused the chaplain of working for an American institution and being a "running-dog of imperialists and capitalists," and exhorted him to be more patriotic. The chaplain answered that the American institution implied the good will of Christians in America, and that real patriotism demands good citizenship and "not necessarily anti-this or anti-that." But the patient continued scolding until another patient intervened to calm him down.

The fifth day, the patient was asleep when the chaplain called twice, so he left a greeting through the other patients.

The sixth day the chaplain was welcomed by the patient, saying, "I respect you for your loving spirit. You do not forsake me in spite of all I said to you." Then the chaplain "spoke out frankly" about what our Lord had meant in his own life, and said to the patient, "I have nothing to do for you or for others without Christ."

On the following days he preached "about the Cross and how it stands unique." The patient confessed that he was weak-willed. ("That's the trouble with all serious opium smokers," the chaplain inserts in his story. "Opium—a curse indeed!")

The patient was soon discharged from the hospital. The chaplain went to call on him at his hotel, and he came out of the restaurant to call the chaplain in to breakfast.

A few days later he sent the chaplain another disheartened smoker "for rescue and comfort."

There the record ended at the time the chaplain wrote. "Please pray for this," he adds. "The Lord has blest me in diverse manners, but I long to see more become Christians."

* * *

The Church General Hospital at Wuchang set aside a ward of eight to twelve beds, this fall, for opium addicts. More are cared for when there is room in the other wards. Made poor by the flood and so deprived of their supply of the drug, many are suffering acutely. The suffering while they are being cured is like the agony of cholera, they say, but it is not fatal.

CELEBRATE EIGHTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

January 14th marked the 85th birthday of the founder of the Church Army, the Rev. Wilson Carlile. At the age of 25 this man was the head of a prosperous business. At 85 he is the head of an army which has 1000 commissioned officers. One of the more recent ventures of the Army is the branch in the United States, now over four years old. Though autonomous it shares the same spirit as the Army in other lands. Its work, under the able direction of Captain Mountford, has grown steadily until at the moment there are about fifty workers on the staff. This year a new department is being opened, that of Church Army Sisters, and already three of them are in training at the training centre in Providence. There is also enrolled in the training centre this year a Negro, the first of that race to take up training.

HAS HAD ONLY FOUR RECTORS IN FIFTY YEARS

St. John's Church, Lansdowne, Pa., which celebrated its 50th anniversary on St. John's Day, has only had four rectors, but each one has become noted for some reason or other. The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, now Bishop of New York, was the first rector called when the church jumped from a mission to a parish in 1896. The second rector was the Rev. Dr. Lyman P. Powell, now rector of St. Margaret's in the Bronx, New York, and recently distinguished as the author of a new Life of Mrs. Eddy. The Rev. Dr. Croswell McBee, now rector of Old St. David's Church. Radnor, was the third rector, and the present rector is the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Tuke.

TWO PHILADELPHIA PARISHES PLAN TO JOIN FORCES

By Eleanor Howes

A great secret, which has been going all around Philadelphia for some time, was let out by the newspapers last Saturday with the announcement that Holy Trinity Church, 19th and Walnut streets, and St. James' Church, at 22nd and Walnut, have been considering the possibility of merging.

This combination would make the largest parish in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, as Holy Trinity has 1,783 communicants, not counting its three chapels, and St. James' has 799, excluding St. Elisabeth's, which is affiliated with it. All three rectors of these two parishes have expressed approval of the plan and the hope that it will be effected. The Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, of Holy Trinity, believes that it is a question of Christian economy as to whether two churches are needed within three blocks of each other. The Rev. Dr. John Mockridge, co-rector of St. James', hopes to make the consolidation the next step in the development of the "City Church" idea, and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, also co-rector, who made the announcement at his morning service, commented favorably on the project.

However, it will be some time before the two vestries can clear up such matters as charters, endowments and legacies, and after that, the union of the two churches will have to be approved by the Diocesan Convention, which meets next May, before it can be effected.

* * *

With the resignation of the Very Rev. H. St. Clair Hathaway as Dean of the Pro-Cathedral of St. Mary, Broadway and South streets, Philadelphia, there will be a new system at the Pro-Cathedral. Instead of calling a new dean, the Canons of the Cathedral Foundation will conduct the services. This means that eight rectors, scattered around Philadelphia, will each have charge for a month at a time.

This will not affect the future of the proposed Cathedral at Roxborough, as some people seem to think, but is only an economical measure in keeping with the times. When the new Cathedral gets under way it will no doubt be necessary to appoint a new dean.

Dr. Hathaway has accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church at Berwick, Pa., in the Diocese of Harrisburg.

Mr. A. E. Taylor, business man, was ordained deacon on January 6th by Bishop Stewart at St. Mary's, Park Ridge, Chicago.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

If I really carried out the injunctions of the Rev. G. Warfield Hobbs, the secretary of the publicity department of the National Council, I would be forced to give him and his department a bit of a panning this week. I dropped in for a little visit and found Mr. Hobbs and Mr. Hoster, news dispenser, pretty well steamed up over a sermon that Presiding Bishop Perry was to preach at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The sermon dealt with a live topic—Church Unity—and was in reality an answer to the recent utterance of the Pope on the subject. "We are busy now getting the story out for the newspapers and the press services. And if we don't make the front page of every morning newspaper in New York on Monday morning I hope you will get after us." So uttered Mr. Hobbs.

Naturally I bought the Times and the Tribune eagerly on Monday morning. On the front page of the Tribune I found a story about sacred and profane love, based upon a sermon preached by Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, with the delightful heading, "Crooning Not Art, Just Whining Slush, Asserts Cardinal O'Connell." Nary a word about Bishop Perry and his sermon on Church Unity. I turned to the page given to the reports of sermons and found Dr. Norwood in the first column, flanked by a three column picture of Bishop Lloyd and Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, with the story of the relatively unimportant afternoon services at the Cathedral. Over in the last top column the heading informed us that H. Adye Pritchard, honorary canon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, asks that birth control be legalized. So the Episcopal Church, as usual, dominated the page, but again never a word about the important document released by the Presiding Bishop. It was there, but much mutilated and relegated to one of the back pages. The Times gave more space to it, but ran it on page 24 and I don't really suppose anyone ever gets as far as page 24 in the Times. Being of a playful disposition my first impulse was to really take Mr. Hobbs at his word and ride him a bit for falling down on his self-imposed assignment. Then it occurred to me it was the religious editors of the newspapers who should be placed on the griddle. It is their job, I take it, to give to their readers the really important religious news. That Cardinal O'Connell has soured in his old age so that he is now picking on the youth of the land for their petty extravagances is interesting enough, but it is hardly of sufficient importance to warrant the first page of a great newspaper. The sermon by Bishop Perry was an important document, coming as it does from the head of the Episcopal Church as a reply to the recent encyclical by the Bishop of Rome. It is therefore given to you in this issue for your edification. We are a week late with it, it is true, but the responsibility for the tardiness is not ours.

* * *

The annual meeting of the Church Mission of Help was held in New York on January 18th. Miss Lindley, head of the Auxiliary, lead a discussion on "Youth and the Church Today".

* * *

Thirty years of hospital service as physician, and twenty years' service as treasurer, were commemorated and the board and staff of St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn, on the evening of the feast of the Epiphany. Wm. S. Hubbard, was the physician, now chief of the medical service, who was honored; and David H. Lanman, president of the Brooklyn Savings Bank, was the treasurer who has been re-elected twenty times. Bishop Larned and several others spoke at the dinner, which was attended by eighty men.

* * *

Bishop Budlong recently confirmed a class of 61 at Christ Church, Greenwich, which he had himself prepared while rector.

* * *

A young Negro boy walked one hundred miles from his home to Lawrenceville, Va., in order to enter St. Paul's School. On the way he sold all his possessions and some of his clothes, arriving at the school destitute but determined.

* * *

Two other significant announcements in this issue. The back page issues an ALARM from the Church Missions House. Read that carefully. And in the centre pages there is the announcement of our Lenten features which I allow to tell its own story.

* * *

More than 2,000 people were at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine last Sunday afternoon for the Washington bicentennial service. Bishop Lloyd and Dr. S. Parkes Cadman were the preachers, both eulogizing the first president and pointing to his courage and character as beacons in a period of economic depression.

* * *

On January 5th Mrs. Mary C. Beckwith, widow of the late bishop of Alabama, died in Montgomery of pneumonia.

* * *

St. Paul's, Spring Hill, Alabama, built in 1858, has been the only non-Roman church in the community for 75 years. For generations it was a struggling mission. Now, however, it is a thriving little parish of 130 communicants with a church school of 165. In addition it has started two Sunday schools in neighboring farm country, one having 70 members and the other 50. The rector is the Rev. J. Hodge Alves, a young man who recently graduated from the Virginia Seminary.

* * *

The diocese of Chicago is to have a quiet day for the clergy on February 8th, just prior to Lent. It will be held at St. Bartholomew's and Bishop Stewart will conduct it.

* * *

A letter from the Presiding Bishop: "At the meeting of the National Council February 2-4, 1932, the new members elected at last General Convention will assume office. At this meeting the Council faces the difficult task of adjusting the appropriations authorized by General Convention to the expected income as reported by the various dioceses and missionary districts. May I ask the prayers of the Church that this adjustment may be made without injury to the work."

* * *

In confirmation of an article by Bishop Johnson on "The Rector and the Vestry" which appeared in The Witness of December 3rd, we have received a letter from a vestryman in Western Michigan in which he states that the plan recommended has been in use in his parish for fifteen months and that the plan has worked admirably. The vestry has its own leader other than the rector and committees covering every phase of parish work make their reports through chairmen selected from the vestry, so that the vestry is represented in all the parochial activities. This leaves the rector free to devote his time to spiritual activities. From this experience they most heartily recommend the system to all vestries.

* * *

The annual Feast of Lights service at the Cathedral in Albany was held on January 10th. As usual the cathedral was filled. The sermon was preached by Dean Richardson.

* * *

It isn't every day that New York has a chance to hear Bishop Rowe of Alaska. He is to be the preacher on Sunday morning, the 24th, at the Incarnation. There should be a mob there to hear him for he is surely one of our greatest missionary heroes.

* * *

For over thirty-five years a considerable portion of the income of the parish of St. John the Evangelist, St. Paul, Minnesota, has come from renting pews. A quiet campaign in the interest of free pews has been going on for four years, led by the rector, the Rev. Frederick D. Butler.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassacks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 22rd St., New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
by
BISHOP JOHNSON
Formerly 50c a copy. Now 20c a copy as long as present edition lasts. $2.00 for a dozen copies.

Any Book Reviewed May Be Secured from
WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO, ILL.

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

By a vote of the parish the renting system was abolished at the beginning of this year. The remarkable thing about this important step is that 95 per cent of the members of the parish who formerly rented pews added the amount of their pew rents to their pledges for 1932.

* * *

In regard to that sermon preached by Bishop Perry dealing with the Pope's Encyclical, the Times and the Tribune, the two leading New York newspapers, had interesting headlines. The Tribune heading reads: "Papal Encyclical on Unity Hailed by Bishop Perry. Churchman Says Christian World Looks with Longing to return to one fold. Lauds Gracious Appeal." And the Times: "Dr. Perry Rejects Pope's Unity Plea. Presiding Protestant Episcopal Bishop says Jesus Christ alone is Head of Church. He denied Infallibility." One says yes and the other says no. All of which is merely further proof that people should ignore headlines. They are pretty but futile.

* * *

A series of six week-end conferences for laymen is to be held at Washington Cathedral during Lent. In previous years lawyers, doctors, bankers and brokers have attended these conferences, and also young business men, old business men and college undergraduates.

* * *

The mid-winter reunion of the Concord Conference was held during the holiday season at All Saints, Brookline, with a large number of young people present. There were movies of last summer's conference and an address by the Rev. Gardiner M. Day of Williamstown.

* * *

When a church building has been used as a place of worship for sixty years, it is high time it was paid for and consecrated. Such seems to have been the opinion of the Rev. Gordon D. Pierce, who became rector of St. John's, Brooklyn, about a year ago. And he was able to translate his opinion into facts through the generosity of two parishioners who were of the same mind. And so $10,000, the last remaining part of the mortgage, was paid off, and on St. John's day, last month, the Rt. Rev. Ernest M. Stires consecrated the church, in the presence of a congregation that packed it to the doors.

* * *

A Council of Diocesan Organizations is to be created in Long Island. The idea is "one for all and all for one." The objectives of all the societies will be woven together into a diocesan program, and events will be scheduled so as not to clash. Every group will gain prestige by having an opportunity to present its particular cause to the representatives of every other group at the meetings of this Council; and a unified pro-

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida
A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.
Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Clergyman, 39 years old; experience in parish work; also 5 years in teaching and religious work in boys' school. Desires work as school chaplain. Write Box B, The Witness. 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

gram will give a free field to each group in turn. Seems a simple and desirable thing to do.

* * *

At Bayou Du Large, parish of Terrebonne, near Houma, Louisiana, is an interesting mission conducted by Dr. Gardiner Tucker, who not only has the parish church at Houma, but is also executive secretary for the department of religious education in the province of Sewanee. Bayou Du Large is on a narrow strip of land in the marsh country of Louisiana. The people are of ancient immigration, French, Spanish and Portuguese. Their main occupation is muskrat trapping. Their traditional Church affiliation is Roman. St. Andrew's Mission was started in 1911 in a cottage. Illiteracy among the adults is 100 per cent, but recently a school has been opened and the children are learning to read. Though only about three months of schooling is given each year, that is the result of the insistence of Dr. Tucker that these people be remembered by the school board. During the past year, nine persons were confirmed by Bishop Morris.

* * *

Lieutenant Governor Lehman, Mr. L. R. Eastman, former president of the merchants association of New York, and Mr. R. Fulton Cutting, were the speakers at a public dinner held in connection with the synod of the province of New York and New Jersey, which met January 12-14 in Bronxville. There was a discussion of the provincial system of the Church by Bishop Oldham of Albany and the Rev. Malcolm Taylor, secretary of the New England province. The social service department had lively sessions on unemployment and race relations. Chaplain Kinsolving of West Point led a conference on "Youth and the Church" and the various women's organizations were also on hand in numbers.

* * *

The Rev. Alfred J. Wilders, member of the clergy staff of Washington Cathedral since 1928, has accepted the rectorship of St. Andrew's, Washington.

* * *

Here's an idea that is worth passing on. On the Sunday before the return of the boys and girls to colleges and schools from their Christmas Holiday, the Rev. B. Duvall Chambers, rector at Millwood, Virginia, gathers them all in for the morning service. There was a sermon for them, and then they knelt at the altar rail together, listened to a special prayer for them, and then received together. Not a difficult thing to do certainly, and yet who can measure the results of such a service.

Incidentally part of the Christmas offering from this parish was sent to provide food and clothing for the children of miners in West Virginia. If any of the rest of you care to make such offerings and wish to have your donations pass through Church channels, it should be sent to the Church League for Industrial Democracy, 154 Nassau Street, New York City. It does mean something I am sure, to have these gifts reach these people in the name of the Church.

* * *

The Rev. T. L. Settle has resigned as the rector at Harlan, Kentucky. Whether or not he will be allowed to leave remains to be seen. A petition is being circulated now requesting the bishop to refuse to accept his resignation. Harlan, as you perhaps know, is the centre of a good deal of the mining difficulties, and Mr. Settle has done effective work along relief lines.

* * *

Mr. J. W. Kennedy and Mr. Richard Watson were ordained deacons by Bishop Moore on January 3rd, at the Incarnation, Dallas, Texas. Mr. Kennedy is a student at Western and Mr. Watson is still at Virginia.

* * *

Next month the Rev. H. L. Cawthorne, the rector of St. Luke's, Chicago, is to retire. Mr. Cawthorne's retirement marks the close of a min-

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

was established by the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund and is operated under their supervision for the benefit of clergymen and their families and the lay-workers and their families of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

A BACKGROUND OF SAFETY

It has been the history of life insurance that the one immediate and liquid asset of an estate, upon death, has been the proceeds of the life insurance policies. It is generally agreed that everyone ought to have a certain amount of life insurance.

The complete facilities of this corporation are placed at the disposal of clergymen and their families and the lay-workers of the Church and their families. Its guaranteed rates are NET RATES, without loading, and it has also been paying annual refunds since 1924 on a constantly increasing scale.

It has no agents but invites correspondence which should be addressed to the corporation.

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

20 EXCHANGE PLACE—NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

istry of over fifty years, thirty-three of which have been served in this one parish.

* * *

The Preaching Mission on the Great Commission, a Southern project, is being staged in the diocese of Atlanta and Alabama during Epiphany and Lent.

* * *

A quiet day for the clergy of the diocese of Western Massachusetts was held at Christ Church Cathedral, Springfield, on January 7th. It was conducted by Bishop Davies.

* * *

A reception to Bishop Frederick Budlong, new coadjutor of Connecticut, is being held this evening in New Haven. It is being given by the churches of the city.

* * *

Porto Rico and Hawaii are assuming larger 1932 budget quotas than were assigned to them. Porto Rico was asked to assume $1,200 and sends word to the treasurer of the National Council to expect $1,400. Hawaii, asked for $5,500, expects to pay $6,000.

* * *

Armand T. Eyler was ordained deacon by Bishop Reese of Georgia at St. John's, Savannah, on January 3rd. He is to continue his studies at the Virginia Seminary.

* * *

Dean Shailer Matthews of the University of Chicago was a speaker on January 19th at a meeting of church school teachers of the diocese of Chicago, held at St. Chrysostom's Church.

* * *

A class of fifty-three was confirmed recently at St. Peter's, Westchester, New York City, by Bishop Gilbert. The Rev. Edmund Sills is the rector of the parish.

* * *

They have a fuel society over in Rhode Island, of which the Rev. Arthur M. Aucock is the president. They give coal to needy families. In 1930 they filled 1541 orders; in 1931 the orders numbered 5567, and valued close to $14,000.

* * *

Bishop Stewart of Chicago was the preacher on the "Church of the Air" last Sunday. Assisting in the service, which broadcast over a nation wide hook-up, was the choir from his former parish, St. Luke's, Evanston. Another interesting broadcast was that given on the 15th from a Chicago station by the Rev. Alfred Newbery, rector of the Atonement.

* * *

Mrs. Charles C. Binney, president of the Woman's Auxiliary in Rhode Island, has asked all members to sign the petition for world disarmament.

* * *

The Rev. John H. Lever was insti-

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

THE REDDING MASONIC SUPPLY CO., Inc.

200 Fifth Ave. Est. 1859 New York
Prayer Books - Hymnals - Bibles
Books of All Publishers
Masonic Books and Supplies
Write for circulars and special terms to clergy

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

tuted rector of All Saints, Worcester, Mass., on January 3rd by Bishop Davies.

* * *

A baby just one day old became a patient a few weeks ago at Deaconess Massey's dispensary-hospital at Balbalasang, in the Philippine Islands. The baby's mother has lost seven sons, but so strong is the native belief in evil spirits and so hedged about with tabus is the life of a newborn child, that only rare courage and independence on the part of this mother enabled her to send young Jonathan to Deaconess Massey. He was thriving at last accounts, under her close personal supervision. The people have come to believe that at least the members of the mission staff are immune to attacks by the ever-present evil spirits.

* * *

It has always been called the "American Cathedral," in Manila, but in one recent month it had a wedding at which all the guests were Netherlanders, a Russian baptism, and a memorial service sponsored by the British Legion.

* * *

"Those who fight hard for the love of God and their fellowmen"—so one of our Chinese clergy describes the flood relief workers. The words would make a motto for a Christian coat-of-arms. The writer, the Rev. Samuel Kao of Hankow, in a personal letter written early in December to the Rev. Dr. Arthur M. Sherman, says:

"We thank you and your countrymen for their sympathetic help in the relief work...Bishop Roots was the most important person during the flood, and Sheng Kung Hui co-workers were all active in helping him ...The danger is nearly over but the relief work not completed and still requires much continued labor and effort of those who fight hard for the love of God and his fellowmen. Water can still be seen outside the city. There are refugees by hundreds and thousands; they have no homes to go back to.

"But alas, what threatens now more than anything else is the fighting going on between Japan and our nation. I am sure you know more about it than I. The thing I would like to mention here and that might make you glad is that we citizens at Wuhan are patient and calm. And I myself trust in God whose judgment would be the final one, and that Christ Himself would plead for us. I would also try my best to make those whom I am caring for spiritually trust God rather than anything else, such as force and diplomacy.

"What I especially ask of you is your prayers for my work and my family and my country."

* * *

Thirty-five members of Grace Church, New York, have volunteered for social service work and were assigned to duty last week by the Rev. Floyd Van Keuren, secretary of the social service department of the diocese.

PILCHER Organs...

The Voice of Inspiration

Our experience of over a century is at your service. Send for literature. Address: Henry Pilcher's Sons, Incorporated. General Offices, Louisville, Ky. New York Office, Room 2583, Salmon Tower.

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64. The Oval. London. S.E.11. England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York
Amsterdam Ave. and 111th St.
Sunday Services: 8, 9:30, 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.
Daily: 7:30 and 10 A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: 8 and 11 A. M.
Holy Days: 7:30 and 11 A. M.

The Transfiguration, New York
"The Little Church Around the Corner"
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Sundays: 8 and 9 A. M. (Daily 7:30) 11 A. M. Missa Cantata and Sermon 4 P. M. Vespers and Adoration Thurs., Fri., and Saints' Days, 2d Mass at 10.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church
Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean Francis S. White, D.D.
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ALARM!

1932 EARLY REPORTS for 1932 are tragic.

Unless additional pledges come between now and February third, when the National Council is compelled to bring appropriations within income, in addition to every possible economy the following must be faced:

1—Missionary work abandoned or crippled.
2—Vacant posts unfilled.
3—Volunteers turned back.
4—Missionary salaries reduced.
5—Legacies used for operating expenses.

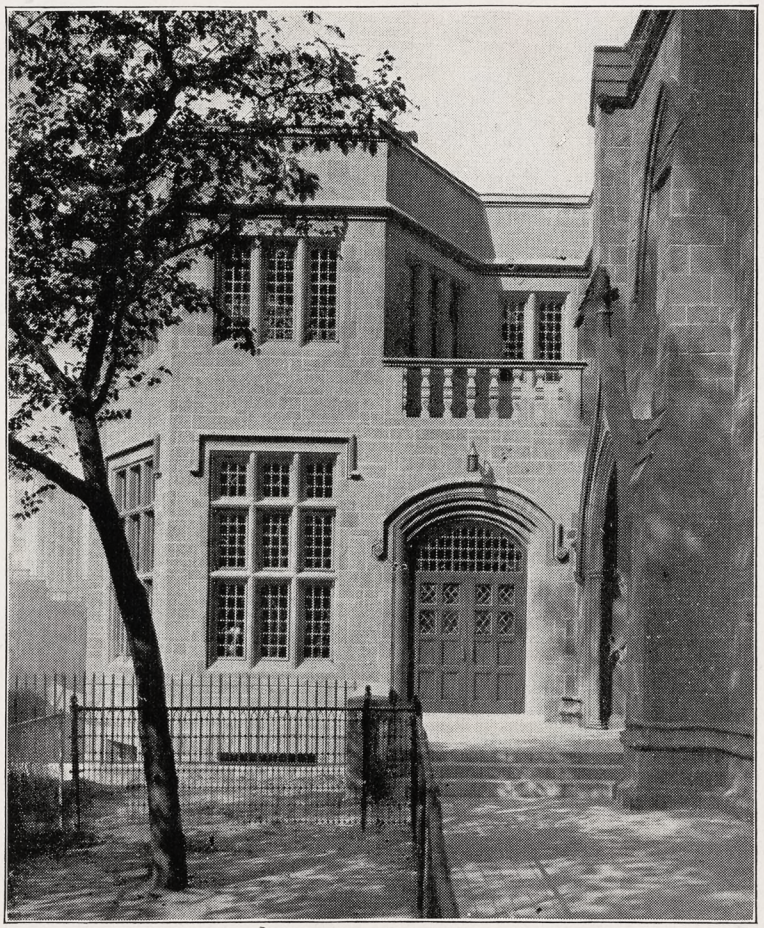
We know how hard many are working. Some have made real sacrifices.

Have you done your utmost? Send to your Bishop supplementary gifts or pledges prior to February 1st.

✠

1931

Dioceses are making heroic efforts to complete payment on the $1,070,296 reported due on December first. Present indications are alarming, but there is still hope that the 1931 bills can be paid.



THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
Church Missions House
281 Fourth Ave., New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Article by Russell S. Hubbard

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JANUARY 28, 1932

THE NEW PARISH HOUSE
Grace Church, Brooklyn, New York

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
ECCLESIASTICAL
METAL WORK
Altar Crosses Vases
Candlesticks Chalices
Missal Stands
Ciboria Processional
Crosses
Particulars from
Vestments
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

Craftsmen in Stained Glass
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19. W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1871

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J. WIPPELL
& COMPANY · LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 23 JANUARY 28, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE HYDRA RAISES A NEW HEAD

By
RUSSELL S. HUBBARD
Student Pastor at South Dakota University

FROM time to time we think that we have killed that monster, the idea that there is any conflict between religion and science. But just as we think we have slain it, behold another head grows in the place of the one we have just cut off.

Whatever conflict there has been between religion and science has been in the field of the physical sciences. Although difficulties still remain in the minds of some people, the real difficulties have been solved. The theologians have learned from the scientists to reinterpret their idea of the creation, finding that the new knowledge has only added depth to their thought of God and His creation. The scientists themselves, as the bishops assembled at Lambeth pointed out, have become the best allies of the Church in solving the difficulties, as they introduce an almost mystical strain into their theories of the Universe.

Unfortunately the leaders and thinkers of the Church have become so engrossed in looking up into the heavens that they have all but fallen into a pit. For while physical scientists have been delving into the mysteries of the creation, the social scientists have taken the torch of our duty to our neighbor and carried it such a distance that we of the Church have all but lost sight of it. Not that the Church has forgotten that she must be concerned with the duty of a man to his neighbor. She has not done that. But the many workers in the social sciences have discovered techniques, and have found out facts that too many in the Church seem hardly to know exist.

It is not enough that these facts and techniques should be known to a few of the leaders of the Church. They so intimately concern the life of the Church in every one of our parishes. The criminal who has just left the cell; the man who comes asking for help for his family;—how do we treat him? All too often there is little if any knowledge of good social method displayed in our parishes. All too often there is an "entente cordiall" established with the secular social agencies—ideally excellent, but practically ineffective —and nothing more.

IN A sense the clergy of the Church are not to blame for this lack of appreciation of the techniques and knowledge of the social sciences, for there is a woeful lack of teaching upon the subject in our seminaries. The recent advances in this direction in some of our seminaries hardly scratch the surface. Robert L. Kelly states the amount of such training in our seminaries in 1924, and his findings are not a matter for self-congratulation on the part of the Church. (Theological Education in America.) Dr. William S. Keller, director of the Cincinnati Summer School in Social Service, names six fields in which this training should be given:

I. Basic study of life in our present Western world.

II. The family—love, courtship, marriage and parenthood.

III. Working knowledge of normal and morbid psychology.

IV. Principles of case work.

V. Methods of cooperation with existing agencies and the constructive relief of poverty.

VI. Human factors in industry.

How many of us priests in the Church have had this training, unless we received it in college, or through our own efforts obtained it after we had finished our training? Unless the student has had this training in college, he does not have the proper equipment to enable him to handle the many cases that come to his attention without serious blunders.

But the result is even more serious than the bungling of cases on the part of the untrained parish priest. The students in our colleges are getting this training which the clergy have not had. One of the deans at one of our state universities recently made the statement that thirty years ago he expected to see the students crowding more and more into the courses on the physical sciences, but what was his surprise to find them leaving these and crowding the courses on social sciences. It is not the degree in physical sciences that is being introduced, but the degree in social science.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The students thus trained scatter into the parishes of our country. They hear sermons about the treatment of unfortunate people, of our duty to our neighbor, which reveal the lack of training and knowledge of the preachers in those techniques which they themselves have studied. The preacher may think he is dealing with his subject in a Christlike manner, and probably is according to his lights, but where he has not taken the trouble to find out the best methods in handling a case, the inference is that he does not really care enough to find out—and all the fine words he says are discounted. No preacher can help but handle moral questions occasionally; but a brief glance through Hadfield's Psychology and Morals will convince him that actions are as often pathological as sinful. And blame does not heal disease. With one in eight of our young people going to college, and with courses in the social sciences being introduced in our high schools, this lack of training of the clergy becomes a serious handicap.

THERE is more reason why our students in the colleges do not take an interest in the church than laziness, or the burden of other activities, or intellectual troubles. There is a large amount of indifference due to an attitude, perhaps sophomoric, that the clergy do not really know what they are talking about when they get into the realm of the social and moral sciences.

The seeming conflict between religion and the physical sciences has been solved, or is being solved. But there exists a real danger that those who are working in the social sciences, those who are working in fields which have been cradled in the Church, shall cease to respect the attitude of the Church on the vital subjects in which they are interested. In the issue between the physical sciences and religion the subject has been brought out, into the open and discussed. All too often such discussion has appeared on the front page, assuming an importance that it did not deserve. In the relation of the Church and the social sciences there are signs of a severance of relations without discussion. There are already signs that the social scientists are going on their own way without the Church, without considering its ability to assist or fearing its power of opposition; too often they seem to have lost respect for religious forces. They judge not infrequently that the Church is either indifferent to or intolerant of their findings and their labors because of inherited traditions.

These workers in the field of the social sciences have too much to contribute to the Church for her to disregard them or their findings. And the Church has the motive power of the Christian ethic which can and should make the labors of the social scientists more fruitful. There is no stimulus greater than that of the Master; but the Master's life and teaching have to be interpreted in the light of our present needs. This the Church can do, and current sociology in too large measure lacks and needs this touch with Him who went about doing good. In His day there was no social science in the strict sense of that term; but He who was ever willing to face facts, He who said to His disciples, "Ye have heard it was said to them of old time...; but I say unto you," would not have been the last to accept new light and new methods for helping people. If the Church is to retain the allegiance of a generation nurtured in social techniques, she must know of the new knowledge and the new methods that she may use them where and when they are good, in all her parishes.

AN UNUSUAL PARISH HOUSE

By

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

ONE has no business losing a popular editor like "Cheerful Confidences" Atwater when he can be reached on a nickel subway fare in ten minutes. So the other day I slipped on my rubber coat and rubbers (we have been having that sort of weather in New York) and hustled over to Grace Church, Brooklyn, to ask him; "How come we are not getting your stuff any more?" I did considerable research work before making the call too. If he said, "I really have been frightfully busy with my parish work", I was all set to shoot right back; "I know that Grace Church is an important down-town parish, but after all there are less than three hundred communicants, and now that you have Son David as an assistant we were hoping that you could find the time. People you know are asking for it." Then if he met me with the "busy with diocesan affairs" argument I was going to tell him that we would have Bishop Johnson write Bishop Stires and ask that he be relieved of some of his burdensome tasks.

I went to 29 Grace Court, an ordinary dwelling converted into a temporary parish office, and was greeted with a genial "hello" from the top of the stairs where Dr. Atwater's study is located. "What's the idea of all the packing boxes", I asked. "What are you doing; jumping out in the night or something?"

"Don't take off those rubbers", was the reply. "Come across the street and I will show you where they are going, and also incidentally just what has kept me so busy for the past year or so. Really this job of building a parish house is the toughest assignment I have ever had. But I think it has been worth the effort. Come and take a look and then you can judge for yourself."

The parish house is not an imposing structure from the outside; an attractive building but rather small in appearance. But one soon discovers that this small appearance is an illusion. It is full of halls and good sized rooms, and a dandy gymnasium. The entrance is an attractive affair, marble I take it, with convenient places for wraps. Mount a few steps and you are in a fine large social hall. Go down a few steps and you are in the gymnasium. Later I learned of another entrance from another street. As a result three parties or meetings can be going on in this parish house at the same time without the different groups even seeing each other. You know, sometimes that carefully worked out idea may prove handy.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE GUILD HALL

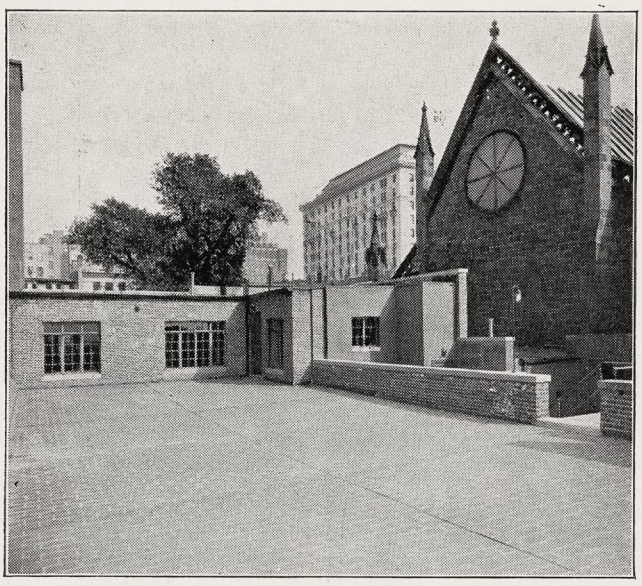
The lounge, where we went first, is a large light room. The windows are filled with attractive antique glass. There is a nice fireplace.

"Interesting fireplace that. Real logs you see. But we don't have to litter up the place with kindling to have a roaring fire. Here, hand me a match and I will show you." And he turned a faucet or something on the floor, struck his match and in less time than it takes to tell about it there was a roaring wood fire, charred logs and all. There is a gas outlet it seems underneath the logs which serve as the kindling. A grand idea.

The adjoining room is a large social hall, with folding doors between so that the two can be thrown into one huge room on occasions. The southern end of this hall is one immense window, so that it is filled with sunlight.



Adjacent to this is a room for the womens' organizations. The fine panels in the room look like ornamentation, but I soon discovered that in reality they were closets, and large closets, too—big enough to store sewing machines, for instance.

Across a corridor from the large hall is the commodious kitchen.

We then went to a lovely kindergarten room on a lower floor where we found a couple of women of the parish preparing for a children's party. At least that is what they told us though I noticed they had a pretty good luncheon spread out for themselves. However, regardless as to who was going to have the party there is no doubt about it's being a children's room. Mother-goose and Bible pictures, the sort that children like, all in bright colors, decorated the walls, and the small chairs and tables tempted even a grown-up to sit down for games.

Nearby was the choir room, in charge of the organist of the parish. Here again there were no unsightly lockers but fine wall panels which turned out to be roomy lockers for vestments. It is a fine room, decorated by a lover of music obviously, which will surely be an inspiration to good music. The lighting throughout the building is by diffused light, flooding each room without casting any shadows. This is an unique feature, as is also the acoustic plaster and blocks which absorb sound.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHILDREN'S PARADISE ON THE ROOF

Then the gymnasium; I have seen bigger ones but never a better one. On one side of the large gym is a balcony where basketball and handball games can be witnessed, leaving the players free to do their stuff unhampered by spectators. The walls of the hall are lined for eight feet from the floor with cork, thus preventing the blisters one frequently gets by scraping an arm or a shoulder against a wall in a hotly contested game. At one end is a well equipped stage, so that this hall can also be converted into a lovely theatre. At the other end is a little room, sort of dug under the yard so that it gets its light from above, which is to be used, I believe, for a boys' club. And how the boys of this parish are going to love this den which is to be their very own.

Next we inspected the great Electrol Oil Burners which furnish automatic heat and hot water, not only for the new parish house, but the church as well. The advantages of these is obvious; economy of space, instant heat and hot water, clean heat, no ashes, and all at a cost no greater than coal.

Finally we went to the top floor. First a study for the assistant rector, who at the moment is David Atwater, attractive son of the rector. Nearby is another children's room, all fixed up as the children would have it, and equipped with glass that allows the ultra-violet rays to penetrate. And from this room one goes to the roof which was attractive even on this rainy day; a real haven for children, with swings, slides, sand-boxes and games. Here mothers can leave their children in the care of a parish worker and know not only that they will be safe but also that they will be having a grand time. There are two large stretches of roof, paved with red tile.

Then we went to Dr. Atwater's new study. And what do you think that is like? A great huge mahogany panelled room with a glass top desk? Guess again. It really seems like an attic and it hasn't even been plastered yet. "How come? Aren't you going to have a decent place for yourself? You seem to have fixed up everyone but the rector." "Well," he replied, "this is a parish house and not a rector's house. I figured the people should have their quarters first. We ran out of money before we got to this. When we find the money this will be finished. Until then I shall manage."

There was another room which interested me. It is a fire-proof (the whole building is fire-proof as far as that goes) and dust proof store room. Church supplies and records will be kept here and the only key is in the possession of the rector.

"We have been a year building this, and the plans started long before that. So you can see I have had my hands full. I really haven't had time for much else. But I hope I shall get back at 'Cheerful Confidences' presently," said Dr. Atwater as we headed for a jovial lunch.

And certainly after this inspection I could say that he had done a real job, with the help of Mr. Frank H. Hutton, the architect, and John Thatcher & Son, the builders, to whom Dr. Atwater insisted on giving most of the credit for the success of the undertaking. I am no authority on parish houses but I doubt if a more complete parish house exists, certainly not for the money expended. Drop over and see it if you get a chance. It is worth your careful inspection, and if you are fortunate enough to have Dr. Atwater for your guide you have a double reason for going.

THE KINDERGARTEN ROOM

The Christian Way Out

A series of fourteen articles written by authorities starts in the issue of February 11th.

ALL ORDERS MUST BE IN THE FIRST WEEK IN FEBRUARY TO INSURE DELIVERY OF THE FIRST NUMBER.

THE WITNESS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave.

Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

DECLARATION OF AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

WHEREAS, the Supreme Court of the United States has refused citizenship to Professor Douglas Clyde Macintosh on the ground that he was unwilling to promise to subject his conscience to an act of congress in the event of a war which he might at the time believe to be unjust and contrary to the will of God; and

WHEREAS, the ground upon which the court's decision rested was the alleged fact that every native-born citizen of the United States has impliedly made the identical promise which Mr. Macintosh refused to make, and that to admit Mr. Macintosh with such a reservation of conscience would give him a privileged status as a citizen in comparison with the status of native-born citizens; and

WHEREAS, the supreme court's decision, together with the argument on which it rests, affects not only an applicant for naturalization but every native-born citizen, whether he be willing or unwilling to bear arms in event of war, and leads itself to a justification of any form of tyranny over the free conscience of American citizens; and

WHEREAS, the supreme court, referring to Professor Macintosh, says:

"When he speaks of putting his allegiance to the will of God above his allegiance to the government, it is evident...that he means to make his own interpretation of the will of God the decisive test...We are a Christian people...But we are also a nation with the duty to survive...a nation whose government must go forward upon the assumption...that unqualified allegiance to the nation and submission and obedience to the laws of the land, as well those made for war as those made for peace, are not inconsistent with the will of God;" and

WHEREAS, it is a fundamental principle of democracy that conscience shall not be sacrificed to the state, but that the state accepts the responsibility of so fashioning its policies that it will enlist the support of the free consciences of its citizens; and

WHEREAS, no principle contributes so much to the moral dignity of democracy and to the purifying and stabilizing of the state as the guarantee of a free conscience to all its citizens and an unhindered right to worship and serve God according to the dictates of a free conscience; and

WHEREAS, in his dissenting opinion in this same case Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, with the concurrence of Justices Brandeis, Holmes and Stone, denied that the oath of allegiance can rightly be made to bear the interpretation advanced by the majority of the court, and affirmed the contrary view as follows:

"In the forum of conscience, duty to a moral power higher than the state has always been maintained. The reservation of that supreme obligation, as a matter of principle, would unquestionably be made by many of our conscientious and law abiding citizens. The essence of religion is belief in a relation to God involving duties superior to those arising from any human relation...One cannot speak of religious liberty, with proper appreciation of its essential and historic significance, without assuming the existence of a belief in supreme allegiance to the will of God;" and

WHEREAS, insofar as citizens assent to the doctrine advanced by the court's decision they consent to the nullification of the most basic principle of ethical religion, and surrender their own and the church's freedom to preach and practice that truth which is the vital breath of any spiritual faith, namely, that God alone is Lord of the conscience, and that we must obey God rather than men; and

WHEREAS, if those who are American citizens allow the imputation of such an obligation to pass without protest, they thereby acquiesce in a ruling which is not only, in the language of Chief Justice Hughes, "repugnant to the fundamental principle of representative government," but which radically modifies the spirit of our democracy and smothers spiritual religion by setting up the state as the supreme object of devotion beyond which religion dare not go; and

WHEREAS, it is required of citizens when entering upon public office, whether federal or state, and when applying for passports, and on other occasions, to take the same oath of allegiance which, under this decision, now implies the giving of an absolute pledge to hold their personal consciences in subservience to the will of congress as the final interpretation of the will of God; now

THEREFORE, I, a citizen of the United States, solemnly refuse to acknowledge the obligation which the supreme court declares to be binding upon all citizens, whether native-born or naturalized. I have not promised, expressly or tacitly, to accept an act of congress as the final interpretation of the will of God, and I will not do so. In my allegiance to my country I withhold nothing, not even my life. But I cannot give my conscience. That belongs to God. I repudiate the obligation which the supreme court's decision would impose upon me, and declare that the imposition of such an obligation is the essence of tyranny. I refuse to be bound by it.

I further solemnly declare that until this intolerable restriction upon conscience and religion has been removed I will not take the oath of allegiance upon any occasion without adding thereto a reservation of the right of conscience and of my supreme allegiance to the will of God.

I therefore earnestly and respectfully petition Congress to amend the naturalization law so as to unbind the consciences of American citizens and to insure that no alien who is otherwise qualified, and who is willing to be subject to the same obligations in all respects as a native-born citizen shall be refused citizenship.

(Signed).....

This Declaration is being printed cooperatively by the religious press of the nation. Signatures may be sent to THE WITNESS, 931 Tribune Building, New York, or some other participating Journal, for compilation and despatch to Washington.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ACTIVITIES OF THE CHURCH IN THE NORTHWEST

By C. H. L. CHANDLER

An inspiring story of how a class of young girls, connected with the Church of the Good Shepherd, Portland, was responsible for the building up of a splendid institution for the sick, appeared in a recent edition of one of the city papers.

In 1902 "a class of 12 small girls" heard of the serious illness of the mother of one of their number. It was a case of tuberculosis, and could not be received at any of the public institutions. Said one of the girls: "Wouldn't it be lovely if there were a house with shady trees around it—and hammocks under the trees for the patients on a hot day!" Her classmates agreed with her.

Out of the conversation grew the determination to raise a fund "to help provide" a house "under shade trees." Each girl agreed to contribute 10 cents per month towards the fund. Eventually the editor of the city paper now relating the story, heard of the fund and "wrote it up."

Among the readers of the newspaper article was the then city physician and a number of prominent citizens. The immediate result was prompt action on their part providing a suitable place for a limited number of such patients; the ultimate result, the present Portland Open Air Sanitarium (with ample space for bright sunlight and hammocks), today one of the best equipped of such institutions on the coast, located on an ideal spot among native Oregon fir trees about 6 miles south of Portland.

It is a fascinating story, too long for these columns—but these young women certainly "started something" when they arranged, in their youthful motherly sympathy, to earn 10 cents per month to aid a sick woman!

* * *

A reception was tendered the Rt. Rev. Lemuel H. Wells, retired bishop of Spokane, by a host of friends, in St. Mark's parish hall, Seattle, in honor of his ninetieth birthday. The bishop has served the Church in this section over a period of 60 years, first as a missionary and from 1892 to 1913 as Bishop of the District of Spokane. Since his retirement he has had charge of St. Andrew's Mission, Tacoma, Wash. The bishop has just completed writing his memoirs, shortly to be published under the title "A Pioneer Missionary."

* * *

High honors have been paid Dr. Miriam Van Waters, whose early life was spent in Oregon, by her appointment as Superintendent of the Sherborn Reformatory, at Framingham, Mass. Dr. Van Waters, a daughter of the Rev. Geo. B. Van Waters, one time rector of St. David's Church, Portland, is a graduate of our Diocesan School, St. Helen's Hall, Portland, class of 1904. She also is a graduate of the University of Oregon, receiving the degree of M.A. in 1913, and later being awarded the honorary degree of Ph.D. by Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

During the intervening years she has performed a notable work along social service lines, as well as having written a number of books, prominent among these being one on "Youth in Conflict," and another entitled "Parents on Probation."

* * *

The Rt. Rev. Irving P. Johnson, Bishop of Colorado and editor, is to conduct a mission, February 24 to March 2 at St. Mark's Cathedral, Seattle, Washington.

* * *

The forty-fourth annual Convention of the Diocese of Oregon is being held in St. Stephen's Cathedral, Portland, on January 27-8. The Woman's Auxiliary held its annual meeting on the 26th in Grace Memorial Church, Portland. The Rt. Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, Bishop of Idaho, was special preacher for the convention. Miss Florence Newbold national executive secretary, was guest speaker for the annual meeting of the G. F. S. Council on January 25th, in St. David's Parish, Portland.

* * *

The parish branches of the Woman's Auxiliary of Seattle, sponsored the presentation of the Japanese Operetta, "O Hara San," given on two days in January, by the girls of St. Peter's Mission in that city. The proceeds were devoted to the building fund of the mission.

BISHOP PERRY
Going to Europe

MASSACHUSETTS CLERGY SUPPORT ARMS REDUCTION

At its January meeting, the Massachusetts Clerical Association passed the following resolution:

"Now be it resolved that the Massachusetts Clerical Association unanimously go on record as urging upon the President of the United States to instruct the American delegates to the Disarmament Conference to take a strong and insistent stand for an agreement for substantial reduction of armaments."

The resolution was drafted by a committee consisting of Prof. Francis B. Sayre, of the Harvard Law School faculty, the Rt. Rev. Samuel Babcock, and the Rev. Messrs. John M. Groton, Edmund J. Cleveland, Laurens MacLure, Henry McF. B. Ogilby, and Richard G. Preston, four of whom are ex-service men.

* * *

On January 20, the Massachusetts Church Service League held an all-day program at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul in Boston, devoted to the subject: "Christianity, the Church, and the Present Industrial Situation." The leader of the conference was Mr. Spencer Miller, consultant on industrial relations of the National Council. In addition to his address, the Rt. Rev. John T. Dallas, Bishop of New Hampshire, spoke on "The Church in the Country" and the Rt. Rev. Charles Gilbert, Suffragan Bishop of New York, on "The Church in the City." Bishops Lawrence and Sherrill were also present, the latter presiding.

* * *

The Rev. Paul Micou of St. Mark's Church, Fall River, is conducting a special school for Church School teachers of that city. The school is staffed by Mrs. L. Merrill of Trinity Church, Boston, and Mrs. W. M. Copley of the diocesan staff, for the lower grades, and by Miss Emma Blaydow of Grace Church, Salem, Miss Lola White, and Miss Lillian Boyd, also of the diocesan staff, for the upper grades.

* * *

Another interesting experiment that is being carried on in Massachusetts is one of the Rev. LeRoy Ferguson, of the City Mission. He is opening a week-day "Leisure Hour School" with classes in religious training, craft work, sewing, cooking, millinery; parents' and teachers' clubs; and a recreational center for young people, to be conducted in the Parish House and grounds of St. Cyprian's Church in Roxbury.

G. M. D.

The Rev. E. L. Wooley, St. John's, Marcellus, N. Y., has resigned his parish, effective December 31st.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. PAUL'S, TOKYO, RECEIVES GRANT FROM GOVERNMENT

By G. W. Browning

The first payment of about $5,000 has been received, toward the sum of 250,000 yen to be given to the endowment of St. Paul's University, Tokyo, by the Japanese imperial government.

The imperial department of education announced last year that it intended making this grant of 250,000 yen for endowment, over a period of fifteen years, beginning with 10,000 yen a year. Of the total amount, the income from the first 100,000 yen is to be used for development of the library.

Students at St. Paul's increased in number from 1,000 to 2,000 in the past three years, and at present are cut down and limited to 1,500 as the highest number that can possibly be cared for with the present crowded equipment. The library is particularly cramped, as it houses the administration offices. A daily average of 157 students use the library. A special need is room for post-graduate research.

Eventually, an auditorium building is to be erected with money coming to St. Paul's from the 1923 earthquake Reconstruction Fund, as soon as St. Luke's Hospital is nearer completion. This will then allow the executive offices to move out of the library.

Meanwhile, Bishop Reifsnider has written to the Church Periodical Club about the value of their long continued and faithful contribution. The C. P. C. makes a yearly grant to the library out of the income from its own small endowment; half the grant is used to buy Japanese books. With the Club's assistance over many years, and only so, St. Paul's has been enabled to keep the library up to government requirements, and the Imperial decision to use so large a proportion of its gift for library extension is a public recognition of the fine work the library has done in the past.

* * *

Eleven Japanese students and four Japanese faculty members at St. Paul's University, Tokyo, were baptized just before Christmas by the University chaplain, the Rev. Dr. T. Takamatsu. The membership of the college chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew has grown so much in the past year that it has been necessary to form four sections.

* * *

February is Endowment Month for the Church Periodical Club. Special efforts are made to increase the endowment fund, income from which is hard at work constantly, to provide useful books where they are needed. Appropriations are made, such as the above mentioned to the library at St. Paul's, Tokyo, to Boone Library, Wuchang, China, and elsewhere. Gifts of old gold and silver objects are received and sold for the endowment fund. One woman recently sent a check for $25 received from the sale of Christmas cards.

GETTING CHILDREN TO CHURCH

By A. A. Hughes

Things are humming in St. John's Parish, Lancaster, where the youthful John William Mulder is rector. On January 7th, the newly-formed Men's Association held its first banquet in the parish house. The new Bishop of Harrisburg, the Right Rev. Wyatt Brown, was the principal speaker, and the men were carried away with his magnetic eloquence. Other splendid addresses were given by Professor H. M. Fry, Professor C. W. Mayser, and Dean Bomberger, of Franklin and Marshall College, and Judge Benjamin C. Atlee, of the Second Judicial District of Pennsylvania. Judge Atlee is an active member of the parish. In addition, there were present seven students from Franklin and Marshall College. This Men's Association consists of five departments, each with a vice-president of the organization in charge; Religious Department, St. John's Camp Department, Department of Recreation, Department of Education, and the Department of Social Activities. Like the vast majority of our parishes, St. John's, Lancaster, finds that parents are glad to send their children to the Church School, but do not insist on their attending any of the church services. But instead of merely discussing the problem, they are doing something definite about it in this parish. And furthermore, they are securing results. This is their schedule. Every child above the Kindergarten and Primary grades attends a Church Service every Sunday at 9:30 o'clock. The first Sunday in the month, a Children's Choral Eucharist; the second Sunday, Matins; the third Sunday, the First Office of Instruction; the fourth Sunday, the Second Office of Instruction; the fifth Sunday, the Litany. After the Church Service there is a study period of not less than forty-five minutes, except on the first Sunday in the month.

WILL VISIT EUROPE

Bishop Perry is to sail for Europe on February 27th to visit the Episcopal Churches. His visit will include attendance at the annual convocation of these churches during Easter Week at which he will preside. Bishop Perry is to be in Florence Holy Week, Good Friday and Easter in Rome. The following Sunday he is to be in Paris. He is also to visit Dresden, Nice and Munich.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

The Church has lost one of her greatest sons in the death of Bishop Charles Gore, who died on January 16th of influenza. Bishop Gore was in his 78th year. He was a leader in the Church unity movement, was the author of many notable books of theology, and was considered a radical in the realm of sociology and politics.

* * *

The General Seminary Alumni met on the 20th, the day the fine Seabury Hall was dedicated. There was a grand crowd there and they had a great day, quite apart from the ceremony of dedication. They were the guests of the Dean and faculty at luncheon and then had an address on the Ethics of Jesus from the Rev. Dr. Easton.

* * *

Ellen-Louise Wallen was a little girl from Greenwich, Connecticut, who was attending school in Munich. She was devoted to the American Church of the Ascension, in Munich, where the Rev. Dr. Frederick M. Kirkus is in charge. Ellen-Louise said that as soon as she was old enough she was going to earn money to build a little chapel for the church. Instead, she was taken seriously ill in the spring of 1930, and just after her mother reached her, her death occurred following an operation for appendicitis. She took her mother to see the church before she would go to the hospital. She was a girl of high spirits, full of fun and charm, and just fifteen when she died.

In her name, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Wallen, have established a memorial fund of $50,000 to aid the church in Munich and the library connected with it. A chapel, library and living quarters will eventually be erected in Munich, in her memory, or the memorial will take some other similar form.

* * *

The clergy of the diocese of Springfield are to hold a retreat February 3-5 at the Chapel of St. John the Divine, University of Illinois. It is to be conducted by Dean J. A. Schaad of Quincy. Clergy from outside the diocese are invited to attend. The men will live in Newman Hall, dormitory of the Roman Catholic foundation at the University.

* * *

The joint commission to consider the status of the Negro in the Church, and the means whereby a full measure of leadership may be developed, held a meeting in Washington, January 14th and 15th. This promises to be one of the most lively debated matters to come before the next General Convention. Bishop Penick of North Carolina is the leader of the group desiring to give them their own missionary districts and bishops, ignoring present diocesan lines. Bishop Reese of Georgia on the other hand is convinced that the Negro work of the Church must not be separated from the white work.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

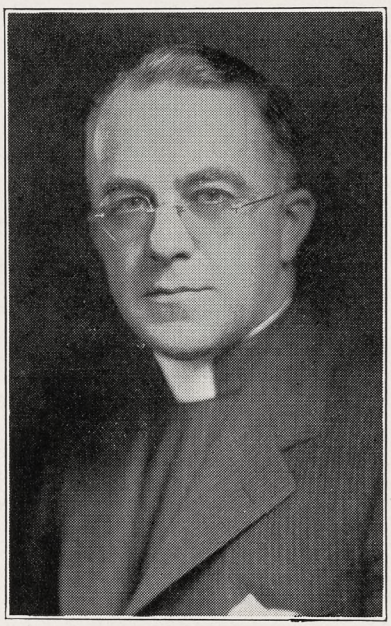
* * *

In a vast rural parish in the Southwest where one man is in charge of widely scattered centers, he planned last summer to take no real holiday but instead to pack a tent and cooking apparatus into his car and go off on a month's tour, holding services and Bible schools in a number of places which were otherwise without religious care. A cut in appropriations left him without money for gasoline and he had no choice but to stay home. Between two churches, forty-six miles apart, not a single service was held—for lack of the price of gasoline.

* * *



A very significant document which we are printing in this issue is the "Declaration of an American Citizen" which is being produced this month in religious journals throughout the country. Those of you who followed the debates at General Convention will recall that the question as to whether the will of God or the will of the state should claim our first loyalty gave the Convention some of its most lively sessions. Senator Cutting of New Mexico is now offering to Congress an amendment to the naturalization law which while less than all a Christian should desire, is a great improvement on the present law. We believe many Episcopalians will sign this declaration eagerly. Signatures may be sent to THE WITNESS, 931 Tribune Building, New York, or to any of the religious journals that are, this month, producing the declaration cooperatively. They will then be compiled and dispatched to Washington. The declaration is a joint product of editors of religious journals of many denominations, and has been passed upon by Mr. John W. Davis, Churchman, lawyer and former presidential candidate. If you care to sign it merely tear out the page containing the line for your signature and mail to us.

* * *

The Rev. George F. Taylor, recently of St. James, New York, and formerly rector of St. George's, Flushing, Long Island, has been made the associate rector of the Ascension, New York.

* * *

The upper house of the convocation of Canterbury took what the Archbishop described as an "historical step" last Wednesday by adopting unanimously a resolution proposing intercommunion between the Church of England and the "Old Catholic" Churches of Europe.

DR. REINHEIMER
Leads Chicago Conference

The action taken by the Canterbury convocation began in 1930 at the Lambeth conference. As an outgrowth of that conference there was a meeting at Bonn, Germany, last July between representatives of the Anglican Communion and the "Old Catholic" churches, the Bishop of Gloucester presiding. Subsequently, the "Old Catholic" Congress at Vienna resolved that intercommunion should be permitted between members of the "Old Catholic" churches and of the Anglican Communion.

* * *

Seabury Hall, General Theological Seminary's first new building to be constructed in thirty years, was dedicated last Wednesday by Bishop Matthews of New Jersey. The building is a memorial to the Rev. Charles Seabury and his son, the Rev. William Jones Seabury, once a member of the faculty. Judge Samuel Seabury, who is doing so much to destroy the credit of Tammany Hall, is a son of the professor and they are all descendants of Bishop Seabury.

* * *

The semi-annual meeting of the Central New York Woman's Auxiliary was held in St. Paul's Church, Syracuse, N. Y., January 15th. Diocesan programs to be considered for the coming year were presented by Archdeacon Jaynes. A pledge of $56,000 with $7,500 for special interests to church work this year was made. Report of the diocesan officers showed that the total amount contributed for supply work inside and outside the diocese was $10,650.01; United Thank Offering $36,191.47, and total pledges for special and corporate gifts for the year amounted to $9,665.69. The annual conference of diocesan and district officers will take place May 25th and 26th in Watertown.

* * *

Here is news; at the annual meeting of St. John's, Elmira, N. Y., the treasurer reported that the receipts of the parish had doubled in the past five years. How about 1932 over 1931? Double there and it would be worth a big headline.

* * *

St. Paul's, Chattanooga, shares with a number of charitable institutions a fund of $18,000 according to the will of Mrs. Frank Neiland, recently probated. St. Paul's is to receive a trust fund of $10,000.

* * *

Secretaries, executives and vice-presidents, from 281 Fourth Avenue met in Chicago earlier in the month with a flock of officers from dioceses throughout the country. They discussed the Church Program and what is to be done about it. Whether they arrived at an answer I have not been told. The Rev. Dr. Reinheimer, head of the Field Department, was the boss of the conference. Speeches were made by Dr. Louis B. Franklin, the Rev. G. Warfield Hobbs, Dr. Reinheimer, the Rev. Charles H. Collett and probably a lot of other people.

* * *

The Presiding Bishop called in every one of the scores of people who work at the Church Missions House the other day and asked them what their ideas were on the subject of salary cuts. Of course one doesn't get a tremendous amount of enthusiasm at such a meeting and from reports I have picked up here and there, I gather feelings were rather mixed at this one. You can't get away from the fact that most of us figure that the other fellow is getting too much and that we are, if anything, underpaid. However, after it was all over a cut in pay right down the line was on the books, subject of course to the action of the Council at the meeting next week. The boss asking you to vote yes or no on a pay cut which you know to be inevitable is a good deal like asking the drafted man if he will go to war. But even at that it is nice to be asked—or is it?

* * *

The fact is affairs are in a bad way at the Church Missions House. We shall know all about it I presume as soon as the Council meets next week. You read the advertisement which appeared last week setting forth the results of our shortcomings when translated into work in the field. It now appears that things are much worse than anyone had supposed. Not only is the Church hundreds of thousands of dollars short of the budget for 1932, set by the last General Convention, but it is also a long way from having received the sum promised for 1931. Maybe it will come in before the meeting of the Council next week. If it doesn't the gentlemen who make up the Council are going to have to work overtime to cut the garment to the cloth that has been provided.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

If you have a college in your town, with a band, you may be interested in what they did in Canyon, Texas, a few weeks ago. All the Sunday school children in town, of all sorts, had a parade one Sunday morning. The parade was led by the college band.

Canyon is in the missionary district of North Texas. The Episcopal Church has no Church school and no resident priest there, but there is a church building and also a student center, widely known as the Little House of Fellowship, presided over by Mrs. E. F. Page. Church and student center were on the parade's line of march, so Mrs. Page opened the church and planted the little processional cross in the doorway, where everyone saluted it.

The whole town of Canyon celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary last year. The student center and the Episcopal Church, which was the first brick church built there, were commended in the public program of the celebration.

* * *

The drug store is the place where a men's Bible class is meeting, in a small town where there is no church. A Church Army man started the class with the owner of the store, the cashier of the bank, and three others, and soon there were twelve.

* * *

Among the students of the Negro schools, Fisk University and Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tennessee, there are about sixty Episcopal Church communicants. The vicar of Holy Trinity Mission has a monthly celebration of the Holy Communion for them, in one of the university buildings. This clergyman is the Rev. A. M. Cochran, a musician, who a few years ago composed a beautiful choral setting for the service, based on some of the more solemn Negro spirituals.

* * *

The Chinese Government's Minister to Mexico, formerly Chinese consul general in New York City, is the son of a former priest of True Sunshine Mission in San Francisco. He is a keen Churchman, a member of Christ Church Cathedral, Mexico City, where official representatives of several other non-Mexican nationalities are among the congregation.

* * *

In Spur, missionary district of Religion MACMILLAN Philosophy

SCIENCE AND HUMAN EXPERIENCE
By Herbert Dingle
A great English scientist here sets forth simply the current views on the nature of physics. He discusses the conflict of science and religion and concludes that their opposition to each other is unreal. $1.75

THE EVIDENCE FOR IMMORTALITY
By Don P. Halsey
A splendid affirmation, this credo of a distinguished southern jurist. Judge Halsey, in addition to being a sensitive recorder of his own and others' religious experience, has a mind that sifts evidence and renders judgment with authority. $2.00

PERSONAL PROBLEMS OF CONDUCT AND RELIGION
By J. G. McKenzie
Nervous troubles, moral conflicts, religious doubts, with their possibilities of tragic mistakes, are dealt with here by the author of "Souls in the Making" whose years of experience as a spiritual adviser have given him a unique grasp of the problems. $1.25

A MODERN VIEW OF THE OLD TESTAMENT
By Willam G. Shute
This presents briefly and clearly the net results of historical investigation of the Old Testament. It is written with a view to use as a text in courses on the Bible. The author is a member of the faculty of the Choate School, Wallingford, Connecticut. $1.50

KNOWING THE BIBLE
By Raymond C. Knox
"Out of his rich experience and ripe scholarship Dr. Knox has written this book that will lead one straight to an accurate and helpful knowledge of the Bible. It is modern in viewpoint and method, scholarly, careful and reverent."—Auburn Seminary Record.
Reissue at reduced price. $1.75

MYSTICISM EAST AND WEST
By Rudolf Otto
The difference between the mystic of the East and of the West is in their attitude toward the life of every day. Professor Otto writes a masterly account of different paths in the quest of the Absolute. $3.50

THE DISCOVERY OF GOD
By James H. Snowden
The word "discovery" is the key-note of the book. Dr. Snowden begins with the universal urge toward discovery and traces it to its final goal in the discovery of God. $2.00

THE DAY OF WORSHIP
Edited by W. W. Davis
What is sane Sunday observance? The authors of this book, leaders in the Protestant churches and in the professional life of this country, view the problem from all angles and give a series of unbiased, deeply thoughtful opinions. $1.00

THE INDISPENSABLE SOUL
By William H. Crawshaw
The restoration of confidence and courage to those confused by the conflicting, nihilistic claims of modern science is the purpose of this fine book by the former dean of Colgate University. $2.50

FACING LIFE
By W. H. P. Faunce
Vital, inspiring talks to young men by the late president of Brown University. First published in 1928, the book has maintained its popularity and is now reissued at a reduced price. $1.00

THE NEW FREEDOM IN THE NATURAL ORDER
By Charles F. Wishart
Can the college student of today retain his faith in the light of the new science, the new philosophy? President Wishart of the College of Wooster says "Yes"; and substantiates his answer with the fruits of his long experience as a Christian educator. $2.50

THE APPROACH TO RELIGIOUS EDUCATION
By Basil A. Yeaxlee
Nothing human is alien to the teacher, especially the religious teacher. Dr. Yeaxlee stresses the need for richness of experience on the teacher's part, to fit him for his high profession. $1.50

THE CHRISTIAN SAGA
By Norman T. Boggs
Brilliant and provocative, this view of Christianity as a phase of European civilization has already aroused controversy for the author's picture of Christianity acting and being acted upon by the life of nineteen centuries. It is a work of enduring value in the study of changing cultures. Two volumes. $9.00 the set, boxed.

MACMILLAN NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

This Unemployment

by

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT

Research Director of the Christian Social Council

"Here at last is the book. I have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Demant has produced a thesis of the most profound importance, and one which is essential for the understanding of the world's present situation."—W. G. Peck, author of "The Divine Society."

A limited number of copies have been imported.
$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS
931 Tribune Building
New York City

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue. Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassacks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 22rd St., New York

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS BY BISHOP Johnson. Originally 50c a copy. While the present edition lasts the price is 20c a copy; $2.00 for a dozen; cash with order. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

Church Furniture
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

ENDORSEMENT

The series of articles to appear in THE WITNESS during Lent, dealing with the present international and economic situations, announced in last week's issue, has been endorsed by the Social Service Department of the National Council. They have recently sent out word commending the series and urging the formation of discussion groups in parishes. Also Heywood Broun says; "Practically all of the good speeches delivered in this country during the last four years have been made by Nicholas Murray Butler." Dr. Butler is the lead-off man for this WITNESS series. We urge you to hurry with your order, since it must be received the first week of February to enable us to send you the first Lenten Number.

North Texas, the temporary chapel where Bishop Seaman holds occasional services is located in the bank.

* * *

Mrs. Gertrude S. Hasbrouck is delivering a series of lectures on sex character education in Providence, sponsored by the Women's Church Societies of Rhode Island.

* * *

Bishop Strider of West Virginia is conducting a mission this week at Christ Church, Roanoke. There are all sorts of meetings; young people, children, and of course any number of services for the older folks. Bishop Strider, so I am told, is one of the best missioners in the Church.

* * *

Here is the first Lenten Service Announcement that we have received, though I suppose they will be pouring in from now on. This is for Trinity, Elmira, where they are to have noon-day services each Wednesday with the following preachers; Bishop Fiske, Rev. Don Frank Fenn, Rev. Robert E. Gribbin of Winston-Salem, Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, social service secretary, Rev. F. R. Godolphin of New York, Rev. H. W. B. Donegan of Baltimore and Rev. Gerald A. Cunningham of Stamford, Connecticut. Fine set-up.

* * *

After a careful survey of St. Stephen's College, which resulted in a most complimentary report of the status of the college as an educational institution, the trustees of Columbia University have issued an appeal for an endowment of one million dollars. At the moment the college has an annual deficit of $50,000. Columbia agrees to be responsible for half of this moderate amount for the year 1932-33, and is to cooperate in securing the other $25,000 needed for the

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida
A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.
Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Clergyman, 39 years old; experience in parish work; also 5 years in teaching and religious work in boys' school. Desires work as school chaplain. Write Box B, The Witness. 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

financing until such time as the endowment can be raised.

* * *

The Rev. Arthur Verne Wiggins has just returned to his home in Story City, Iowa, after three years of work in Liberia. It is probable that he will give part of his time to assisting in the student work at Ames, in charge of the Rev. LeRoy Burroughs. Mr. Wiggins is a graduate of Ames.

* * *

They are producing "The Chocolate Soldier" at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York, this evening for the benefit of the unemployed of the parish. The operetta is being produced by the Young People's Society of the parish.

* * *

The Rev. W. T. Crocker, seventy year old rector of the Epiphany, New York, has resigned in order to retire from the active ministry.

* * *

The Rev. Lyman E. Satee was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Howden on December 31st at Gallup, New Mexico. Mr. Satee, formerly in Arizona, has been placed in charge of a number of missions.

* * *

The Rev. L. P. Spencer goes to Lawrence and Speed, Edgecombe County, North Carolina. His former field in Vance County will be cared for by the rectors of Henderson and Warrenton.

* * *

The Catholic Club of Chicago plans to hold a series of missions throughout the diocese during Lent. The general subject will be the Eucharist.

* * *

The Rev. Howard R. Brinker thinks that the Psalms help drive away the effect of the depression. Anyhow he is preaching a series of sermons on "The Psalms as Dispellers of Depression" at his parish, St. Bartholomew's, Chicago.

* * *

"A good man who believed in God and lived accordingly," is the comment of a friend on the late George M. McCandless, a business man of Pittsburgh, Pa. He has bequeathed about one-tenth of his estate to Trinity Cathedral, Pittsburgh, and nearly another tenth to Episcopal Church parishes and institutions.

* * *

When Bishop Hulse of Cuba visited the town of Florida this winter six young people were confirmed and the service was crowded although as yet the mission has no church building. Seventeen were confirmed at Cespedes, eight at Sibanicu, and four in the newly completed Church of St. Paul, Camaguey.

* * *

Episcopal Church Hospitals in the United States render an annual free service worth over $2,500,000. There are seventy-eight such hospitals, with eight thousand beds. Three quarters of a million people are treated by these hospitals annually.

These figures, gathered by the National Council's Social Service Department, do not include St. Luke's Hospital, Manila, St. Luke's, Ponce, Porto Rico, Hudson Stuck Hospital, Fort Yukon, Alaska, the smaller medical work in Hawaii, and certain dispensary work in all these outlying parts of the United States, all of which would largely increase the totals.

* * *

Commemoration of the life of George Washington, particularly in his adherence to the teachings of Christianity and his activities as a

On Being Alive
by
Walter Russell Bowie
author of "The Master," etc.

"It will increase the vitality of every reader's faith, will kindle his imagination and push out the narrow boundaries of his soul."
—Christian Century.

252 pages $2.00
Charles Scribner's Sons, New York

LOUIS FRISSE & BRO., Inc.
PLUMBING CONTRACTORS
669 Bushwick Avenue Brooklyn, New York

WALTER KNAPP & CO., Inc.
ELECTRICAL CONTRACTORS
Palm Beach New York City

ELECTROL
OIL BURNERS are furnishing automatic heat and hot water in both the Parish House and Church Building at the GRACE CHURCH installed by
THE BROOKLYN ELECTROL CORPORATION
554 Vanderbilt Ave. - Brooklyn, N. Y.
Phone NEvins 8-9530
ELECTROL Oil Burners operate efficiently and economically in all types of buildings.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

Churchman, will form the keynote of a series of special services at Washington Cathedral with distinguished men and women speakers during the coming celebration of the 200th anniversary of his birth.

Among the distinguished persons who have accepted the invitation of Bishop Freeman to deliver addresses at these services are Representative Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida; Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania; former Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania; the Reverend Joseph Fort Newton of Philadelphia; the Reverend S. Parkes Cadman of New York and Mrs. William Adams Brown of New York, chairman of the National Women's Committee of the Cathedral. Other speakers for the special services will be announced at a later date.

The purpose of the program at the Cathedral is to emphasize not only the spiritual background of Washington, but also to direct attention to the importance of religion in the life of the nation and to provide the appropriate religious element in the bicentennial celebration in the National Capitol. The program has been formulated by a committee under the direction of Canon Anson Phelps Stokes of the Cathedral.

* * *

A diocesan clergy conference met at Tallahassee, Florida, January 20th and 21st, led by Bishop Penick of North Carolina, who is also the chairman of the provincial field department. Bishop Juhan also was present.

* * *

The Rev. Frank D. Dean has accepted a call to St. Timothy's, Wilson, N. C. He has been in charge of mission work around Wilmington for many years.

* * *

The Hon. Alanson B. Houghton is the new treasurer of the continuation committee of the World Conference on Faith and Order, elected at a meeting of the American continuation committee held in New York City on January 14. At the same meeting the American members organized as the American group, with the following officers: chairman, the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, president of Princeton Theological Seminary; vice-chairman, the Rev. Dr. Robert Bagnell, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Harrisburg, Pa.; secretary, Rev. Floyd Tomkins, Jr., assistant rector, Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia.

There are thus at least three groups which should be distinguished. There is our General Convention joint commission on the World Conference of Faith and Order, first appointed in 1910. Of this, Bishop Manning is president, Bishop Perry is chairman of the executive committee, and the Rev. Floyd Tomkins, Jr., is secretary.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

THE REDDING MASONIC SUPPLY CO., Inc.
200 Fifth Ave. Est. 1859 New York
Prayer Books - Hymnals - Bibles
Books of All Publishers
Masonic Books and Supplies
Write for circulars and special terms to clergy

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Then there is the great international continuation committee, appointed after the World Conference in Lausanne, in 1927. The Archbishop of York is chairman of this, and six or eight of the joint commission are members. Our joint commission is one of many similar commissions in many lands and in many communions cooperating with this Continuation Committee.

It is now hoped and intended that a second World Conference may take place in 1937.

* * *

The Rev. H. Percy Silver of New York, who, as you may have heard, occasionally tells a story, is responsible for this one which will be appreciated at least by parish treasurers and rectors. It seems that a parish elected a new treasurer. He was a very enterprising gentleman. He sent a letter to all members of the parish, soon followed by a second to all those who did not respond to the first. These were soon followed by still a third. One day the rector met one of the parishioners on the street —a man not particularly famous for his generosity. "Well" said the parishioner, "I see you have a new treasurer. He is right on the job too apparently. Already I have had three letters from him. I have only one objection to him—his spelling is terrible."

"Is that so", replied the rector. "I am glad you told me. I shall call his attention to it."

"Yes," came back the parishioner, "in his third letter he had skunk spelt with a "c," and had two "s's" in lousy."

* * *

How the Reformation Happened is the subject of a series of lectures to be given by the Rev. L. C. Lewis of St. James Church, Philadelphia, before the Churchwomen's Club of that city. This club has a membership of over 1200.

* * *

The Rev. Charles F. Blaisdell, Memphis, is holding a mission January 31st and February 1st and 2nd, at Christ Church, Mobile, Alabama. It is a part of the Teaching Mission on the Great Commission that is being held throughout the province of Sewanee.

* * *

The National Council is to meet this coming week in New York and there seems to be little question but that they will have to tackle the difficult job of cutting down on the national work of the Church to bring it within the pledges that have come in from dioceses and missionary districts. Some money will undoubtedly be saved by cutting down on the overhead expenses but from present indication any such saving will be quite inadequate. There is a grave possibility that missionary work will have to be abandoned and crippled, vacancies left unfilled, volunteers to the mission fields turned back and salaries reduced all along the line.

It is said on good authority that those parishes where the every member canvass was carefully planned and the directions of the National Field Department followed, have not suffered this year, in comparison with previous years. On the other hand a great many parishes, going along with the times, have thrown up their hands, decided before hand that it was impossible for them to meet their quotas, with the crippling of their own work and the work of the National Church as the result.

There is a possibility of course that sufficient pledges will yet come in before the meeting of the Council to cover the budget.

OBITUARY

Died, at Montgomery, Alabama, January 5, 1932, Mrs. Mary Cameron Beckwith, widow of the late Bishop Beckwith. She was born in Memphis, Tennessee, June 12, 1869, the daughter of John Cameron, Captain in the Confederate Army, and Mary Myers Cameron; and was married at Galveston, Texas, May 11, 1897, while her husband was rector of Trinity Church there. She is survived by relatives in Alabama, Tennessee and Virginia, and by her step-son, Edmund R. Beckwith of New York City.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: 8 and 11 A. M.
Holy Days: 7:30 and 11 A. M.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30). 11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean Francis S. White, D.D.
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE GRACE CHURCH
PARISH HOUSE
BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

THIS building, described elsewhere in this issue, was erected by John Thatcher & Son from plans of Frank H. Hutton, Architect. Since its inception in 1873 the firm of John Thatcher & Son has had the privilege of erecting many ecclesiastical and institutional buildings.

A partial list of other such buildings we have erected:—

GREENWOOD CHAPEL Brooklyn, N. Y.
GREENWOOD BAPTIST CHURCH Brooklyn, N. Y.
CITY PARK CHAPEL Brooklyn, N. Y.
MYSTIC CHAPEL Mystic, Conn.
CHURCH OF REFORMATION Brooklyn, N. Y.
ACADEMY OF MUSIC Brooklyn, N. Y.
KNOX THEOLOGICAL SEM. Bloomfield, N. J.
NEIGHBORHOOD GUILD HOUSE Brooklyn, N. Y.
POLHEMUS CLINIC Brooklyn, N. Y.
ARBUCKLE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL Brooklyn, N. Y.
PARISH HOUSE, FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Brooklyn, N. Y.

JOHN THATCHER & SON
CONTRACTORS AND ENGINEERS
Established - 1873
60 Park Avenue, Brooklyn, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., FEBRUARY 4, 1932

CATHEDRAL BANNER
Presented to New York Cathedral

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESTD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
CHURCH VESTMENTS
CHOIR OUTFITS
Cassocks Surplices
Copes Chasubles
Stoles Veils Burses
Altar Linens
Metal Work Woodwork
Particulars from
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

Distinctive Church Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS
ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 24 FEBRUARY 4, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

LENT AND BOREDOM

An Editorial by
BISHOP JOHNSON

A WISE man once said that "there is a time to plant and a time to pluck up that which is planted; a time to break down and a time to build up; a time to weep and a time to laugh; a time to mourn and a time to dance." In other words an abundant life is one of many interests and correct proportions.

The Church recognizes this human necessity by arranging the Christian year into its feasts and fasts, and instructs us that if we want to get the fullest enjoyment out of the feasts we must be willing to observe the fasts.

In reading Fulop Miller's life of Rasputin I was interested in his description of Prince Yusupov, the murderer of the "bold devil." The Prince had no intellectual or spiritual interests. The author attributes his action, in killing the Czar's sinister adviser, to boredom. "He was tormented by the painful boredom of the absolutely rich and absolutely happy person, the man to whom nothing is forbidden and to whom therefore nothing any longer seems desirable." The author goes on to say "The poor can hope for riches; the unloved for love and the lowly for elevation; but for the man who, like Felix Yusupov, is surrounded by enormous wealth, perpetual indulgence and unending pleasure there remains no other outlet from his spiritual prison but crime."

IT IS a familiar tenet of penologists that many criminals commit crimes, when they might easily make an honest living, because of the thrill that it gives them. People frequent the movies, drive sixty miles an hour and play bridge morning, noon and night chiefly because of the poverty of their minds and the dullness of their lives. To have a maximum of leisure and a minimum of intellectual or spiritual resources is to seek relief from satiety by doing something unusual and sensational. It is such people who get a thrill from appearing on the front page of a newspaper or appearing in police court. The press of the country is guilty as contributory accessories to this flare for notoriety.

It is the besetting sin of empty lives that they care more for the applause of men than they do for the approval of God. The Easter Parade, like our commercialized Christmas, is an index of this tendency to turn great spiritual feasts into Vanity Fairs. It means that without the spiritual background the people are unable to enjoy the comforts of God's grace.

If you are unwilling to observe Lent you are unable to comprehend real Easter joys. All that one can do is to substitute the parade of clothes for the exaltation of the spirit.

One doesn't observe Lent properly merely because the Church asks us to make it a time of prayer and fasting. One observes Lent primarily because it affords a welcome rest from the monotonous round of social activities and gives one a period in which to think seriously of the deeper and finer things of life, and to do something because one thinks.

The Puritan scowled at Lent because with him there was no time to laugh or to dance, and his morbid emphasis of the sober side of life produced the reaction of levity which followed his regime. His one sided development proved unhealthy and impracticable. He sent squires back to England because they observed Christmas and he blotted Easter out of his calendar because he was incapable of joy. We ought to realize that the highest joys in life come from the effort to overcome those things which prevent, and to cultivate those things which enable men to realize their privileges.

It is a sense of poverty which spurs men on to play up a fortune; it is a sense of ignorance that prompts men to study; it is a realization of sin that urges men to seek the Kingdom of God and His Righteousness. When we deliberately deprive ourselves of this effort to overcome we also deprive ourselves of the capacity to enjoy.

SIN isn't something we can get rid of by wishing. It is like ignorance, something that can be overcome only by arduous effort. One doesn't want to be dwelling on his sins all of the time, else he will become morbid; but on the other hand one should not take his own righteousness so much for granted that it isn't necessary for him to do anything in order that he may be better than he is. After all the real Pharisee of our day is not the man who goes to church, but the man who is so impressed with his conduct that he doesn't need to confess his sins or to seek the grace of God.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

When we stop working and retire from business we are apt to be so bored with existence that we turn over and die, because we have lost the one interest in living. When we stop studying we are apt to fill the void with husks which the swine enjoy. When we stop all spiritual effort we require a constant anaesthetic of pleasure to keep us from being bored with living with ourselves.

Of course one of the ways to be satisfied with ourselves is to feel that the daily round of business and pleasure will furnish all that our poor human nature is capable of receiving. Such a person persuades himself that there is nothing which the Creator has in store for him beyond that which he has already received.

WHY the good God who has given us so many wonderful things should have exhausted Himself one cannot understand. One can believe that the same processes of work and study and effort which lifted us out of a savage state have not ceased. Never has man asked for bread and been given a stone. But the price of bread has always been man's effort to attain that which was previously unknown. The treasures hidden in the world from the beginning have been appropriated by man because man had the faith to seek and labor.

So Lent is a period of spiritual effort to produce the fruits of the spirit which are love, joy and peace. It is a time when we inventory our lives; deepen our devotion and practice self denial so that we may increase our appetite for spiritual food. You can take it or leave it, but except you utilize some time to sow you will eventually have nothing to reap.

The word Lent means spring. It is time for sowing of seed. Justice Holmes well said upon his retirement that justice is not a succession of legal syllogisms but the product of human experience. So I believe religion is a matter of practice rather than logic and only those who have the experience have any insight into the harvest which comes from intelligent labor at the seasonable period.

BOOKS FOR LENT

By

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

BREVITY in recommending books is a bit dangerous, yet with all of the books clamoring for at least some mention we will have to chance it. Lent is a time for reading as a spiritual exercise, but our understanding of religion has been so broadened within recent years that no longer do good Church people limit themselves to books of piety and devotion. Nevertheless such works are always in order during this season, so perhaps we had better start off with a few that fall under such a heading. Personal Problems of Conduct and Religion is a little book by J. G. McKenzie that is well worth reading. It deals with moral conflicts and religious doubts and is just the sort of book to start off with this Lent. It is a Macmillan publication and costs $1.25. Chaplain Knox of Columbia has written an excellent book on the Bible, modern in viewpoint, scholarly and yet not hard reading. It is called Knowing the Bible, also a Macmillan publication ($1.75). The books by Dr. Bowie of Grace Church are always deservingly popular. His last work is On Being Alive, a Scribner publication ($2.00), and I know you will like it. It is beautifully written so that it is worth reading for the style alone. And of course he deals with vital religious matters. The Prayer of Sonship is the Lenten book recommended by the Bishop of London. I am sorry that I haven't read it yet, but one can buy it blindly and be sure of getting a good book. You know, I presume, that Bishop Ingram recommends a book each year, and they are invariably good. The author this year is the Rev. B. F. Simpson of England, and the book is a study of the Lord's Prayer. It is issued by Longmans Green ($1.00).

The Indispensable Soul is an attempt to restore the confidence of those who have been bothered by the conflicting claims of science. It is ably done by Dr. W. H. Crawshaw, former dean of Colgate University. Macmillan publishes it. ($2.50). Then there is the book by the late president of Brown University called Facing Life, which is an excellent book to place in the hands of the boy or girl of college age. It is now brought out by Macmillan at the reduced price of $1.00. Opinions differ very widely in regard to The Wanderer's Way, by Canon Raven. As for me I think it is a great book and I would put it into the hands of anyone whose faith I was trying to save. His Jesus and the Gospel of Love is also good, though it does not seem to me to have reached the heights of his first book. Both are Henry Holt books, the former being $1.75 and the latter $3.00.

IN BIOGRAPH, especially fine for Lenten reading, there are the Ghandi books, by C. F. Andrews. All of these are, of course, topnotchers; thrilling, and at the same time deply religious. They are all Macmillan books and cost $2.50. The Life of Charles Lewis Slattery, by Dean Robbins, is a painstaking study of one of the outstanding Churchmen of our generation. You are sure to like it. Harpers is the publisher ($2.50). A Modern Pilgrimage, by Kenneth G. Budd, is the story of Donald Hankey. You will remember that Hankey was the young British soldier who related his religious experiences from the trenches in The Student in Arms and The Lord of All Good Life. This book, published by Scribner's, will be read eagerly by all who were thrilled by Hankey's works ($1.50).

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Jesus Came Preaching, by George A. Buttrick, has been reviewed here by Gardiner Day. The book deals primarily with the art of preaching, but attention should be called particularly to the final chapters as being excellent Lenten reading. The book is a fine one and most certainly should be read by all clergymen. It is published by Scribner's and costs $2.50.

The Forest Hospital at Lambarene, by Albert Schweitzer, is the thrilling story of the work being done in Africa by this modern missionary hero. It too has been reviewed previously and highly recommended by the reviewer, Gardiner Day. It is a Henry Holt book and sells for $2. The Procession of the Gods, by Dr. Atkins, is history and biography in its most interesting form. You have probably read this book—if not be sure to get your hands on it. Ray Long & Richard R. Smith is the publisher. Another book issued by this same house is God's World, by Dr. C. H. Patton, which Irvine Goddard in his recent review here declared it to be "the finest and most convincing book on missions that has ever been written." You couldn't ask for much more than that. It costs $2.

Ernest Fremont Tittle of Evanston, Illinois, is, I presume, one of the foremost preachers in this country. He is the Fosdick of the middle west. He is a man of courage and of conviction, with the ability to express himself so every one can understand. We Need Religion, published by Henry Holt ($1.50), is a plea for motives in harmony with the ideals of the Kingdom of God and is especially timely just now.

IN THE realm of science there is, of course, The Mysterious Universe, by Jeans; Science and Religion, by J. A. Thomson, and now a new book by Herbert Dingle, a great English scientist, called Science and Human Experience, which sets forth quite simply the current views on the nature of physics. Again we have the opinion of a distinguished scientist that the conflict between religion and science is unreal. All of these books are Macmillan publications.

Grace in the New Testament, by Professor James Moffatt, is the January selection of one of the book clubs and is a book highly praised for its scholarship and its religious insight. Ray Long & Richard R. Smith is the publisher, and it is a $3 book. Another book by this house is Son of Thunder, by Dean Llwdy of Nova Scotia, who is a popular Lenten preacher, usually in the states. It is much to be recommended. Its cost is $1.50. A new book is being brought out by Morehouse from the pen of Dr. John Rathbone Oliver. It is called Tomorow's Faith and will tell of his arrival at Anglo-Catholicism after a long pilgrimage. It will be read eagerly by his many friends in the Church. Then Dr. Frank Gavin of the General is turning out a book for Morehouse called Selfhood and Sacrifice. Frank Gavin is the one professor who combines profound scholarship with the best of American slang and gets away with it. I don't know that he uses his gifts in this book, for it isn't out yet, but I shall grab it eagerly when it does appear in a few days in order to find out. Both of these books are announced for $1 each.

On social problems the topnotchers are America's Way Out, by Norman Thomas, and Which Way Religion, by Harry F. Ward, both brought out by Macmillan, the former for $2.50 and the latter for $2.00. Neither of them are new as books go, but I know of nothing better dealing with our present economic situation. V. Auguste Demant, who is a clergyman of the Church of England and who was lecturing in this country not so long ago, has written a little book called This Unemployment, which is being declared a masterpiece on the other side. They think so much of it there that study groups are being organized to go after it. It can be secured from THE WITNESS for $1.25. Incidentally Mr. Demant is one of the contributors to the series on The Christian Way Out, the series that is to start in this paper next week.

In regard to our own Church affairs the National Council has issued several small books which deserve your attention. Building a Christian Nation is a symposium dealing with the work in various fields, handled by people who are authorities. It can be purchased at the Book Store in New York for 60c. The addresses given at the triennial of the Auxiliary in Denver on family life economics, the international situation and interracial matters are in a book called The Kingdom

The Christian Way Out

A Series of fourteen Articles on the present international and economic situations

STARTS IN NEXT WEEK'S ISSUE

All orders must be in not later than next Monday for us to guarantee delivery of the first number, which is to contain an article by Nicholas Murray Butler.

WRITE IMMEDIATELY OR IF NECESSARY WIRE

THE WITNESS
6140 Cottage Grove Avenue
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

of Our Lord, which may be purchased for 35c. Then there is Our Expanding Church, by James Addison, issued a year ago, which deals with missions, and is worth many times the 25c it costs.

And with those I thought I was through, but there are two or three others that I must mention. The Growth of the Idea of God, by Shailer Mathews, is a book that everyone should read, for it is a scholarly and illuminating study, presenting the idea of God as it has been developed in western civilization through the changing social conditions. It is issued by Macmillan and sells for $2.50. Pathways to the Reality of God, issued also by Macmillan ($2.00), written by Refus Jones of Haverford College, will make excellent Lenten reading. Finally, to close with a book of prayers, there is Communion with God, by Elmore McKee (Ray Long & Richard R. Smith, $1.75). It is a fine book of prayers prepared by Mr. McKee when he was the chaplain at Yale.

Help the National Council

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE depression in business should stimulate most careful concern for the affairs of the Church. The National Council prints a statement in our Church papers beginning with the alarming words "Early reports for 1932 are tragic." I have consulted many of the clergy and I find that many parishes can make the same statement concerning their affairs. The National Church reflects the troubles of the parishes.

We are all interested in the great cause of Missions and Church extension. We are all concerned by the plight of the work sponsored by the National Council, but many of the clergy are distressed by local conditions and the menace to their parishes.

The insecure foundation upon which the work of the National Council rests is quite apparent. Just to refresh your memory the method of obtaining support is this: Each Diocese makes a pledge to the National Council. The National Council arranges to expend the sum total of the pledges. This is the budget of the National Council. It includes, among many other projects, all of our support of missions in foreign lands and of missions in certain districts of the United States. More than 2,000 paid workers are supported by this budget.

The diocese that makes a pledge has likewise a local missionary task. The Diocesan authorities add to the sum of its pledge to the Council the amount needed for its enterprises within the diocese. This sum total is then apportioned to the parishes according to their strength. The parishes make every effort to meet the apportionment called the "Quota."

But parishes, as a rule, have not been consulted as to their ability to pay. The quota assigned to parishes is arbitrary, and not a result of an appraisal of the giving ability of parishes based on their own judgment after a review of their pledges secured in the every-member canvass. It is true that some dioceses are far more careful than others in assigning quotas. These dioceses make the best records.

Parishes are subject to strange vicissitudes. Any one of twenty different reasons may impair their financial strength, may weaken their resources. A change of rector, the death of generous givers, the removal of people, the need for repairs on the building, and many other conditions affect their ability to pay the quota.

If the parish does not pay its quota, the diocese cannot pay its pledge, and the National Council cannot pay its bills.

If Ebenezer Trelawney (not to say John Smith) in the parish makes a pledge "on the red side" of one hundred dollars, and then loses his job and fails to pay the pledge, the tremor of that small default thrills its way to the most remote corner of our National effort.

Now Ebenezer is but one of many who, in countless parishes, have lost their jobs, or removed, or have been gathered to their fathers. And the quake is felt throughout the Church.

The alleviating conditions are that the parish might have strength enough to pay in spite of Ebenezer's default, or that the diocese may have some rich benefactors, or that the National Council has a reserve of gifts or legacies.

Nevertheless, the method has the defect of uncertain support from pledges. And in times of depression, when the conditions are not normal and the usual alleviating reserves not sufficient, and when parish pledges are not paid or not made, then the accumulating inability of parishes to meet the quota heaps up a tidal wave of trouble for the National Council.

We are able to "muddle through" in times of prosperity when the total amount of the combined quotas were probably well within the giving power of the whole Church. But in times like these we need to face the whole situation courageously and to adjust our method to the facts.

The weakness of the whole system lies in the fact that the National Council has undertaken to spend a sum of money, which is expected ultimately from parish pledges which are not absolutely to be depended upon. Even if the "red-side" parish pledges equal the quota, the parish cannot be sure of collecting the pledge.

Would it be too much to ask the Church to appoint an impartial and disinterested commission, men of wide experience and training in administration, men accustomed to social research, men sympathetic to our work but cool in their judgment.

Such a commission should survey the whole of our vast work and our system and make recommendations for our guidance.

I have no doubt that many a hard-working and harassed bishop is being spurred to undertake more and more duties by the demands of conscience, by the call of opportunity, and by the pressure of the National Council. Would they not welcome the findings of a commission which would remove the implied blame for failure from the shoulders of bishops, and place it where it belongs, on general conditions, and on a faulty method of fixed quotas.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

ON THE SIDE

THE recently published autobiography of the Rev. Dr. Barry, late rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York, has some delicious anecdotage which are worth passing on to our readers.

There was a certain Seminary professor who used to invite the entering class each fall to a social gathering at his house, where he fed them and provided them with cigars. The crowd was assembled on one of these evenings when the Professor called upstairs to his daughter, "Henrietta, bring down the cigars." And a gentle voice was wafted down from the upper floor, asking, "The students' cigars, papa?"

Speaking of his days in Chicago, he tells of Dr. Lock, rector of Grace Church in those days. Dr. Lock happened to look out of the window and saw a lady of the parish coming to the front door. "Here comes that awful old Miss X," he exclaimed, "I am not going to see her.'" Mrs. Lock entertained the visitor for a long time until the Doctor, thinking she had gone, called down to his wife, "Has that old bore gone yet?" But Mrs. Lock rose to the occasion. "Yes, dear," she replied, "but here is Miss X, who would like very much to see you."

Bishop Williams of Nebraska, was once traveling in a train when another bishop entered the car, evidently a Roman Catholic. They fell into conversation and Bishop Williams answered a query by saying that he was the Bishop of Nebraska. "But we have no Bishop of Nebraska," the Roman prelate replied. "Nevertheless," said Bishop Williams, "I am Bishop of Nebraska." "Oh, I see," said the Roman, "you are an Episcopal bishop." "Yes," said Bishop Williams, "aren't you?"

When Dr. Barry was rector at Batavia, Ill., a committee from a vestry in Iowa, looking for a rector, was sent to "hear him." They got into Chicago on a Saturday, went out to a horse race, and missed their train for Batavia. So they went to "hear" another man in Chicago, with the result that the other man got the call and Dr. Barry didn't.

The Rev. Dr. Adams was one of the founders of Nashotah House. He was accustomed to say a thanksgiving at the end of a meal. One morning, at the end of breakfast, he ordered a plate of biscuits to be removed from the table, saying that "he would not give thanks for such a dispensation of Providence as that."

The Church of St. Mary the Virgin was, and is, noted for its elaborate services. Dr. Barry gets a chuckle out of a visitor who gave a glowing description of one of those services to a friend and then added apologetically, "but I should not think they would have it on Sunday." A small boy was once asked whether he liked one of the services and he replied, "Oh, yes; it is much better than the Episcopal Church." And on another occasion a woman who had brought her young son with her was vigorously objecting to many things after the service was over when the youngster broke in, "But mother, what could you expect? You only put in a cent."

Blessed be a sense of humor. What a dreary world it would be if we could not get an occasional laugh on one another—and on ourselves.

Impressions and Opinions, an autobiography, by Rev. J. G. H. Barry. Edwin S. Gorham, Inc. Price $2.50.

Just Souls

By

C. RUSSELL MOODEY

HOUSES AND HOMES

SOME people say they are painting their home when they mean their house. A home always includes a house but a house doesn't always signify a home. There is always that tendency of confusing terms. The difference can be summed up in two words, namely "Externalism" and "Eternalism." Externalism carries with it the idea that he who saves the surface saves all. Eternalism points to the soul stressing the need of salvation in the inner recesses. So a man may own a palatial house and still lack a home. This is oftentimes the case. He may also call in famous interior decorators to make that house artistic. And still it isn't a home. For a home is a fellowship seeking Eternity. It is the family circle with Christ in the center. Granting all this the question naturally arises, "What are you and I doing to enrich that fellowship?" The test of true manhood and womanhood is in the place he or she occupies inside this circle. And when he or she comes from work there are two gates to pass through. One to the house and one to its fellowship. The first is visible, the second invisible. And when people send out invitations bearing the words "at home" they usually mean "at house." The lawn must be cut and the rugs cleaned. The floors dusted and upstairs properly arranged. Who ever thinks of the fellowship? The inner circle? Or tries to beautify it for the coming guests? So we must discern between "housepitality" and hospitality. Externalism and Eternalism. Everything hinges on Christ. If He is there, truly the dearest spot on earth is home, sweet home. And in heaven, the same. For Eternity begins here and leads us to the final Home.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

JAPANESE YOUTH LEAD THE WAY IN CHURCH WORK

By G. W. Browning

Several people who know about young people's work in the Church exclaimed when they heard about the following activity, that this represents the ideal way to work. Twenty young men and girls are members of the Young People's Fellowship at St. Peter's Japanese Church, Seattle. During the week they meet separately, the boys as a unit of St. Andrew's Brotherhood; the girls as a branch of the Girls' Friendly Society. Each group is developing work among younger boys or girls.

The social fellowship of these young people, a recent report says, is firmly established on a spiritual fellowship which centers in a Sunday morning service in the church when Morning Prayer is read by a lay reader, appointed by Bishop Huston. The lay reader also makes an address, and he is training the boys to take the service. One of the girls is organist for the group, and hopes to continue in that position for the parish when they get their much needed new church. After the service the group moves to another part of the building for a business session, and usually a member reads a paper on "some phase of spiritual growth."

They gather enough momentum during the winter and spring to carry them through the summer when they have out-door meetings at nearby lakes and beaches, and are ready to start work again promptly in the fall.

* * *

Bishop Mosher sends a little Year Book of the Port of Manila, issued by the Manila Harbor Board. The following facts may make the location of Manila a little less hazy in some of our minds.

Manila is over 10,000 miles from Boston and New York, nearly 10,000 from London, 6,500 from Los Angeles, 1,500 from Japanese ports, and only 630 miles from Hongkong. So spread out is our mission work in the Philippine Islands that the St. Francis Mission at Upi, on the southern island of Mindanao, is actually a few miles further from Manila than Manila is from Hongkong.

The ships of fifty-one separate steamship lines come to the port of Manila, "the trade center of the Pacific," says the proud Harbor Board.

* * *

This is the twentieth year since the consecration of Bishop V. S. Azariah, Bishop of Dornakal, first native India bishop in the Anglican Communion. He has a son at Cambridge University, studying for Holy Orders.

* * *

Bishop Carey of Bloemfontein, South Africa, comments on the custom observed in his Cathedral, as in many others all over the world, of having intercessions each day for one or more of the parishes and missions of the diocese, so that in the course of the year every one is remembered before the Cathedral altar. The Bishop says:

"I love to think that not a man goes to work in the diocese, not a woman takes up her household duties, not a child goes to school, without the blessing that is brought on them by the intercession at the Cathedral. I wish every farmer would remember as he goes out to the fields that he is not forgotten of the Church. And I would that this were done for all our people in every parish. We do not only offer the sacrifice for God's glory, we offer it also for a daily blessing on our people."

* * *

The Church Railway Mission in South Africa deals in long distances and isolated stations scattered far apart up and down the long railway line. One of the chaplains, the Rev. Edward W. Shennan, writes of a recent native wedding feast which had to be postponed because while the bridal party were attending to legal matters in the magistrate's office, the guests ate up all the cake, and the nearest source of a fresh supply was a day's journey away.

Mr. Shennan visits one small and distant township which has only three trains a week, where the people could not tell him when they had had any Church service before. There had certainly not been one for three or four years.

LAST CALL

THE first Lenten Number of THE WITNESS will be the issue of next week. It will contain the first articles of the series dealing with the present international and economic situations, The Christian Way Out, and also the first of Bishop Johnson's series on The Story of the Church. In the former series there will appear articles by Nicholas Murray Butler, Archbishop Temple, Vida D. Scudder, Bishop Parsons, Mary Simkhovitch, William Green, Spencer Miller Jr., Reinhold Niebuhr, Bernard Iddings Bell, Harry W. Laidler, Daniel McGregor, W. G. Peck and V. Auguste Demant. It is a timely subject, handled by competent writers of distinction. Those planning to use these series in discussion groups and desiring a Bundle must have their orders in positively not later than Monday, February 8th. Write immediately or wire if necessary.

BRITISH CANON COMES TO THE DEFENSE OF CHURCH

By A. Manby Lloyd

An article in the Guardian by Ian MacDonald, who describes himself as "a working man never a month's march from starvation" has told the religious world plainly the causes of his avowed estrangement from the Church. Ian is obviously not an Episcopalian, for, once a month, in addition to the usual services, he had to sit through a dreary Gaelic service, not knowing a single word of the language. He tells us how, at 15 years of age, his "faith was shattered". He had persuaded "Roe and Robbie", a dear old couple of his acquaintance to go to "church" with him, and lo! the minister picked them out and preached at them.

This happened a long time ago. Roe and Robbie are dead, and it was not an isolated instance. He has often put the "church" to the test, and almost without exception, he has found it wanting. To-day he is a non-church goer.

* * *

An old story that would have passed unnoticed but for two things—its literary value, and the acceptance of the challenge by Canon Peter Green, of Manchester. Mr. Green is one of the most trenchant of our preachers; he is a writer on Ethics and is steeped in Moral Theology. As a parish priest he has had first-class experience; he is as fearless as he is candid. And he practically tells Mr. MacDonald not to make a fool of himself. The story of Roe and Robbie is really too silly for words. He is "astonished that the Guardian allowed such drivel to appear." And so on. Between them, the two have managed to elicit a correspondence of extraordinary interest, and even virulence. There are 17 letters in this day's issue (Jan. 8). A nonconformist minister thanks Peter Green for his frank letter.

Mr. McDonald now says he must remain estranged from the church, and Canon Green retorts that the Church has failed, if at all, in its cowardly failure to insist on the duties as well as on the privileges of religion. "The man who spends his week-days without thought or effort for anyone but himself, and his Sundays in the pursuit of pleasure, is so accustomed to being assured in the Press that he is really more religious than the small minority who carry the entire burden of the nation's social and philanthropic work...that when a priest dares to speak the truth there is a horrified outburst about bigotry, harshness and lack of charity. But with him it is a very small thing that he should be judged of mans judgment..."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

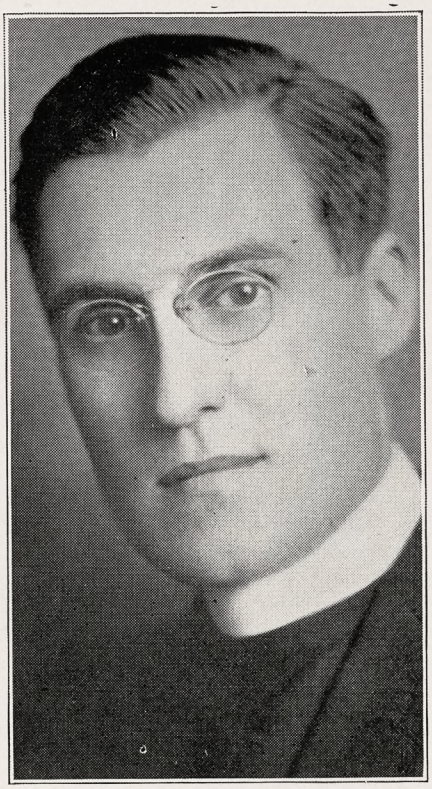
NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

Each week the working men who are building the fine new chapel at Trinity College meet together for worship with the president, the Rev. Remsen Ogilby. Here is a Workman's Prayer that is used at these services which I thought you might be glad to have.

Blessed Lord Jesus, who Thyself didst toil with axe and saw laboring as a carpenter in Nazareth of Galilee, help me to be a true craftman. Teach me to be careful and skilful, so that no imperfect or dishonest work may ever go out from my hands. May I always build as if for Thine eye alone. Remind me also to think of my fellow laborers, especially those out of employment. Thy sacred hands, which for our salvation were nailed to the Cross, were calloused hands, showing the marks of honorable toil. May blessing from those hands ever rest upon me and those I love, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

* * *



Mr. Burton Mansfield, distinguished Churchman of Connecticut, who holds a record for continuous service to the Church as a General Convention deputy, has resigned as senior warden of St. Thomas', New Haven. He has served this parish in various capacities for fifty-two years, and is resigning now because of illness.

* * *

A centennial service to celebrate the founding of the New York City Mission Society was held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on January 24th. There were twenty-three parsons in the procession who are on the staff of the society. The sermon was preached by Bishop Manning who called upon the people of his diocese to support the work of the society generously, and praised it particularly for its work among the unemployed.

* * *

Bishop Rowe, preaching last Sunday morning at the Incarnation, New York, told the congregation of the Klondike days, when Tex Rickard and other gamblers and saloon keepers chipped in to build a hospital and thus aided the missionary work of the Church. Where Bishop Rowe once travelled on snow shoes, by dog-sled and in canoes, he now uses an airplane, making in a few hours trips that formerly took weeks. "Christianity has so won the Indians", he said, "that I doubt if you can find any in Alaska who have not accepted the Christian faith. I have known them to come over a hundred miles for communion service." Imagine. And we kick when we are expected to get up in time to be at service a few blocks away at eight. But then of course we are not savages.

DEAN GRANT
Balances His Budget

* * *

The Rev. Guy E. Shipler, editor of The Churchman, and Mr. Clifford Morehouse, who is the boss these days of The Living Church, were the speakers at a meeting of the Churchmen's Association of New York last Monday. They spoke on the "Plight of the Church weeklies" by which they meant, I presume, the plight of The Churchman and the Living Church. No representative of THE WITNESS was asked to be present, on the grounds possibly that nothing should be done to disrupt the office hours of the one solvent weekly.

* * *

The Rev. Julian D. Hamlin of the Advent, Boston, was the speaker at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Church Mission of Help, held at Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford, on January 13th.

* * *

A blind young Spaniard in California is transcribing The Spirit of Missions into Braille every month. The copy is placed in the state library in Sacramento, for circulation among blind readers.

* * *

Convention of Alabama, held at Huntsville, was the occasion to honor Bishop McDowell on his tenth anniversary as bishop. There was prolonged cheers and expressions of appreciation and pledges of loyalty. "In spite of the depression" was the keynote apparently for most every remark was prefaced with that expression as people gave accounts of good work accomplished all along the line. Bishop McDowell said that it was inadvisable to elect a coadjutor at this time. There were reductions in salaries and appropriations, for the most part cheerfully accepted, following the example of the bishop who took a nice big cut himself. There were encouraging reports from diocesan institutions, including an interesting one from the House of Happiness in the mountain region. This institution is presided over by Miss Augusta Martin. Her influence can be appreciated when I inform you that the mountain folks no longer settle their differences by shooting it out, as was their custom, but come to her to act as arbitrator. As a result of this service she is known as the High Mayor of Happy Valley. Poetry in that, what — the High Mayor of Happy Valley. Just to run in a few more names, which I am told is still good journalism, I list those elected delegates to the provincial synod: Revs. J. L. Jenkins, J. S. Jones, P. N. McDonald, Bland Mitchell, G. Wallace Ribble and G. L. Tucker. Messrs. Douglas Arant, Algernon Blair, Frank Feltus, Andrew Mitchell, W. C. Pickens and R. J. Williams. I list alternates too, my journalism being that good.

* * *

Alumni of the Berkeley Divinity School gathered in New Haven on Wednesday of last week for the annual winter reunion. There was a delightful luncheon, with informal addresses by visiting alumni. Also there was, later in the day, a paper by Professor Wilbur Urban of Yale, who in addition to being one of America's foremost philosophers is also a devout Churchman. There was a tea, a service in the chapel, a supper at the deanery and an informal evening when alumni had an opportunity to hobnob.

* * *

I wonder if any readers would care to make it possible for us to send a bundle of ten copies of THE WITNESS each week during Lent to our theological seminaries. There are over 600 men in these seminaries now preparing for the ministry. They are very busy young men too probably yet I have an idea most of them could find the time to read the series of articles on "The Christian Way Out." Also I am sure they would be better equipped parsons if they did read them. If any of you are struck by this idea and will send $2.80 to THE WITNESS at 931 Tribune Building, New York, I will see that ten copies go each week to one of the seminaries, together with a note to the dean informing him that the papers are a gift from you and that we will all appreciate it if he will see that they are placed in the reading room, or otherwise distributed. I am reminded to do this by a letter I received from one of the seminaries this morning containing the information that they would like to have copies but that they haven't the money to pay for them.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

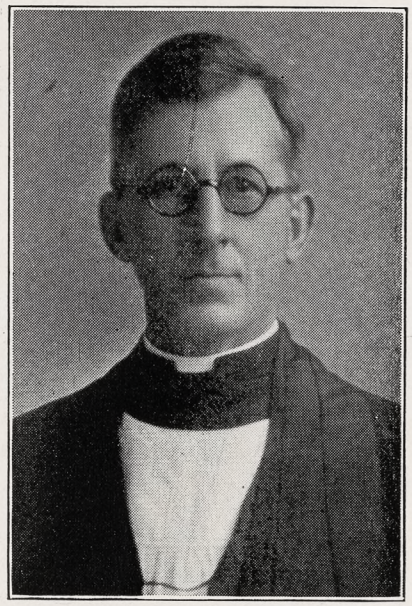
* * *

The convention of the diocese of California is meeting this week in San Francisco. There are two visiting bishops. Bishop Schmuck of Wyoming addressed a joint session yesterday and last evening there was a missionary mass meeting with Bishop Remington of Eastern Oregon as the headliner.

* * *



A number of clergymen have asked us for extra copies of our folder, announcing the Lenten series of articles, which they wish for bulletin boards. If any of you care for copies for this purpose they will be sent, as long as our limited supply lasts, if you will send a postal to THE WITNESS, 931 Tribune Building, New York.

* * *

There is pictured on the cover this week the banner recently presented to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine by Mrs. Harold Hadden. It is a large affair, three by five I believe, with the arms of the Cathedral —the mitre, shield with the seven stars and seven candlesticks, the crossed key and staff, superimposed on a background of Megenta brocade. It was made by J. M. Hall of New York.

* * *

A wave of incendiarism is sweeping over the city of Worcester, Mass., and one of the victims was the beautiful All Saints' Church which was completely ruined by fire January 20th, at a loss of close to a quarter million dollars. The maniac lit the fire which did the damage in the middle of the night so that it was well under way before discovered. Attempts have been made recently in the city to burn other churches, including a fine Baptist Church less than a block away from All Saints. According to the rector of the parish, the Rev. John H. Lever, plans are already under way to build another church on the same site. Officers of the church state that the building was fully covered by insurance. Since last July about thirty fires in Worcester have taken place for which a maniac is said to be responsible.

BISHOP CASADY
Tells Them in Chicago

* * *

There is an article in the current Spirit of Missions on "Washington—The Churchman in New York" which is fascinating reading. It is written by the Rev. J. P. McComas, the vicar of St. Paul's, Trinity Parish, and tells the story of Washington as a worshipper there. Apparently those were trying days for it seems that the revolutionary leader was not overjoyed at hearing prayers for the king and royal family, whereas the clergyman in charge of Trinity, a pronounced royalist, was just as insistent that they be said. It all makes a very nice story which you must read. Incidentally the Bicentennial

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

CHURCH BOOK STORES
Buy your books from Church Book Shops. Visit them. If that is impossible mail them your orders. They will receive prompt attention.

Distributors of Religious Easter Cards, Bibles, Prayer Books, Hymnals, Altar Services and Church Books.
Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Booksellers
18. W. 45th St. New York
Established 1900
Spring and Lenten Catalogue on Request

MOREHOUSE PUBLISHING COMPANY
PUBLISHERS
IMPORTERS
BOOKS
CHURCH SUPPLIES
1801-1817 W. Fond du Lac Ave.
Milwaukee, Wisconsin

THE CHURCH BOOK SHOP
1045 Taylor Street
San Francisco, California
Religious Books, especially for Lenten Reading, Easter Supplies.
Church and Church School supplies of all kinds.
Special attention given to mail orders.

THE BOOK STORE
281 Fourth Avenue
New York City
For the convenience of church members. Books and materials recommended by National Council Departments.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Committee of General Convention has issued a service for the observation of the Washington bicentennial, copies of which may be purchased from the book store at the Church Missions House in New York.

* * *

Another church has gone free; St. Stephen's, Providence, where the Rev. Charles Townsend is rector. It is not so easy apparently to arrange for free pews; there are charters and constitutions to be changed, and of course some people to be persuaded. However all of these matters have now been attended to and St. Stephen's now has free pews for the first time in the hundred years of its existence. The newspaper story about it states that of the thousands of Episcopal Churches in the country there are now but 386 with the renting system. Of course I don't know whether that is reliable information, nor do I know how to check up to find out.

* * *

The Rev. A. Gordon Fowkes, St. Thomas', Neenah-Menasha, Wisconsin, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Luke's, Kalamazoo, Mich.

* * *

Bishop Burleson, assistant to the presiding bishop, was the preacher at a service held in connection with the convention of Western Michigan, held at Muskegon on January 19th and 20th. He also addressed the convention at one of the sessions, urging cooperation with the National Council. The following were elected delegates to the synod; Revs. F. D. King, H. L. Nicholson, James M. Horton and W. S. A. Larter and Messrs. C. Dibble, C. E. Hooker, H. C. Angell and S. G. Deam.

* * *

Problems of religious education were discussed at the meetings of the rural deaneries of Troy and Ogdensburg, diocese of Albany, January 19 and 20. The leaders were the Rev. G. F. Bambach of Schenectady; Mr. John M. Garrison, diocesan secretary of religious education; the Rev. C. H. L. Ford of St. Faith's School and the Rev. C. S. Lewis of Plattsburgh.

* * *

A Ukrainian Orthodox Church has recently been organized in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and services are being held regularly in our St. Paul's Church. There are about 150 Ukrainian families in the city and it is hoped that they may soon have a church of their own.

* * *

Bishop Cook of Delaware, chairman of the joint commission to inquire into the apparent disparity between both quotas and appropriations of missionary districts and aided dioceses, has sent a copy of the resolution to all members of the commission—twenty-five in number.

The resolution calls for a definite and practical study of the whole question, and further suggests in order to make these studies more complete that this commission seek in each of the eight provinces, after consultation with the Bishops, the aid of a group especially well informed concerning the districts and dioceses in question.

* * *

The Rev. S. Whitney Hale was instituted as rector and dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo, on January 10th. The sermon was preached by Dean Sturges of Boston.

* * *

A quiet day for the clergy of Western New York is to be held on the 8th, conducted by the Rev. John Rathbone Oliver.

* * *

The Rev. L. B. Henry, Rochester, N. Y., has accepted a call to St. Luke's, Brockport, N. Y. The Rev. P. W. Mosher has resigned as rector of St. Peter's, Niagara Falls after thirty years and has gone south for the winter.

* * *

The anniversary of St. James Parish, New York City, was celebrated on January 31st. They have had 122 of these anniversaries. Bishop Manning was the preacher in the morning. In the afternoon there was a joint service of St. James and Holy Trinity, a part of the parish, when the Rev. H. Percy Silver of the Incarnation was the preacher.

* * *

Most of the news we get these days is of cuts. The executive board of the diocese of Southwestern Virginia for example met the other day. They had hoped to pay the full quota of $17,100 to the National Council but were simply unable to send more than the $15,000 they had promised. Of course the answer to that is that if all the dioceses would pay what they promised the crowd at 281 would be very happy. As for 1932 the diocese promised $14,000 to the National Council instead of the $16,300 asked for. Items in the budget to care for work done in previous years at several educational institutions was crossed off the list. Also the sum given toward the Sweet Briar summer conference had to be dropped, and since the dioceses of Virginia and Southern Virginia had previously taken similar action it is doubtful if that conference will be held. The excellent diocesan paper is also to be discontinued though resolutions were passed telling of the great value of the paper and expressing the hope that it may be soon revived.

* * *

A fine missionary rally was held recently for Litchfield County, Connecticut, at Torrington. There were choirs there from Litchfield, Thomaston, Torrington and Winsted. Bishop

From a Varied List of New Books

A New Work by the Distinguished Bible Translator—January Choice of the Religious Book Club

GRACE IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

by

The Rev. Prof. James Moffatt, Litt.D.

An exhaustive examination of the meaning and importance of the word grace in shaping the life of the early Church. Dr. Moffatt has brought both his learning as a scholar and his charm as a personality to bear on this theme.

The British Weekly says:

"Dr. Moffatt's scholarship is beyond our praise, but he is so much more than a scholar. He is a theologian who can deal with ideas as well as words and he knows how to illuminate his pages by happy reference to general literature. Above all, he has the religious insight which enables him to pass through old-world expressions to the living and continuous Christian experience."

$3.00

A Task and Technique for Liberal Religion in America

THE RELIGIOUS CONTROL OF EMOTION

by

The Rev. Wayne Leys, Ph.D.

This book is the first to bridge the gap between scientific studies of religion and the practical conduct of religious institutions. It offers a system which integrates our scattered knowledge of religious behavior and shows how his knowledge can be put to work. $2.00

SON OF THUNDER

by J. P. D. Llwyd

The Dean of Nova Scotia gives us a fascinating study of John of Bethsaida. "John's World-Outlook," he believes, "is most in line with the spiritual needs of our era."..."I commend it to all," says Dr. Robert Norwood, "knowing they will love it as I love it."

$1.50

COMMUNION WITH GOD

by Elmore McNeill McKee

Prayers of Reality for chapel, pastoral and private use. Mr. McKee was for three years chaplain of Yale and the special object of his book is to provide materials for college worship. "Few, if any, men of our generation are better fitted to perform the delicate task to which he has addressed himself," declares Ernest Fremont Tittle. $1.75

Through your religious book store

RAY LONG & RICHARD R. SMITH, Inc.

12 East 41st Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

This Unemployment

by

V. Auguste Demant

Research Director of the Christian Social Council

"Here at last is the book. I have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Demant has produced a thesis of the most profound importance, and one which is essential for the understanding of the world's present situation."—W. G. Peck, author of "The Divine Society."

A limited number of copies have been imported.
$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS
931 Tribune Building
New York City

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue. Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

Creighton told of his work in Mexico, Dr. John W. Wood spoke on the work of the department of foreign missions and the Rev. George B. Gilbert, rural pastor extraordinary of Connecticut, allowed that there was a great deal that might be done on the very edges of their own parishes to bring light and joy into the lives of weary men and women.

* * *

People get bawled up with the name Brusstar. So the Rev. L. M. Brusstar, now the rector at Farmington, Connecticut, has officially changed it to Brewster.

* * *

Motion pictures of the work the Church is doing in Alaska were shown by Mrs. Rose Habersham, traveler, before two audiences in Savannah, Ga., on January 17th. Then just to show she had really been about a bit she also showed movies she had taken of our work in China and Japan. Mrs. Habersham is contributing her services to the National Council to acquaint people with the foreign work of the Church.

* * *

The Maryland Church Mission of Help held its annual meeting in Baltimore on January 19th and listened to speeches by Albert O. Ritchie, Churchman governor of the state; Bishop Helfenstein, and the Rev. Frederic S. Fleming of the Intercession, New York. They all spoke on "The Church's Contribution to Social Work".

* * *

Sort of late to be telling you about the ringing of New Year's bells. But there is one at Christ Church, Stratford, Connecticut, which has been rung on New Years now for 225 years. That is a long time, but then a bell ought to last a long time when used but once a year.

* * *

The diocesan dinner held on the evening of the 26th of January at Pueblo, Colorado, was the occasion for the celebration of the 15th anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Irving P. Johnson.

* * *

Bishop Casady of Oklahoma was the headliner at the missionary mass meeting held at St. James, Chicago, as a part of the diocesan convention program. The others speakers were the two archdeacons; F. C. Deis and W. H. Ziegler. The Auxiliary held its annual meeting at the Redeemer on the 1st, when addresses were made by Bishop Stewart, Mrs. T. C. Wetmore of Arden, N. C., and Mrs. David Larcomb of Cincinnati. That evening the Church Club dinner was held with speeches by Bishop Stewart and Mr. John N. Van der Vries of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

* * *

The Auxiliary of Bethlehem celebrated its golden anniversary at

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida
A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.
Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

Clergyman, 39 years old; experience in parish work; also 5 years in teaching and religious work in boys' school. Desires work as school chaplain. Write Box B, The Witness. 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 The Oval London S.E.11 England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE
1931 Brochure
Limited edition
will be forwarded upon application from the Clergy

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Mauch Chunk, Pa., on January 12th and 13th. Bishop Burleson preached the sermon at a service which taxed the capacity of St. Mark's Church. Two women are still active in the diocese who were present when the Auxiliary was originally established fifty years ago. One of these, Mrs. Charles Webster of Bethlehem, was unable to be present because of illness, but Mrs. W. A. Lathrop of Kingston was present and spoke on the early days of the organization. The program of the convention consisted of addresses by various members on the topics discussed by the Auxiliary at the Denver Convention.

* * *

Bishop Scarlett of Missouri and Mr. J. E. Otis, Chicago banker, were elected trustees of the Western Seminary at the annual meeting last week. The report of the dean, the Rev. Frederick Grant, was encouraging in every way. For one thing it showed revenue for 1931 exceeded expenses, and, if one can believe the papers, which of course one can't, is the only institution in the city of Chicago that can make such a boast. Bishop Roberts of South Dakota was a special guest at a dinner which followed the board meeting and talked about the Indian work. He does that from time to time.

* * *

Mr. Warren A. Wilbur, senior warden of the Pro-Cathedral, Bethlehem, Pa., died on January 15th. He was coming down stairs to enter his car to drive to Florida for the winter when he died of a heart attack. He was 73 years old. He was the leading citizen of Bethlehem, and was one of the most enthusiastic Churchmen in the diocese.

* * *

Lenten speakers for the noonday Lenten services, Chicago, held as usual at the Garrick Theatre, and broadcast each day from 12:30 to 12:50; Bishop Wise of Kansas; Bishop Wilson of Eau Claire; the Rev. Earle B. Jewell of Red Wing, Minnesota; the Very Rev. William H. Nes of New Orleans; the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn of Cambridge; the Rev. Phillips Osgood of Minneapolis, with Bishop Stewart during Holy Week.

* * *

One hundred and fifth convention of Mississippi was held at All Saints' College, Vicksburg, January 19-21. Indicative of the times one of the speakers at the diocesan dinner was Mr. J. S. Love, state bank examiner, one of the busiest men in all Mississippi. Mr. Robert E. Kennington, business man, also spoke, and both he and Mr. Love said that in order to get out of the depression we have to realize that we are our brother's keeper, and that we have to get rid of greed and selfishness. Bishop Bratton had said much the same the day before in addressing the convention. The Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, social service secretary, was a guest of the convention and spoke on the work of his department.

* * *

Council of the diocese of Texas was held at Trinity, Galveston, January 16-19. The chief job was to cut the budget. The bishop's salary was cut $720 and the salaries of all missionary clergy ten per cent. One Negro work in the diocese was discontinued and the diocesan paper was suspended. The pledge to the National Council was reduced from $21,000 to $12,500.

* * *

Boy, and here is a piece of news. Call Mr. Ripley quick. The Rev. Frank H. Stallknecht, Belleville, Texas, recently baptized seventeen adults and seven children, all members of one family. They were the children and grand children of one for whom the day before he has read the burial service. The Rev. F. Percy Goddard, who sends this information, tells me that several of the number are now being prepared for confirmation. After that I presume they will organize themselves into a parish and elect delegates to the diocesan convention.

* * *

Convocation of Oklahoma was held at Oklahoma City, January 20 and 21. Bishop Casady's address dealt almost entirely with the need for raising an endowment fund of a million dollars in order that the district might become a diocese. And it must have been an eloquent address for the convocation unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing the bishop's plan to have the fund raised in a couple of years. Synod delegates elected: Revs. E. H. Eckel Jr., Hugh J. Llwyd, James Mills and Messrs. James B. Diggs, T. B. Blake and P. L. Snyder.

* * *

Chicago has raised $10,500 of the diocesan emergency relief fund for social service stations. They seek $54,400. Among the gifts received is one from a woman in a rural community who sent in a dollar. This

For Your Lenten Reading

National Council Publications

Building a Christian Nation

A SYMPOSIUM

Eight chapters on some of the groups which make up our American life by experts in the Church's work: City, Rural, which includes the mountaineers, Negroes, Indians, Orientals, Immigrants, and Young People. States the opportunities and problems which face the Church in each field.

60 Cents

The Divine Commission

By THE RT. REV. FRANK E. WILSON, S.T.D.

A compact, brief and very readable history of the Christian Church from its Apostolic beginnings. The story of the Church in America is brought down to Bishop Murray's term as Presiding Bishop.

$1.00

The Kingdoms of Our Lord

The addresses given at the Woman's Auxiliary Triennial in Denver on Family Life, Religious Thinking Today, Property and Economics, Inter-racial Contact, and Christianity and International Relations, together with the Denver Findings and Meditations.

35 Cents

Our Expanding Church

By JAMES THAYER ADDISON

An interpretation of the world-wide work of our Church in the light of present-day missionary thinking.

25 Cents

THE BOOK STORE
Church Missions House
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

woman is self-supporting, earns about $300 a year and gives one tenth of the sum to her parish. Let me see you jam a better sermon into a shorter paragraph.

* * *

Iraan is an oil town about 65 miles north of Fort Stockton in Texas. Of course you know exactly where that is. Anyhow the town was visited recently by Bishop Howden and the Rev. Paul Newell who conducted the first Episcopal service ever held there.

* * *

Bishop Kemerer of Duluth, former rector at El Paso, Texas, takes a bit of a rest toward the end of each January, preparatory to Lent. This year his "rest" consisted of going to Silver City, Texas, and conducting a preaching mission.

* * *

The Rev. Paul Reese, formerly of Oklahoma, is now general missionary in North Texas. Bishop Seaman now has on his clergy staff all the living ministers whom he has ordained.

* * *

The 75th anniversary of Grace Cathedral, Topeka, Kansas, was celebrated on the 20th of January. There were a number of services, and in the evening a reception at which Bishop Wise presented a few historic facts. One was that the first bishop to be consecrated west of the Mississippi was Bishop Vail, first bishop of Kansas. Another; the man who started Church work in Topeka was the Rev. Charles M. Callaway. His first service was held in a rented hall. He left the town in 1860 leaving behind twelve communicants. On this 75th anniversary the services were held in one of the finest church plants in the country, valued at more than a half million, and there are 837 communicants.

* * *

Dean Sturges of St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, is conducting a Bible study hour each Sunday afternoon for adults.

* * *

The Nativity, Mineola, Long Island, has taken the first steps in the process of becoming a parish and will doubtless be formally admitted at the diocesan convention in May. The mission was started in 1899 as a mission of the cathedral. The Rev. D. F. Cameron has been in charge since 1924.

* * *

Capitalism, Fascism, Socialism and Communism are to have their innings at a conference for students to be held at Williams College over Lincoln's Birthday. The conference is sponsored by the Liberal Club of Williams, in which the Rev. Gardiner Day, student pastor, is a guiding spirit, and will be attended by students from many eastern colleges. The representative of capitalism is to be Professor Jacob Viner of Chi-

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

THE REDDING MASONIC SUPPLY CO., Inc.

200 Fifth Ave. Est. 1859 New York
Prayer Books - Hymnals - Bibles
Books of All Publishers
Masonic Books and Supplies
Write for circulars and special terms to clergy

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

cago University; of Communism, Mr. William Z. Foster, leader of that party in the United States; Socialism, Mr. Norman Thomas, and Fascism, Mr. Carlo M. Flumiani, an Italian Fascist.

* * *

Eighty-five young people gathered at Holy Trinity, West Palm Beach, Florida, recently for a reunion of Camp Wing-Mann. This camp, named of course after the Bishops, has a two week session each summer which is largely attended by the young people of the diocese. Some of the guests at this reunion travelled six hundred miles, so reports have it, to attend.

* * *

The diocese of North Carolina held a meeting of the executive council on January 12th to revise the budget. Crop failures, bank failures and one thing and another brought the pledges for 1932 far below previous years so that drastic cuts were necessary. Fortunately it was possible to make the main diocesan cuts in administration. The matter of securing an executive secretary was put off for another year, and a combination of certain mission churches was arranged so that less support was needed from the diocesan treasury. The pledge of the diocese to the National Council was also drastically reduced.

* * *

Christ Church, Ottawa, Illinois, is having a series of musical vespers for the benefit of the unemployed. Artists from various parts of the state are contributing their services, and the offerings are being turned over to the United Relief Association.

* * *

Are there anywhere else but at Pierre, South Dakota, twin babies who have been baptized by two bishops? The Rev. and Mrs. Cyril Rouillard of Pierre have twin daughters who, being one month old, took advantage of the presence of Bishops Burleson and Roberts at a clergy conference in Pierre recently to have Bishop Burleson baptize one and Bishop Roberts the other. Their father, one of the younger Indian clergy, is chaplain to Indian students in South Dakota schools. His wife is a graduate of All Saints School, Sioux Falls.

* * *

The Eastern Church everywhere makes much of the Feast of the Epiphany. One of the places which every year reports great crowds and long picturesque ceremonies is Tarpon Springs, Florida, where there is a colony of Greek sponge fishers. Besides services in St. Nicholas Church there is a gay fiesta on the pier. The Church dignitaries attend in their gorgeous robes and, as part of the ceremony, toss a golden cross into the water where it is dived for by the fishermen. The one who finds it, a young boy, John Eliou, this year, is led to Archbishop Athenagoras for a special blessing. Many other events take place the account filling two columns in the St. Petersburg Times. Two of our clergy were present this year, the Rev. Drs. T. J. Lacey and R. F. Lau wearing, the newspaper says, "the beautiful black and white robes of the Episcopal Church."

* * *

The 89th council of the diocese of Florida was held last Thursday and

RUPTURES

Need firm but comfortable support

The patented Brooks Appliance retains securely without annoying springs or hard pads. Allows full body freedom. Worn and praised by active men and women in every walk of life. Over 3 million sold. Sent on 10 days' trial. Not obtainable through any store or agent in U. S., but made to individual measurements and sent direct from Marshall. Full information and free 28-page Rupture booklet sent in plain sealed envelope. Send for trial offer.

C.E.Brooks,Inventor

BROOKS APPLIANCE CO., 346 State St., Marshall, Mich

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: 8 and 11 A. M.
Holy Days: 7:30 and 11 A. M.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30). 11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Dean Francis S. White, D.D.
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Friday in St. John's, Jacksonville. The Auxiliary is holding a convention at the same time. The Rev. David R. Covell, National Council secretary, gave two addresses, and the boss of the University of the South, Dr. Benjamin Finney, spoke on the work of the college.

* * *

The Church Home for Aged Persons, Chicago, is to receive $10,000 from the estate of the late Mrs. Luella Pearson, communicant of St. Chrysostom's.

* * *

Archdeacon Duffield has been missed at the House of St. Giles in Garden City. The crippled children to whom he was chaplain for years, and whom he loved, do not forget him. He held a service in their chapel every Sunday afternoon, and made it bright and cheerful; he gave them careful and systematic instruction; and he celebrated Holy Communion at their altar early every Thursday morning. When other duties prevented him from coming he always sent some one in his place; and there are not a few whose interest in St. Giles' began with their acting as his substitute. He had close and tender relations with the children, and they often consulted him seriously about their problems. He was their true pastor, and was greatly beloved. He did this work for years without any remuneration, and it was a ministry that was invaluable. Many of these youngsters will be guided through their handicapped lives by the encouraging truths Archdeacon Duffield taught them about our Lord and Saviour. When he was taken seriously ill last spring, the children missed him, and prayed for him; and none of his friends will be happier to see him come back completely restored to health than will his little friends at St. Giles'.

* * *

Spraying children with a few ideas about the Bible and the Church is not good teaching according, to Dr. Norman O. Richardson of the Presbyterian Seminary, Chicago. He addressed the opening session of the diocesan normal school the other evening, held at St. James Community House. There were about 250 there, which is a record. Bishop Stewart was there too and paid tribute to the Church school teachers. There is a Bishop that gets around, what? Seems as though you couldn't get news of any really important affair in Chicago without finding him in the first paragraph. Well that is the kind of a bishop to be if you can stand the gaff. But to get back to Dr. Richardson's address. He described the good teacher as first of all intelligently purposeful. He knows what truth to use in order to bring about progressively desirable changes in the pupil; 3, he maintains an attitude of vital, intelligent sympathy; 4, he is vitally interested in mastering the technique of classroom procedure; (method in teaching); 5, he guides the learning processes so that the truth is appropriated and digested from the essentials of life and personality. Jesus was the Master Teacher in all of these aspects, the speaker said.

THE MEANING OF THE REAL PRESENCE

by

G. A. Studdert-Kennedy

A reprint in leaflet form of this famous article.

5c a copy
$1.00 for 25 copies

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

was established by the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund and is operated under their supervision for the benefit of clergymen and their families and the lay-workers and their families of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

A BACKGROUND OF SAFETY

It has been the history of life insurance that the one immediate and liquid asset of an estate, upon death, has been the proceeds of the life insurance policies. It is generally agreed that everyone ought to have a certain amount of life insurance.

The complete facilities of this corporation are placed at the disposal of clergymen and their families and the lay-workers of the Church and their families. Its guaranteed rates are NET RATES, without loading, and it has also been paying annual refunds since 1924 on a constantly increasing scale.

It has no agents but invites correspondence which should be addressed to the corporation.

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

20 EXCHANGE PLACE—NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEXT WEEK—Article by Archbishop Temple

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., FEBRUARY 11, 1932

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

by

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER

WHAT CHRISTIANS SHOULD DEMAND

by

W. G. PECK

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

by

BISHOP JOHNSON

FEATURES THIS WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
ECCLESIASTICAL
METAL WORK
Altar Crosses Vases
Candlesticks Chalices
Missal Stands
Ciboria Processional
Crosses
Particulars from
Vestments
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

Stained Glass Memorials
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet sent on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1871

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY · LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

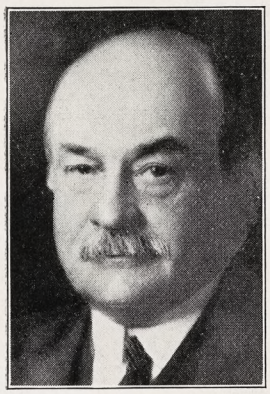
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER



Vol. XVI No. 25 | FEBRUARY 11, 1932 | Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By
NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER
President of Columbia University

IT MUST bluntly be said that a very considerable proportion of the American people, and a still greater proportion of our representatives in official life, continue to show no real appreciation of what has happened to the world or of what is going on all about them. These elements of our population and these public officials continue to use old phrases, old slogans, and old rallying cries, as if these really meant something, being quite oblivious to the fact that they have wholly lost whatever meaning they may once have had.

DR. BUTLER

It is not possible to describe or to discuss present-day problems without repetition. What is now being said has been said before by way of warning and of preparation. Apparently it will probably have to be said many times again before public opinion wakes from its sleep and before public officials, high and low, perceive their responsibility and have courage to act upon it.

The economic, the social, and the political convulsions which are shaking the whole world are without a parallel in history. It is quite futile to draw curves and to make charts of how earlier depressions and economic crises in the United States have developed and how they have led the way to recovery. This procedure is wholly futile because conditions are entirely without precedent and the remedies for these conditions will have to be without precedent as well.

Two great historic movements happened to reach a climax at about one and the same time, and the effect has been to overturn the world as our fathers knew it. These two movements are, first, competitive and armed nationalism, and, second, the industrial revolution which followed hard upon the invention and installation of machinery a century ago. Armed and competitive nationalism went to its natural death in the great World War. If nations insist upon huge armaments under the guise of self-defense, and if they look upon all neighboring nations as envious competitors and potential enemies, war is the natural and almost necessary result. These wars were not particularly important when armies were small and instruments of destruction simple and of short range. As the Great War showed, conditions are wholly different in these respects today. Tens of millions of men are involved, whole continents are subject to ravage and outrage, and innocent men, women and children fifty miles away may be sent to their death without knowing what it is all about. With airships and poison gases at the disposal of combatants, another war would be far more destructive than the Great War showed itself to be. Unless the nations of the earth keep their word which they gave when they solemnly pledged themselves not to resort to war as an instrument of national policy, civilization may yet be destroyed in what is almost the twinkling of an eye.

The Great War not only caused the stupendous losses of which everyone knows, but it destroyed a very large part of the accumulated savings of the world through three hundred years. This is the primary cause of the present economic, social and political crisis. Men's savings have in large part disappeared, having been burned up in the killing, the pillage, and the appalling expenditure which were the Great War. Not only were these accumulated savings destroyed, but the trade, the commerce, and the industry of the world were all disrupted. The seas were no longer safe and the land was almost everywhere in possession of armed and fighting forces.

To all this there came an armistice on November 11, 1918. It was a cessation of hostilities so far as military and naval operations were concerned. It was not a cessation of hostilities so far as mental processes and political policies were concerned. The Great War is still going on, although without the aid of armies and navies. Greedy, envious and self-centered nationalism is everywhere manifesting itself, and every nation's hand is more or less openly raised against its neighbor. Many parts of the war settlement are based upon hate, and others upon fear, forgetful of the fact that neither hate nor fear will serve as foundation for the building of human satisfaction and of peace.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE effects of the Great War would have been sufficient by themselves to have disrupted the world as it was. Almost simultaneously there came to a climax the effects of the industrial revolution. Men had learned, by the use of machinery and by building large business organizations, enormously to increase the production of goods. They had developed the instrumentalities for the exchange of these products, but they had quite overlooked the necessity of augmenting the power to consume in ways that would keep pace with the growth of the power to produce.

In one sense, there is over-production because there are natural products and manufactured goods that are not sold. On the other hand there is under-consumption because there are millions of human beings who need these natural products and these manufactured goods to keep them alive, to cover their nakedness, and to house their families, but who have not the wherewithal with which to acquire them. It is to be noted that these forces are in operation all over the world. They produce somewhat more acute effects in one country or in one section than in another, but nevertheless they are operative everywhere. No nation is competent to deal with these situations single-handed. The forces at work and the problems which they have created are international, and the ways of dealing with them must be international too. Time is slipping away and conditions are growing steadily worse, and yet we find holders of public office in our own land and in other lands looking helplessly about and trying to find ways and means to care for their own people first. This cannot be done because there is no way to do it. There are very few national problems left in any land. Almost every important problem of government, of industry, of commerce, of trade, and of finance is international in its every aspect. Those who would bid us mind our own business use words with a meaning that would have us neglect the chief part of that business which is our own. "Am I my brother's keeper?" insolently asked Cain, and he quickly found out the true answer. So we, too, are our brother's keepers. Each nation is a moral personality with a mind and heart and soul. Each nation is a member of the great commonwealth of nations, with duties and responsibilities like to those which the individual man has toward his neighbors and fellow citizens. What the world needs is voices and acts of leadership that will point the way, that will rouse men from their lethargy and self-centeredness, that will lead them to see facts as they really are and to take their part in rebuilding a broken and disordered and a sorely stricken world.

WHAT CHRISTIANS SHOULD DEMAND

By

W. G. PECK

Rector at Manchester, England, and author of "The Divine Society"

THE main features of the situation, from which the whole world is frantically seeking escape, are well defined. A generation ago orthodox economists would have regarded it as inconceivable that the enormous "success" of the nineteenth century would so swiftly pass, leaving the dreadful menace of universal disaster. But the facts are beyond dispute, and only ignorance can believe that optimism has any power to alter them. In the midst of teeming plenty, able to produce food and raw materials at a rate out of all proportion to the growth of population, and because of this very ability, mankind sees the wheels of his industry ominously slowing and his life threatened. With human needs unsatisfied and growing desperate, there is in every industrial country an appalling mass of humanity whose skill and strength cannot be used. The effects upon the entire human position in the world are lamentable and alarming, and no rhetoric can describe them. We are now at the most critical moment of secular history, and if no revolutionary regeneration restore our faltering strength, then civilization is faced with death.

Whether there is any escape that can be chosen by human volition, depends upon whether the situation is due to causes within human control. Those who, while the capitalist economic was "working," were eager to explain that the economic process was unalterable, are now driven either to suppose that a process rooted in the nature of things has issued in absurdity and disaster, or to find some chastening hope that their previous dogmatic was nothing but eye wash. At all events, the newspapers that continue to speak of the "economic blizzard" are doing little to encourage the optimism they recommend; for blizzards are not within human control, and if this indeed be a blizzard, it looks like the return of the Great Ice Age.

If, on the other hand, we attempt to explain the present impasse as due to some such fault in the economic order as may be discovered and remedied, then, since we have now returned to the realm of choice, it may be as well to ask a pertinent question. If man has any freedom with regard to the economic process, the first question must be, what, precisely, is modern capitalist industrialism seeking to accomplish? What, under this system, is supposed to be the main effect of the human effort which it employs?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE question at once discloses the incontrovertible but long concealed fact that the system is actually attempting the impossible, and is by its very nature compelled to seek to rationalize a contradiction in terms. It is now, at length, being wrecked upon the rock of reason.

We are faced, at this point, with a question not of morals, but of logic. The system which was declared to be the only rational economic, now announces itself upon the stage of the world as mentally frustrate. For the object of capitalist industry, backed in its later stages by the controllers of bank-created credit, has been the accumulation of capital by so widening the margin between costs and prices as to ensure that there shall be a perpetual expansion of the process. It has blown a bubble which has burst. It has ignored the fact that with increased technological efficiency and the consequent vast displacement of labour, and the concurrent expansion of such technological industrialism throughout the world, there must inevitably arrive a time when products become unpurchasable, because the greatest productivity has ceased to require that volume of human labour which would, by means of wages, enable the goods to be consumed.

But behind this intellectual failure lies a moral failure. Before the world can reconsider its economic purpose, it must reconsider the whole purpose of human life. The accepted system has regarded the increase of material wealth as the supreme end of industry, and men as the means of creating wealth. That is stark mammon worship, a fundamental heresy of which the end must be repentance or damnation. The sane conception of the purpose of labour, the only one that the Church can bless, is that it is intended to satisfy the needs of men. And in a situation in which it is impossible for industry to be technologically efficient and at the same time to provide work and wages for all: a situation in which it is possible to provide plenty for all men's needs with a relatively small volume of labour, the Christian conscience will demand certain specific measures.

IT WILL demand that the right to live, in other words, purchasing power, be placed in the hands of the people, based not upon a monetary system which grew up under an economic of scarcity, but upon the facts of the world's abundance and the human power to produce. It will demand that labor and leisure be equitably shared by the community, and that the stigma of unemployment shall thus be changed for a wider possibility of life. It will demand that the whole industrial and economic process be governed by human ends. It will confront mankind with the alternative, either the corporate triumph of humanity or the collapse of humanity. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God": that is the true human end. Ultimately there is no other reason for making furniture or selling meat. But it now becomes clear as a great sign in the skies, that the true end of human life is utterly incompatible with the accepted ends of modern industrialism and finance. Those ends are now demonstrably anti-human, and their further pursuit will but the more deeply obscure the significance of man in the universe. The Christian way out will require the restoration of man, for whom Christ died, to the place now occupied by gold: for man, and not money, is the real sphere of the divine Kingdom.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. What is meant by the business cycle?
2. Is it inevitable that we shall return to so-called prosperity? If so, why?
3. What is meant by the industrial revolution?
4. Is there any connection between war and the industrial revolution?
5. What evidence is there to support Dr. Butler's statement that civilization may be destroyed by another war?
6. What is the underlying cause of war? Have the class discuss.
7. Have some member in the class explain what Dr. Peck means when he says that capitalism "has blown a bubble which has burst."
8. How do you explain the fact that millions of people are starving in a world of plenty?
9. What is the aim of industry today?
10. What do you, as a Christian, think should be the aim of industrial life?

Possessions

By
RAYMOND B. FOSDICK

AT THIS moment, in the midst of our economic depression, we are praying for the return of prosperity. What do we mean by prosperity? Do we mean the shrieking, high-power salesmanship and the fever of stimulated wants that made up the whole of existence before 1929? Do we mean a society of patterned minds in which every man desires whatever his neighbor has, and life is a hectic scramble for gadgets and knick-knacks? It seems inconceivable that anyone would want to go back to such a condition. There must be something better.

We were all of us caught in a system which was not of our making and which we could not control. Now it has broken down. Are we merely to patch it up so that we can live as we lived before? Surely if prosperity means only houses and furniture and automobiles and radios and telephones and all the other paraphernalia of living—and no life that transcends all these mechanisms—then we should earnestly pray that the blight of prosperity may never return.

John Burroughs, in one of his essays, tells of a friend who said that if he outlived his wife he would put on her tombstone: "Died of Things." When some future archaeologist digs down through the crust of our civilization—as some future archaeologist doubtless will—it would indeed be lamentable if this had to be his conclusion: "Here lie the remains of a civilization that was smothered by its own possession."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

The Power Plant

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IF a dozen Jewish fishermen and peasants, gathered in some remote city, were to proclaim that their leader had founded a kingdom which would survive all of our existing social and political institutions, and would extend to all parts of the earth, they would be looked upon as harmless visionaries and fanatics. But if we, living twenty centuries later, were to discover that such a Kingdom had survived in spite of constant opposition; that its numbers ran into the hundreds of millions, and that it did cover practically the entire earth, then we would be confronted with an interesting phenomenon of an unusual character.

In Russia they pay divine honors to the departed Lenine because they think he has founded a government which is to do away with social injustice. Whatever you may think of his theories he has demonstrated a certain amount of power which has maintained itself for a few years in a single country. But Christ founded a Kingdom with power to perpetuate and extend itself for twenty centuries and in doing so He has ignored those methods by which Lenine has achieved his temporary results. Christ declined to use force or wealth or learning as the instruments by which He accomplished these results. You may argue about the nature of Christ's divinity but you cannot question the power that His Kingdom has manifested.

A Kingdom that could survive three centuries of persecution by the Roman Empire; then endure through ten centuries of the chaos which followed the fall of Rome; and then plant itself in the countries of the Orient, in Central Africa and in the igloos of the Arctic Circle, is a demonstration of power which is unlike anything else in history. We may not yet know what electricity is but because we know the things that it can do we respect its power and utilize it, regardless of our ignorance as to its essential nature. Moreover the fact that through its misuse many persons have been electrocuted and many buildings have been burned does not cause us to regard such misuse as a sufficient reason for its disuse.

So we may say that the Kingdom of Christ has been misused, but we also know that, where it has gone with proper agents, its effect has always been to illumine the darkness of superstition and to hearten the lives of hopeless people and to energize men to give their best service to their Master. The fact that this phenomenon has been repeated thousands of times is proof that Christ inaugurated a power in human society unlike that exerted by any other person. Had He depended upon force or wealth or education to originate this institution one might attribute its success to these agencies. But when He has achieved this result merely by the power of His personality and the devotion which it aroused, then we have a demonstration of power that is unique.

In experimental science, before any results can be published, it must be clear that these results satisfy the equation, so that they will be found to work under any and all possible circumstances. It is this dominion which Christ has exercised over men of all sorts for twenty centuries which arrests the attention and convinces us of power. No matter whether you believe in Him or approve of His Gospel, you must concede that it has manifested power. It has satisfied this equation.

Therefore we can find no more interesting study in history than that which lies behind this power plant which has given light and heat and energy to the sons of men for so many centuries. Unless your prejudices against religion are such that you refuse to view this phenomenon without bias, it ought to be worth your while to follow the processes which led up to the founding of the Church and the succession of incidents which have demonstrated its ability to weather all storms, to overcome all obstacles and after twenty centuries to have more adherents, and to achieve greater results, than it has ever done in its history.

In tracing the operation of this peculiar power it is fair to follow the Master's own interpretation thereof. When there is a new scientific discovery we look to the inventor for his explanation. To what preceding events is he indebted? What new forces has he invoked? What is his own interpretation of the power which he has generated? So in the story of the Church, looking at it as a great power plant which has exerted such a tremendous influence upon civilization, we cannot expect to find an explanation of its working from those who begin by being skeptical of its founder, and continue by being blind to its influence. One must study the laboratory in which this power was evolved and consider the methods by which it has been maintained through the centuries.

In this analysis will also be found the cause for those differences which have separated the Church into its innumerable divisions and pitted Greek against Roman, Rome against England, Geneva against both Rome and England, and which has further subdivided the Protestant world into endless subdivisions, each insistent upon its own interpretation of these events. After all, these differences are not due to present conditions, but they exist apart because of a fork in the roads when each began its diverse journey.

Foundations are not spectacular. They lie hidden beneath the surface and yet I venture to say that the foundation is the most vital part of the building, regardless of the splendor of the superstructure. If your major premise is wrong your conclusion is bound to be erroneous. If your basic assumptions are false your whole chain of reasoning is bound to lead you astray. And that is where our differences originate and why our mutual misunderstandings continue. One may not prove his major premise. He asserts it and out of this his syllogisms arise. What the world needs today is to revise its basic assumptions in the light of these facts which may easily be traced in history.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

One man looks at the world and says that there is a God and that He is good. Another asserts that there is no God and that there are no moral obligations. They then begin to argue, each from a different premise and therefore their argument is chiefly vocal. These two have separated at the fork of the roads and henceforth they cannot travel together. They differ in their major premises which neither of them can prove.

So the Roman Catholic and the Protestant differ in their basic assumptions. The one believes that the Pope is the vice-gerent of the Christ. Therefore all that they do is logical. The Protestant asserts that each man is the captain of his own soul and goes on to justify his individualism.

The difference in the major premise is largely due to racial characteristics. The Latin and the Celt make better Roman Catholics than the Anglo-Saxon or the Norse, because they are born with a different attitude toward authority and personal freedom. Different races have in turn dominated the Church and left their imprint upon its organization. For a couple of generations the Hebrew influenced its policies; then the Greek; then the Latin; then the Teuton, the Celt and the Anglo-Saxon. Each in turn has tried to hyphenate its Catholicity. We have had a Hebrew Catholic Church; a Greek Catholic Church; a Roman Catholic Church; an Anglo-Catholic Church. But catholicity (meaning universality) has never expanded under this racial control.

"There is neither Jew nor Greek" in the constitution of the Church "but all nations are one in Christ."

It is in order that we may trace the causes of these modern divisions of Christendom that we propose to follow the Story of the Church, and to see the influence which the various racial elements have imparted as well as the political causes which have confused the issue.

The first problem before us is to study the factors which lay behind the institution of the Church. As St. Paul expressed it, "when the fulness of time was come God sent forth His Son." What is meant by "the fulness of time?"

(Continued next week)

Why I Am a Christian

By

C. F. ANDREWS

Priest of the English Church and Biographer of Gandhi

MY CONSCIOUS active life, as a Christian, began when I was eighteen years old. At that time I was growing indifferent to all religion and falling into sins which would soon have wrecked my moral character altogether. I was saved by Christ from that death of sin.

One night, as I knelt down to pray, there came upon me an overwhelming sense of God's Holy Presence near me, and at the same time a knowledge of my own evil life. I cried out, "Unclean, unclean!"

For hours of agony all was dark and full of horror to me. At last, long after midnight, I was conscious of a divine peace. The voice of Christ seemed to bring me forgiveness and love, in place of darkness and despair.

Next morning, I went to church very early and heard the words of blessing, "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, be with you all. Amen." At these words the sense of peace and forgiveness came back to me and flooded my whole life with joy.

Since that time, during more than forty-three years of incessant struggle, journeying to and fro throughout the world, I have never lost the assurance of Christs living Presence with me. He is not a mere vision; He is no imaginative dream, but a living Presence, who daily inspires me and gives me grace. In Him quite consciously, I find strength in time of need.

It may be asked whether this experience, since my conversion, has been that of Christ's own personal Presence and in what way it has been related to God.

I would try to answer in this way. In all that followed my conversion, Christ and God became one single thought. I did not separate them. Thereafter, whenever I thought of God in human ways, I could not think of God apart from Christ, or Christ apart from God. Christ also became to me the practical evidence in everyday life of God's Presence. The divine beauty, truth and love which I associate with the thought of God in human life are centrally visible to me in Christ. Thus Christ has become for me in my moral and spiritual experience the living, tangible expression of God. With regard to the Infinitude of God that lies beyond this, I seem able at this present stage of existence to know nothing that can be defined. But the human in Christ, that is also divine, I can really know; and when I see this divine beauty, truth and love in others also, it is natural for me to relate it to Christ. The process, which is spiritual and universal and therefore entirely above race, sect, or creed, may be difficult to explain in words, but it is very real to me.

The question came naturally to me, after I had turned from the life of evil in myself to the life of peace and forgiveness in God, "How can I show my gratitude to God for all His goodness toward me?"

The words of Jesus came to my mind, "I was hungry and ye gave me food. I was thirsty and ye gave me to drink. . . . Inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me." These words gave me new light and hope.

It became practical for me to take this saying, not as a mere figure of speech, but as literally true. My one wish had been to find Christ each day in my own daily life as its sustenance and strength. Here was a way open for me. As Christ served and ministered, when He took the towel and basin of water and washed the Disciples' feet, so it was possible for me, by ministering in the same lowly way to the distressed and the afflicted, to receive continually His benediction. There lay the one true happiness of life above the reach of sorrow and even of death itself. Wherever I tried it, I found it to be true.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Since then I may truthfully say that, in spite of very great suffering and terrible lapses and shortcomings, life has been happy and simple for me, and prayer a daily reality. In every part of the world, wherever I have gone, under all sorts of different conditions, while trying to serve mankind, I have had the joy of serving Christ. In this sense it has been more and more a reality for me to say, with all penitence, gratitude and love, "For me, to live is Christ."

Council vs. Diocese

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

LAST week I wrote of the serious menace to the financial security of our National Council. Today I wish to call attention to the difference between national and diocesan programs.

The National Council has several sources of income.

(1) The payments from dioceses.
(2) Legacies.
(3) Interest from endowments.
(4) Special gifts.

The Diocesan Councils have these sources.

(1) The payments of parishes.
(2) Legacies.
(3) Interest from endowments and invested funds.
(4) Special gifts.

It might seem as if the sources are quite similar. As a matter of fact they are similar in name only, as the collateral conditions are quite different.

The National Council is at a disadvantage for several reasons.

(a) The National Council has no direct and immediate and personal way of reaching the ultimate producer of the money, the man in the parish. The National Council must depend upon the activity and interest of its pledgers, that is, the dioceses.

The Diocese, through Bishop and clergy can bring effective pressure upon the people. The Bishop can, and often does, reach wealthy laymen.

If the National Council directly approached wealthy laymen, independently, the dioceses would probably object. Every layman belongs to some parish, and the parishes might object.

But the bishop may and does approach laymen independently for diocesan objects, which may or may not be credited on a parochial quota. It is obvious that gifts secured in this manner should be credited. But the point is that the bishop may further diocesan objects by direct approach. The National Council may not.

The National Council does indeed create a passable detour around this obstacle by having missionaries and others from the field present the story of their work, and in this way secure special gifts. This helps a specific work, but is apt to affect the quota unfavorably.

(b) The National Council is less apt to receive legacies, than are parishes and dioceses. The clergy naturally work for parish endowment.

(c) Special gifts are not a reliable source of income.

In other words, the National Council is quite limited in its resources, and those resources are subject to serious fluctuation.

On the other hand the National Council undertakes work for which a constant and dependable, and unfluctuating income is absolutely necessary. Any variation in income needed for definite tasks is disastrous.

The National Council undertakes all supervision of the work in foreign fields, which must be continuously maintained. The Council must plan for years of uninterrupted service. The Council supports schools and hospitals. These must be kept open. To close a hospital means to put numerous persons out of a job, and far from home, it means the depreciation of a building; the disintegration of an organization, and the loss of capital; and the loss of influence and prestige.

We may set it down as an axiom of good and wise and careful administration of our foreign work, and of much domestic work, that the work must be supported without interruption.

Diocesan work, on the other hand, has the resources subject to most immediate appeal, and generally has undertakings the discontinuance of which would bring far less disaster (if any) than the work supervised by the National Council. Most dioceses could, in a pinch, close several mission stations, some of which have very meagre properties, could discontinue certain types of service, could curtail expenses, and yet diminish only slightly, if at all, the sum total of effort within the diocese. In fact, there are parishes which could use profitably, and with great result, the labor of clergymen now fruitlessly expended in certain mission stations. The diocese can more easily adjust itself to a small budget.

So in our American Church we have the anomaly a National Council work needing the most unfluctuating support, based upon the most insecure financial foundation; and the diocesan work, best able to adjust a budget, is based upon the most fruitful resources of the Church.

That situation has brought trouble to our National work and will continue to do so. It would seem well to have an impartial and disinterested commission study our entire situation, our resources, and our real opportunities, and make a report for our guidance.

Next week I shall have another article on this subject.

The Meaning of the Real Presence

By G. A. Studdert-Kennedy

A reprint in leaflet form of this famous article

5c a copy — $1.00 for 25 copies

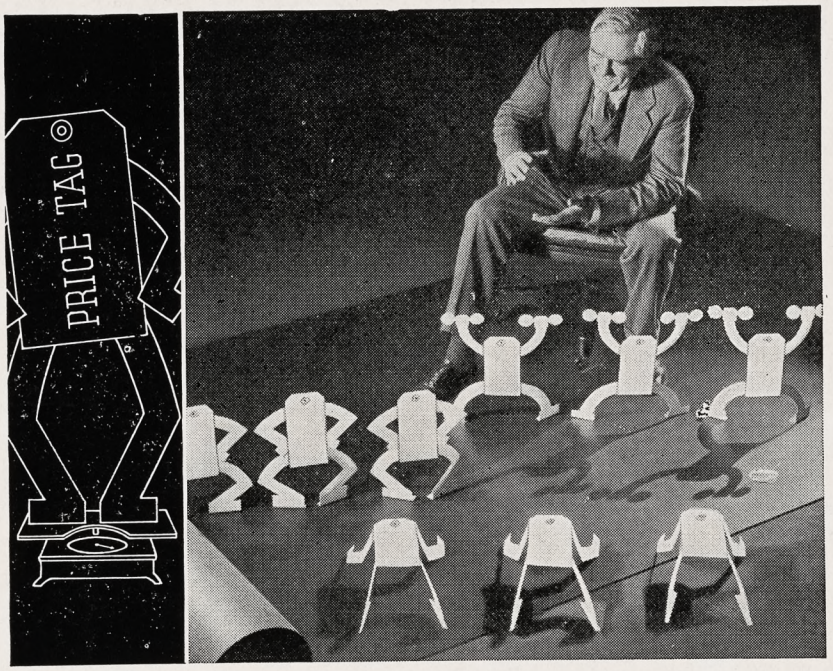
WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

DEPRESSION THE KEYNOTE OF ALL THE CONVENTIONS

The effect of the depression upon the work of each and every diocese has been the keynote of diocesan conventions held throughout the country during the past few weeks. The facts, in every instance, have been faced squarely and with a courageous spirit. Cuts have been universal, but with the cuts has gone an optimistic note and a determination to face the future with a firm resolve to grasp the opportunity presented to the Church.



At the convention of the diocese of Pittsburgh, held at Trinity Cathedral, Bishop Mann explained the necessity of a reduced budget which necessitated the cutting down on diocesan work and the reduction of the pledge to the National Council. He also spoke of the work done by Churchmen in city and state affairs, particularly in raising funds for relief of the unemployed. Addresses were also made at the convention by Bishop Sherrill of Massachusetts and Dr. Louis B. Franklin, vice-president of the National Council, who spoke on the deficit in the pledges for the missionary work of the Church.

At the convention of the diocese of Dallas Bishop Moore said that "the world will come to God or it will go to chaos. We say that something must be done to make future depressions impossible, but that can come only when the principles of God's fatherhood and man's brotherhood become the foundation stone of our social and economic structure."

The convention of the diocese of Maryland, meeting on the 27th and 28th of January at St. David's, Roland Park, was concerned largely with budgets. Last year's budget of $151,070 was set as an ideal, but it was voted to make appropriations according to pledges and the total so far received amounts only to $113,000. The executive committee was given power to add to apportionments as more funds are received.

Bishop Creighton of Mexico, executive secretary of the department of domestic missions of the National Council, gave a number of addresses at the convention of the diocese of Kentucky, dealing with the serious situation which confronts the national organization, due to decreased pledges. The situation was discussed with the convention acting as a committee of the whole, and it was suggested that diocesan work be cut in order that more might go to the national headquarters. The Convention was also the occasion for the celebration of the 27th anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Woodcock.

(Continued on page 15)

Reducing exercises for our price tags . . .

The reduced "figures" of our 1932 price tags should prove interesting to you. Sealex Linoleum prices have gone down. The excellent investment Sealex floor materials have always represented is even more attractive now. Their cost today is lower than it has been in many years.

Now is the time to make your funds go farthest . . . to make worth-while improvements at minimum expense. Replace all your hard-to-clean, noisy, unsightly old floors with sanitary, quiet, good-looking Sealex Floors. Save in first cost—and in maintenance cost, too. You'll find Sealex Floors economical to maintain—no scraping, no painting. An occasional waxing will keep your Sealex Floors looking like new.

Write today for further facts about these modern, resilient floors . . . and for full information on our Bonded Floors expert installation service, in which Sealex materials are backed by Guaranty Bonds.

CONGOLEUM-NAIRN INC. . . . . KEARNY, N. J.

SEALEX
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
LINOLEUM FLOORS

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE COUNCIL FACES THE FINANCIAL CRISIS

By
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE National Council of the Church met in New York on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. This is a report of that meeting, presented as free of editorial opinion as it is possible for me to write. The Council meeting supplied a great deal of material suitable for editorial comment, but any we shall make will appear in a later issue.

To understand the meeting of the Council one has to get behind it to the actual state of National Church finances. A Budget was passed at the Denver Convention calling for $4,225,000 for 1932. Dioceses and Missionary districts are required to report what they promise to pay on their quotas by the 15th of January. At the time the Council went into session on Wednesday there had been received at the office of the treasurer pledges totalling only $2,156,753. To this sum could be added $100,000 miscellaneous income, and $725,000 from the United Thank Offering and from income on trust funds, making a grand total (some prefer to leave the "grand" out) of $2,981,753.

The Budget for 1932 is $4,225,000. The estimated lapsed balances was $275,000. Thus there is needed to meet the 1932 budget the sum of $3,950,000. But the Council was also faced with the fact that about $250,000 pledged for 1931 was not paid, which brought them right back again to $4,200,000 as the total sum needed. The pledges for 1932 fall short of this amount to the tune of $1,218,247.

As soon as the Council assembled they were told that officers of the National Council had been meeting every day for two weeks cutting down on appropriations. As a result of these efforts cuts totalling $584,957 were recommended to the Council for their consideration. But even after this cutting there still remained a deficit of $633,290. There were undesignated legacies which could be used to bring this down about $250,000, but even so the Council was faced with the task of solving the riddle of what to do about the remaining deficit of approximately $400,000.

That, as briefly as I can put it, was the financial situation that faced them. They also started the meeting with rather important General Convention legislation staring them in the face. For we are, by order of General Convention, operating on what is known as the Pay-As-You-Go-Plan which is expressed as follows in the General Convention resolution:

"Resolved: First, that each diocese and missionary district shall annually on or before January 15th, submit to the National Council a statement of the amount which it expects to pay to the National Council toward the Church's Program for the ensuing year;

"Second, That the National Council, at its first meeting of the year, shall adjust the actual appropriations for the year to an amount not to exceed the total income to be expected from these estimates plus amounts expected from other sources."

In addition to this Pay-As-You-Go-Plan, the Council also went into tneir meeting with this General Convention action, taken in Denver:

"Resolved: That if and when cuts in the Budget of $4,225,000 become necessary, after various dioceses have reported, regard be given to the judgment of this Convention that the work of the Church in her Continental, extra-Continental, Foreign Missionary Districts, and Aided Dioceses is of primary importance. Any necessary cuts should, if possible, be confined to administrative economies and to certain items in departmental budgets, especially in the department of publicity and more specifically by the abandonment of the publication of "The Church at Work" (a saving of $33,000 annually) and reductions in the appropriations to the committee on Ecclesiastical and Racial Relations."

That is where the Council stood when they met on Wednesday morning. A deficit to be overcome of $400,000, after having used up undesignated legacies and after having made cuts which in debate were frequently spoken of as drastic. What to do? What to do?

Bishop Stires of Long Island insisted that the Pay-As-You-Go-Plan meant just exactly what it said, and that such was the understanding of the people of the Church generally. He expressed it as his opinion that the budget should be, somehow or other, balanced. It was then pointed out by Mr. Franklin, treasurer and vice-president, that to balance the budget would mean the complete abandonment of certain missionary work, and he questioned whether the Church would tolerate it. He contended that these were days when rules and regulations fall by the wayside. "We cannot be expected to commit suicide", he said, "At least liberality of interpretation of the Pay-As-You-Go-Plan is called for. I believe that under the ruling of General Convention we have a right to make a special effort to raise the funds necessary in order to carry on the work."

There was, as you may expect, considerable debate over the meaning of the resolution of General Convention. It was finally decided however that the final clause in that resolution, "plus amounts expected from other sources", might be interpreted to mean that the Council had a right to seek the $400,000 needed before instituting further reductions in the work.

This opinion was finally passed in the form of a resolution which read as follows:

"Whereas: The National Council has not succeeded in balancing its budget for 1932 under the Pay-As-You-Go-Plan even by using every dollar of available income and applying the most drastic economies in every department and operation of the Council, including a reduction of 10% on all salaries of staff and missionaries, and

"Whereas: The General Convention in adopting the Pay-As-You-Go-Plan has authorized The National Council to rely on other expectations as well as on the amounts now pledged by the dioceses:

"Therefore Be It Resolved: That the reduced budget be and hereby is adopted effective only for the first six months of 1932: and

"Resolved: That we appeal to the Church to make possible the continuance of at least this reduced budget for the full year by making an additional offering of not less than $400,000, and

"Be It Further Resolved: That the National Council notify the Church that if such offering is not forthcoming further drastic reductions in the work, including possible withdrawals from specific fields, will be necessary."

This resolution, translated into words that you will understand, means this: an effort is to be made, under the direction of the National Council, and more specifically the field department, to raise $400,000 by Whitsunday. They were voted $50,000 to do the job. How the job will be done has yet to be worked out. However this can be definitely said; stress will not be laid upon the need for $400,000 on Whitsunday. Rather an effort will be made to prepare the Church now for the every member canvass in the fall of 1932, looking ahead to the work of the Church in 1933 and years beyond. As the Executive Secretary of the Field Department, Dr. Reinheimer, put it; "The necessity of raising $400,000 immediately to carry on for 1932 must be taken in our stride." Various suggestions have been proposed. One is $1 from each communicant; another is one day's income from each communicant; another is a great offering on Whitsunday; another is a request that each vestryman be asked to give $10, it being argued that there are about 50,000 of them. To this suggestion the Rev. H. Percy Silver said; "Not $10 per vestryman but $10 perhaps." It reminds me of the last words of a parish priest;

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

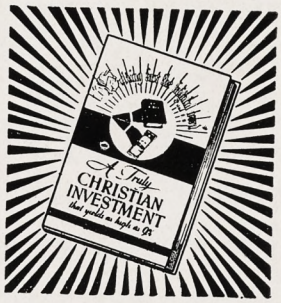
"When I am dead
Say to my vestry
That they shed not tears
As I shall then
Be no more dead
Than they have been for years!

Anyhow those were the suggestions made. We are now, by order of the Council to have a Special Campaign, looking ahead to 1933, but with a real effort made to raise immediately the $400,000 that is needed to carry through 1932 without further budget reductions. The plan was presented by the secretaries of the Church Missions House, and was accepted by the members of the National Council.

When it came to a consideration of the cuts Dr. Silver at once asked for the resolution passed at General Convention, which I have reproduced in the first part of this report. There was then a lengthy discussion on the subject of the cuts in salaries. Dr. Silver, throughout, vigorously opposed any cut in the salaries of missionaries. Dr. William H. Milton offered a resolution calling for a cut of 15% in the salaries of the administrative forces and 10% in the salaries of the missionaries. This was opposed by Dr. Franklin, vice-president of the Council, on the ground that living costs were higher in New York, and that while it might be a nice gesture it would in reality work an injustice. Mr. Z. C. Patten argued for a graded cut so that those receiving the lowest salaries would be cut the least. This was opposed by Mr. Franklin on the ground that the man with the larger salary also had the greater responsibilities. Well it all ended with the 10% flat cut recommended by the officers of the National Council.

They then considered the "Church at Work." Bishop Taitt of Pennsylvania insisted that they had orders from the General Convention to discontinue the paper and to cut the department of publicity. He said that it was "impertinent for us to do anything else. How can we go to the Church and ask for funds if we fail to carry out their orders?" However this General Convention resolution was finally interpreted to be a suggestion rather than an order. They then voted to continue the publication of the "Church at Work," it being felt essential that there be a publication with a large circulation in order to make the planned campaign a success. They then proceeded to authorize the other cuts as recommended by the executive officers of the Church Missions House.



So there you have it, as far as my space will permit. There were many interesting side lights during the two days debate, but I believe this account gives you the big story—the fact that the Council, at the request of National Council officers has authorized a campaign to bring the pledges up, so that no further cuts in the budget will be necessary. We will hold over for another issue the minor actions of the Council meeting. Also we are holding over until another week, as I said at the beginning, any editorial comment that we might feel called upon to make.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

An abstract of a man's sermon is never very satisfactory, particularly to the author, but I do want to pass on to you something of the sermon preached by the Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Church, New York, last Sunday. It should be printed in full, and would be had we space. He dealt frankly and courageously with the subject of marriage. We have every point of view presented, he said, except the Christian one. We are told of marriage as a contract, marriage as an experiment, marriage as the enslavement of women, marriage as the relic of an outworn civilization, marriage as a convenience, but little have we been told of Christian marriage. Marriage, to many, is purely a secular contract, the chief end of which is the happiness of the individual, and the gratification of what is called "love", by which is too often meant the transient passion of physical attraction. It is erotic love, quite distinct from permanent affection. It is natural, with this point of view, that we should have easy divorces and experimental marriages.

Dr. Stetson went on to say that he rejoiced in the end of prudery and false modesty, but he asked that religion be taken into consideration in dealing with marriage and that we consider ourselves not only animals but also spiritual beings, who have responsibility for life to God. Marriage has a higher purpose than happiness for the individual. It is God's way of producing self-sacrifice and enduring affection; it is God's way of founding that most beautiful of all human relationships, a Christian home. And Christian marriage, according to New Testament teaching, is indissoluble, and Dr. Stetson believes that this fact will have to be recognized eventually by a change in the canons of the Church which now allows for remarriage when

A Message

—to those eager to spread God's Word and to assure themselves of a safe life-income.

IN THIS interesting booklet (which will be sent for the asking) you will find a sincere message—of service to others and of interest to yourself.

Here you will read of a Society which has given 122 years of Christian service, and which now distributes nearly 900,000 copies of Scriptures each year—Bibles, Testaments and Gospels in 71 languages to immigrants, sailors, the poor in slums, the forlorn in prisons, the sick in hospitals, the lonely in hotels, and in raised type to the needy Blind.

You protect yourself from bad loans and investments when you place your money in the Annuity Bonds of the New York Bible Society. These bonds pay you a fixed income (ranging from 4% to 9% according to your age) as long as you live. They give you a part in the great Christian work of spreading the Holy Scriptures to the spiritually hungry.

Let Us Send You This Message

Read the message contained in the booklet, "A Truly Christian Investment." The coupon will bring your copy, without the slightest obligation. If you are sincerely interested in rendering a worth-while service to others at the same time you assure yourself a safe income, send this coupon at once.

New York Bible Society
Dept. 8B, 5 East 48th Street, New York, N. Y.

Without cost or obligation to me, please send me your booklet "A Truly Christian Investment" which tells all about your Bible Annuity Bonds.

Name ..... Age

Address .....

City ..... State .....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHURCH FURNITURE
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue. Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

This Unemployment
by
V. AUGUSTE DEMANT
Research Director of the Christian Social Council

"Here at last is the book. I have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Demant has produced a thesis of the most profound importance, and one which is essential for the understanding of the world's present situation."—W. G. Peck, author of "The Divine Society."

A limited number of copies have been imported.
$1.25 a copy
WITNESS BOOKS
931 Tribune Building
New York City

there has been a divorce because of adultery.

He then made it clear that the Church merely blesses a marriage and the state merely legalizes the marriage. The man and the woman marry each other. And whereas the Church blesses certain marriages it is clear that she cannot bless others—brother and sister; insane persons or diseased persons. Therefore the Church provides now for the annulment of such marriages—that is, she declared that these persons have never married. He also praised the recent action of General Convention in providing for the preparation before marriage and also for the three days notice which must be given before the service.

He then gave the requisites of a happy Christian marriage; first, instruction before marriage; 2, the intention to make marriage successful, happy and permanent; 3, willingness to be disciplined, "catastrophy always follows where two people lose their temper at the same time,"; 4, the necessity of distinguishing between love and lust. "Love longs to give; lust to get. Lust is selfish, love is selfless. Lust would satisfy only self, love thinks always of the other. Lust may soon turn to hate, while love finds its perfect work in lasting and joyous companionship through lengthening years. Love is always close to God." Finally, the important requisite for a happy Christian marriage is the practice of religion. This means that both should be baptised in order that they may practice their religion together.

"The practice of religion which two people hold in common is a tremendous factor in making for a complete and happy life. The prayer in communion, the gathering at the Altar are the means of permanent joy. Those of us who remember homes where fathers and mothers went to Church regularly and to Holy Communion, who took for granted the practice of religious habits, who led their children naturally to Church and Confirmation, will recall with thanksgiving the happiness of such a home and the serene joy and sound fellowship of mother and father. The influence of such a home is of untold value to character.

"Christian marriage is the one hope for the family and the State. It is the duty of Christian people to stand firmly for the ideals of Christian Marriage and to let it be known that we are faithful to our Lord, whose word is truth."

* * *

Bishop Oldham of Albany has issued a pastoral in which he points to the great opportunity now before the Church. "Confidence, courage and hope are the virtues needed at this hour, and for these the people

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

KNIGHTS OF STS. JOHN
Wins young men to the Church. Provides worthwhile things to do. Endorsed by leading Bishops and Clergy. Manual of initiations $1. Rev. F. M. Wetherill, 3012 W. Coulter St., Phila., Pa.

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

REUTER ORGANS
Created with the love, devotion and skill that bring out beauty of tone.
Our organs are custom built to suit the requirements of either the modest church or the great auditorium.
Write for Catalog.
THE REUTER ORGAN CO.
LAWRENCE, KANSAS

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation
THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

have a right to look to the Church of the Living God. Many may yet lose nearly everything material on which they had pinned their hopes. But nothing of abiding value will be lost."

* * *

The Rev. Dudley Stark, vicar of Holy Trinity, St. James' Parish, New York has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.

* * *

The Rev. William Porkess, St. Stephen's, Wilkinsburg, Pa., presented a class of thirty-five for confirmation on January 31st, a number of whom were adults. St. Stephen's is one of the strongest parishes of the Church.

* * *

Bishop Cook of Delaware, in his Lenten Pastoral, draws a contrast between the Lent that is forced upon us by the times in which we live—repentance and particularly mourning over losses; fasting, since we are compelled to cut out extravagances; almsgiving, since we cannot shut our eyes to the distress all about us. But he goes on to say that Lent is much more than this.

"A true Lent seeks to bring us back to God and His ways.

"A true Lent would give us an intimate companionship with Christ.

"A true Lent calls us to accept self discipline and the spirit of sacrifice as a first principle.

"A true Lent plants the cross before us as marking the path our Master has gone.

"A true Lent requires of us that we turn from greed and selfishness and answer to the summons of service.

"A true Lent demands that we repent by examining our lives that we may honestly taste their worth in the sight of God—that we abandon sin and folly and worldliness, not primarily because we are bound to pay a penalty for these things, but because they are hateful in the sight of God.

"A true Lent lays this charge upon us, that we develop such a spirit of humility, such a keen sense of justice, such a power of love within ourselves that we bring forth the fruits of mercy, generosity, and peace.

"A true Lent bids us study God's Word that we may know His will concerning us more perfectly — to seek such friendship with Christ through prayer that we walk in His way more steadfastly."

* * *

Bishop Fiske of Central New York has departed, this year, from the conventional Lenten Pastoral and instead has asked his clergy to read in common a book which he recommends: A Parson's Dilemmas by the Rev. T. W. Pym. Bishop Fiske says; "I want you to think about the modern situation and to consider some moral problems of real importance which we are only too apt to fight shy of,

IMPRESSIONS and OPINIONS
An Autobiography
By Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D.
Rector Emeritus of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York

"Dr. Barry's Autobiography is a joy and a revelation; and it rings so true to the character of the man that I knew as a great priest. His many little sidelights are reflections of a great man. I shall treasure the book as his last bit of writing."—Rev. Arthur F. O'Donnell, Assistant, St. Paul's Church. Westfield, N. J.
Cloth 12mo. Frontispiece Price $2.50
Postage Extra
EDWIN S. GORHAM, INC.
18 W. 45TH STREET NEW YORK

Individually Tailored by American Craftsmen

VESTMENTS
FOR CLERGY AND CHOIR
EMBROIDERIES
ALTAR LINENS - - - - FABRICS
Custom Tailoring for Clergymen
The Lenten and Easter season is an especially appropriate time for procuring of new vestments. Orders placed now will receive the benefit of the special prices and discounts.
The house that has satisfactorily served the Church for half a century.
COX SONS & VINING, Inc.,
133 East 23rd Street, New York

For Your Lenten Reading

National Council Publications

Building a Christian Nation
A SYMPOSIUM
Eight chapters on some of the groups which make up our American life by experts in the Church's work: City, Rural, which includes the mountaineers, Negroes, Indians, Orientals, Immigrants, and Young People. States the opportunities and problems which face the Church in each field.
60 Cents

The Divine Commission
By THE RT. REV. FRANK E. WILSON, S.T.D.
A compact, brief and very readable history of the Christian Church from its Apostolic beginnings. The story of the Church in America is brought down to Bishop Murray's term as Presiding Bishop.
$1.00

The Kingdoms of Our Lord
The addresses given at the Woman's Auxiliary Triennial in Denver on Family Life, Religious Thinking Today, Property and Economics, Inter-racial Contact, and Christianity and International Relations, together with the Denver Findings and Meditations.
35 Cents

Our Expanding Church
By JAMES THAYER ADDISON
An interpretation of the world-wide work of our Church in the light of present-day missionary thinking.
25 Cents

THE BOOK STORE
Church Missions House
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.

Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

because it means hard thinking to reach settled conclusions and convictions in regard to them." The Bishop urges that after Lent the clergy discuss these problems at their clericus meetings in order to help each other through such group conferences, and in turn guide their people to serious thought about them in the light of Christian principles.

* * *

The Knights of Saints John, religious order for boys, is off to a good start in the diocese of Pennsylvania. Arthur Strauss, well known as a basketball player, has recently been appointed field secretary of order in the diocese by the Grand Commander, the Rev. F. M. Wetherill. Incidentally any of you who are interested in this new society for boys and young men can get information from their headquarters, 3012 W. Coulter Street, Philadelphia.

* * *

Rev. E. H. Butler, colored non-parochial clergyman of Atlanta, died in December at his home at Pittsboro, N. C. He left his house to the diocese of North Carolina for the colored mission of Pittsboro. He also left $6000, part of which went to the Bishop Payne Divinity School, part to the Church Pension Fund and part to a charity fund for the aged colored people of Pittsboro.

* * *

Great crowd of Lenten preachers at St. Paul's, Baltimore, as usual. They are Bishop Helfenstein, Rev. N. C. Powell, Rev. Robert S. Chalmers, Rev. Horace W. B. Donegan, Bishop Strider, Rev. Don Frank Fenn, Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, son of the rector of St. Paul's, Rev. Walter O. Kinsolving, who is a nephew I believe, Bishop Abbott, Rev. Shirley C. Hughson, Bishop Fiske, Bishop Booth, and the rector, the Rev. Arthur B. Kinsolving.

* * *

Worried about China? Well apparently there is plenty of reason to be. But get what comfort out of this cablegram that you can. "All missionaries are safe. You need not worry." That is from Bishop Graves. Then other missionaries cabled that the press dispatches which we are reading over here give an exaggerated impression of conditions.

* * *

A fine lot of Lenten preachers at St. James', New York; Rev. R. Townsend Henshaw, Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, Bishop Booth, Rev. Shirley C. Hughson, Canon Alan P. Shatford of Montreal, Rev. John Rathbone Oliver and Bishop Oldham. They each preach for a week each afternoon at services at 5:15.

* * *

Here is a good idea. Bishop Oldham of Albany has inaugurated the custom of assembling the persons

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
REV. FREDERICK KRAMER, Ph.D., D.D.
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

confirmed the previous year in each parish that he visits. He first writes them a personal letter asking them to attend a service to observe the anniversary of their confirmation.

* * *

Bishop Rowe of Alaska expressed his gratitude to the late F. J. Bassett, late rector of the Redeemer, Providence, for a bequest to the Alaskan work, by visiting the parish on February 7th and preaching at three services.

* * *

Governor Moore of New Jersey was the speaker at a meeting of the men's club of St. Paul's Church, Paterson, New Jersey, on January 26th. Bishop Stearly was there, J. V. Hinchcliffe, mayor, was there, Dr. A. F. McBride, former mayor was there, and the toastmaster was the genial rector, the Rev. D. S. Hamilton. Quite an evening.

* * *

Practically all of the clergy of the diocese of South Florida attended a conference held at New Smyrna on January 19th and 20th, when plans were made to hold a diocesan wide preaching mission. Bishop Penick of North Carolina and the Rev. C. C. Carpenter of Savannah were the headliners.

DIOCESAN CONVENTIONS

(Continued from page 9)

Indianapolis met at Christ Church, Indianapolis, on the 27th and 28th of January. Bishop Francis, at a convention dinner urged his people to recognize the great opportunities for service given us by the present economic crisis—not only a change to give material aid to those suffering, but also an opportunity for spiritual contact with those whose faith in material things has come to an end.

Bishop Wise of Kansas, in an address before the convention of his diocese, called upon the men to join him in raising $10,000 as an emergency fund to provide help to parishes and missions suffering heavily. He pledged the first $1000, and it is confidently expected that the entire sum will soon be raised. The Rev. F. P. Houghton, general secretary of the National Council, was the speaker at a mass meeting, outlining the work of the Council and the need for generous support.

Similar reports are received from conventions in other dioceses. Chicago, meeting last week, reported a considerable falling off in pledges, with the pledge to the National Council reduced to 66% of former years, in spite of heroic efforts to raise the entire quota. A cheerful note, comparatively, was struck by Southern Ohio were pledges for 1932 very nearly equal those of 1931. In the diocese of Milwaukee there was a drastic cut in the diocesan work and a corresponding decrease in the amount pledged to the National work of the Church. At the Atlanta Convention, a 25th anniversary, they were honored with the presence of the Presiding Bishop. He was the preacher at the anniversary service and also, with Bishop Reese of Georgia, addressed the diocesan dinner, and related the situation in the affairs of the National Council.

East Carolina held its convention at Wilmington on the 27th and 28th and believe it or not, while there

"Love's Last Gift, Remembrance"

Beautiful Memorials that Abide for Ever

OLD English and Irish Crosses in silvery grey cornish, dark grey Scottish or warm red Devon granite.

VIIIth St. Minver Cross

4 ft. high $83.00

Packed in case for shipment
Approximate freight to New York $19.50
Illustd. Booklet Mailed Free

Maile & Son, Ltd.
— Founded 1785 —
Sculptors and Church Art Craftsmen
367 Euston Road, London, N.W.1, Eng.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: 8 and 11 A. M.
Holy Days: 7:30 and 11 A. M.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30). 11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

were adjustments in all diocesan items of expense, they accepted their quota to the National Council in full. They also changed the time of their Every Member Canvass from December to the Pre-Lenten Season, beginning with Quinquagesima. It was a notable convention, with a fine address by Bishop Darst, and addresses by a number of distinguished visitors.

Harrisburg met January 26th and 27th. Bishop Brown spoke of the revival in religion as a result of the depression and urged the churches to grasp their opportunities. One of the highlights of the convention was an address by the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker on the work of the First Century Christian Fellowship. What was done about money was not reported, beyond the statement that a fund of $10,000 was being raised for the missions of the diocese.

Spokane had its convention the last week in January, opening with a missionary mass meeting at which Bishop Barnwell of Idaho gave a stirring address on the missionary work of the Church. At the Convention it was reported that in spite of adverse conditions the work of the Church in the district was going forward steadily.

Southern Virginia, at their convention, January 26th and 27th, devoted itself almost entirely to their budget. Bishop Thomson, in his address, said that returns from the canvass indicated the necessity of drastic and perhaps destructive reductions in the diocesan work and in the pledge to the national work of the Church. Plans are under way there for a second canvass in order to bring up pledges so that diocesan work will not have to suffer any more than it has already. Bishop Thomson paid a glowing tribute to the Church Pension Fund in his address, saying that it was the biggest achievement of the Church in this century, not alone for the benefits it confers but also for the introduction into the Church of ideals of discipline, regularity, and integrity.

FOR EASTER

Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.

ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY

Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.

Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.

BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP
Send for circular 28

Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts.

The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. New York, N. Y.

Church League for Industrial Democracy

The annual luncheon meeting of the League is to be held at Trinity Church Parish House, Boston, on Washington's Birthday at one o'clock.

Speakers:

JAMES MYERS
Industrial Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches.
and
ROBERT A. BAKEMAN
Former Mayor of Peabody, Massachusetts.

You are invited to attend. Tickets at one dollar each may be secured from

MARY CAROLINE CRAWFORD
Little Building, Boston

The annual service of the League is to be held on February 21st at

CHRIST CHURCH, CAMBRIDGE
at four-thirty o'clock.

Rev. Norman Nash will preach.

An inter-seminary conference is to be held over the week-end of Washington's Birthday at the Episcopal Theological Seminary. Seminary undergraduates desiring to attend should write Howard P. Kellett, 99 Brattle Street, Cambridge.

A clergy conference to discuss the Church and Industry is to be held following the luncheon. All clergymen are invited.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Its Faith and Order
By GEORGE HODGES
Revised by James A. Muller

"The fundamental things which a Christian ought to know and believe to his soul's health are presented in such simplicity of style and with such overflowing kindness of good will as to make them attractive to the general reader as well as valuable to the general clergy."
—The Churchman

This thorough revision of the book has preserved the quality of the original work. $1.50

Two Splendid Books for Schools

A MODERN VIEW of the OLD TESTAMENT
By WILLIAM G. SHUTE

This presents briefly and clearly the net results of historical investigation of the Old Testament. It is written with a view to use as a text in courses on the Bible. The author is a member of the faculty of the Choate School, Wallingford, Connecticut. $1.50

SERVICE BOOK FOR SCHOOLS

Thirty-five brief services for preparatory schools, Sunday schools and congregations of young people. Compiled by the masters of St. George's School in Jerusalem, the book has been edited for American use by the Reverend John W. Suter, Jr. $1.25

At your bookstore

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY
60 Fifth Avenue New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., FEBRUARY 18, 1932

For Peace

ETERNAL God, in whose perfect Kingdom no sword is drawn but the sword of righteousness, and no strength known but the strength of love, so guide and inspire, we pray Thee, the work of all who seek Thy Kingdom at home and abroad, that all peoples may seek and find their security, not in force of arms, but in that perfect love which casteth out fear, and in that fellowship revealed to us by Thy Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & Co., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
CHURCH VESTMENTS
CHOIR OUTFITS
Cassocks Surplices
Copes Chasubles
Stoles Veils Burses
Altar Linens
Metal Work Woodwork
Particulars from
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Craftsmen in Stained Glass
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19. W. 8th St. Eighth & Court Sts.
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY· LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 26 | FEBRUARY 18, 1932 | Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

STAND BY THE MISSIONARIES

An Editorial by
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE members of the National Council are elected representatives of the Church, assigned the task of directing our National work between General Conventions. At their meeting the other day in New York they were confronted with an unusual situation. They met this situation by taking the unusual action which was described in the news story in our last issue. The General Convention, legislative body of the Church, instructs them to balance the budget for the year. This means that they are under orders to make expenses square with the total sum pledged by dioceses and missionary districts. However the estimated resources of the Church for 1932 were so far under the requirements for the budget, even after reductions, including a 10% reduction in all salaries from the Presiding Bishop to the most humble worker in the mission fields, that balancing the budget at this time would have meant the complete withdrawal from several missionary fields. Rather than scrap vital work the Council voted to carry on under a reduced budget for the first six months of the year, meanwhile going to the Church with a plea that money be provided to continue operations under this reduced budget, for the balance of the year.

Thus they put the matter squarely up to each of us by saying in effect: "the sum of $400,000 is required to carry on. Do your share. If you fail we will be compelled to make further drastic reductions in the work, including withdrawals from specific missionary fields."

All sorts of debatable questions are immediately raised by their action. But after you get all through discussing the matter, and placing the blame for the present emergency on everyone but yourself, it comes down to this: are we going to stand by our missionaries? The National Council took their action last week because they want to do so. They are also convinced that we, the communicants, want to stand by them. We believe they are right in their assumption. We believe that the people of the Church do want to stand by their missionaries. We believe therefore that they will do everything possible between now and Whitsunday to raise the sum required to carry on the work. Stand by the missionaries was a slogan of General Convention. It must be our slogan now.

IN URGING the people of the Church to support the program about to be launched, we feel compelled also to make certain suggestions.

First, as has already been suggested by Dr. Atwater, in his series of articles now appearing in this paper, we believe that an impartial and disinterested commission should be appointed at once to make a survey of the entire work of the Church. There is, at the moment, such a commission to inquire into the quotas and appropriations of missionary districts and aided dioceses.

Liberality of interpretation of the Pay-As-You-Go Plan (the order of General Convention that expenses must be made to square with resources) was considered advisable because of an emergency. For the same reason liberality might be allowed in interpreting the tasks of this commission. They should be given wide powers. It should be made possible for them, if necessary, to engage workers trained in administration and research. Every work of the National Council should be studied in order to discover whether it is producing commensurate with the costs. And this commission should start functioning at once. There is an emergency.

Second, we feel that the Church has no right to place the responsibility for cuts in the budget on the shoulders of executive officers, who are themselves, with their departments, involved. The budget has been cut approximately $600,000, more than one third of which is accounted for by the general reduction of 10% in all salaries. These cuts were recommended by the officers of 281 Fourth Avenue, whose recommendations were accepted by the National Council. One can readily imagine what may have happened as these men met each day for two weeks, in a room of the Church Missions House which came to be known generally around the building as "The Slaughter House". A group of executives———colleagues in what is supposed to be a closely knit organization ———were faced with the task of urging cuts in each other's work. Frankness under such circumstances would at least be difficult. Cuts, we believe, should not be made by the people involved. They should be made by an impartial and disinterested committee, either composed of National Council members or, if they are men who cannot spare the time, then by a committee appointed by the Council.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

AS THINGS stand at the moment, in spite of the resolution of the National Council, printed here last week, to the effect that there had been "the most drastic economies in every department and operation of the Council", an examination of the actual figures is rather disturbing. The General Convention recommended that "Any necessary cuts should, if possible, be confined to administrative economies and to certain items in departmental budgets, especially in the department of publicity and more specifically by the abandonment of the publication of The Church at Work (a saving of $33,000 annually), and reductions in the appropriations to the Committee on Ecclesiastical and Racial Relations."

The budget of the department of publicity, as passed by General Convention, called for the expenditure this year of $106,835. The executives recommended a cut in this budget of $11,051. However it should be borne in mind that this is a cut in the budget and not a cut in the expenditures of previous years. There has been a cut in the 1932 budget, but when compared with the expenditures of previous years there has been no cut which can be called in any sense drastic.

As a matter of fact the department of publicity spent $100,063 in 1931. This means that the National Council now says to the publicity department; "In 1931 you spent $100,063. However it is now necessary for us to make drastic cuts. Therefore in 1932 you may spend no more than $95,784, or $4,279 less than you spent in 1931." When one realizes that this reduction includes a flat 10% cut in the salary of every worker in the department, one naturally wonders what justification there is for the statement of the Council that there have been "drastic cuts", or for the statement recently sent out by the Church Missions House that "these drastic reductions have gone beyond mere economy and have actually crippled the work."

The department of publicity is singled out merely because it was so singled out by General Convention. As a matter of fact an examination of the reduced budget upon which the Church Missions House is now operating will reveal equally startling comparisons for all of the departments. For example, General Administration, (which is an item in the budget for our Presiding Bishop, two vice-presidents and Council secretary, with their private secretaries and office force), is told that it may spend as much as $65,276 in 1932, even after these "drastic cuts." But an examination of the books reveals that there was spent on General Administration in 1931 only $46,256. Thus instead of a cut there is an actual increase in 1932 of $19,020. It should be pointed out that some of these expenditures are fixed by General Convention, and it is not within the power of The National Council to change them. Nevertheless the whole question of the effectiveness of the recent reorganization, with its promised economies in administration, might well be raised. In the House of Bishops, in Denver, Bishop Johnson's objection to the creation of new executive offices was met with the statement that overhead expenses would not be increased. The figures do not seem to bear this out.

It is true also that there may be lapsed balances in 1932; that is, monies appropriated, and presumably turned over to departments, that is not spent by them and therefore is returned at the end of the year to the treasurer of the Council. The Presiding Bishop, for instance, very generously refused to take a large part of his salary. Nevertheless General Administration is told that it may spend as much as $19,020 more than they spent in 1931. To talk of an economy that is really crippling the work under such circumstances is, to put it mildly, giving the people of the Church a faulty picture of the actual situation.

The simple fact is that there have been no "drastic cuts" when the present reduced budget is compared with previous expenditures. These "drastic reductions" which we are hearing so much about mean simply that the inflation has been removed from the budget. The margin of safety has been chopped off. The departments have been told that they may spend within a few dollars of what they actually spent in 1931, and the reductions of 10% in salaries is taken into account in making this statement.

There is no idea of fixing blame in presenting these facts. There is blame to be placed everywhere; on all of us for not more generously supporting the work; on the General Convention for not doing its job more thoroughly; on our executives, possibly, for faulty methods. Indulging in the pastime of fixing blame is going to accomplish nothing. And this editorial is written in no such spirit. Rather these facts are presented solely to support our contention that cuts should be made, not by the people involved, but by an impartial and disinterested committee. Further we believe that the whole matter of cuts should be reopened at once and carefully examined. The entire work of the National organization is certainly important. But, if funds are not available to carry on the entire work as it has been done in the past, we believe that the people of the Church want the first cuts made, where the General Convention said they should be made, by administrative and departmental economies, rather than in the mission fields or in the salaries of already underpaid missionaries.

SO WE———and the plural in this instance means more than the person whose name appears over this editorial———call upon the people of the Church to stand by the missionaries. Support the program of the National Council, in spite of any criticisms that may arise in your mind, either over their interpretation of the Pay-As-You-Go Plan, or anything else. It is the work of the Church, in these times of great opportunity, that is, after all, at stake.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

But in supporting it demand that the whole matter of cuts in the budget be reopened in order that the work in the field may be the last to suffer. It is possible that a way might be found, by economies in departmental work, to make it unnecessary to reduce missionary salaries at all. They are already meagre enough. The people of the Church will be the more willing to help balance the budget if they know that it is the policy of the Council not to bring hardship upon them. It would be better to discover the unfruitful missions and discontinue them than to bring distress, discouragement and the fear of further cuts to the great body of missionaries. A 50% reduction in morale and efficiency will be no satisfactory return for the saving involved in a 10% cut in salaries.

There should be a thorough study of the entire set-up. And, to quote Dr. Atwater, this study should be made by "an impartial and disinterested commission, men of wide experience and training in administration, men accustomed to social research, men sympathetic to our work but cool in their judgment."

We are for our National Organization. We are for all its work. We do not want it weaker. We want it stronger. And this threatened calamity in National Church affairs, properly handled, may well be turned into a lasting blessing by the creation of a stronger and more efficient organization.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

WILLIAM GREEN

President of the American Federation of Labor

WE FIND the world in another winter of hunger and want. In millions of homes there are hungry children whose fathers and mothers are helpless to provide. Our production mechanism functions lamely. Our financial institutions are afraid. Trade and foreign commerce have dwindled. Over Europe hangs the pall of national bankruptcies. Over Asia — the menace of war.

Harris & Ewing

WILLIAM GREEN

Statesmen and business men are groping for the way out. From everywhere come plans—new mechanisms. But the root of the trouble lies deep as the spirit of men. We have organized our human relations which constitute the fabric of society without studying or understanding man. We have used as a basic principle that an individual or a group can be advanced at the expense of others in the same field. Quite the contrary is true. The basic law of human relations is that each man is his brother's keeper. The well-being of each individual and each group is interdependent upon the well-being of others. Progress for the individual is in a very definite way interrelated to the well-being of the groups with whom he is associated—the family, the work group, the community, the nation. Each must plan with these groups—not against them. The underlying law is the new commandment formulated by Christ over nineteen centuries ago—a commandment to love a neighbor as ourselves. This new commandment states the basic law of human relations which should guide all of our relationships, without which we can not have material wealth or lasting cultural and spiritual power.

Until we stop trying to separate the principles of Christianity from business dealings, until an employer scrupulously gives his humblest employee all that he has honestly earned, we shall have injustice, unrest, and all the evils born of them. The most practical, enriching experience that business holds, comes from organized efforts for cooperation of the whole work group—the sharing of information, the fusion of effort, the spirit to make improvements, the will to share justly and equitably the returns from joint efforts.

The real cause of our economic debacle is dishonesty—conscious or unconscious. Employers or investors who took advantage of their position to protect their interests at the expense of others—declaring high dividends and stock dividends and leaving workers' incomes insecure and low, those who hoped to make fortunes by speculation, those who did not give honest service, have all contributed to our present economic unrest.

Capitalists have been living in an unreal world, because they closed their eyes to facts. They have clogged the machinery of distribution by directing larger and larger shares to a favored few and a smaller and less equitable share to the many. Obviously prosperity and inequitable distribution can not run parallel. Management and investors are paying for their mistakes. While they suffer, the workers they exploited are suffering more.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Our economic structure is no stronger than its weakest link; our national life is no more enduring than the standards that determine relations between men; individual development depends upon capacity for spiritual understanding and progress. Through the spirit man is able to give testimony that he is a son of God but unless the whole of life is organized to permit of development of the spirit there can be no lasting progress. In this fact we find the higher meaning of the common facts of our work world—organization of wage-earners into unions for the mutual advantage of workers and industry. Unions are the agency through which workers can help to bring industry in line with Christian principles and assure progress for workers and stable development for industry.

Unions are based upon understanding of mutual problems and common interests of wage-earners. They accept the fact that advancement of workers' interests is conditioned by advancement of the industry that employs them. Their purpose is to organize human and industrial relations so as to advance human welfare.

It is this spiritual power of unions that gives them dynamic possibilities and lasting endurance. The spirit of Christ represents an ideal that should be the basic rule of life in all human relations.

IF EVERY employable person who wanted work had a job, the total number of weekly work hours which each could work is 35. To eliminate the unemployment then, we have only to cut the work-week to 35 hours and put everybody to work. There might be variations in applying this general principle but the method of finding the number of work hours available and then adjusting the work period accordingly would remain the same.

Because we did not apply this principle during the past decade of extraordinary technical change, unemployment was steadily developing even before this business depression. In that period unemployment was not under 5 per cent, or approximately one and one-half millions, and steadily rose even in prosperous days. Machinery made it possible to do more work in less time—work which required 52 hours in 1919 could be done in 34 hours in 1929. Yet the actual average working hours were only 2 hours less—52 to 50.

Technical progress should mean freeing human beings for a richer creative life—the kind of life that is necessary in order to provide use for the products our factories are turning out.

Industry is faced with the urgent problem of continuously taking stock of the work hours and adjusting the work period to the number of workers needing work. Adjusting the work hours is basic in developing those principles of balance which will serve as stabilizers to our economic structure.

THE census figures on child labor, while available for only 18 states, show that one out of every twelve children under 16 years of age is at work. This census was taken in April, 1930, when there were millions of unemployed adults. We know perfectly well that children denied opportunity for mental and physical development are seriously handicapped for life, but we have not yet taken the social steps necessary to assure children their heritage and to leave the work opportunities for adults.

We have it within our power to make this depression with its unprecedented distress from unemployment memorable for constructive protection for children. Child labor is not only not needed during this peak unemployment, but it hinders our efforts to get employment for adults. By taking all minors out of gainful employment and sending them to school we can atone for some past mistakes. We can assure ourselves higher social standards by strengthening our child labor and compulsory school-attendance laws and thus eliminate competition of child labor with adult workers.

State legislation should be supplemented and safeguarded by Federal regulation. The first step to this end is ratification of the child labor amendment by the necessary number of state legislatures. This is an undertaking upon which Labor will need the cooperation of other organizations interested in child welfare. Protection for children should be among the paramount issues of every state labor program.

ALL through life we find two interrelated facts—accumulation and distribution. We find it in the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms going on simply as a law of nature. Only among human beings is it brought under the control of intelligence. In our economic developments we are now forcibly reminded of failure to allow for the correlation of these functions, as we make progress in the arts of production—things accumulated in great quantities. This makes distribution proportionately indispensable or stocks would pile up in a way that forces factories to slow down.

The only way to assure distribution is to put buying power into the hands of those who work—the masses. Production establishments must raise wages and shorten hours in proportion to increased productivity if distribution is to balance production. In other words, instead of declaring extra dividends, stock dividends and increasing profits, more of the proceeds from production must go to producing workmen. Only the application of this principle of balancing accumulation and distribution can save industry from recurring breakdowns which have been increasing in severity and magnitude.

What does it profit a man to monopolize all the proceeds when stocks and bonds fall to ridiculously low prices and he can not sell his wares because he refused to share returns with those who helped to make them. Industry must give in order to have.

All these years trade unions have been as a voice crying in the wilderness the need for fair distribution as expressed by higher wages and shorter hours. Now comes this economic cataclysm demonstrating that unless industry shares with its employees the benefits of industrial progress it shall lose what it has. The function of the union in calling attention to the need for workers' sharing more equitably in distribution and providing the necessary technique is indispensable to balance between production and distribution.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Mr. Green states that society is organized on the principle that an individual or a group can be advanced at the expense of others. Do you agree with him? If so, can we call such a society Christian? Give illustrations from our industrial, national and international life to support Mr. Green's statement.

2. What changes would have to be effected in economic, racial, national, international life in order to adhere strictly to the commandment to love our neighbor as ourselves? Have each member of the class suggest one necessary change. Discuss thoroughly.

3. The Church states that the first charge upon industry should be a minimum sustenance wage, and if possible a saving wage. Is this the practice of economic life today? Should it be?

4. Do you agree with Mr. Green that an inequitable distribution of goods is responsible for the present depression? If so have members of the class suggest way of correcting the difficulty.

5. Should the hours of labor be reduced? Would that mean a permanent solution for our difficulties? If so, why? If not, why not?

6. Has the invention of machinery been a blessing to everyone?

7. Should we, as Christians, support the child labor amendment?

8. Mr. Green states: "Production establishments must raise wages and shorten hours in proportion to increased productivity if distribution is to balance production." Discuss that statement thoroughly. Is it true? If so, how can it be made effective in economic life?

(Note: It had been our intention to present also this week an article by Archbishop Temple, but what seemed to us the necessity of dealing editorially with National Church affairs, prevented his article from appearing. Archbishop Temple's article will appear next week, together with the contribution of Vida D. Scudder.)

Fortify the Council

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE work of the National Council is now based upon the most insecure financial foundation. The Council has formed an alliance with every diocese in the land. The Council practically says to the diocese "We want so much from your parishes. You want so much. Add these sums together and allot them to the parishes. If the parishes fail to meet the quota, we shall suffer together."

That is a fine optimistic spirit, but it is a flimsy foundation upon which the Council may underwrite projects which require real money. For a great body like the National Council to project a program based on uncertain pledges, and with no other adequate resources, is to indulge in a delusion of grandeur.

The dioceses, under pressure, make pledges to the Council with every good intention. They have striven nobly to meet the rising cost of National administration. But dioceses are dependent on parishes and parishes are subject to vicissitudes which impair their giving power. Under this method, the capital assets of some parishes, and the resources necessary for efficiency in others, are given to support quotas. There is but one end of such a process.

What is the solution of this dilemma. Many men have an opinion about it. I think that the Church papers would be willing to print any constructive suggestion so I shall venture to make my own.

The National Council is the administrative agency of the collective will and purpose of the parishes of our land. It should not be expected to think of itself as an independent group propelling a detached work, and initiating enterprises for which it has no resources. It should not be in the position of incurring an obligation and of saying in effect "Charge it to the parishes." Our National Council is too fine and faithful a group of men to expect them to make bricks without straw.

We should devise some way by which the collective parishes should say to the Council "We shall give you a fixed sum each year. You are to expend this sum and no more (except as noted below) and we shall expect only a wise and careful administration of this sum."

This fixed sum should be by diocesan pledge, as now, but the diocese should agree that this is the first charge upon parish quotas. The National Council pledge must be first paid.

Under such a system it might be necessary to reduce diocesan pledges to the Council. But any body of administrators could do more in the long run, with let us say, $3,000,000 a year of certain income, than with an expectancy of $4,000,000 which, after the work was undertaken on that basis, should suddenly be reduced. The losses on such a fluctuation are incalculable.

The National Council should then endeavor to enlarge its work by endowments. Year after year it should build up its endowments. As rapidly as income was assured from endowments it could enlarge its work. There can be no doubt that a campaign of education in endowment, and a constant effort, would increase the resources of the Council every year.

If the work were thus firmly based upon a substantial foundation, it could be administered more economically and with less distress and fear.

There is a suspicion abroad that the cost incurred in raising the money of the Church, is greater than the amount secured by the extra effort. A saving could be effected there.

Dioceses and parishes with a somewhat decreased burden, could then undertake their own appointed tasks more adequately. And many parishes today need re-inforcing. You cannot have weak parishes and a strong diocese, or a strong Council. If you "lengthen the cords" you must "strengthen the stakes."

Unless we make progress carefully, we shall find that our zeal has outstripped our resources. And why the furious haste? I know that enthusiastic men, whose imaginations are aroused, and who are fired by sympathy for every kind of need cry out "Oh, the great opportunity." All honor to them for their noble yearning to serve. But it is simply impossible to grasp every opportunity. To work in haste to touch the borders of a hundred opportunities, is aspiring, but less commendable than to grasp ten opportunities with such vigor that fruitful and abiding results will follow. No physician has the right to seek more patients than he can adequately care for.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The limitation of effort so that it may become deep and intensive and not diffuse and shallow, is a lesson taught by every enterprise. The farmer who tries to cultivate more land than he has strength and capital for, soon finds that his crops are weeds. Opportunity exists everywhere, in every land of Christian effort. There is as much opportunity for Christian work and effort in every city block as there is on the frontiers. Opportunity is as boundless as the waves of the seven seas, and always will be.

By good strategy we must turn some opportunity into achievement. To grasp three opportunities, with hand capacity for one, is soon to be empty handed.

Our Church has nearly two thousand years of history behind it. If this generation is wise it will prepare to make the Church secure for the thousand years to come. But to do so it must not speculate. It must invest. Slowly, steadily, gradually it must go forward, always gaining, always consolidating its gains. To jeopardize our whole structure because we have not the patience to build carefully and on solid foundation, is the height of folly.

If we made the National Council secure, even with a diminished budget, we should take the most progressive step for missions that our generation has seen.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

II. The Preparation

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

"WHEN the fulness of time was come", says St. Paul, "God sent forth His Son, born of a woman, born under the law." It is no more astonishing that God should do this than it is that He should have created the universe or have made man in His own image to dwell therein. It is all a mystery beyond man's comprehension, but like all mysteries there is a zone of light in which we can pursue our investigation.

Does the Christ fit into the warp and woof of history? For certainly if He is the "word made flesh" there will be preparation for His coming; there will be fitness in the time and place of His coming; there will be results of sufficient importance to justify His birth. His life will not be an accident but it will be the sequence of certain events that precede and the source of certain consequences that follow. In the providence of God, He will fit into the picture of that which we call history. He will be the alpha and omega of that which He came to give to the world.

There are three main factors in this aspect of His coming. First, the Jewish Church with its expectancy of a Messiah. Second, the Greek culture with its philosophy of the logos, or word of God. Third, the Roman government with its unification of races and religions.

In regard to the Jewish Church, one of His early utterances was to the effect that He came not to destroy but to fulfill the law of Moses, under which St. Paul says His mission was originated. There were three things which characterized Judaism and separated it for two thousand years from the paganism that surrounded it. First, it emphasized the unity of God and His holiness in contrast with the polytheism of other races and the immoral character of their deities. Then it proclaimed the deadliness of sin and the inexorable fatality thereof. "The soul that sinneth it shall die" and further that "without the shedding of blood there shall be no redemption from sin." Around this thought revolved all the ritual of the temple and all the utterances of the prophets. Finally, it looked forward expectantly to the coming of a Messiah, aptly described by the last of the Hebrew prophets, John the Baptist, "Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world."

Behind the Christ was the Jewish Church. Without this background there could have been no John, Paul or Peter; no Matthew, Luke or Mark; no Elizabeth, Mary or the Magdalen. It provided both the theme of Christ's mission and also the persons who could be the instruments of His gospel.

While the Gospel was to have a Hebrew background, it was intended to become a world religion. To do this the message must be in the language of the world's culture and it must meet the challenge of the world's best thought. It must make its appeal to those who had read Socrates and Plato and Aristotle, as well as those who were familiar with Isaiah and Daniel and Malachi. It was through the ministry of St. Paul, travelling through the Grecian cities, that the Gospel of Christ found a culture suitable to express and interpret that Gospel. Through him it passed from its Hebrew beginning to its Grecian training. It was for this reason that the New Testament was written in Greek; the General Councils were lead by the Greeks; the Creeds were expressed in Greek. In Rome, at this period, the Christian religion was looked upon as Jewish and Greek. Most of the early bishops of Rome had Greek names. For several centuries the dominating influence was that of the Greek. It was thus that God sent His messengers who prepared the way before Him. St. Paul was also the voice of one crying in the wilderness of human bewilderment, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

As a Gospel of Christ emerged from its Hebrew background and its Greek setting, it needed a unified world if it was to be a universal religion. The Hebrew contributed devotional worship and the Greek intellectual gifts, but the Roman made possible its universal application. It was over Roman roads that the early missionaries travelled; it was because Rome had welded the various races into one government that travellers could pass unmolested from one country to another; it was because of Roman practices that the gods of the nations were assembled in a single pantheon, so that men were receptive to other gods than those of their own local tradition.

It was during the century in which the Gospel was first preached that the whole world was at peace, drawn together in political unity. And it was the Roman genius for organization that gave to the Church its ecclesiastical polity. "Parish", "diocese", "province", are divisions of the Roman Empire applied to the use of the Church. So we note how the ancient roads converge at the foot of the Cross and why the inscription thereon was written in Hebrew, Greek and Latin.

In the providence of God the fulness of time was come when God's message to men could be understood by the Hebrew, be interpreted by the Greek and be organized by the Roman, and so play its part in the centuries that were to follow.

The Church came as the result of a universal expectancy that a Savior would come who would give forgiveness and life to men. Note how in the providence of God this provision fitted into the picture. Whereas the Jews had but one temple, yet there was a synagogue in every city so that Christ's apostles could begin their missionary work in each place by gathering together a group of understanding Hebrews, who became the nucleus of the Christian Church in that community. So St. Paul planted the Church at Thessalonica, at Corinth, at Ephesus and in the other Greek cities that he visited. It produced a universality which had a point of inception in the fact that the Hebrews who were prepared for a Messiah were scattered throughout the Roman world, and yet had a solidarity because of the temple at Jerusalem.

It is recorded that a prince once asked his chaplain for a short and conclusive proof of the divine character of the Gospel, and the chaplain replied, "The Jews, my Lord!" For in all history there is no other race who had the expectancy of a Messiah and were dispersed throughout the world without losing their racial identity. The setting of the Gospel was found in this remarkable circumstance and the time of its proclamation was unique. If it had come a hundred years earlier or later the stage would not have been set, for it was only in this particular period that the whole world was at peace and unified.

Moreover if you had lived in the era before Christ you would have found animal sacrifices prevalent throughout the world, whereas in the era following Christ they had practically ceased both at Jerusalem and in pagan Rome. It is not an accident that the birth of Christ separates the ancient from the modern world.

It is of profound significance that the three cities set upon a hill, Jerusalem, Athens and Rome should have become monuments of human failure to redeem man by the law of Moses, or the philosophy of Plato or the censorship of Cato. The law truly came by Moses and by Socrates and by Seneca, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

If we accept the Gospel upon the provisions of its founder we must be prepared for a new principle which is to animate the Church. As Christ presented it, the Christian religion is not fundamentally an external law, an academic philosophy or a humanitarian philanthropy. It is a new life depending upon God's grace for its preservation and its fruitfulness. It is a new humanity which He lived and into which we may be grafted so that He dwells in us and we in Him. "I am the vine and ye are the branches." "Abide in me and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me." "If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch and is withered." "Herein in my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit. So shall ye be my disciples."

(Continued next week)

Man's a Mixture

By

G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY

"Our Padre, 'e says I'm a sinner,
And John Bull says I'm a saint,
And they're both of 'em bound to be liars
For I'm neither of them, I ain't.
I'm a man, and a man's a mixture,
Right down from 'is very birth,
For part ov 'im comes from 'eaven,
And part ov 'im comes from earth.
There's nothing in man that's perfect,
And nothing that's all complete;
'E's nubbat a big beginning,
From 'is 'ead to the soles of 'is feet,
There's summat as draws 'im uppards,
And summat as drags 'im down,
And the consekence is, 'e wabbles
'Twixt muck and a golden crown . . "

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE NEWS OF THE CHURCH

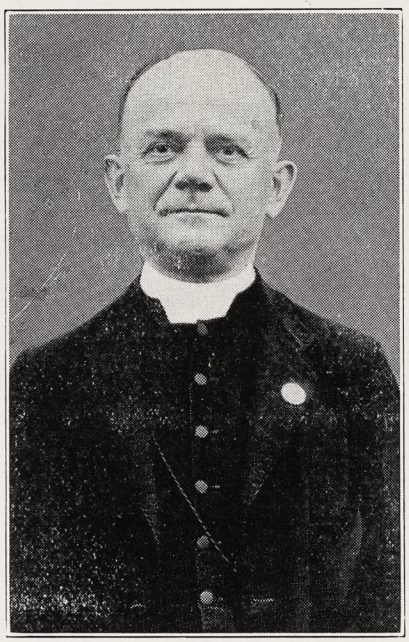
Edited by
W. B. SPOFFORD

EXTRA space required for our Lenten features, reports of diocesan conventions and the important meeting of the National Council, and one thing and another, has put us considerably behind in presenting the general news of the Church. Well, let's see if we can't catch up—have to be pretty snappy, but I am sure you will understand that it is due to our limitation of space.

* * *

First off, don't worry, at least yet, about our missionaries in China. Bishop Roots cables: "Disturbances in Hankow and Wuchang considered unlikely. Rural sections of province of Hupeh have been widely sovietized. Church work in cities going on nominally. All members of staff well." Cable from the diocese of Anking: "There is no disturbance diocese Anking. Staff all well." And from Bishop Graves, Shanghai; "All missionaries are safe Shanghai and other stations." There is no present cause for anxiety.

* * *



A commission composed of Southerners, George Fort Milton, Chattanooga editor, chairman, studied the circumstances attending each of 21 lynchings in 1930. Here are their findings; 1. There is real doubt of the guilt of at least half the victims of mob violence. At least two were certainly innocent. 2. Less than one-fourth of the persons lynched since 1890 have been accused of assaults upon white women. 3. The claim that lynchings are necessary because courts do not convict Negroes is fallacious. 4. Mob leaders can be identified without difficulty, although grand jury indictments are seldom brought. 5. There is a direct relationship between a low educational and economic status and the probability of lynchings. Our Auxiliary cooperated with the commission making the study, which brings it under the heading of Church news.

* * *

The social service commission of the diocese of New York has sent out a valuable bulletin on the new marriage canon, telling the parsons just what they have to do to keep within the laws of Church and state. It is a nice bit of work.

* * *

All the churches of Buffalo united in a service held at St. Paul's Cathedral—a call to prayer for the Peace Conference. The Roman Catholic Church was represented by a layman sent by the R. C. bishop of the diocese. Bishop Davis preached. Fifty clergymen of all denominations were present. Fine.

BISHOP ROOTS
Says All Is Well in Hankow

* * *

Report of the convention of the diocese of Western North Carolina states that they are optimistic down there, since for the first time in many years the diocese is completely manned. The convention was held at St. James', Hendersonville.

* * *

Daily interdenominational services are held in Tremont Temple, Boston, each day during Lent. Among the Episcopalians preaching are Arthur Kinsolving, rector of Trinity; Richard Preston, Newton; Leslie Glenn, Cambridge; Dean Sturges; Henry Ogilby, Brookline; Bishop Sherrill. The name of George L. Paine does not appear on the program but it might be said that this Episcopal parson, as secretary of the Boston Federation of Churches, is in charge of the whole business.

* * *

Back up the international peace conference with prayer.

* * *

Methodist minister was confirmed the other day in the chapel of the Church Missions House, New York, by Bishop Sanford. Duncan G. Porteous—born in Scotland, graduate of Drew and Hartford seminaries, with fifteen years behind him as a Methodist parson. He is now in the district of San Joaquin in charge of a Mission. He will be ordained presently.

* * *

A special meeting of the House of Bishops has been called, to meet in Garden City, Long Island, April 26-28. The National Council is to meet at the same time so that joint meetings will be possible. They will discuss not only the present financial emergency but also the entire work of the Church with an idea of establishing it upon foundations of greater security.

* * *

Upon recommendation of the social service department, the National Council, at their meeting the first of the month, went on record as emphatically endorsing the principle of unemployment reserves in industry.

* * *

Mr. Burton Mansfield, asked to reconsider his resignation as a member of the National Council, has finally declined. Regrets, and words of ap-

Lenten Suggestions

LET US KEEP LENT
By Gerhard E. Lenski
For each day Dr. Lenski has a central thought, developed by selected passages of spiritual and literary beauty, in a prayer adequate for the day. $1.00

JONATHAN EDWARDS
By
Arthur Cushman McGiffert, Jr.
The first adequate biography of the great revivalist and father of American philosophy. February Religious Book Club selection, ready February 17th. $2.50

THE SPIRITUAL PILGRIMAGE OF ST. PAUL
By Frank H. Ballard
"Of greater value than any other popular study of Paul that I have read."—Dr. C. Wallace Petty. $1.50

CHARLES LEWIS SLATTERY
By Howard Chandler Robbins
"A biography distinctive in its attention to the friendships of its subject."—N. Y. Times. $2.50

HARPER & BROTHERS
Publishers New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

preciation for his more than 30 years of service to the national organization of the Church, and then the election of Judge Philip Parker of Brookline, Mass., to fill the vacancy.

* * *

The Rev. Eric M. Tasman, Lansing, Michigan, was elected a general secretary of the field department. He has not yet accepted.

* * *

Retreat is to be held, February 23-26, at the House of the Nazarene, Saint Augustine, Florida. Inexpensive too—$6 for the period, for the whole business. Write Sister-in-charge, 30 Rhode Avenue, if it appeals to you.

* * *

Interdenominational mass meeting —Jewish, Protestant and Roman— was held in Portland, Oregon, in behalf of world disarmament. Bishop Sumner was one of the speakers; also R. C. Archbishop Howard, and Rabbi Berkowitz.

* * *

Bishop Perry is to be the preacher at Christ Church, Philadelphia, on February 21st. General and Mrs. Washington had a pew in Christ Church from 1790 until 1797. Another George Washington service is to be held at St. Peter's, where the Washingtons also frequently worshipped.

* * *

Drastic cuts all along the line were approved at the convention of the diocese of Olympia, held at Trinity, Seattle.

* * *

The proposed merger of Holy Trinity and St. James', Philadelphia, is still under discussion. Meanwhile all Lenten weekday services are to be held jointly at Holy Trinity.

* * *

Bishop Johnson, editor, is holding a mission the week of February 24 at St. Mark's Cathedral, Seattle.

* * *

Dr. John W. Wood was the speaker at a Shove Tuesday luncheon of churchwomen in Albany, N. Y. There were two hundred present. Bishop Oldham also spoke.

* * *

Bishop Gooden of Los Angeles and Bishop Schmuck of Wyoming were the highlights at the convention of Sacramento, February 2 and 3.

* * *

St. Peter's, Helena, Montana, held its last service in their old church on Sexagesima Sunday. Then the congregation moved into their fine new church, while services will be held through Lent in the parish house. The church will be formally opened Easter Sunday with Bishop Faber as the preacher.

* * *

Now here is something. Colonel Johnson, executive secretary of the

FOR THESE HARD TIMES, —A NEW RELIGIOUS NOVEL

The Macmillan Company of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel based on Scriptural "higher criticism," and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In THE LIVING CHURCH, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes, "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries."

The author, whose earlier volume, "Sociological Study of the Bible," is a standard work, says, "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature coming out of hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from the Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00.—Advt.

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

was established by the Trustees of The Church Pension Fund and is operated under their supervision for the benefit of clergymen and their families and the lay-workers and their families of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

A BACKGROUND OF SAFETY

It has been the history of life insurance that the one immediate and liquid asset of an estate, upon death, has been the proceeds of the life insurance policies. It is generally agreed that everyone ought to have a certain amount of life insurance.

The complete facilities of this corporation are placed at the disposal of clergymen and their families and the lay-workers of the Church and their families. Its guaranteed rates are NET RATES, without loading, and it has also been paying annual refunds since 1924 on a constantly increasing scale.

It has no agents but invites correspondence which should be addressed to the corporation.

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

20 EXCHANGE PLACE—NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

ST. BARNABAS CHURCH ALTAR GUILD, Eagle Rock, California, offers palm crosses ten cents the dozen, prepaid.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue. Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL
in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

GEORGE WHARTON PEPPER
To Tell of Washington

Reserve Officers Training Corps Association, told a group of women representing patriotic societies the other day that "the greatest menace to the corps is the Federal Council of Churches." He said further; "How to protect the Protestant churches from the pacifist preachers is one of the greatest problems in America at this time."

Whether the Colonel was taking a slap at the Federal Council or was paying them a compliment I am unable to determine from the report.

* * *

Seeing as how George Washington's Birthday is nearly upon us I shall pass on to you this story which comes from the Rev. Paul S. Atkins, rector of St. John's Church, York, Pa.

During the period from September 30th, 1777, to June 27th, 1778, when the Continental Congress met in the Village of Yorktown, Washington remained with his troops at Valley Forge, 70 miles away. It is not recorded that he ever visited the Congress during its sessions here. It was not until July 2nd and 3rd, 1791 as he was journeying north by way of Wright's Ferry, that he visited York and was the guest of Colonel Thomas Hartley, Warden of the Parish and delegate to the first General Convention. At this time the Rector of the Parish, the Reverend Thomas Barton, resided at York Springs and alternated his services between Carlisle, York Springs and Yorktown, now York. The Sunday of Washington's visit happened to be the day for services at Carlisle. On the Monday following in Lancaster Washington records in his diary this statement

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64. The Oval. London. S.E.11. England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

FOR EASTER
Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.
ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY
Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.
Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.
BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP
Send for circular 28
Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts.
The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. New York, N. Y.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

which throws light on his habits as a Churchman and reveals also a subtle sense of humor, which his biographers often fail to recognize; "Received and answered an address from the inhabitants of Yorktown—and there being no Episcopal Minister in the place, I went to hear morning Service performed in the Dutch (German) Reformed Church—which, being in that language not a word of which I understood I was in no danger of becoming a proselyte to its religion by the eloquence of the Preacher."

* * *

A bag of gold for the Rev. Henry B. Todd, rector of Trinity, Waterbury, on his tenth anniversary as rector. He thought he was going to a meeting of the Young People's Fellowship, but when he got there the parish house was full. Speeches of course about the grand job he has done, and then the tangible expression of esteem, presented amid cheers.

* * *

The associated press not long ago sent out a story that Bishop Bennett, on his way to Providence to help Bishop Perry, was lost. Front page stuff of course. I don't know what really did happen to the bishop. Anyhow he finally arrived and is now on the job, so if you have been worrying about him there is one more load you can get off your mind.

* * *

How's this: Mrs. Fenton, St. John's Church, Boulder, Colorado, was confirmed 74 years ago and is still going strong. Imagine.

* * *

Deaconess Bedell, Alaska, is to be the headliner at a meeting of the guild of St. Barnabas, to be held in Buffalo, March 7th.

* * *

Strong sermon preached by Bishop Stewart before his diocesan convention. He dealt with present conditions — faulty distribution of the necessities of life, political corruption and greed. "We need to recognize fully the salutory reactions from the decade of debauchery when the worship of money begot a reckless contempt for all codes, personal and corporate, culminating in the orgy of gambling and the mad whoopee and ballyhoo of 1928 and 1929. People in large numbers have been recalled from a fool's paradise to the sober life of fact. More people go to church now. More people perhaps say their prayers." You can see for yourself that it was a sermon.

* * *

Oh, and there is another thing that needs to be said. All these reports from bishops state that they are having more confirmations than ever before—that people are turning to the Church. So when you are examining budgets and deploring the falling off of cash, just keep that in mind. The job is being done, apparently, cash or no cash. Pretty important, these days, to have your Christian values well fixed in mind.

* * *

Here is a new stunt. At the convention in Chicago the bishop made awards for distinguished service to the diocese during the past year. Sounds like a good idea.

* * *

All budgets in the district of North Texas were reduced about 15% at their convocation, held at Big Springs. Increases in confirmations and baptisms were reported. The work is well manned by a fine lot of clergymen and by 28 lay-readers, mostly young fellows. Dr. Larkin W. Glazebrook addressed the convention on the work of the commission on evangelism; Dorothy M. Fischer, provincial young people's secretary, was

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

The Bishop of London's Selections for Lenten Reading

THE PRAYER OF SONSHIP

By the Rev. B. F. Simpson

Chaplain to His Majesty, George V

OW far accidents and misfortunes can be said to be the will of God, how to reconcile the rival claims of work and worship, what worship really means, how to hold the truth of the Atonement without a view of it which shocks the moral sense—all those and many other difficulties which worry Christians, in our age especially, will be found firmly faced in this book. $1.00

LONGMANS, GREEN AND CO.
55 Fifth Avenue, New York

for Lenten Services

LANTERN SLIDE LECTURES

ILLUSTRATED lectures on missionary and educational activities are available for parish use at nominal cost through the Lantern Slide Bureau of the National Council. Beautifully colored slides are supplied with lecture reading for each subject. Other titles are available. Correspondence is invited.

RENTAL CHARGE
$2.00
FOR EACH LECTURE
(Plus transportation)

Lantern Slide Bureau
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Domestic
Our Mission to the Isolated (through correspondence)
Our Work Among the Indians
Our Work Among the Negroes
Our Work Among the Southern Mountaineers

Extra-Continental
Alaska, Hawaii, Philippines, Porto Rico, Virgin Islands.

Foreign
China, Cuba, India, Japan, Liberia, Mexico

Church History
Six Lectures. From Apostolic times to the present day.

Bible Subjects
Old and New Testament (no lecture notes)

Non-Christian Religions
Mohammedanism, Buddhism

From Damascus to Bethlehem
New Slides with lecture

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are; For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. A thorough preparatory school for a limited number of girls. Recommended by leading colleges. Beautiful grounds. Outdoor sports, riding and swimming. Ask for our catalog.

SISTER SUPERIOR
927 Tremont Ave., Davenport, Iowa

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

about with the young folks, and also addressed the adults on her work. Fine convocation all around.

* * *

Convention of Florida, held at Jacksonville, has a 100% clergy attendance. Again a report of increased confirmations. Not so good however when it came to cash; bishop's salary, at his own request, was cut, as was the salary of the executive secretary of the diocese. Only $6000 was promised the National Council, instead of the $13,600 requested. This is the first time in six years that the full quota has not been guaranteed, and with the exception of 1931, paid in full. The Rev. David R. Covell, national field secretary, so the report has it, addressed two mass meetings and "spoke with force and conviction", as I am sure he would.

* * *

More than a thousand men and boys, including many fathers and sons, are expected to attend the annual corporate communion of the diocese of Washington, at the Epiphany, on Washington's Birthday. Fellowship breakfast is to follow, with George Wharton Pepper and Bishop Freeman as speakers.

* * *

Bishop Cameron Mann of South Florida died last Monday in his eightieth year. He was consecrated bishop of North Dakota in 1901, going to South Florida in 1913.

* * *

If you are not already aware of the fact it ought to be stated that the Rev. Arthur R. McKinstry, formerly rector in Albany, N. Y., is now the rector of St. Mark's, San Antonio.

* * *

Men to the tune of 128, members of clubs at Trinity, St. Paul's, and the Redeemer, Watertown, N. Y., attended a joint meeting held at Trinity. The Rev. Harold Sawyer, Utica, was the speaker and the dislocation of industry, lawlessness and world peace were the lively subjects under discussion.

* * *

The annual conference for seminary students, sponsored by the Church League for Industrial Democracy, is to be held over the week-end of Washington's Birthday at the Cambridge Seminary. The students, coming from Berkeley, General, Union, Alexandria and Cambridge, are going to face up to present world problems. On Sunday the annual C. L. I. D. service is to be held in Christ Church, Cambridge, at 4:30, with the Rev. Norman Nash as preacher. Then on Monday Washington's Birthday, there is to be the annual C. L. I. D. luncheon, held at Trinity Parish House, Boston, with addresses by the Rev. James Myers, industrial secretary of

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN E. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the Federal Council of Churches and Mr. Robert Bakeman, former mayor of Peabody, Massachusetts.

* * *

Alabama is staging a wide observance of Lent under a united and cooperative schedule. A topic has been selected for each week of Lent by Bishop McDowell, with recommended literature going along with it. Christian Family; The Christian at Work; The Christian and Socal Life; The Christian as a World Citizen; the Christian and Eternal Life; the Christian and the Cross. It is, with the subheadings which we are compelled to leave out, a very thoroughgoing program and shows a determination to tackle the real problems confronting us all.

* * *

The diocese of New Jersey, inspired by the results of the Teaching Mission on the Great Commission, held throughout the province of Sewanee, is having one of its own this Lent. The clergy of the diocese have been in a huddle this week to work out plans with Bishop Maxon of Tennessee and the Rev. Oliver J. Hart of Chattanooga, who have been big-shots in the southern effort. The project, Bishop Matthews declares, is not aimed at gathering in cash, in spite of the fact that the diocese is behind all along the line, but is to be a mission of instruction and of inspiration.

* * *

The Rev. Frank L. Vernon, Philadelphia, conducted a quiet day for the clergy of Delaware on February 2nd. The clergy were the guests of Bishop Cook.

* * *

Delaware is featuring a Children's Crusade during Lent.

* * *

The diocese of Chicago, at their convention, disapproved of the proposed amendment to the constitution of the Church which would permit the translation of bishops from one diocese to another.

* * *

Lively debate in the Chicago convention over quotas. Finally it was voted to promise the National Council $80,000. This is $30,000 less than was paid in 1931, and is $52,000 less than the quota. Even so it is exceedingly fine showing when compared with that of many other dioceses.

* * *

Back up the international peace conference with prayer.

* * *

Bishop Restarick, retired bishop of Hawaii, has come to the defense of the people of the islands, attacked in papers because of recent events there. He points out that a whole race cannot be condemned because of the action of a few degenerates. We do not condemn the white race, he says, because of the acts of violence in Cincinnati, San Diego, Los Angeles and elsewhere. We know that they are the acts of degenerates. But in dealing with the situation in Hawaii we seem to be willing to condemn the entire race. As a matter of fact, the bishop points out, while the word "native" is generally applied to the five men recently accused of rape, two of these men were Japanese and one Chinese.

While the Bishop does not say so,

"My Father's Rupture Appliance Was Kept by 3,000,000 People AFTER 10 Days Free Trial"

—Harold Brooks

C.E. Brooks, Inventor

C. E. Brooks invented his remarkable "Air-Cushion" Appliance 31 years ago. It brought him safety, comfort and the results he had long desired. Today more than 3 million men, women and children have purchased a Brooks after first trying it at home for 10 days. The trial cost them nothing and the same 10-day Free Trial is yours for the asking. You owe it to yourself to Write Now for Free Trial details, also Free Brochure, both sent in plain, sealed envelope. Act Now!

BROOKS APPLIANCE CO.
346-A State St., Marshall, Mich.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

in fixing judgment in these cases in Hawaii it might also be well to look rather carefully into the conduct of the white women involved.

* * *

Quiet day for the clergy of Marquette was held at St. Paul's Cathedral, February 1 and 2, with practically all the clergy there. Bishop Ablewhite conducted it. During the conference plans were made for a diocesan wide preaching mission next fall. A course on the conduct of missions is to be included in the summer conference, held in July.

* * *

The diocese of New York is making a great effort to take care of the unemployed families of the Church. "Fill - this - Instead" envelopes have been placed in all the churches. Church people are being urged to express their Lenten self-denial by going without and filling these envelopes instead, in order that others may eat. On March 6th these envelopes are to be presented at the altar of churches throughout the diocese. Bishop Gilbert is the chairman of the committee.

* * *

St. Paul's, Brooklyn, has adopted a plan to provide a "remembrance foundation" for the endowment of the parish. The plan is the one originated by Dr. Atwater. It gives each parishioner a chance to start a fund, in the donor's name or some other name, which can be increased from time to time.

* * *

The dioceses in New York state are going in for celebrations. The program, originating in Central New York, proposes to set forth the story of the Church from its early beginning, by means of services, meetings, pageants, erections of memorial tablets. Bishop Coley is general chairman and committees are being created in all the dioceses. The program extends over six years.

* * *

A mission called The School of Prayer was held at St. Paul's, Clinton and Carroll Streets, Brooklyn, the three days before Lent. It was on the technique of prayer and was conducted by the Rev. S. C. Hughson of the Order of Holy Cross.

* * *

A mission was recently completed at Emmanuel, Covington, Virginia, conducted by the Rev. T. N. Barth of Baltimore. A part of the mission was intensive visiting on the part of the missioner and the rector. Several new families were brought into the church as a result.

* * *

Fifteenth anniversary of the rectorship of the Rev. Gerald G. Moore, the Advent, Chicago, was celebrated last week—a surprise to him. There was a dinner at the home of one of the vestrymen, and then they all went to church and there found practically every member of the parish on hand for a service that Mr. Moore did not know was even scheduled.

* * *

They have meetings for students at Christ Church, Baltimore, each Sunday evening. During Lent they are to discuss "Why I Believe" with addresses by a Lutheran, Methodist, Baptist, Quaker, Hebrew, Presbyterian and Episcopalian. The special Sunday night preachers during Lent are the Rev. Donald Aldrich, Bishop DuMoulin, Bishop Cook and Bishop Creighton. They run to Bishops as you can see.

LIVING BOOKS

PERSONAL PROBLEMS OF CONDUCT AND RELIGION
By J. G. McKENZIE
Nervous troubles, moral conflicts, religious doubts, are dealt with here by the author of "Souls in the Making," whose years of experience as a spiritual adviser have given him a unique grasp of the subjects on which he writes. $1.25

LIBERATING THE LAY FORCES OF CHRISTIANITY
By JOHN R. MOTT
The value of the layman in the church of to-day forms the subject of this book by the chairman of the World's Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. $2.00

THE MASTERY OF SEX THROUGH PSYCHOLOGY AND RELIGION
By LESLIE D. WEATHERHEAD,
Author of "Psychology in Service of the Soul"
"The book is the best and bravest effort I have read to put into practice the now almost universally accepted theory that instruction in the matters of sex should be open, full and fearless."—The Guardian.
"Mr. Weatherhead lifts the whole subject on to a high plane of beauty and truth, and shows it to us whole and wholesome as part of God's purpose for us all."—Friend.
"In "The Mastery of Sex' we have something approaching the ideal."—Modern Churchman. $2.00

For Schools

A MODERN VIEW OF THE OLD TESTAMENT
By WILLIAM G. SHUTE
This presents briefly and clearly the net results of historical investigation of the Old Testament. It is written with a view to use as a text in courses on the Bible. The author is a member of the faculty of the Choate School, Wallingford, Connecticut. $1.50*

SERVICE BOOK FOR SCHOOLS
Thirty-five brief services for preparatory schools, Sunday schools and congregations of young people, compiled by the masters of St. George's School in Jerusalem, edited for American use by the Reverend John W. Suter, Jr. $1.25

A PRAYER BOOK FOR BOYS
Compiled by
MARGARET CROPPER
Selected and edited for boys between the ages of eight and twelve, these prayers are excellently suited to the needs of children at a period of transition. $1.00

THE DOCTRINE OF GRACE
By the Bishop of Gloucester and Others
Can the traditions of Catholicism, of the Greek, Roman, Anglican and Protestant Churches be brought into harmony? A group of internationally famous theologians discusses the problem in this important book. $4.50

THE DISCOVERY OF GOD
By JAMES H. SNOWDEN
The word "discovery" is the key-note of the book. Dr. Snowden begins with the universal urge toward discovery and traces it to its final goal in the discovery of God. "He guides as one who absolutely knows the path, and holds his reader's confidence on every page."—G. Walter Fiske. $2.00

At Reduced Price

KNOWING THE BIBLE
By RAYMOND C. KNOX
"Out of his rich experience and ripe scholarship Dr. Knox has written this book that will lead one straight to an accurate and helpful knowledge of the Bible. It is modern in viewpoint and method, scholarly, careful and reverent." —Auburn Seminary Record. Reissue at reduced price. $1.75

FACING LIFE
By W. H. P. FAUNCE
Vital, inspiring talks to young men by the late president of Brown University. First published in 1928, the book has maintained its popularity and is now reissued at a reduced price. $1.00

LYRA MYSTICA: An Anthology of Mystical Verse
Edited by CHARLES CARROLL ALBERTSON.
With an introduction by DEAN INGE.
A world anthology of mystical verse from all ages. $3.00*

THE DAY OF WORSHIP
Edited by W. W. DAVIS
The authors of this book, leaders in the Protestant churches and in the professional life of this country, view the problem of sane Sunday observance from all angles and give a series of unbiased, deeply thoughtful opinions. $1.00

* Preliminary price subject to change.

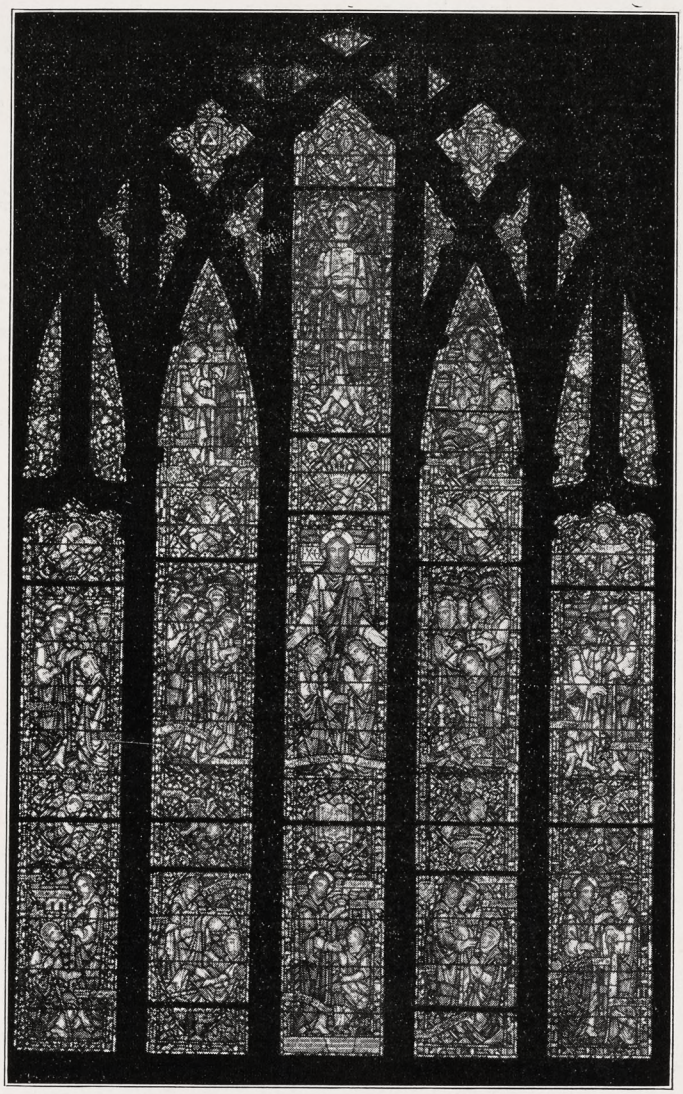
At your booksellers



THE MACMILLAN COMPANY · 60 Fifth Avenue · New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ARTICLES: ARCHBISHOP TEMPLE AND VIDA SCUDDER

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., FEBRUARY 25, 1932

NEW MEMORIAL WINDOW
In Christ Church, Manhasset, Long Island

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
A·D 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
ECCLESIASTICAL
METAL WORK
Altar Crosses Vases
Candlesticks Chalices
Missal Stands
Ciboria Processional
Crosses
Particulars from
Vestments
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Distinctive Church Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y

R. GEISSLER, INC.,
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 27 | FEBRUARY 25, 1932 | Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE NEED OF MORE THINKING

By

WILLIAM TEMPLE
The Archbishop of York

CHRISTIANS who are convinced that their faith demands application to international and industrial affairs must recognise that this enterprise calls for a great deal more hard thinking than has yet been given to it. We are at a perpetual disadvantage because those who disagree with us, and regard religious considerations as irrelevant, have a perfectly clear and coherent position, while we are floundering in confusion. They reach their clear position, as we believe, by ignoring one group of facts, as Physics in its early stages reached quite clear positions because it had not as yet to take account of such disturbing phenomena as those of radio-activity. But in practice it is a very great disadvantage to have nothing to offer except a well grounded protest; men must act either hap-hazard or on some principle. If our opponents have a principle and we have none, they will be more effective than ourselves however thoroughly we demonstrate the insufficiency of their principle.

Photo by Underwood
ARCHBISHOP TEMPLE

The difficulty may be illustrated by reference to a formula often employed to express the view that religious, or at least ethical, principles should govern political action, namely, "What is morally wrong cannot be politically right." If this means that it cannot be right for the State to do what it is wrong for the State to do, it is hardly worth saying. If it means that it cannot be right for the State to do what it would be wrong for an individual citizen to do, it appears to be untrue. For example, it may be right—or at least, we act as if it were—that the State should shut a man up for ten years, which it would be intolerable that any individual should do.

Probably what the formula sought to express was something like this: political expediency cannot justify the State in doing what it is morally wrong that it should do, or, in other words, that ethical considerations must override considerations of expediency. But this does not help us to determine what it is wrong that the State should do. Moreover, it is hardly possible to exclude all questions of expediency, as for example, the securing of markets whereby unemployment may be reduced, from the grounds on which the State's moral duty is to be determined.

We need not have great doubt about our ultimate principles; our trouble is with what would once have been called the "middle axioms," by which ultimate principles become applicable to actual situations. Let us say that the ultimate principle is Goodwill as expressed in the Golden Rule. There is no difficulty so long as this is universally observed. But what are we to do when it is not being observed? The whole problem of applying our principles to life arises, of course, from the fact that we live in a situation created by the lack of such application. If all men loved their neighbours as themselves, there would be no quarrels to adjust. And it cannot be too strongly stated that the primary function of religion is to point men to that far-distant goal. But it can hardly, after that, refuse to point out where the road starts which leads to that goal from where we are.

NOW, if goodwill fails between individuals there are various alternatives. They may arrange not to meet, and may in various ways diminish the occasions of friction. Even in the extreme case there are alternatives. Neither Cato nor Brutus could live in the same world with Caesar; Cato killed himself, Brutus killed Caesar. France finds a serious difficulty in living at peace with Germany. What is her duty? She cannot migrate to the Sahara; she cannot consent to extermination. She wants security as a basis for goodwill. Is that wrong? No doubt Goodwill is itself the only sure basis for security. But how is it to be got?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Again, the representatives of the employers and of a trade union confront each other in an industrial dispute. Both want a settlement, but on each side there are considerations still more weighty than that desire. If work is continued on existing conditions, only total failure can follow, with disaster for all. If wages are lowered, other wages will follow suit, and a standard of living laboriously established is surrendered. Are those representatives to deal with each other as if they were detached individuals and not representative at all?

The ethics of group-relationship have not been worked out. Idealists have tended to cut the knot by trying to eliminate all other groups less than the national community. Then all relations (apart from the international) are either of individuals, or of the one (national) community to its members. But this is an impossible enterprise. The groups remain—family, school, union, etc.—all the more unmoralised for having no clear moral status. Incidentally also this effort to ignore one factor in human nature ends like all such efforts in exaggerating the consciousness of the one group that is tolerated—the nation. Jacobinism in France issued in the Napoleonic wars, Communism in Russia is creating an unwholesomely exaggerated nationalism in Russia.

As I am not, in the accepted sense of the word, a Pacifist, I may illustrate my difficulty from the Pacifist controversy. Some pacifists (I do not say all) argue that it must be wrong for a Christian to fight as a soldier because it is wrong for him to kill his fellow-man. That is an argument from his duty as an individual to his duty as a member of his nation. I am quite clear in my own mind that the argument is invalid. But I am aware that I have no doctrine of the duty of the citizen as such which is anything like so clear and definite as this transferred doctrine of individual morality.

The object of this article is to raise questions, not to answer them. So far as I see my way to an answer, that way lies through the establishment in all such relationships of arbitral authorities as impartial as can be got, and the creation of readiness to accept the decision of the appropriate authority whatever it may be. That, I believe, is the practical way to love one's neighbour as one's self. We must learn to desire and work for the ordering of things whereby "I" and "he" each count for one and only one. That won't happen if either "he" or "I" does the counting.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

VIDA D. SCUDDER

Professor Emeritus of Wellesley College

HOW obvious it is! Substitution of love and trust for rivalry and fear, in world-politics, in social relations, in the religious situation: that's all; Libraries of books on the social gospel, myriads of sermons every year, reiterate the position: and they do well. But nothing happens. For alas, truths have a way of turning into platitudes unless practical inferences from them are relentlessly drawn. Applications, there's the rub. The Christian way will never be reached by repeating truths till they become formulae, or by applying them solely in private life; Wanted: a vision of procedure: wanted, a program for the modern world based on a carefully thought out Christian sociology; Can any one give us this?

VIDA SCUDDER

Well, there are attempts. The Papal Encyclicals of 1891 and 1931, based on St. Thomas Aquinas, make perhaps the best try. The Social Creed of the Churches, issued by the Federal Council, is a fine document now under revision; There are in our own Communion sundry brave and illumined announcements, dating from 1919 to yesterday, so advanced that Christian radicals in our Church now act and speak with the whole weight of official Church authority behind them. But the Roman statements seem pretty static and inflexible to the American mind, and both the Social Creed and the pronouncements of our own Church jump from general principles to special issues with little searching thought or organizing power. A reasoned social philosophy which shall untie our knots instead of slashing at them helplessly is still to seek.

Certain leads we can welcome. It is well that 9000 ministers went on record last year as inalterably opposed to war; it is well that the Church recognizes the right of labor to organize, still disputed by backward employers. And certain positions still controversial would seem evident to Christian commonsense; Old Age Pensions for instance and Unemployment Insurance in some form. But we need to get deeper, to feel our way toward a system as intricately and exquisitely balanced as the present, in which the inward energy shall be love and trust, not search for profit and defensive fear.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IT IS hard to find that system. Our formulae, secular as spiritual, are cracking. For instance, socialists were always talking about the State as a Dea Ex Machina. "Nationalize" industry,—blessed word,—and all would be well. Then came the war, and the would-be omnicompetent State revealed itself as prime enemy of the Prince of Peace; and so on, and so on. Who can be sure that governments as now constituted would manage industry with more freedom from graft and more respect for the human factor than private corporations? The old Socialist position needs defense at a deeper level and on fresh lines.

If we are brave enough however we can certainly define the direction at least toward which the Church should try to impel modern civilization. The sole clue to our intricate social and political problems lies waiting discovery in the profound mysteries of the Christian faith. These Mysteries are eternal, but it is for each generation to apply them afresh to its special needs. Like the stars, they shine with steady guidance above the tossing welter of the sea of time. Shall we ever see a Christian world? God knows. But let us at least keep our vision clear. To socialize the great Christian truths is the supreme challenge to our day, though the more one bends to the task the more stubborn and occult opposing forces are manifest. Christian principles must enter the organic life of the race, to penetrate and transform all human activities; and the Church must find a chief function in teaching this transformation. Life must be lost if it is to be found; therefore individual initiative in industry must yield to social control, if it is to realize its true freedom: "I will run the way of Thy commandments when Thou hast set my heart at liberty." Defense of national rights and prerogatives must be surrendered: "He that will be greatest among you let him be your minister." Will the time ever come

"When each Christian nation shall take upon her
The law of the Christian soul in vast,
Seek not her own but her neighbor's honor,
Till the last shall be first and the first shall be last"?

Probably I don't quote correctly; I write in mid-Atlantic and I do not carry Mrs. Browning's poems in my suit case. But is she not right that a Christian nation should observe what Dante calls the high courtesy of God, and be able to subordinate its own advantage to the interests of the world state? The nation that should first do this might be the saviour of the modern world.

FOR the Law of the Holy Cross abides forever. In many ways, the doctrine of the Atonement is dim and alien to the modern mind. Yet has it nothing to say to statesmen, to employers, to financiers? Must they not learn that through loss may come redemption and through sacrifice life is fulfilled? What one wants to see is all these people if they are Christians (Some claim to be) instinctively taking the initiative in legislation opposed to the interests of their class. One wants to see the Church, while she need not take sides in special issues, urge this general attitude on them, earnestly cultivating in her children a presumption of distrust toward any policy which would be to their personal advantage or to the advantage of their group; That is always the safest sort of presumption; for pure disinterestedness is hard to attain and self-deception perilously easy; Especially is it the safest sort if one happens to belong to the privileged class. For Christian ethic, like the modern world, has its face set toward greater social equality and the Christian heart longs to see progress in this direction hastened and inspired, less by the self assertion of those below than by the self abnegation of those in possession.

Of course, if the Church is to take this line, it means that she must be preaching an unpopular gospel; the Christian paradox which runs counter to the instincts of the natural man. But pray, what else is she for?

Yes, we have already enough vision on which to proceed. But when a concrete issue arises, again and again we are baffled, we are helpless. Ah, we need not only vision but power. To remould this sorry scheme of things nearer to the heart's desire, we must have not only code but dynamic; And a supernatural dynamic is ours for the asking, it can not only enable our blinded eyes with perpetual light, but it can give peace at home. To repeat the Teaching of Jesus will avail little; we have the Guidance of the Living Christ.

"And behold I am with you always, even to the end of the world."

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Can ethical codes for individuals be applied to the state also? For example, it is wrong for an individual to kill a fellow. Is it equally wrong for the state to do so? Another example: a state in order to secure employment for its people creates a market by keeping another country in bondage. Is this ethically justifiable?

2. Japan is aggressive in China because she believes she must have a market for her surplus goods in order to care for the people of Japan. Is Japan wrong? If Japan is wrong is she alone condemned of the nations upon earth? Has the United States ever justified aggression on the same grounds?

3. With millions of Japanese in want why should there be any surplus goods seeking a market?

4. Do you agree with Archbishop Temple that the practical way of dealing with controversies between groups is by arbitration? Can you give examples where it has worked successfully?

5. If possible have members of the class read the pronouncements of our own Church on social questions, including the statement of the committee of twenty-one of the last General Convention. (All but the latter will be found in "The Church and Industry" by Miller and Fletcher, probably in your public library. The latter was printed by the Church weeklies in October).

6. It is frequently said that the churches issue fine pronouncements but that they seldom translate them into action. Do you agree?

7. Do you believe that the churches are hampered in dealing with social questions because their support is derived largely from people of wealth? Discuss.

8. Miss Scudder states that individual initiative in industry must yield to social control. Do you agree? Discuss proposed methods of social control. Members of the class might prepare brief papers on unionism, fascism, socialism, communism.

9. Do you believe that the defense of national rights and prerogatives must be surrendered?

10. Just what does Miss Scudder mean when she says that the doctrine of the Atonement must be applied to all of life?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

III. That There Was a Church

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THE philosopher is chiefly interested in what Christ said. The disciple should be equally interested in what He did. Did He found a brotherhood? Did He institute a Household of Faith?

It is not necessary to assume that Christ created a complete ecclesiastical organization with liturgy, parishes and bishops in order to believe that His plan included a corporate body which should carry out His purpose and to which He intrusted His gospel. We do not have to assume that when God made man and breathed into him the breath of life that man suddenly appeared in human form. The evolution of man's body is one thing and his endowment with a soul quite another.

When Christ told His disciples that He was about to leave them He assured them that He would send His Holy Spirit who would guide them into all truth. Did He prepare a body which was to receive this gift?

We know that He began His ministry by choosing twelve apostles; that He spent much time and labor in teaching them; that when Peter acknowledged His divine nature He promised to build a Church upon this rock and that He subsequently commissioned the apostles to go forth in His name and to do the things that He commanded them to do.

We know that acting upon this teaching the apostles elected Matthias to take the place of Judas as an apostle, and when they were gathered together they received the gift of the Holy Spirit, which they in turn distributed to others by the laying on of hands. We know that when this had taken place that "they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and in the prayers." We know further that St. Paul, who was not present at Pentecost, spoke of the Church as the pillar and ground of the truth; that it was built upon the foundation of Christ and His apostles, that it was the body of Christ and that He would present it to the Father as a glorious Church without spot or wrinkle.

I am not contending what the Church was in those days but rather that the Church was, and that there was a clear distinction in the apostles' mind between "those without" and "those within," and that the disciples were to "do good unto all men but especially unto those who were of the household of faith."

Now I can understand why scholars may say that the Church was not this or was not that, but I cannot understand how they can maintain that there was no such thing as the Church, or how they can confuse the written gospel (which was not then in existence) with the Church which had already been established. Let us not be confused. Because we can not prove that there was, as yet, any regular order of the ministry, such as later appeared, is not to say that there was no organization known as the Church from which such regular order could subsequently emerge. What can be demonstrated is that there was an order of the apostles and that there were other officers who were officially designated, as for example the seven deacons. We know that there were certain sacraments; baptism, by which "were being added to the Church such as were being saved;" confirmation, by which those who had been baptized "received the gift of the Holy Spirit;" the Lord's Supper, in which those who had been thus admitted bore witness in a corporate way to their faith. We know that there was a council at which St. James presided, at which certain rules and regulations for the admission of Gentile converts were established, and the decrees were sent to the Church by certain chosen emissaries. (Acts XV).

It is one thing to say that there was not such and such a Church at this time, and quite another thing to say that there was no Church at all. Moreover it is in the nature of established governments that they contain within themselves the power of legislation and of adapting their constitutions to their needs as they arise. This seems to be the very thing that Christ did when He spoke to the little band that surrounded Him during the forty days between His resurrection and His ascension. In a closed room Jesus said to His disciples: "Peace be unto you; as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you. Receive ye the Holy Ghost. Whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained." (St. John XX).

And on another occasion He had said to His disciples, when He bade them to go to the Church with their disputes: "Verily I say unto you, whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven." (St. Matthew XVIII). If all the words of Jesus meant so much, then these words seem to indicate the bestowal of legislative power upon this group, for the words "binding" and "loosing" in that day referred to enacting laws and to repealing them. It is difficult to read these words on the assumption that Christ did not intend to incorporate His gospel in a body which possessed the powers of government. Moreover, it is difficult to understand why Christ should not have organized His Kingdom.

While corporations are liable to great abuse and the Church has been no exception to this rule, yet corporations are a sign of organized society in contrast to the lack of organization in primitive races. It is well therefore in considering what the Church must have been in its elemental form to consider somewhat the principles of organization for the purpose of perpetuating a gospel. Indeed it is impossible to imagine how the

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church could have contended with the Roman Empire; could have survived the Dark Ages; could have penetrated into all lands; could have produced the books of the New Testament; could have formed them into a constituent whole; could have differentiated between the teaching of the apostles and the inventions of men; could have maintained its fellowship or discharged the obligations which Christ placed upon it, if it had not been just what it was—a brotherhood, loyal to its apostolic origin, possessing a continuous contact with its charter members, having rites of initiation and of testimony, extending hospitality to its members and aiding one another in distress. It was the possession of corporate identity which made such things possible. It would have been impossible for a group to have all things in common if they were unorganized.

The last words of Christ to His disciples were, "Be ye witnesses unto me." And in that sentence He placed upon the body of the faithful exactly that responsibility for which the Church primarily existed. Through its teaching, its sacraments, and its missionary activity, the disciples of our Lord became a compact brotherhood. Unless they had done exactly this thing the teaching would have been garbled, the sacraments would have been perverted and the missionaries would have been deprived of any moral or material support.

Let us not imagine because we cannot tell just what the Church was in the apostolic days that therefore there was no continuing body which was particular as to its membership and loyal to its obligations. Without such organization religion becomes merely a philosophy, with no other obligation than that of thinking and arguing. Men do not give their lives for their opinions. Neither would the authorities have been concerned about philosophies.

It was the existence of an organization which had to be secret which was the cause of its persecution and the strength of its marvellous preservation.

It is because organization implies obligations that academic minds would dissipate the body of the Church, reducing the gospel of Christ to a mere theory about life instead of a way of life with all its responsibilities and its fine loyalties.

(Continued next week)

Safe Financing

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE Church Pension Fund in its latest report, and in the interesting pamphlet intended for laymen, sets an example to the whole Church of safe and sane financing. We all have the greatest confidence in that Fund because it is based on sound principles.

The work of the National Council is not founded on any such financial rock. In consequence, it is subject to disaster which results in the suffering of missionaries and the destruction of capital values.

The most obvious truth about progress and growth in the Church is that every step forward increases our liabilities. When a parish builds a Church it is creating a financial liability. That Church must be heated, lighted, cleaned, repaired. Its very use creates expense. It may well be that the use of the Church opens up new resources which, as assets, may offset liabilities. But the liability is constant while the assets may fluctuate. If the assets fail, then the liability becomes so burdensome as to menace the enterprise.

This is true of missions. Every mission is a liability. To multiply missions faster than assets grow to sustain them, is to invite trouble.

This principle seems clear, and yet it is constantly ignored. To create a liability that can only be met under the most favorable conditions, is to place the enterprise in jeopardy.

How should our National Church proceed to expand our work with full recognition of this principle?

The abstract answer to that question is that the National Church should create assets, as well as incur liabilities. To create assets means first to carry out no program which affects unfavorably the strength of the units which provide the resources, that is, the parishes.

The National Church needs a fixed and certain income. To subject the work of the National Council to the uncertainty of a fluctuating income is to court trouble and loss.

With the rights and needs of both parishes and the National Council fully in mind, the following solution of the problem is suggested.

Fixed Income for the National Council

The General Convention should settle upon a fixed and invariable sum which the National Council will receive from the dioceses. This sum should be well within the giving capacity of the Church. Judging from the published figures, and from the general conditions, it might seem reasonable to set the sum of $2,500,000 as the amount which the diocese should collectively pledge.

This pledge should be the first obligation of the Diocese and not be subject to fluctuation.

The National Council would have in addition to the amount, these sources of income:

(1) Interest on Trust Funds. This being a permanent asset, the income could be expended each year.

(2) United Thank Offering. One-third of this should be invested as a permanent endowment.

(3) Legacies. These should all be invested in endowments unless designated.

(4) Designated Legacies. These, of course, must go to the work for which they are designated. But if that course should involve an additional liability, it should not be undertaken until a corresponding asset from the income of undesignated legacies was assured.

The National Council should then inaugurate a never ceasing effort to secure perpetual endowments.

(This is a matter of such importance that it will be considered carefully in the next article.)

Such endowments would give the Council a fixed income with which to expand the work without placing it in jeopardy.

Such a financial program might temporarily diminish the extent of National undertakings, but a principle of increment and momentum would be established that would for all time add to the fixed resources of the Church, and would establish our work upon an absolutely sure foundation.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Within a few years we would be increasing rapidly in strength. We should have the spirit of victory, of achievement, instead of the spirit of uncertainty and fear, which today pervades the Church. Within a generation we should be powerful, and could expand with increasing usefulness and security. And both parishes and missionaries would rejoice that our work was not based on the speculative element of uncertain margins, but was on the firm rock of real assets and investments.

Just Souls

By

C. RUSSELL MOODEY

PULLMAN OR POWER HOUSE

Thank God for a Sanctuary—
For the holy altar—
For the newness of life
That comes from the Christ
Through frequent communion.

WE HAVE a phonograph record over at our house that seems to be the favorite with the children. And when I say "favorite" I mean that it is played from morning to night. The name of the record is "All Around the Mulberry Bush." My memory is very bad so I cannot write down all the words but in general it goes this way—"this is the way we wash our clothes so early Monday morning; this is the way we iron our clothes so early Tuesday morning; this is the way we scrub the floor so early Wednesday morning; this is the way we mend our clothes so early Thursday morning; this is the way we sweep the floor so early Friday morning; this is the way we bake our bread so early Saturday morning; (at this point the machine invariably begins to run down and Sunday comes in rather dolefully.) You know what a record sounds like when the victrola needs winding! It is difficult to do justice to the dying lament unless perhaps we use a graph and this can only show the rise and fall of the awful groans. You need to hear the rendition to understand fully what I am trying to describe. "This . . . is . . . the . . . way . . . we . . . go . . . to . . . church . . . so . . . early . . . Sunday . . . . . morning . . . . . !"

The old-fashioned victrola thus gives us a true picture of your attitude and condition of mind regarding the Sanctuary of God.

Modern life functions on a very wrong basis. Society believes that the week leads into Sunday. But it doesn't. Sunday leads into the week. Sunday is supposed to mark the beginning when man takes his soul to the altar of God for newness of life and consecration. The church isn't a Pullman but a Power-house where in holy contact man receives from the Christ new vigor and a new grip on life.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

A PIONEER

SPEAKING of pioneer forefathers, there is one whose record ought to be known and preserved.

The Rev. Clement Hall was a product of North Carolina in the colonial days. He went to London for ordination in 1743, returning the next year to devote his life to a gruelling missionary work at a salary of one hundred and fifty dollars a year. He was constitutionally delicate in health but after eight years of continual travelling he was able to report that he had covered 14,000 miles, had preached 675 sermons, and had baptized more than six thousand persons.

The difficulties of travel are quite beyond our comprehension today. Scarcely ever did he have a church building in which to officiate. He used court-houses and similar buildings with more room than a dwelling, and generally they were crowded for his services.

In 1753 he reported that in thirty-five days he had travelled 536 miles, had officiated in 23 congregations, baptized 467 white and 21 black children and two white women. Nothing ever seemed to discourage him. He had nothing to work with—except people. He had long roads to travel paved chiefly with hardship. He never had an increase in salary and was absolutely innocent of the comforts and conveniences even of his own early day. Yet he was consistently an apostle of hope and goodwill.

Here is a description of the kind of thing Clement Hall had to face—"Compelled to lodge, when at home, in some old tobacco-house, and, when they travelled, to lie oftentimes whole nights in the woods, and to live for days together upon no other food but bread moistened in brackish water; journeying amid deep swamps and along broken roads through a wild and desert country, and finding themselves at the distance of every twenty miles upon the banks of some broad river which they could only cross by good boats and experienced watermen, neither of which aids were at their command . . . forced to work hard with ax and hoe and spade to keep their families and themselves from starving."

After eleven years of it Clement Hall was obliged to give up his missionary field because of broken health. Instead, he took charge of St. Paul's parish, Edenton. Scarcely had he arrived than a fire destroyed his house, books, and his personal belongings. But he wasn't the sort to give up. For four more years he courageously carried on in the name of his Master and then quietly succumbed.

We talk about hardships and discouragements these days. What really do we know about them when we think of a man like this? Without him and his kind, the Church would be a dead issue today. Question—what are we passing on for our successors two centuries hence?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

AMERICA'S VOICE IS HEARD AT GREAT WORLD CONFERENCE

By WALTER W. VAN KIRK

The voice of the United States has been heard at Geneva. Standing on the speaker's rostrum of the World Disarmament Conference, Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, temporary head of the American delegation, presented, on February 9, the proposals of the United States for the reduction and limitation of the armaments of the nations.

The leader of the German Reich, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, had just asked for a general arms cut in keeping with the disarmament pledges contained in the Treaty of Versailles. "The government of the German Reich and the German people demand, after their own disarmament, general disarmament," said Herr Bruening. "The German people expect of this conference the solution of the problem of general disarmament on a basis of equality and equal security for all peoples." Herr Bruening, according to press reports, received a tremendous ovation.

Mr. Gibson then mounted the rostrum. He was listened to with rapt attention. It was felt by many that the policy to be laid down by the United States would determine, in a measure, the failure or success of the Conference. Mr. Gibson proposed on behalf of the United States a nine point program, including the following: (1) Proportional reduction of naval tonnage below the figures laid down in the Washington and London Treaties; (2) the abolition of submarines completely; (3) total abolition of lethal gases and bacteriological warfare; and (4) special restrictions on tanks and heavy mobile guns, described as "arms of a peculiarly offensive character." Mr. Gibson, contrary to the position heretofore taken by the United States, stated that the American delegation would be willing to consider placing a definite limitation on military budgets.

At three points the American program, as outlined by Mr. Gibson, as far as it goes, coincides with the position taken by many of the church bodies throughout the United States, namely, the further reduction of naval tonnages, the reduction and limitation of military budgets, and the abolition of poison gas and disease germ warfare.

The French suggestion for an international police force was the first of the proposals to be laid before the Conference. M. Andre Tardieu, the French War Minister, and head of the French delegation, recommended that the nations create a world police force and place it under the jurisdiction of an international agency sponsored by all the nations. Disarmament, contended M. Tardieu, would naturally result from the added security achieved by the nations through the functioning of the proposed world police force. Judging from the comment heard thus far, we are led to believe that the French thesis is wholly unacceptable to the great majority of the powers represented at the Conference. Poland thus far has been the only nation to give its support to M. Tardieu's proposal.

The fourth of the great powers to be heard thus far at Geneva is England. Sir John Simon, the British spokesman, as in the case of Mr. Gibson's proposals, recommended the abolition of submarines and poison gas and bacteriological warfare. He also advocated the limitation of those military weapons peculiarly designed for offensive war.

The Italian Foreign Minister, Dino Grandi, deeply impressed the Conference when he announced that the program of his country would include the abolition of capital ships, submarines, aircraft carriers, bombing aircraft, tanks, and heavy artillery; the outlawry of chemical and bacteriological warfare; and the revision of the laws of war so as to insure complete and effective protection for noncombatants.

Japan's spokesman, Tsuneo Matsudaira, assured his hearers that his country would work for the success of the Conference. He specifically advocated limiting the size of capital ships and aircraft carriers.

From the foregoing, it will be seen that two general programs have been laid before the Conference—the one sponsored by France and Poland, providing for a comprehensive system of security through mutual military aid, and the other, sponsored by the United States, Great Britain, Italy, and Germany, providing for the limitation of armaments particularly designed for offensive combat. It is expected that other nations will take positions for or against these two methods of achieving disarmament.

Of particular interest to the people of our churches and to the public generally is the fact that on February sixth disarmament petitions containing the names of millions of people were presented to the conference leaders by representatives of the churches, schools, women's and youth groups, and business and labor organizations.

If the official representatives of the nations gathered at Geneva will but listen to the voice of their respective peoples, as reflected in this outpouring of public sentiment, progress towards the disarmament goal will be swift and certain.

CLERGYMAN IS THE HEAD OF CENTRAL PLANNING BOARD

Greenfield, Mass., has formed a central council comprised of representatives of the fourteen social service organizations which work in that city and the surrounding country, and has selected the Rev. John B. Whiteman, rector of St. James Church, as chairman of this central planning committee. The purpose of the committee is to increase the efficiency of each group and to prevent overlapping in the work of the various organizations. It is a plan that has worked well in many other cities and should have a place in every city of any importance.

* * *

While the Atheists' Society is appealing to the Supreme Court of the United States to prevent the Bible being read in the public schools of New York State, it is interesting to note that the various Bible societies still report that more Bibles are sold than any other book. The Rev. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., who is president of the New Hampshire Bible Society, reports that the society put into circulation 10,216 copies of the Bible, printed in eight languages, in that relatively small New England state.

* * *

A mass meeting of women was held on the morning of Lincoln's Birthday at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, as one unit in a world-wide program for a day of special prayer. This world day of prayer is observed every year and links together innumerable groups, small and large, from the coldest points of Alaska to the hottest points of Africa. Fifty countries are represented in the program. The leader of the day's program in Boston was Miss Eva D. Corey, who is so well known throughout New England for her splendid work among women and young people in the church.

* * *

No one can tell where men's clubs may flourish the best. Of course in a large city like Boston the Episcopalian Club, which is the diocesan club, always flourishes, as does also that of Trinity Church, so centrally located on Copley Square. One of the most successful men's clubs is one which is conducted by the Rev. Arthur Murray at St. John's Church, North Adams. It is now in its eleventh year. Each week the club meets every Sunday morning for a series of talks and discussions of religion. This year the talks are being given by Mr. Grover C. Bowman, the superintendent of schools, and the subject is "Religion as a Basis for Values."

G. M. D.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

The diocese of Massachusetts, led by Bishop Henry Sherrill, has been the first to respond to the call for funds to make up the $400,000 deficit to the National Council. Bishop Sherrill, a member of the National Council, upon his return to his diocese after the meeting in New York the first of this month, put the matter squarely up to his clergy. He told them of the need; told them that missionaries throughout the world had taken a cut in their salaries of ten per cent; he reminded them that they also were missionaries and asked them if they did not want to share in the sacrifice the missionaries were making. He asked them to reply by the fifteenth of February. On that day he was therefore able to write the Presiding Bishop that $26,527 would be paid to the National Council, as a contribution to the deficit, from the salaries of the clergy of the diocese of Massachusetts. The offering is called the Brotherhood Fund.

* * *

The photograph on the cover this week depicts the centre window of a group of three recently installed in Christ Church, Manhasset, Long Island. The windows are treated in full color and the richness of effect has been maintained throughout by the judicious use of blues and reds. The subject embracing the entire group is "Healing by Faith," the keynote being the sending forth of the disciples on their mission of preaching and healing. The composition includes much symbolism and interesting details. It is the work of Ernest W. Lakeman, whose work may be seen in many churches throughout the country. Some of his best work is in St. James and in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

* * *

The Rev. William G. Ivie a couple of Sundays ago celebrated his 41st anniversary as the rector of Grace Church, Brooklyn.

* * *

Among the Lenten preachers at St. Ann's, Brooklyn, are Bishop Burleson, Chaplain Knox of Columbia and Professor Hatch of Cambridge Seminary.

* * *

The Rev. George H. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's, Chicago, was the preacher at the annual memorial service for Bishop Charles P. Anderson, held in the Anderson Memorial Chapel of the Western Seminary, Evanston, on February 24th.

* * *

Prominent speakers are on the program for the conferences being held each Sunday evening during Lent in Trinity Pro-Cathedral, Sacramento. Started out with Deaconess Newall of St. Margaret's House; Judge Thompson, who spoke on "George Washington the Christian"; Parent-Teacher Mrs. B. C. Clark, who talked about children; Lawyer J. W. S. Butler, who spoke on churches in England; Pastor Lawrence Wilson, who raised the question as to whether Russia can survive without religion, and Supreme Court Chief Justice Waste, who is to wind up on March 20th with an address on "Christianity the Underpinning of Our Social Structure." Bishop Moreland is to preside at the last meeting.

* * *

Did you ever hear of Warren Billings? You know, the man of Mooney and Billings fame. He was visited the other day in prison at Folsom, California, by Bishop Gooden.

* * *

St. Mark's, Louisville, Kentucky, on Thursday evening in Lent is having a series of services with preachers from several denominations. A fine spirit of fellowship has arisen among the different churches as a result of these services which have been held in other years.

* * *

Council of the Province of the Northwest met at All Saints', Omaha, Nebraska, with plans for the synod in the Fall being the most important business before them. It is to meet at Casper, Wyoming, the first time that the synod has met in this missionary district. Bishop Perry plans to be present and there will be reports on various phases of important provincial work.

* * *

At St. John the Baptist Church, Brooklyn, the preacher at all the Lenten services is to be the rector of the parish, the Rev. John Lewis Zacker. Had the merit of novelty at least.

* * *

United Lenten services for the Episcopal Church in the "hill zone" of Brooklyn are being held, each parish entertaining one week in Lent. The preachers: Dean Fosbroke of the General; Archdeacon Scott of Alaska; Rev. E. H. Foster of China; Rev. B. I. Bell; and Bishop Stires.

* * *

The Young People's Fellowship of St. Michael's Cathedral, Boise, Idaho, have taken on the responsibility of publishing a parish paper, to come out twice a month. Nothing like the courage of youth.

* * *

An Episcopal service, said in a Presbyterian church, with the music by a vested Baptist choir, in the presence of a Methodist congregation .....who can beat that? The Rev. Girault Jones has been pioneering in the mission field of south Mississippi. In Poplarville he found three Episcopalians. He held a service for them. It attracted others. The other night they had the service described above. There were 130 people there, with but four of them Episcopalians, including the priest. Next day "that service last night" was the talk of the town.

* * *

A special service for the "institution" of new vestrymen is used by the Rev. Theodore Ludlow, rector of the Holy Communion, South Orange, N. J. All the vestrymen take part in the service, renewing their allegiance to their office.

* * *

The Rev. Sherman Coolidge, one of our pioneer Indian clergy, who carried the flag in the procession at the opening service of the General Convention in Denver, died recently. He was a full blooded Arapahoe, born in 1862. His parents were killed in an Indian war when he was a small boy and he was adopted by Army people whose name he took. Later he studied at Shattuck, Seabury and Hobart. He was ordained in 1885 and has been serving as a missionary to his people since then.

* * *

Bishop Cook of Delaware was the guest of the archdeaconry of Harrisburg, held at St. John's, Lancas-

PLEASE

IF YOU are buying your copy of The Witness at the Church each week, inquire if they are to be on sale after Easter. If they are not to be, then send us your name and address so that the paper may be mailed to your home regularly. We will start your subscription the week after Easter, sending you a statement later, at $2.00 a year. Buy your copy at the church if possible; but since many bundles are ordered merely for the Lenten season, the paper may not be available for you after Easter. We are, of course, anxious to add you to the thousands of Church people throughout the country who are regular readers of the paper. Incidentally the series on THE STORY OF THE CHURCH, by Bishop Johnson, is to continue for some weeks after Easter. Won't you please act on this suggestion?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ter, Pennsylvania, February 3rd. He preached at a well attended service in the evening.

* * *

Ground has been broken for a new parish house for St. Barnabas', Marshallton, Del. And who do you suppose is doing the excavating—the Boy Scouts. One good turn a day?

* * *

To afford a fitting place for the special services to be held during the George Washington Bi-centennial, the main floor of Washington Cathedral will be opened for the first time on Ascension Day, March 5, for permanent public worship. Services on the main floor will accommodate a seated congregation of 1,300, with provisions for hundreds more standing. This Ascension Day service will take place on the 20th anniversay of the beginning of daily worship in the Bethlehem Chapel.

* * *

Mrs. F. A. Habersham, Hollywood, is making quite a hit in the south exhibiting movies of the Church's work in China, Japan and Alaska. Her most recent visits have been in the diocese of Southwestern Virginia. She spoke in a number of places, arrangements having been made by the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese.

* * *

The Rev. George P. Gunn has resigned as rector of Moore Parish, diocese of Southwestern Virginia, to accept the rectorship of the Good Shepherd, Norfolk, Virginia.

* * *

Noonday Lenten preachers for the interparochial services held in Indianapolis are Bishop Francis, Bishop Wise, Bishop Mikell, Bishop Rogers, Dean S. E. Sweet, and Rev. R. E. Carr.

* * *

Unusual things have happened in New Bern, North Carolina. It is not so big, yet two dioceses were organized there; the diocese of North Carolina in 1817, and East Carolina in 1883. Also Bishop Watson was elected bishop here in 1883, and the claim is made that he is the only bishop ever to have been elected unanimously in the history of the American Church. There is to be a celebration there next year in connection with the diocesan convention to commemorate the Golden Jubilee of the diocese. The Rev. I. DeL. Brayshaw, New Bern, is chairman of the program committee.

* * *

They are to start at once on a fine new church for All Saints' parish, Worcester, Massachusetts, recently destroyed by fire. A gift of $100,000 has been received for a new chancel, and a new organ has also been given to replace the one destroyed. Other gifts include several stained glass windows. The Rev. John H. Lever is the rector.

* * *

Up around Traverse Bay, in Michigan, twenty parsons came together last Fall and organized a ministerial association. On Ash Wednesday, on invitation of the Rev. Edward S. Doan, Petoskey, these pastors, including Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists and Evangelists, attended our service and received the Holy Communion in a body. Never before has the Episcopal Church in that part of the country had such a service, and there is real enthusiasm over it.

* * *

One hundred Church school teachers attended an institute held at St. Andrew's, Albany, on the 14th. There were teachers there from parishes throughout the region of Albany. The Rev. John W. Suter Jr. gave an address, as did also Miss Mildred Hewitt of the department of religious education of the National Council. Mr. Suter is, as I presume you know, the boss of that department.

* * *

Bishop McElwain of Minnesota held a quiet day for the clergy of the diocese on January 26th in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, St. Paul.

* * *

St. Stephen's, Chicago, has something new in the way of quotas. Instead of cash they are setting a quota of souls. They set as their goal 1,000 communicants in five years, with 200 as their quota for this year. This quota has been divided up among the parish organizations. "We believe we will be more successful in preaching the Kingdom of God in terms of souls than in terms of money," said the pastor, the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker. Recently he presented a class of thirty-two candidates for confirmation—and this in one of the smallest missions in the city.

* * *

A stained glass window in honor of Dr. T. Tertius Noble for his fifty years of service as an organist is to be dedicated at St. Thomas' Church, New York, on Sunday. At the same time he is to be given the degree of Doctor of Music — the Lambeth Degree, which is conferred by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Bishop Manning is to confer the honor, acting for the Archbishop.

* * *

We are soon to have an article here in the series on "The Christian Way Out," by the warden of St. Stephen's College, the Rev. Bernard Iddings Bell. If it is anyway as interesting as the sermon he preached last Sunday at the

LITTLE BOOKS

The Personal Christ
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

History of the Church
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Evolution
By BISHOP STEWART
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Foundation Stones
By BISHOP ABBOTT
Now 75c (formerly $1.25)

Quest of the Sangreal
By IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

The Way of Life
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Lenten Addresses
By DEAN HIGH MOOR
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

Meaning of the Real Presence
By G. A. STUDDERT-KENNEDY
A new edition of a tract which has been in great demand.
5c a copy.

American Shrines in England
By A. MANBY LLOYD
$1.25 a copy

Cushioned Pews
By BISHOP JOHNSON
Now 75c (formerly $1.75)
Forty of his editorials selected by a committee as being his best. Fine for layreaders.

CASH WITH ORDERS PLEASE

Any books reviewed can be secured from us at publishers prices.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church Furniture

Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating

American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

ST. BARNABAS CHURCH ALTAR GUILD, Eagle Rock, California, offers palm crosses ten cents the dozen, prepaid.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue. Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

FOR THESE HARD TIMES, —A NEW RELIGIOUS NOVEL

The Macmillan Company of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel based on Scriptural "higher criticism," and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In THE LIVING CHURCH, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes, "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries."

The author, whose earlier volume, "Sociological Study of the Bible," is a standard work, says, "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature coming out of hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from the Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00.—Advt.

Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York, I am sure you will read it with mingled emotions. He said that the World War marked the dramatic step in the progressive degeneration of society and foreshadows the impending collapse of civilization. The decline of culture would not be a continuous and ever-deepening twilight, but would be relieved by brief flashes of "better times." But each level of subsidence would be lower than the last until the final breakdown of the social fabric and the descent of man to levels "essentially animal." Said he: "A civilization led by politicians and bankers deserves to perish and no doubt will." Cheerful fellow, what? Yet there is plenty pointing in that direction.

* * *

Bishop Wise of Kansas, preaching in Chicago, has things to say about this so-called depression. "Some people have an idea that the way to overcome this period of stress and strain is to deny its existency and reality. Stimulate business they cry, and all will be well; increase production and consumption and a cheerful outlook awaits around the corner. All the stimulation of commerce in the world will not create a single value of reality that we have lost sight of. The true remedy must be found elsewhere if we are to restore to man's life a permanent stability. We need to repent. Turn around. Change our direction. We are off the main highway and are floundering in the ditch. We need to change our minds about the material facts of life that have engrossed our interest and recreate out of them some of the real values that we have lost. Against the prevalent mealy-mouthed kind of superficial religious philosophy we need to face the truth afresh that the religion of Jesus Christ still has teeth in it."

* * *

Bishop Stewart, speaking at a meeting of the Camp Houghteling Forum, presided over by Mr. William F. Pelham, said that Gandhi, Kagawa and Ramsey MacDonald were leaders who were to be the salvation of the world. Now if something can be done to get these three together to straighten out affairs in the countries where they are leading —India, Japan and England—something might really be accomplished. Find a good Chinaman to sit in with them might be an idea, too.

* * *

The Rev. Romilly F. Humphries, archdeacon of Baltimore in charge of the city mission work, died on February 12th. He became ill while preaching on Wednesday, the 10th, and collapsed. He insisted upon finishing his sermon upon being revived. His illness was later attributed to a heart attack. Dr.

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

FOR EASTER
Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.
ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY
Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.
Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.
BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP
Send for circular 28
Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts.
The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. New York, N. Y.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Humphries was a graduate of Trinity College, the Cambridge and Union Seminaries, and was the rector of Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore, from 1912 to 1919.

* * *

The preachers at the noonday services at Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, during Lent: W. Russell Bowie, Bishop Cross, Bishop Scarlett, Bernard C. Clausen, Baptist pastor of Syracuse, N. Y., Karl Reiland, James Endicott, United Church of Canada.

* * *

Thousands of Church people have signed the "Declaration of An American Citizen," which appeared in religious weeklies throughout the country in January. You will find it in the January 28th issue of this paper. If you have not signed it, and care to do so, please do so at once, as the signatures are soon to be sent to government officials in Washington.

* * *

Chicago reports record breaking attendance for their noonday Lenten services being held at the Garrick Theatre under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

* * *

St. Margaret's, Chicago, has been awarded the honor shield of the diocesan young people's association, awarded for constructive work during the past year. These young folks turned in more than 2,500 pieces of clothing for the poor of the city. The Rev. Hugh J. Spencer is the rector of the parish.

* * *

St. Bartholomew's, Brooklyn, deliberately went after the younger clergy of the diocese this year for their Lenten preachers: Rev. J. S. Haight of Hemstead; Rev. F. L. Barry of Hollis; Rev. S. G. Sherwood of Rockville Centre; Rev. A. R. McKechnie of Great Neck and Rev. G. T. Gruman of Brooklyn.

* * *

St. Martin's Mission, Long Island, was slated to be closed due to the drastic budget reductions of the diocese. The vestry of St. Gabriel's, Hollis, met and voted to adopt the mission rather than see it close. Says the rector of St. Gabriel's, the Rev. F. L. Barry: "We are trying to return some of the blessings bestowed upon our parish when it was a mission of the Cathedral."

Now if someone will only adopt Japan, China, Alaska, Mexico and a few other places I know a lot of people who would play a better game of golf.

* * *

Many improvements have been made recently in the R. E. Lee Memorial Church, Lexington, Virginia —new altar, new lighting, remodelled organ, paint inside and out and numerous other things. Incidentally the rector, the Rev. Vincent C. Franks, recently received a letter address—to "The Rev. Robert E. Lee."

* * *

The Rev. James F. Root, rector of St. Luke's, Utica, N. Y., was the preacher at the celebration of the centennial of the Presbyterian Church at Oneida Castle. There is a reason he was invited; his great grandfather, the Rev. Charles Machin, was the pastor of this Presbyterian Church ninety years ago.

* * *

I never could quite figure out why the Federal Council of Churches should list those states which have been free from lynching for a year and send it out as an "Honor Roll". One hardly expects to be honored merely because he passes through a year without killing a fellow human being. Anyhow the 1931 list of honor states has been compiled and there are thirty-nine of them—states in which there were no lynchings. There are five states that never have had a lynching; Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont. Maine has no record of having had one since 1886. Maybe there is something to that New England Puritanism after all.

* * *

The Rev. William Sheafe Chase, stormy crusader of Brooklyn, has resigned as rector of Christ Church. He is seventy-four years of age, but he is not resigning in order to rest. Rather he is to devote more time to a reform association of which he is the head, fighting booze, jazz, prize-fights, gambling, birth control, and

for Lenten Services

LANTERN SLIDE LECTURES

ILLUSTRATED lectures on missionary and educational activities are available for parish use at nominal cost through the Lantern Slide Bureau of the National Council. Beautifully colored slides are supplied with lecture reading for each subject. Other titles are available. Correspondence is invited.

RENTAL CHARGE
$2.00
FOR EACH LECTURE
(Plus transportation)

Lantern Slide Bureau
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Domestic
Our Mission to the Isolated (through correspondence)
Our Work Among the Indians
Our Work Among the Negroes
Our Work Among the Southern Mountaineers

Extra-Continental
Alaska, Hawaii, Philippines, Porto Rico, Virgin Islands.

Foreign
China, Cuba, India, Japan, Liberia, Mexico

Church History
Six Lectures. From Apostolic times to the present day.

Bible Subjects
Old and New Testament (no lecture notes)

Non-Christian Religions
Mohammedanism, Buddhism

From Damascus to Bethlehem
New Slides with lecture

Edwin S. Gorham
Inc.
ESTABLISHED 1900
Publishers, Booksellers, distributors of Religious Literature and Art, also Religious Easter Cards, Bibles, Prayer Books and Hymnals. Prompt attention given to mail orders.
18 West 45th Street, N.Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

moving pictures which he considers unfit for the rest of us to see. The parish he is leaving is in a bad way financially and there has been talk of its closing, but the senior warden stated the other day that they hoped to take care of the $5000 debt very soon.

* * *

Bishop Jett, worn out, is taking a rest during February. He and Mrs. Jett left the bishop's residence of the diocese of Southwestern Virginia on January 26th "for parts unknown."

* * *

The ninth annual service in behalf of the work of Holy Comforter House, Brooklyn, was held at Holy Trinity this year, the work receiving the enthusiastic endorsement of the rector of the parish, the Rev. J. Howard Melish. There was also read a message from Bishop Stires who was prevented by illness from attending. The mission is located in a large Jewish district of Brooklyn, and ministers chiefly to them. The Rev. Harry G. Greenberg has been in charge of the work since it was founded.

* * *

A "Tommy Tucker Chorus" has been organized among the unemployed men being sheltered and fed by the diocese of Rhode Island. Each day before the meal provided by one of the six cooperating parishes the men enliven the proceedings by singing for their supper, as Tommy did, accompanied by a jazz band made up of students from Brown University. Between 150 and 200 men are fed each day at the parish house of the cathedral.

* * *

Lenten preachers at Grace Church, Hopkinsville, Kentucky; Rev. C. G. Leavell, Bowling Green; Rev. C. F. Wulf, Madisonville; Rev. A. E. Whittle, Clarksville, Tennessee; Rev. Curtis Fletcher, Paducah; Rev. Harold O. Boon, Owensboro; Rev. H. Campbell Dixon, Louisville.

* * *

They have so many special Lenten preachers at Trinity Church, Toledo, that it would take a column to list them all. There is a special preacher for each Sunday Evening and also for Noonday preachers.

* * *

There are several Church Army workers in Hawaii, with a couple of more now on the way there. They are having open air meetings, Sunday services of course and weekday lantern lectures. They are doing a considerable amount of work with the Orientals.

* * *

Bishop Robert of South Dakota isn't so much for pacts and treaties, and told the Woman's Auxiliary of Rhode Island just that the other day. "Pacts and treaties for peace will do

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN E. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

little good. Our nation signed many pacts and treaties with the Indians but we broke every one of them." He implied that we would be just as quick to break treaties with other nations. He described as a scourge the habit many Indians have acquired of chewing and smoking peota, a bean imported from Mexico and a powerful drug. But the effort to stamp out the evil has been seriously handicapped by the fact that the white man demands liberty to break any law he does not like—prohibition for instance.

* * *

Albany, New York, parishes combine for noonday Lenten services, held at old St. Peter's. Preachers, Bishop Oldham, and the Rev. Messrs. E. T. Carroll, W. E. Tanner, Luke M. White, E. C. Earp, Charles Townsend, Edwin J. van Etten, Percy T. Edrop. Then on Thursday evenings there are services at St. Paul's, with the following preachers; Dean Edrop, Bernard Iddings Bell, Remsen B. Ogilby and Nelson M. Burroughs.

* * *

St. John's and Trinity, Waterbury, Connecticut, combine for special midweek Lenten services, alternating: the preachers are the Rev. G. C. St. John of Choate School; the Rev. Fr. Joseph of the Order of St. Francis; the Rev. Leslie Glenn of Cambridge; the Rev. W. M. V. Hoffman of the Order of St. John the Evangelist; the Rev. Percy Kammerer of Avon School and the Rev. Howard Perkins of New Haven.

* * *

The Rev. H. Howard Barber of Augusta left on January 24th for a ten weeks trip to the Holy Land. The Rev. S. B. McGlohon, retired, of Savannah, Ga., is in charge of the parish during his absence.

* * *

There was a report out that an anonymous gift of $100,000 had been made to the General Theological Seminary. The secretary of the alumni association, the Rev. Francis H. Richey now reports that no confirmation of such a gift has been received.

* * *

The Rev. Clarence S. McClellan Jr., rector at Fletcher, North Carolina, has accepted a call to be the rector at Falls Church, Virginia. The parish at Falls Church, located near Washington, once had George Washington as a vestryman, so you may be sure elaborate plans are being made this bicentennial year to let the world know all about it.

* * *

Lenten preachers at St. John's, Charlestown, at the foot of Bunker Hill, Massachusetts: Rev. A. O. Phinney of Lynn; Rev. C. L. Bennett of Milton; Rev. B. M. Washburn of Boston; Rev. T. C. Campbell of Jamaica Plain; Rev. R. G. Preston of Newton; Rev. T. A. Bridges of Brookline and the Rev. Edward S. Drown of Cambridge.

* * *

Bishop Scarlett of Missouri is to be the preacher at the fifth of seven Episcopal Church Broadcasts on February 28. He is to broadcast from St. Louis on a nation-wide hook-up. Time 10 o'clock, eastern time. Jot it down.

* * *

Ministers throughout the country gave special recognition, by prayer and sermons, to the world disarmament conference which opened on February 2nd in Geneva, with practically every nation of the world represented. In Boston, under the auspices of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, a great mass meeting was held in historic Fanuel Hall. The Roman Church also had a special peace service at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston, and the largest synagogue also held a peace service. Thus were the religious forces of the city rallied to give their support to the conference.

* * *

The Name of our Lord had never been heard, eighteen years ago, in the little jungle village of Ta-I among

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the Dyaks of Borneo, and the only instruction the village has had has been that of a native priest. Last Easter there were one hundred communicants! The people have been busy for two years past, cutting and collecting lumber for a larger church, which by now is probably built. This is an English S. P. G. mission.

* * *

Crime and dishonesty are prevalent today as a direct result of the undue emphasis which the modern generation places on the material things of life, said the Rev. Dr. Howard Chandler Robbins, guest preacher at the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York. He said that greed and worldliness, "which are akin to theft," are created by society.

"According to the teachings of Jesus, the highest good that men may seek and find does not lie in the accumulation and enjoyment of material wealth," said Dr. Robbins. "This is a radical theory of life, far more radical than Christians, themselves, generally realize, though it comes upon the authority of One Whom all Christians call Master and Lord. It is so radical, in fact, that if modern society were leavened by it, who can doubt the effect upon society at large?"

Dr. Robbins compared this era of bootleggers, racketeers and gangsters to the hydra-headed monster of antiquity and said that any attempt to destroy it virtually were useless, unless Christians began with an entire change in their point of view and manner of living. He felt that if society got rid of the materialistic point of view it would be taking from this monster "the murky atmosphere of greed in which he breathes; in the mountain air of Christian principles he would languish and die."

"Life must look elsewhere than in material things if it is to find and acquire imperishable gains," said Dr. Robbins. "Riches cannot purchase health, they cannot purchase happiness, they cannot purchase tranquility of spirit. True and lasting happiness can be found in the physical enjoyment of nature, in its intellectual enjoyment made possible by science, in being alive to people about us and, finally, in being alive to God."

* * *

A study of church attendance was recently completed by Roger Babson. Rural churches, he says, attract 71 per cent of their membership. City churches draw but 30 per cent of their members. Now he has sent out 150,000 questionnaires to families of Congregational churches (the study is being made for that church) to try to find out why city folks don't go to church. They are being asked if "an increase in the atmosphere of cordiality" would be any help; are the hours of service inconvenient; would you like to have changes in the music, liturgy or length of service; is the ventilation keeping you away or is it the poor sermons your pastor preaches. Well, I think I know the answer and it is none of these things—not an adequate reason, of course but then neither is a poor sermon or bad ventilation. People are rushed six days a week; office or work at a certain hour; appointments at a certain hour; trains to catch at a certain minute or you are late to dinner, which doesn't make the wife feel so good; a clean shirt every day and your shoes shined. And, boy, today is Sunday and I can do as I please—a flannel shirt, knickers and old shoes—a late breakfast, with no train to catch at 8:15—just a good loaf, with the pressure removed. Men may not tell Mr. Babson all this, but I think it is the answer.

Good Books

PERSONAL PROBLEMS OF CONDUCT AND RELIGION

By J. G. McKenzie

Dealing with nervous troubles, moral conflicts and religious doubts. A fine book for Lent. $1.25

Knowing the Bible

By Raymond C. Knox
The Chaplain at Columbia

A modern, accurate, scholarly and reverent book. $1.75

The Divine Commission

By Bishop Wilson

A compact, brief and entertaining history of the Church. $1.00

A Modern Pilgrimage

By Kenneth G. Budd

The story of Donald Hankey, well-known for his war books. $1.50

On Being Alive

By W. Russell Bowie

The finest book of one of the foremost writers of the Church. $2.00

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH

By George Parkin Atwater

One of the classics of the Church which has sold in the thousands and is still going strong. $1.50

Science and Human Experience

By Herbert Dingle

A discussion of the conflict between religion and science by a leading English scientist. $1.75

Which Way Religion

By Harry F. Ward

The professor of Christian ethics at Union Seminary has written a challenging book for these times. $2.00

This Unemployment

By V. Auguste Demant

"Essential for the understanding of the world's present situation." —W. G. Peck. $1.25

Let Us Keep Lent

By Gerhard E. Lenski

A central thought for each day, developed by selected passages of literary beauty. $1.00

THE MASTERY OF SEX THROUGH PSYCHOLOGY AND RELIGION

By Leslie D. Weatherhead

"The book is the best and the bravest effort I have read to put into practice the now almost universally accepted theory that instruction in the matters of sex should be open, full and fearless."—The Guardian.

WE PAY POSTAGE CASH WITH ORDER

WITNESS BOOKS

6140 Cottage Grove Avenue Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ARTICLES BY BISHOP PARSONS and B. I. BELL

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MARCH 3, 1932

A Memorial Chalice
The Work of the Craftsmen's Guild

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
CHURCH VESTMENTS
CHOIR OUTFITS
Cassocks Surplices
Copes Chasubles
Stoles Veils Burses
Altar Linens
Metal Work Woodwork
Particulars from
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Church Memorial Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. Eighth & Court Sts.
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Write for our Booklet

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials.
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10TH ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY · LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 28 MARCH 3, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

EDWARD L. PARSONS
The Bishop of California

NO CHRISTIAN doubts that the basis of a Christian world order is indicated in the trite but momentous words "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The Kingdom of God which we seek to establish among men means, if love is its basis, a cooperative society in which the welfare of each of its members is the concern of all.

BISHOP PARSONS

That such a social order would be a radical change from our present order, a fairly complete overturning of it, is clear enough as we try to think carefully of the effect of such love as our Lord exemplified on some of our immediate problems. The Christian way out at any moment is found first by seeing our goal as such a radical change, and then heading in that direction. We all agree on the goal. On the exact path we may well differ. The march is long and difficult but it is worth while to try to think about it. We must however really think and not just "rearrange our prejudices."

Take the industrial situation in America. Eight million men or more out of employment, production and consumption so badly coordinated that people starve with plenty all about them; wealth so badly distributed that over against the eight millions who are on the verge of starvation are eight with incomes of over five million dollars each. There are plenty of projects to end the depression; but hardly a sign of leadership in finance, industry or politics which looks beyond ending the depression to radical measures of cure. The sight before our eyes is the fruit of utterly un-Christian principles, the flowering of selfish competition. The shibboleth "American individualism" (a fine thing in pioneer days and a fine thing still if guided right) blinds our eyes to what has happened. The battle has been to the strong; and the strong have, as is usual throughout history, thought of themselves. The present task is to secure the weak; but again American individualism deceives us. The dole is un-American, we are told. But it is neither intelligent nor Christian to talk of unemployment and other forms of social insurance as "doles;" nor to ignore the fact that whatever charity may do to the giver, certainly when it takes the place of work it steadily lowers the self respect of its beneficiaries. It is useless however to grow indignant at these slogans of the competitive system. What we want is not indignation. We want cooperative sense and Christian thought for the welfare of all. Unemployment insurance, old age security, large scale and long range planning of production for both volume and seasonal and technological shifts, are the kind of steps which lie directly before us. The Christian way out means in the large that cooperation must replace competition. It means that for the moment the imperative steps are to secure the worker.

PRECISELY the same principles hold in international relations. Apply "love thy neighbor as thyself" to the tariff and what happens! The whole fabric of international relations is seen to be based upon the same anti-Christian competitive principle. The economic structure of the world, working pretty well for America in the days when we were really self contained, is part of it. The Christian way out begins here even more than in our domestic questions with the attempt to think from the Christian point of view. If we do we see that the tariff is not an American question but an international question. It has direct moral bearings. Tariffs engender hostility. They are petty nationalistic devices of the kind which prepare the way for war.

Such a view is still clearer in regard to war debts and reparations. The world groans under the weight of them; but America's official position, backed I fear by a very large section of our people, is that it is a business matter and that Europe can get out of its own mess. At any rate Europe must pay. It is quite inconceivable by the way that sane men could have ever imagined that nations would go on carrying these debts for sixty years, long after the people and leaders whose folly incurred them had passed from this world.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Christian way out in these matters is first of all to see clearly that we have a world problem which must be dealt with cooperatively. Then we must call the experts and say, "Relieve us of our burdens." To the man untrained in economics, but burning to lift the burden of the poor, that means reduction of tariffs, cancellation of debts and world planning.

The fear of war because we fear one another is the supreme fruit of our competitive system. War might come under almost any system; but war is inevitable under ours. Even the proven value of the League of Nations and the World Court and the innumerable arbitration treaties, a value based upon the fact that they represent cooperation, has not prevented fear and fear has piled up the colossal armaments of the present day world. The Christian way out is altogether obvious. For the world the first and immediate step is to make the Disarmament Conference a success. For America it is to sweep away the wicked isolationist policies which have guided us; to recognize that we belong to the family of nations; to join the World Court and the League; in other words to be true to our best traditions and not afraid to take chances.

The Kingdom of God is a cooperative society. It is the goal of Christian effort. The Christian way out is always to seek that goal boldly, fearless of consequences, ready to adventure.

THE TASK OF CHRISTIANS

By

BERNARD IDDINGS BELL

Warden of St. Stephen's College, Columbia University

THERE is no way out of the industrial and international muddle in which we are, and which we are beginning to fear, which does not involve a psychological reorientation.

DR. B. I. BELL

Our international relationships are almost wholly economic. The state, to most contemporaries, is not an association of citizens whose chief aim is the furthering of moral welfare, but rather a mutual compact by virtue of which economic advantage may be wangled somehow, anyhow. Statecraft is today dependent upon business. As for business, it is motivated chiefly by greed. This greed is not peculiarly to be found in large capitalists. It permeates the entire social fabric. We live and move and have our being, not in the search for intellectual or spiritual or, in any true sense, human values, but almost exclusively in terms of "material benefits," enjoyed or hoped for. As long as people value exclusively, or even primarily, luxury, ease and sensual pleasure, we shall have a porcine civilization. Now, such a civilization is not dangerous to animals who are nothing but animals. It is, however, always precarious when men are involved, because men have a quite considerable intelligence, or at least ingenuity, and this, enslaved to greed, renders the greedy mutually destructive. Mentality is ruinously dangerous unless devoted to ends greater than mentality, to spiritual ends. Men may with safety seek to be Gods. They are too clever to be merely animals and live.

Christ knew that well. Jerusalem, over which he wept, foreseeing its destruction, "knew not the things which belonged to its peace." Spiritual ends were hid from its eyes. Therefore would there be not one stone left upon another. Christianity, too, has always known it, or the wisest Christians have, at any rate. And in the Middle Ages, whatever their faults, when the Christian religion made its best—indeed its only real—attempt to solve social problems, it did it by cultivating as the most respected ideal a sanctity which was distinctly not related to wealth—which, for the most part, could be attained only by the denial of the lure of wealth. It did not permanently succeed in that direction of human endeavor away from pelf and provender; but it made a mightily good try at it, and produced thereby a civilization which, to the mind of anyone who knows the Middle Ages, makes our own day seem a rather tawdry spectacle. But man reacted from Christ to Mammon, reacted violently, and the modern world was born. That modern world is approaching its inevitable fruition. The era of "enlightened self-interest" manifests at last an unlovely morbidity.

EVENTUALLY another day will have to come, when again life will be lived for truly human ends, when morality will be seen as more than a system of mutual back-scratching. I do not believe it will be brought to its dawn by attempts to remedy secondary maladjustments, while the greed-motivation remains untouched. Leagues of Nations will not stop wars, which, as the apostle truly says, come from the lusts which corrupt men's souls. Social righteousness will be furthered neither by Rotarianism, which seems chiefly an attempt to sentimentalize greed, or by Bolshevism, which tries to remedy the vice by more widely diffusing it. Salving sores will never cure a disease of the blood. Let those who will, tinker with the machinery. Christ deals with more fundamental things.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

What, then, shall the Church do? I think she had better let our civilization go to the devil, who chiefly has controlled it for the last hundred years. She can, she must, warn it but, as in Isaiah's day, and Christ's, it is unlikely that a people will hear whose hearts have waxed fat, who are deaf and blind to high nobilities. Let Christianity turn its attention to developing rebuilders, whose work cannot be done until the day of destruction is over. Let her people be in the world, but not of the world. Let them live for truth, for beauty, for the love of God, and let them pay the heavy price which our modern world exacts for these high privileges. "In the world," says Jesus, "you shall have tribulation. Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world." It is the worldly-wise who destroy themselves. It is the other-worldly who rebuild. This, which has ever been true, is now, and always will be. The way out is to keep alive, not merely by word but in lives, the remnant who shall build again Jerusalem in the day when it shall lie waste and desolate.

Is it not written somewhere that the Lord said, "Cast not your pearls before swine lest, having trampled, they turn again to rend you"? One can love the worldly—rich or poor, whichever they are—but one cannot reform them: one can only convert them.

To do that we must be converted, first, ourselves.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Discuss the merits of unemployment insurance in contrast to charity.
2. Do you, as a Christian, agree that cooperation in economic life must be substituted for competition?
3. Is the tariff an un-christian act?
4. Do you agree with Bishop Parsons that war debts should be cancelled?
5. What justification has Bishop Parsons for saying that war is inevitable under the present competitive system?
6. Just what do you think he means by "world planning"?
7. Dr. Bell says: "Business is motivated chiefly by greed." Do you agree?
8. Do you agree with him that business dictates to the state?
9. Have some members of the class prepared to defend Dr. Bell's position that the Middle Ages was preferable to our present civilization. Debate the question.
10. Is our civilization doomed to destruction? Do you agree with Dr. Bell that nothing can be done to prevent it?

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

IV. What the Church Is

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IN THE last chapter we tried to show that the Church was a real entity to the early Christians. Let us now consider what the Church was and is today.

First of all let us get the background of Holy Scripture as showing the mind of the apostles themselves toward this question. I am not using these texts here to prove anything else than that in the mind of the apostles there was a corporate body which had certain characteristics, and to which he owed certain obligations and from which he derived that spiritual strength which is called "grace" in the New Testament. Let us consider a few texts in order that we may discuss this question in the atmosphere of the primitive Church.

In the gospels we find no reference to the Church until Christ had completed the training of the twelve and won from them their confession of faith. Then Jesus at once speaks of "building His Church" and guarantees its stability and permanence. "Upon this rock I will build my Church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Later on He speaks of the Church as the referee in any differences between members. "Tell it unto the Church," and if a man refuses to do this he is to be regarded as a heathen, outside the pale of the brotherhood. It is difficult to believe in the face of this testimony of St. Matthew that Christ never organized anything. Just what was this brotherhood, referred to by St. Peter as the Household of Faith?

If it is of God it will be a simple rather than a complex institution, for God ever works from the simple on to the complex. Man works from the complex to the simple.

First of all it was a definite group which causes St. Paul to speak of "those within" and "those without." St. Paul decries the tendency of the day to split up into sects and emphasizes the necessity of preserving "the unity of the faith in the bond of peace."

Then it was a society into which candidates were initiated and in which they recognized an authority which could decide questions which arose. (Acts XV).

Also it had a principle of perpetuation by which certain persons were designated and empowered to do certain official duties. St. Paul refers to this when he speaks of the gift bestowed to Timothy by the laying on of hands. And we know that the seven deacons were similarly set apart. It is absurd to demand that in the inception of the Church the three orders of the ministry should be definitely created. Rather we would expect them to grow out of existing conditions as the need for them arose. What is important to remember is that Christ had given the Church power to bind and loose and so to meet conditions as they arose. Otherwise the Church would have been a static and not a living organism.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The vital thing is that there was an organized body, springing out of the original group which performed legislative, executive and judicial functions and guaranteed thereby the permanence of the body.

It also had certain rites in which members only could participate. Baptism, Confirmation and the Lord's Supper were the privileges of those who made a confession of faith that was accepted by the brotherhood. When Philip went down to Samaria he went as one commissioned to give certain gifts to those who accepted the conditions. His sending for the apostles to confirm those whom he had baptized was the recognition of his relation to the whole group.

St. Paul's warning to the Galatians, "If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed," is indefensible on any individualistic conception of the primitive Church. In a very real sense they were "members one of another." Later on when the Epistle to the Hebrews was written the author states that "we have an altar whereof they have no right to eat which serve the tabernacle."

It would be absurd to demand that all the properties and attributes of an oak tree should be discernible in an acorn, and it would be still more absurd to say that there was no acorn out of which the oak tree grew. The acorn conserves all that goes to make up the oak tree except such attributes as are drawn in from the soil, the sunlight and the atmosphere. But the acorn is just as much an entity as the oak tree, and the two are corporately related.

"I am the vine and ye are the branches." "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except you abide in me." These words are emptied of meaning when the Christian religion becomes merely a theological opinion evolved from the mind of believers. It signifies a sacramental contact with the root as well as the absorption of qualities from the atmosphere.

The Church in its inception was a very simple thing but a very real one. When Christ was incarnate He bestowed His grace by the word of His mouth and the touch of His hand. He dealt with water and bread. He distinguished between His disciples who were to be the salt of the earth and the multitude who were to be preserved from death by the infusion of the salt.

He taught the disciples that they might know, and refused to explain to the multitude lest they should be bewildered by half truths, which have proved more dangerous than whole lies.

The Church is the continuation of the incarnate Christ, His mystical body, and "ye are members of His body, of His flesh and of His bones."

The Church is that brotherhood which has continuously borne witness to the faith, preserved the sacraments, safeguarded the ministry and preserved the unity of the spirit. Like her Master she communicates His grace by the word of His mouth repeated at baptism and the consecration of the Eucharist; by the touch of His hand in confirmation and ordination, using the simple elements of water and bread and wine, and putting fellowship above opinion and worship of God before intellectual speculation.

It is true that the Church, like all other kingdoms, is liable to two perversions. The first, when it breaks up into sects who build churches around confessions of faith; and the second when it so regimentates freedom to authority as to destroy the liberty which belongs to the children of God.

Just as the Judaizers tried to make the universality of Christ subordinate to Hebrew domination, so the Latins have endeavored to subordinate Greek and Anglican to Roman overlordship. And just as St. Paul "withstood St. Peter to his face because he was to be blamed" for trying to establish a Hebrew Catholic Church, so Canterbury has withstood the successor of St. Peter for the same reason.

Christ did not establish a hyphenated Catholicity, but He did plant a tree whose branches have covered the earth.

(Continued next week)

National Endowments

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

IN MY last paper I stated that the National Church should create assets before it incurred liabilities. The great need of the National Council is to have invested funds, the income from which would give security to its undertakings. There has been no real effort to create a National Endowment Foundation for Missions and for the other work of the National Council.

Other great institutions are fortifying themselves with endowments. Buy the valuable 1932 World Almanac for fifty cents, and turn to page 138 and read of the enormous benefactions made in the depressing year of 1931. I have failed to find a single benefaction to our National Council. For the last eight years gifts to philanthropy have exceeded two billion dollars a year. Our National Church has not shared adequately in the flood of gifts.

Valuable as Yale University is, we would hardly admit that it was of more value to the nation than the Episcopal Church. Yet Yale University by masterly leadership has accumulated large endowments. The gifts to Yale in 1931 reached an amazing sum. Our National Church, if it is to survive, must create an Endowment Foundation that will attract gifts and legacies.

It is useless to reply that we already invite such gifts, and that the Spirit of Missions prints a form of bequest. That is about as feeble as would be the effort of Bishop Manning to build his Cathedral, if his only appeal was a form of bequest printed in the Church at Work.

No cautious man, desirous of perpetuating the usefulness of his money, would venture to invest it in an enterprise marked by recurring deficits, alarming appeals, ruinous cuts and hysterical financing.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

But if our National Church should base its budget on a financial rock of certain income, instead of sailing always so near the damaging rocks of the coast line of disaster, then confidence in the future would grow, and men and women could be properly urged to consider endowment and legacies.

An Endowment Method is necessary to attract the excess giving capacity of the Church.

There is a tendency in our land for the wealth of the Church to concentrate in a relatively few parishes.

The system of Quotas does not adequately enlist this wealth. A very prominent layman, well versed in the financial affairs of our Church throughout the nation said to me a few days ago, "The Quota system fails to reach the wealth of the Church."

One reason for this condition seems obvious. The Quota is raised largely by the efforts of the rector and vestry. They approach the wealthy persons with a relatively small need; that is, to raise the parish quota. The excess giving capacity of these persons flows to hospitals, schools and cathedrals.

The rector of a parish is only rarely able or willing to represent to the wealthy the needs of the National Church. Nor do such persons listen to the rector. They would be much more impressed with a larger personality in the life of the Church. The rectors could never have raised the Church Pension Fund. Bishop Lawrence and his committee did raise the Fund.

I would suggest a permanent National Commission on Endowments. It ought to have our ablest men. They should keep at the work continuously. They should approach the wealthy persons of the Church, with a plan that would inspire confidence. They should assure donors that their gifts would be held perpetually, and only the income used. They should guarantee that no liability would be assumed until the corresponding asset was assured.

Likewise they should educate the wealthy in the value of legacies. And they should be able to point out the results of the work undertaken from endowments.

After such a commission has been at work a few years, there would be striking results. If it raised two million dollars each year for 25 years the Church's work would be forever established on a firm foundation. And each year, not for twenty-five years, but for all time, the growing foundation would allow of expansion, which could be maintained without jeopardy.

Such a financial program might temporarily diminish the extent of National undertakings, but a principle of increment and momentum would be established that would for all time add to the fixed resources of the Church, and would establish our work upon an absolutely sure foundation.

Within a few years we would be increasing rapidly in strength. We should have the spirit of victory, of achievement, instead of the spirit of uncertainty and fear which today pervades the Church. Within a generation we should be exceedingly powerful, and could expand with increasing usefulness and security. And both parishes and missionaries would rejoice that our work was not based on the speculative element of uncertain margins, but was on the firm rock of real assets and investments.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

Shinto

THE ancient Japanese religion, known as Shinto, might be called a sublimated patriotism based on a primitive worship. Its traditional chronology goes back to 660 B. C. but its sacred writings do not appear until thirteen hundred years later. The writings are a mixture of chronicle, legend, ballads and poems, all gathered about the divine origin of the country and the monarchy of Japan. The islands are said to have been the first of all creation and the first Mikado is said to have been the direct descendent of the Sun-goddess. His successors, therefore, have all partaken of that divine character. When in 1889 modern progress demanded a constitution for Japan, the following articles were incorporated—"The Empire of Japan shall be reigned over and governed by a line of Emperors unbroken for ages eternal—the Emperor is sacred and inviolable." Until very recent years it was not permissable for the common people even to look at the Emperor.

Shinto recognizes thousands of deities. The greatest of all is the Sun-goddess, then there is the Moon-god, and many others including the Star-god, the Storm-god, and Mist-goddess, the sacred mountain of Fuji-yama. Shrines to these various gods and goddesses are scattered all over the land, though they are less numerous now than formerly. The official worship of the Sun-goddess is located at a spot called Isé to which pilgrimages are frequently made. Here is to be found the round mirror, said to have been presented to the first Mikado by the goddess as a sacred symbol of the sun. The same thought is, of course, carried out in the flag of the country, signifying the Land of the Rising Sun.

Worship at the Shinto shrines is scarcely what we would understand by the name. There is nothing congregational about it. Each individual makes his own offering of rice, salt, fish, etc., and performs a few acts of reverence such as bowing or clapping the hands. There is almost nothing in the sacred writings about prayer. Various festivals are observed during the year —when the seed rice is sown, when the rice plants are springing up, the first tasting of new rice.

Shinto has neither any formulated doctrine nor any code of morals. Motoori, the great Shinto teacher of the eighteenth century, explains this lack by saying "it is because the Japanese were truly moral in their practise that they required no theory of morals."

In the sixth century of the Christian era Buddhism was imported from China and gradually became the predominating religion of the land, though it could scarcely be said to have supplanted Shinto. People were both Buddhists and Shintoists. For Shinto, having no sharply defined characteristics, has always been tolerant of any other religion so long as it did not interfere with reverence for country and Emperor. In the Middle Ages a code of ethics for knightly behavior was developed under the name of "Bushido." It was a mixture of Shinto, Buddhism, and Confucianism and was a system of high-class military courtesy rather than of moral or religious living. With the decay of feudalism, Bushido passed out of the picture. The growth of democratic ideas, the rise of constitutional government, the spread of education, and the widening of contacts with the rest of the world have greatly undermined the hold of Shinto on the people of Japan. Doubtless there is a hold-over of nationalistic loyalty which might lay claim to certain aspects of this ancient background.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Repelling Visitors

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

IF A stranger, coming to your house in response to an invitation, were met at the door by a barking dog and a thorny hedge, he might feel disinclined to come again. Visitors ought to be made welcome at the door, and not treated so roughly that many excuses and explanations are necessary to smooth over first impressions.

Why not use this elementary common sense in the arranging of the Book of Common Prayer? Why not make a visitor welcome, when he crosses its hallowed threshold into the fellowship of the prayers of the saints?

Suppose your visitor must find his way through a long, intricate and winding passageway, full of obstacles, to get to your front door. Will he not feel that your arrangements are at least inadequate? Well, picture the plight of a visitor into the Place of Prayer. He first must wade through pages and pages of tables, calendars, rules for finding the places and astronomical calculations which are utterly unintelligible, not only to him, but to nine-tenths of the people who use the book.

Why not a sensible arrangement? Why not, on the first page after the title page, put the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and a blessing? Why not put the attractive display near the door? Good salesmanship demands this.

The most attractive and beautiful thing about the new Prayer Book is the collection of new prayers and thanksgivings. A visitor, starting in on these, would find his eye lured further and further into the book. He would be charmed and delighted, and eager to learn more. Then could come the Order for Public Worship; and last of all, at the very end, in the limbo reserved for the Thirty-Nine Articles and the old Catechism the crippled and denatured calendar which now occupies the front pages could be placed.

Why not? Those of us who use it could find it just as easily at the end as at the beginning. It would not require any special act of the General Convention to authorize such a change, because the pages are not numbered to run with those of the devotional sections. They are in Roman numbers, instead of Arabic.

If some Bishop will authorize the publication of a certain number of such rearranged books, to be tried out as an experiment in his diocese, it would be a great boon to timid callers who are trying to find their way into our House of Prayer.

Just Souls

By

C. RUSSELL MOODEY

Fill this world with a song—
Ye who to the Christ belong;
Let your voice lend hope and praise
In these trying, troubled days!

SPARROWS as a rule annoy me with their chatter and frequent quarrels. But the other morning I discovered there are sparrows, and there are sparrows. Walking down the alley I heard a beautiful song coming from the telephone wire. I looked up to see who the songster was. I expected to find a gay warbler with brilliant plumage chanting his matins impressively before his mate. Imagine my surprise to discover a little, homely, brown creature singing its head off on a bleak gray morn. It was a song sparrow projecting cheer on a depressed community. I might have known that most of the "blue-mood" birds had left for the sunny south and were ensconced in their southern homes. But this little fellow paid scant attention to the so-called depression, the sunless morning, the chilling atmosphere. He sang, anyhow, and his marvelous voice gave me a new grip on the day.

What we need these trying days are more song sparrows, figuratively speaking. People who can sing in the homespun and look out on life joyously. Fine feathers never made the bird and fine clothes sort of disillusioned mankind. We thought we were happy in our luxuries and comforts. But as a matter of fact we didn't sing very much! Now reality stares us in the face and many have started to whine. Our days seem empty—our mornings seem sunless. Yet after all—we have good reasons to sing—to try and brighten up the world. And like the song sparrow in homely homespun, our notes of cheer will go a long way in banishing care and worry.

The religious man is a natural singer. Neither prosperity nor depression has anything to do with his soul. If he has the Christ he sings. His song is one of hope, of faith, of courage, of conviction. He makes the most of what he has. His life bears a sustaining and inspiring influence. His voice carries down the alley and across the street. His faith is greater than any fear and his spirit masters depression. Be then, a song sparrow today. Be a man of Christ's own heart, and sing now, as you have never sung before!

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHOOSING BOOK OF THE MONTH FOR A BANDIT

By G. W. Browning

Choosing books for a desert island would be a simple matter compared to a selection made a few years ago by Mary Elizabeth Wood of Wuchang, China, according to a reliable tradition published in the North China Daily News after her death last year.

A bandit chief who had looted a train and was holding some passengers for ransom was keeping close quarters up in the mountains beyond Wuchang, four or five years ago. Miss Wood wrote him a letter saying she thought he must be very lonely, and she was sending him some books. Limited in her choice somewhat by the books available in Chinese, published by the Christian Literature Society, she sent the life of George Washington, the life of Gladstone, Lord Bryce's Training for Citizenship, Silas Marner, First Aid to the Injured, and Sir Galahad. A model list! Alas, it is not known how the bandit chief "reacted," but perhaps thirty years from now when some Chinese Bishop is being consecrated for inland China, he will begin a biographical note by saying, "My attention was first drawn to Christianity by some books which Miss Mary Wood sent to my father when—" etc.

* * *

A Christian woman in India was asked scornfully why she put her girls in the mission school. "What do you get for sending them?" asked the scoffer. The mother replied, "I get for my children hope in this world and everlasting life in the next."

* * *

By contrast, consider the point of view, on an entirely different subject, of another woman of India, not a Christian. She had been bitten by a snake. The mission nurse, treating her, asked whether she had killed the snake. "No," said the sufferer, seriously, "I have every reason to believe it was my grandmother. That is exactly the spiteful thing she would do."

* * *

Those Seminole Indians in Florida, about whom we know so little, are dealt with interestingly in Senate Document 314 of the 71st Congress, obtainable from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington, D. C. This 88-page report, entitled "Seminole Indians," published in 1931, includes a brief chapter on religious matters, with some mention of the Episcopal Church's work. The chapter begins:

"For at least sixty years the waves of organized Christianity have been lapping on Seminole shores. At the end as in the beginning, the Seminole stands like the Rock of Gibraltar unshaken in pagan pride."

* * *

Air mails now traverse the whole length of Africa, from Cairo over the vast Sudan, over the tangled jungles of central Africa, and across the veld to Capetown. Some of the landing fields had to be cleared of grass ten feet high, and if the fields are neglected for as short a time as three weeks, new growth obliterates the markings. It is perhaps the newest example of "make straight in the desert a highway—."

* * *

Every so often one hears a new tribute to the superior character of the primitive Igorot people in the Philippines. For instance: It is a good ten days' journey from the mountain homes of the Igorots to a remote region on the sea-coast in the southern part of the Islands, but one of our missionaries finds that some southern plantation managers, after experimenting with four other tribes, took the risk of transporting seventy-five Igorot mountaineers all that distance, and found them reliable and energetic laborers and in other ways as worth while as our missionaries have so often reported them.

* * *

They say the one and only item about General Convention which penetrated up the Yangtse River to inland China through newspaper channels carried the headline: "United States Changes Divorce Law."

PLEASE

IF YOU are buying your copy of The Witness at the Church each week, inquire if they are to be on sale after Easter. If they are not to be, then send us your name and address so that the paper may be mailed to your home regularly. We will start your subscription the week after Easter, sending you a statement later, at $2.00 a year. Buy your copy at the church if possible; but since many bundles are ordered merely for the Lenten season, the paper may not be available for you after Easter. We are, of course, anxious to add you to the thousands of Church people throughout the country who are regular readers of the paper. Incidentally the series on THE STORY OF THE CHURCH, by Bishop Johnson, is to continue for some weeks after Easter. Won't you please act on this suggestion?

PROVING THAT THE CHURCH ALLOWS VARIOUS OPINIONS

By Eleanor Howes

If there is any place where opposite views are continually expressed, it is in the Episcopal Church—not only by the clergy, but by many of the leading laymen.

Not long ago, at a meeting of the Christian social service department of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, Spencer Miller, Jr., consultant on industrial relations, declared that the time has come when the Church should speak out and take a stand on all great problems, such as disarmament, unemployment insurance, distribution of wealth, a five-day week, and so forth. "We must lift our voice as the conscience of the community", he said, "where these principles are denied."

* * *

The scene shifts to the conference of the National Federation of Church Clubs, held about a week later at the Bellevue-Stratford, at which time former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper urged Episcopalians to leave "Ceasar's work" to those who are charged with it, asserting that the Church has a more important service to perform and cannot divide its efforts. "If we go wholeheartedly about our mission of perpetuating the message of Christ", he declared, "we will have time for nothing else."

* * *

Opinions are also divided on total disarmament. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Fort Newton recently preached at a memorial service, at which he declared: "While I pray that peace may rule the world, we cannot take a chance of putting in jeopardy the America we love by being unready to defend our country". Last Thursday, however, the Rev. J. Howard Melish, of Brooklyn, speaking in St. Stephen's Church, urged a policy of nonresistance and said: "It is time to lay aside weapons which will only result in our own destruction."

* * *

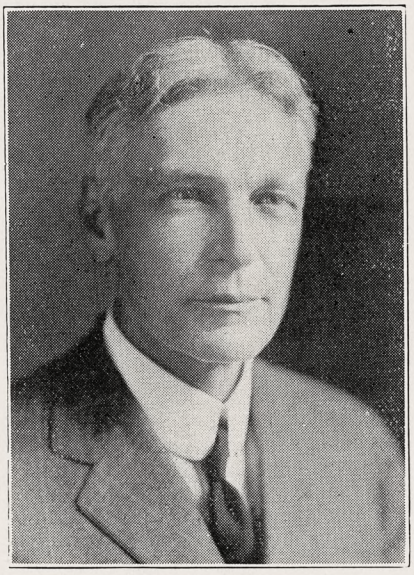
Trinity Chapel, Cresentville, Philadelphia, has been granted permission to become a parish by the standing committee of the diocese, and will change its name to All Saints' Church. This chapel was formerly affiliated with Trinity Church, Oxford. Miss Maude Fisher, who died on January 2nd after having served the parish for sixty years as a Sunday School teacher, left $50,000 to the church, together with funds for the erection of a rectory and additional ground for the enlargement of the work. The Rev. Arthur Trent Helms is rector.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

According to the latest bulletin sent out by the department of foreign missions of the National Council all our missionaries in China are safe and well. The press report of the capture of Nanchang naturally caused relatives of missionaries in Central China anxiety. However Bishop Roots cables that conditions are quiet and that there is no immediate danger. Bishop Graves cables that a large number of missionaries have arrived in Shanghai from their inland station. So it looks as though everything is all right, at least for the present.



* * *

On the other hand St. Luke's Hospital, Shanghai, has been evacuated. Dr. A. W. Tucker, head of the hospital, now in this country on furlough, said in addressing the National Council on February 4 that this step would probably be necessary. The dispatch says that the hundred or more patients were removed to St. John's University, about ten miles away.

* * *

You are familiar I presume with the important centres that the Church has in China. Shanghai has been the headquarters ever since 1845, although the work extends 1200 miles to the west through the Yangtse valley. There are important churches and chapels in all districts of the native city and of the International Settlement. Most of these churches are self-supporting and all of them have Chinese clergy. Important work is also carried on in the business part of Hongkew at St. Luke's Hospital for men, which has served for sixty years, caring for an average of 125,000 patients a year in its ward and clinical services. St. John's Medical School, the first modern medical school in China, is affiliated with St. Luke's. St. Elizabeth's Hospital for women and children is located two miles to the west. St. Luke's University, generally regarded as the leading Christian educational institution of China, with a faculty of forty Americans and Chinese and an enrollment of 600 students, is located in the Jessfield section on a campus of forty acres. In the same region is St. Mary's Hall, one of the outstanding high schools for girls in China. The total personnel of the Church in the Shanghai area includes 71 adults and 32 children. The buildings are appraised at a million and a half dollars.

Now after reading that you would naturally infer that I have just returned from Shanghai. What I should have done is to run all this in quotation marks, for it is information secured from Dr. John W. Wood, the executive secretary of foreign missions.

Dr. John Wood
Tells of China Situation

* * *

I think I ought to say that The Witness has a very real claim to distinction. It is probably the only magazine in the country that hasn't had an article during this past month on George Washington.

* * *

The illustration on the cover this week is of a very beautiful chalice, made by the Craftsmen's Guild of London for St. George's Church, Leeds, England. It is eight and a half inches in height and weighs twenty four ounces. A feature of the base is the six crowned shields charged with the instruments of the Passion in blue and gold enamel. The whole work is parcel-gilt in lemon colored gold.

* * *

The Rev. Charles E. McAllister, who recently succeeded Bishop George Craig Stewart as the rector of St. Luke's Church, Evanston, Illinois, has resigned. Just what lies back of the sudden action is not known. It is said that there developed a difference of opinion as to policies between the rector and the vestry. Whatever it was, Mr. McAllister's resignation became effective immediately. The parish is one of the strongest in the country.

* * *

Canon Joseph Fletcher, librarian of Washington Cathedral, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination with a special service at the Cathedral on February 23rd.

* * *

The Rev. William Porkess, rector of St. Stephen's, Wilkinsburg, Penna., celebrated the 13th year of his rectorship last Sunday. The parish, under his leadership, has shown remarkable growth which Dr. Porkess attributes to four causes; first, a worshipful atmosphere; 2, an educational program for the young; 3, a constant expression of a true missionary spirit; 4, a standard of giving for all, emanating from a scriptual setting. One might add another reason, unquestionably the most important of all—a rector with real vision.

* * *

The diocese of New York is seeking, under the leadership of Bishop Gilbert, the sum of a quarter of a million dollars for the relief of the unemployed. At a meeting on February 20th it was announced that a little over $21,000 was the total so far received. A gift of $10,000 from Trinity Parish and another gift of $5,000 from a layman, contingent upon contributions from other sources, were listed among the gifts reported.

* * *

The diocese of Western Michigan had an enthusiastic missionary meeting at St. Mark's Pro-cathedral, Grand Rapids, on February 19th. Clergy and laymen were present from 18 parishes and there was also present a large delegation of the Auxiliary. The National Council was represented by the Rev. F. P. Houghton, field secretary. Dean Jackson was the chairman. Bishop McCormick presented the diocesan missionary situation.

* * *

My goodness — sixty years as a priest. The Rev. William C. Prout, rector at Middleville, New York, observed this anniversary on February 21st. He has been the secretary of the diocese of Albany for 52 years.

* * *

Members of the Church League for Industrial Democracy gathered in the parish house of Trinity Church, Boston, on Washington's Birthday to hear stirring addresses on the relationship of the Church to industrial life. Mrs. Mary Simkhovitch, head of Greenwich House New York, was in the chair and introduced Professor Bruce Hopper of Harvard University as the first speaker. Professor Hopper is an authority on Russian life and gave a graphic description of the trend of events in that country. Mr. Robert A. Bakeman, formerly mayor of Peabody, Mass., and more recently a secretary of the American Civil Liberties Union, challenged the Church to do more than pass resolutions. He described conditions in Massachusetts industrial cities, particularly Lawrence, and said that unquestionably there would be further strikes there. "The workers, during this depression, are being forced to give up all their rights, won over a long period of years. Employers are compelling them to sign contracts, on penalty of being refused work, in which the worker agrees to attend no union meetings and in which he agrees to submit to any wage cuts which the employer may consider necessary. It is virtually slavery, and yet the churches are not making so much as a protest."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Mr. Bakeman was followed by the Rev. James Myers, industrial secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, who agreed with much that Mr. Bakeman said but nevertheless insisted that churches throughout the country had, within recent years, shown an increasing interest in economic questions, and that this interest had expressed itself in definite action. He pointed to the work done in the textile industry of the South, in the silk industry in New Jersey, in the coal fields of West Virginia and Kentucky. "Through the Church Emergency Committee, a federation of church groups, in which the Church League for Industrial Democracy plays an important part, thousands of dollars have been sent to these workers for relief. They have also received carloads of clothing. We have not done all that we should, but we have, nevertheless, done something."

In addition to the annual luncheon meeting there was a conference for seminary students, held at the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge, with students attending from the General Seminary, Alexandria, Yale, Berkeley, Union and Cambridge —thirty men in all. The first session on the 20th was devoted to a consideration of the Unemployment Problem, with addresses by Professor Sumner Slichter of the Harvard Business School and by Miss Margaret Wiesman, secretary of the Consumer's League. The evening meeting on Saturday was held at the home of Professor and Mrs. W. L. Wood when there was a discussion of industrial situations in which the C. L. I. D. has recently been involved.

The annual service of the League was held on Sunday afternoon at historic Christ Church, with Professor Norman B. Nash of the Cambridge Seminary as the preacher.

Sunday evening and Monday morning the students took complete charge of the conference, considering "The position of the Church on social questions" at the first session, and "Trends in the Labor Movement" and "Christianity and International Relations" at the second. In each instance there were well thought out papers, followed by lively discussion.

Plans were also discussed at a clergy conference for the holding of a mission on the social gospel. The Rev. Richard Lief, the Rev. Richard Preston, the Rev. Norman Nash, the Rev. W. L. Wood, and the Rev. Burdette Landsdowne were made a committee to work out plans.

* * *

Do you preach? Anyhow you listen to preachers occasionally I presume. Here are ten rules for preachers given to us by one of the best of our preachers, the Rev. Bernard Iddings Bell, whose article you find in the front end of this paper. He worked them out for his own admonition and also for young parsons who from time to time write to him for advice about prophets and prophecy.

1. You are not sent to talk about your own speculations. You are, rather, a custodian of the spiritual experience and discoveries of the past, and the explainer of that experience and those discoveries to them about you.

2. Preach only that which you are honestly persuaded to be true, true to what you believe to be the wisdom of the race and true also to yourself.

3. Never talk about what you do not believe. No one but you is inter-

For Confirmation Classes

Fifty-first Thousand

The Episcopal Church: Its Doctrine, Its Ministry, Its Discipline, Its Worship, and Its Sacraments
By George Hodges, D.D. Preface by Bishop Slattery. Paper cover 25c

Twenty-second Thousand

The Episcopal Church: Its Teaching and Worship
By Rev. Latta Griswold, M.A.
Library binding $1.00
Popular edition 25c

Sixty-sixth Thousand

Confirmation Instruction
New and Enlarged Edition. By Rev. Charles Herbert Young, Rector of Howe School, Howe, Indiana 15c
Each instruction is followed by a series of review questions and a portion of the Church Catechism to be learned.

Catechism on Confirmation with Daily Prayers for Children of the Church
By a Committee of Clergy. 50th thousand. Paper cover 5c

Devotional Manuals

A Manual of Devotion
By the Rt. Rev. T. F. Gailor, New and revised edition, illustrated. 16mo. Cloth 50c
This helpful and excellent manual has been revised and enlarged to conform with the changes in the Prayer Book.

Devotions for Private Use
By Rev. C. C. Edmunds, D.D. Revised edition. Fifth thousand 30c
This little book has stood the test of practical experience. It is found in the hands of many a father as he leads his family in their morning and evening devotions.

For Eucharistic Worship

The Lord's Service for the Lord's Children
By Rev. Charles Townsend. Illustrated. 4th edition. 18mo. Limp cover. Former price, 40c; now 35c
This manual, well gotten up and excellently illustrated, is intended as a help to children attending the Lord's Supper, especially at a children's Eucharist.

Catalogues and quotations on request.

EDWIN S. GORHAM, Inc.
18 West 45th St., New York

Books with a Lenten message

On Being Alive
by Walter Russell Bowie

"Whenever I dip into it I find light and comfort and incentive," says Bishop Stires of this invigorating volume on living all one's life, which The Christian Century says "will increase the vitality of every reader's faith." $2.00

Body, Mind and Spirit
by Elwood Worcester and Samuel McComb

An intensely interesting, practical and spiritually invigorating book on the mental, spiritual and physical ills of our high-geared civilization and their cures. $2.50

The Meaning of the Cross
by Henry Sloane Coffin

"A classic in its study of the 'chief event of the historic gospel.'"—Reformed Church Messenger. Fourth printing $2.50

Science and Religion
A Symposium with a foreword by MICHAEL PUPIN

"Twelve fascinating, illuminating and highly intelligent talks."—The Witness. $1.75

The Philosophy of the Good Life
by Bishop Gore

"This noble study . . . is a gift to this generation of very high value."—The Living Church. $3.00

at your bookstore

Charles Scribner's Sons, New York

FOR THESE HARD TIMES, —A NEW RELIGIOUS NOVEL

The Macmillan Company of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel based on Scriptural "higher criticism," and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In THE LIVING CHURCH, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes, "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries."

The author, whose earlier volume, "Sociological Study of the Bible," is a standard work, says, "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature coming out of hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from the Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00.—Advt.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 The Oval London SE11 England
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE
ILLUSTRATED BROCHURE WILL BE FORWARDED UPON APPLICATION

ST. BARNABAS CHURCH ALTAR GUILD, Eagle Rock, California, offers palm crosses ten cents the dozen, prepaid.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

ested in your doubts, unless and until you have escaped from them; or in your intellectual difficulties, unless and until you have solved them; or in your moral temptations, except insofar as you have found grace to overcome them.

4. Preparation for good preaching involves both study and prayer; but if, occasionally, lack of time shall interfere, pray instead of read.

5. When you set out to prepare a sermon, the first question to ask is not "What shall I say?" but rather "Precisely and explicitly what result do I desire to gain?"

6. You have no right to preach unless, before ever you open your mouth, you know not only what you are after but also what you intend to say and through what imagery and in what language you intend to say it.

7. You are to preach what you believe God wishes you to utter, regardless of how people like it, whether they agree or not; but whenever you are called upon to preach unwelcome truth, you must make it especially plain that you really do love your congregation.

8. Be sure that you know the facts; and where the facts are disputed, be sure that you know both sides.

9. Your task does not comprise the making of decisions for anyone else than yourself. That is quite hard enough; and anyway, it is all that you can do.

10. No sermon is really good, no matter what people say about it. You are an unprofitable servant. Never forget it.

* * *

The members of the executive committee of the diocese of Georgia met in Savannah on the 18th of February and had to listen to reports on finances, which isn't so cheerful for any of us these days. The budget had to be cut. Not only that—the finance committee was given permission to make further cuts later if necessary. They have determined however to cut their missionary clergy last. Bishop Reese relinquished $1000 of his 1931 salary, and requested that his salary for 1932 be reduced by $1000. The diocesan paper also has been discontinued, though it is hoped only temporarily. Pretty soon we won't have any Church papers at all.

* * *

Episcopalians have been making the best use of the time of Canon Allan P. Shatford of the Cathedral of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, who came to Providence last week to be the noonday Lenten preacher at Grace Church from Monday to Friday, inclusive. As the vice president of the Associated Charities of his

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

FOR EASTER
Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.
ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY
Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.
Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.
BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP
Send for circular 28
Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts.
The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. New York, N. Y.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

great city, the largest in Canada, he had much to give to the city and state because of his knowledge of unemployment relief. Every day except Friday and on one day twice, he spoke before clergy, social workers and laymen and women, his subject being "The Church in the Present World Crisis".

* * *

Archdeacon Clairborne has been placed in charge of a campaign to raise cash for the Emerald-Hodgson Hospital at Sewanee. They want $25,000 to add to the similar sum that they received from insurance as a result of a recent fire. Then too they want a half million as an endowment.

* * *

Mission was held at St. George's, Central Falls, R. I., last week, conducted by Captain E. S. Estabrook, who is in charge of the training centre of the Church Army in Providence. The young men and women in training took part in the services.

* * *

In spite of the present disturbed situation in the east, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in China hopes to accept the invitation of the Japanese Brotherhood to send representatives to attend the International Conference on Personal Evangelism and the Christian Way of Life, to be held at St. Paul's University, Tokyo, during the visit of the American Pilgrimage party next August. It is hoped that the existing difficulties may be adjusted by that time.

Professor John A. Ely of St. John's University, Shanghai, is leading in the development of the Brotherhood in China, while Paul Rusch of St. Paul's, Tokyo, is cooperating in the newly-formed Japanese National Brotherhood.

* * *

Plans for raising an additional $34,000 to bring the budget of the diocese of Chicago up to a level with 1931 and the diocesan pledge to the National Council to $97,000 were announced by Bishop Stewart last week. To help humanize the appeal he has secured from the National Council definite persons and items that are included in the $400,000 that is sought by the Council, and these will be assigned to individual parishes. A similar plan will be followed with relation to the diocesan budget.

* * *

The diocese of Chicago has adopted a standard highway sign — a very handsome affair which is to ornament the streets of the city and direct people to the nearest churches. Good idea.

* * *

A conference for school boys is to be held at Kent School, Connecticut, April 15-17, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The leaders will touch on the problems and conflicts with which youth is faced and will clarify the situation in terms of Christian living.

* * *

The Rev. J. Howard Melish of Brooklyn, when he was in Providence last week as a noonday Lenten preacher at Grace Church, said in his sermon on war: "In 1914, if France had allowed Germany to invade her country unopposed, Germany herself would not have called it 'Victory'. The time would have soon come when Germany would have been compelled to turn back by sheer weight of world public opinion.

"But the result of taking up the sword was more than 13,000,000 killed and the destruction of 200 billion dollars worth of property; and these long weighty years of world depression. Such are the consequences of taking up the sword."

Many clergymen have ventured to differ with Mr. Melish on his thesis, one well known cleric going so far as to tell him that he was much interested in his sermon but he didn't believe a word of it.

* * *

Realignment of Christian forces in a great forward movement during the next few years was predicted by Bishop Frank E. Wilson, of Eau

Hymnals and Prayer Books for Easter

THIS is the time when each Parish should have a complete complement of Hymnals and Prayer Books, which are so essential to praise and worship.

These books, suitably inscribed, as a gift from a communicant, form an appropriate and lasting memorial of increasing spiritual value.

We are the publishers of the authorized and approved Hymnal of the Church, and of the Prayer Book, and have made them available at the following prices:

HYMNALS

Standard Musical Edition for the pews, $1.20 a copy
(or $1.00 a copy in lots of 100 or more)

Special Choir Edition, heavily reinforced, $1.50 a copy
(or $1.30 a copy in lots of 100 or more)

Word Edition, 40 cents a copy

PRAYER BOOKS

Pew Edition, in various bindings, 25 cents a copy

Chancel Edition, in various bindings and larger print, 50 cents a copy

Circulars sent upon request

Order direct from

The Church Hymnal Corporation

(A Subsidiary of the Church Pension Fund)

20 Exchange Place New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. An Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and General courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.
Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

Claire, speaking at the Chicago Garrick Theater Lenten noonday services. This realignment will be one of the constructive outcomes of the present depression, the bishop declared, saying that not in a thousand years have such momentous incidents been in the making for the Church.

"Christendom is at a turning point more momentous in its implications than any that has occurred in a thousand years," said Bishop Wilson. "Many of us will live to see the Christian world rebuilt on lines which could scarcely have been imagined twenty years ago. There is a coming together of Christian forces such as has not been seen in centuries. It means for the Church a great venture of faith in which conventionalized cuurchmanship will be consigned to the realm of antiquities."

Bishop Wilson elaborated on his prediction at a luncheon of churchmen on Monday. He told them of movements under way which he said will eventually bring together probably 400 million Christians. He referred to the recent negotiations with the Old Catholics; pointed to the steps being taken with the Scandinavian churches and also with the Lutherans in this country; told of several movements launched by comparative small bodies in this country to come into communion with the Episcopal church, and also mentioned an effort which may bring the State Church of Germany into communion with the Anglican church.

Bishop Wilson was optimistic as to the outcome of all these tends and said the Church must be ready to lend a sympathetic attitude toward them.

* * *

Now along comes The Spirit of Missions to inform us, under the heading of the Church Periodical Club, that "Among the many adult magazines asked for The American and THE WITNESS head the list." A friend sent me this item to cheer me in my depression. But no sooner do I get this genial note than I am told that The American is carefully edited for the adults with twelve year old minds, the inference being apparently that we are as bad.

* * *

The Rev. C. C. J. Carpenter of Savannah conducted missions February 1-3 for the four parishes of Macon, as a part of the Teaching Mission on the Great Commission, which is an enterprize of the province of Sewanee. On Thursday and Friday he conducted one at Milledgeville.

* * *

Here is a cheerful report; in 1925 Emmanuel Church, Covington, Virginia, completed an ambitious building program—new church, thoroughly equipped, and a parish house

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
80 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN E. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

HOBART COLLEGE
GENEVA, N. Y.

A Church college for men, founded 1822. Four year liberal arts course, leading to the degrees A.B. and B.S. High Standards; faculty of forty. For catalogues and information address

REV. MURRAY BARTLETT, D.D., Pres.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

made from the old church. Lots of depression down that way in 1931, like everywhere else, but this congregation, under the leadership of the Rev. Warren A. Seager, last year paid off its building debt, and at the same time discharged in full its obligations to the diocese and the national church.

* * *

Thirty years ago, says a parish paper, a young widow started out to bring up her family of five children. She ran the farm, paid the debts, cleaned up the community, managed the Sunday School, helped build the new Church, sent three of her sons to college, and every year gave to the Church a tenth of all she earned.

"Did her sons avoid religion, having had too much in their youth? They did not. Three entered the ministry, one son became a bishop, and the daughter married a minister. You can't have too much religion of the right kind."

* * *

A program guide giving suggestions for worship, instruction and service activities for the next five months has been issued by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. It may be secured upon application to the Brotherhood headquarters in Philadelphia.

* * *

Bishop Stewart has started a Bishop's Page in The Diocese, organ of the diocese of Chicago from which I unquestionably shall steal a great deal. For instance in a recent number there is this little story that I like a lot, and which you will enjoy even though it comes, as you see, third hand. Here 'tis:

There's a book with a fascinating title,—"How to be Happy though Human," which has some good common sense counsel. In it, I remember, it is pointed out that wherever you find a really happy man you will find him building a boat, writing a symphony, educating his son, growing double dahlias in his garden or looking for dinosaur eggs in the Gobi desert. In other words, happiness is always found in a focus outside yourself. Selfish people are always unhappy people.

There's a story of an egotistic business man who never had a moment to give to anything outside his business. And of course he was an unhappy man. A wise friend of his guaranteed a sure way to happiness. What was it? "Go," he said, "once a day to the Grand Central Station in New York and look for someone to help." In a spirit of supercilious condescension he consented and went. Well, that very day a poor woman from a country town had come to the big city to meet her daughter. She had lost the slip with the daughter's address and sat disconsolate and terrified in a corner. The patient—for that is what he was—managed to find her daughter's address in a telephone directory, took the old lady and her bags, put her in a taxicab, and drove with her to the obscure street in the Bronx. On the way he bought the old lady a few roses. Finally he deposited her safely in her daughter's house. Later that day he called up his adviser and blurted out, — "My God, Doc, I feel like a human being at last!" Today he is one of the directors of a boys' club on the lower east side of New York and a member of various child welfare and civic organizations. And he is happy.

"Finger-Tip" Support for RUPTURE!

Yes, Brooks Automatic Air-Cushion Appliance exerts a gentle, yielding but firm "finger-tip" support over the rupture which, in many cases, acts as an agent in relieving and curing reducible rupture. Do you want new freedom, safety and comfort in work and play? Then do what over 3,000,000 Brooks customers did—try it at home Free 10 days. WRITE now for details of 10-Day Free Trial, Free Brochure, sent in plain, sealed envelope.

C.E.Brooks, Inventor

BROOKS APPLIANCE CO.
346 B State Street, Marshall, Mich.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Mission Program Faces Crisis

National Council Appeals to Loyalty of the Church, Asks Emergency Offering on or Before Whitsunday, May 15th.

THE sum needed is $400,000. This is to be applied to missionary work at home and abroad, so that the Budget, already cut to a point that threatens disaster, may be balanced for the final six months of 1932. Figures, however, do not reveal the gravity of the situation. More than three thousand consecrated men and women stand heavy-hearted as they fear wreckage of their hopes.

Shall the work of God, built in the name of this Church through tedious sacrificial years, be continued in the future; shall it merely mark time? Or shall it stop?

Emergency Call

THE PRESIDING BISHOP has called a special meeting of the House of Bishops to be convened in Garden City, Long Island, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 26, 27 and 28. These dates will be marked as well by the regular meeting of the National Council so that joint gatherings will be possible.

The whole state of missionary activity and support as these have been affected in parish, diocese and General Church by the grave economic situation will be considered, not only in the light of immediate emergency but with a view to re-establishment of the whole work of the Church upon foundations of greater security.

The alternative is clear. The resolution of National Council grimly puts it thus:

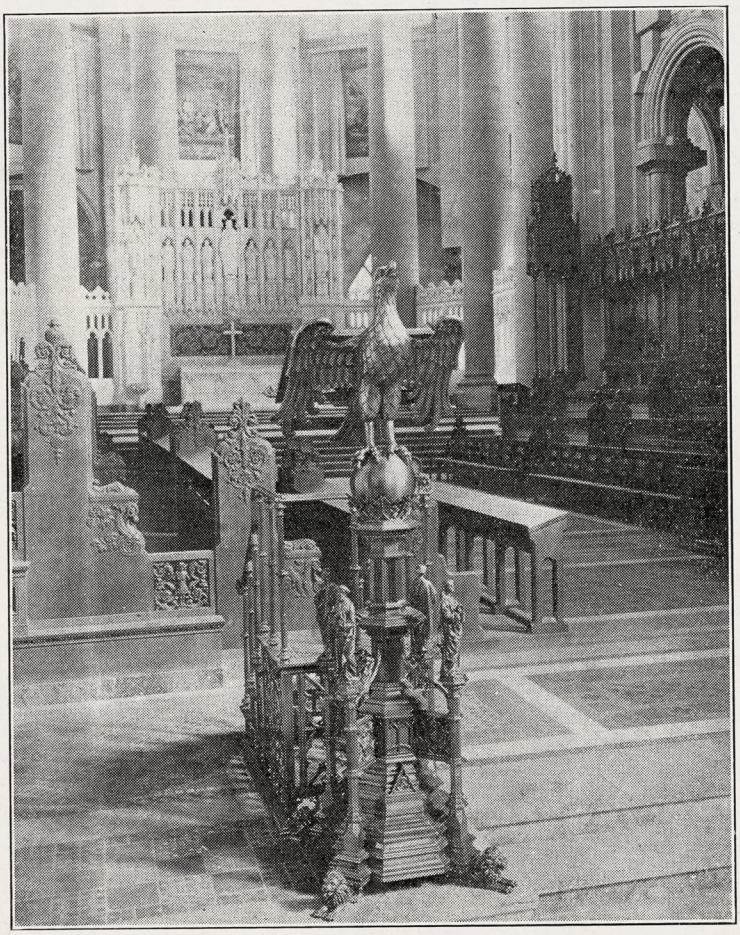
"Be it further resolved: That the National Council notify the Church that if such offering is not forthcoming, further drastic reductions in the work, including possible withdrawals from specific fields, will be necessary."

The call is to individual, parish, diocese. Plans are afoot throughout the Church. Cooperation is the need.

Says the Presiding Bishop:

"I ask every loyal member of the Church to consider seriously the great issues at stake and to take part in the effort which will be organized within each Diocese for the restoration and adequate support of the Church's Mission at home and throughout the world."

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE



281 Fourth Avenue, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ARTICLES BY V. A. DEMANT and D. A. McGREGOR

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MARCH 10, 1932

THE NEW YORK CATHEDRAL
Showing Beautiful Gorham Lectern

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH AVENUE·NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
A·D 1857

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.
ECCLESIASTICAL
METAL WORK
Altar Crosses Vases
Candlesticks Chalices
Missal Stands
Ciboria Processional
Crosses
Particulars from
Vestments
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

BELLS CHIMES PEALS
Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

Stained Glass Memorials
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
19 W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet sent on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries
materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1871

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J. WIPPELL
& COMPANY LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

THE D'ASCENZO STUDIOS
Philadelphia — 1604 Summer Street
Designers of
HISTORICAL WINDOWS
Washington Memorial Chapel
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel Windows,
St. John's Cathedral,
Denver, Colorado
Stained Glass, Mural Decorations
Glass Mosaics

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

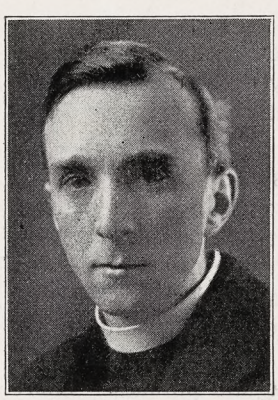
THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 29 MARCH 10, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.



THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

V. A. DEMANT

Research Director: Christian Social Council, England

THERE are a thousand ways of getting away from a place; there is only one direct way to a place. If you are merely worrying for a way out you will be for long hesitating as to whether this or that way is the best. The quickest way out of one place is to have a definite goal somewhere else.

V. A. DEMANT

A Christian Way out of our present difficulties is the way to a Christian World Order. The Church must challenge right away the objectives of our modern civilization. Since the growth of the modern Christian Social Movement she has accepted the objectives of the world and merely fussed about the methods and motives of men in pursuing those objectives. The purpose of economic life has consequently never been clear either to the Church or to the world.

It is this question of "ends"—what is it for—that should be the first question which the Church makes the world ask and answer about its economic system. Questions of motive don't arise if the "end" is wrong. And in fact while the Church has been rioting about "production for use or production for profit," the world has reached the ridiculous pass of being able to produce so successfully that there is no profit in the production and no use in the wasted product.

The problem of objective seems to me fundamental for the Christian way out. Christians must make clear to the world, from their insight into the nature and destiny of man, what purpose it expects the world's economic system to fulfil. It is quite clear that we are in this confusion and distress because the economic system of all industrial communities is unconsciously striving for conflicting objectives. The technicians of production are out to produce goods with the least amount of human energy, that is, with the minimum of trouble; the business side of industry has, on the other hand, to be concerned with selling its goods and if the need for human service is diminished by labour saving devices—and people don't get the wages of the machine—selling becomes difficult. Governments too have to be concerned with making work, for out of production's profit they collect their revenues in taxes. And behind all this there is the financial system, whose objective is the purely theoretical one of maintaining the integrity of its own rules. And those rules must be in flagrant contradiction with economic realities, for otherwise there could be no absurd phenomenon of a world rich in goods and poor in the means to pay for them.

This conflict, between the objective of finance and the objective of the community as producer and consumer is a spiritual problem of the first order, for it concerns the true activity of man. While we have all the physical conditions that would enable us to relax our economic activities, the producing and consuming sides of the community's economic life cannot meet each other's needs in money. And the banks who control the world's money don't increase it except for more production, and within their own rules have no way of increasing the buying power of consumers except by making them add to the unsaleable surplus! Finance fastens man upon a treadmill of economic activity and in consequence our civilization makes economic activity the sole end of man.

THAT is the main factor in our international difficulties. We must all try to have a surplus of exports over imports. In terms of goods that is a net loss but it encourages economic activity. Creditor Nations dare not receive goods and services in payment of debts—an arrangement which would settle the worst international problem in a year or two—because they have no money mechanism to distribute goods acquired without further economic activity. Our international difficulties are said to be due to the interdependence of nations. Yes, they are interdependent in the sense that each depends upon others to take away from it the difficulties it won't solve itself. We hang together because we hang from the same scaffold. The scaffold is a money system compelling communities to seek more economic activity, instead of enjoying the fruits of production which now requires less and less economic activity from human beings.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

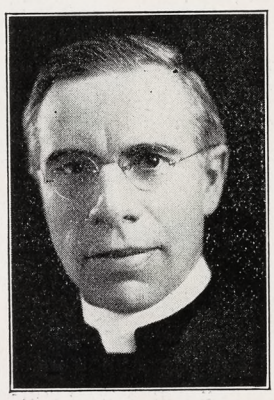
The Church must call upon the financiers to do a purely technical job—namely to count correctly, so that consumer purchasing power is always equal to the remunerative price value of its unsold production. The Church can make this demand with a healthy conscience because embedded in this challenge is the requirement that men shall be allowed to reap the rewards of their labour, skill and association, and shall not be subjected to an eternal grind of economic activity.

The Money Problem is not purely a technical one, it involves the whole question of the true end of man on earth. The present financial crisis is the inevitable result of a system of counting completely out of accord with the realities it is supposed to represent. And on any Christian view, the realities of nature's bounty, men's skill and their needs, must be held as nearer to the mind of God, than the purely theoretical devices of men, such as the money system which now rules the world for evil. A Christian way out is the way towards a world order in which man has submitted the strutting theories which feed his pride and power to the real world that God has made and that Christ has redeemed.



More on the Way Out

By

D. A. McGREGOR

Professor at Western Theological Seminary

PERHAPS there is no Christian way out of this so-called depression. Perhaps the Christian road leads deeper and deeper into it. We are in danger of making a false assumption in the very stating of the question, we are in danger of assuming that it is the proper function of Christianity to restore prosperity and to give us comfort and ease.

D. A. McGregor

Christianity is not a means to a tolerable and comfortable existence; the New Testament holds out no promise of the improvement of this world by easy methods. The only "way out" which the New Testament could see was by the overthrowing of the business and governmental powers which were in control in the first century. The Book of Revelation which expressed the hope which animated the early Christians is not written in rosewater but in blood and fire. Christianity does not believe in the saving of the world by progress, but in the destruction of the world by God and in the creation of a new city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God. The mere fact that these Christians expected this great change to occur by means of a cosmic cataclysm and that we find this difficult to believe today must not blind us to the principle involved. Christianity does not believe in the saving of this world to prosperity but in the creation by God of a new world wherein dwelleth righteousness.

No patching up of the old order of this old worldly world can save us; a patch may defer the day of destruction but it is not permanent nor is it saving. God is not a tinker, He is a Creator.

God's method of creation is through the Eternal Son, by Whom all things were made, and without Whom was not anything made that was made. Jesus Christ did not come in the flesh, He did not live and die and found His Church, to make dividends secure. No glossing over the surface of our present unjust and unchristian order can save man, not even if that glossing be made of Christian words and phrases. There must be a new creation, a creation by Christ Jesus. Or, to change the figure, there must be a new building in which He is not a decoration but the chief cornerstone.

The Body of Christ in the world today is the Christian Church. The Living Christ dwells within His Church, and He will create a new world when His Body moves according to the life that is within her. The Christian Church is not an appendage to this world, she is the embryo of a new world. The Christ life within her is the hope, the only hope of the future. There is no "way out" except the way of giving that life free rein in every field of man's activity.

THE inherent life of the Church is the life of a family, of the family of God in which Jesus Christ is the great Elder Brother. The Christian "way out" of a difficulty is the way which would be taken by such a family. What would such a family do, what does any decent family do in a time of crisis? What does it do when a member is overcome by economic disaster or when its very life is threatened by outside forces? Its members do not shelter themselves behind legal and economic fictions called laws. In such a situation a true family meets together, generally around the dinner table, pools its resources of money, ability and wisdom, and devotes them to the salvation of the member who is weak. The individual members sacrifice themselves to save the family, and they do not call it sacrifice, they call it joy.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Christian Church will never find its own life until it ceases to act like an anaemic club and begins to act like a healthy family. This is not communism. Communism is the enforced equal division of all material assets among the subjects of a state. Christianity is the voluntary sharing of personal love and understanding among the members of a family. The Christian way to meet economic trouble is for the members of the family to meet around the dinner-table of the family, the altar, in the company of the Elder Brother, and to face all the facts together. That is all, just to face all the facts. We cannot bear our brother's burden if we do not know what it is, and at present we don't know the load which our brothers are carrying. Family life cannot live on these terms.

There is plenty of Christian sentiment in the Church, but sentiment is powerless except as it bears on facts. We fairly ooze with sentiment in the Church but we keep the facts of our brothers' lives hermetically sealed from us. The Christian way is the family way, to bring the facts to the place where the sentiment of the family can play on them.

IF THIS way were tried in any parish church the re-actions would be astounding. It was tried in the early Church, and the world shook with the resulting re-actions. It would be a revolutionary practise today, but it is not a revolutionary idea, it is the family idea, the Christian idea. The Spirit of Christ who is in the Church would bring about new social and economic adjustments which would amaze us and the world. He would guide us to a new order within the Church which would be as different from the social and economic order of the world as heaven is from earth.

Christian people cannot reform or re-form the world, and we may as well not waste any more time than is necessary on the futile effort. But we can be true to that life of the family of God into which we have been born by regeneration. Christian morals and Christian economics will not work in the world, let us face this fact. But they will work, they do work, in any decent family. And if we Christians will act as a family, for we are a family, we will discover the techniques of Christian social and economic life for lack of which the world is crumbling today.

There is no easy "way out." The world passeth away. Today we see the passing in blood and pain of the old competitive, nationalistic, capitalistic world. But within this world is a new reality, a super-natural reality, the new family of God in Christ Jesus. There is no hope for the future except in this new life. If we will practise it socially we will live. If we will not practise it, God will send His punishments upon us, war and famine and chaos, until in pain and terror we cling to one another for help. And then and thus will He teach us what the life of His family is.

There is one "way out," and only one; it is the way of family living by the family of God.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Do you agree that on the whole the Church has accepted worldly standards?
2. Is it true that the world has produced so successfully that it has brought about the present economic situation?
3. What is the economic objective of technical experts? of most business men? of governments? of bankers?
4. Discuss Dr. Demant's statement that "finance fastens man upon a treadmill of economic activity and in consequence our civilization makes economic activity the sole end of man."
5. How does this effect the international situation?
6. Would making "consumer purchasing power always equal to the remunerative price value of its unsold production" solve our economic difficulties?
7. Do you agree with Dr. McGregor that an entirely new social order must be created?
8. Does Christianity require us to share our material possessions?
9. Do you agree that "the competitive, nationalistic, capitalistic world is passing?
10. Is a world based upon the conception of a Christian family to be the next social order?

Defeat or Victory

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

OUR Church has an opportunity if it acts promptly, decisively and with courage, to turn from a pathway of accumulating trouble to a way of increased strength and cumulative results.

The National Church must reach the wealth of the Church directly and not through parish quotas, and do it in such a manner as not to injure the work of the parishes.

Both Bishop Freeman in Washington and Bishop Manning in New York have discovered this way, and great cathedrals are arising in consequence of their discovery. These cathedrals are being erected, even in the depression, and the National Church languishes. Watch the papers and you will see bequests to the cathedrals.

Likewise you will note bequests to parishes. The very Church paper that brought word of the gloomy meeting of the National Council in February had two news items recording substantial gifts to parishes, and the New York Times of the same week recorded another.

The wealth of the Church must be educated to support the National Church directly, by gift and by legacy.

It is a fruitless task to chide the parishes and to malign the people in the pews.

The parishes have their own problems and difficulties. We probably have in the Church a few hundred parishes whose giving capacity is in excess of the quota. But there are more hundreds of parishes that are having a struggle to exist. They consist of a few families of substance, more of moderate means, and many whose gifts must be very meagre.

The constant appeal for money disturbs many and distresses the poor, and actually keeps people from the Church. Many people have said that they cannot afford to belong to the Church because of the incessant appeals for money.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In spite of the wail that the parishes have failed the Church, most parishes have done nobly whether they have met their quotas or not. The quotas are arbitrary sums, fixed with but little reference to the financial condition of the parish. Most quotas are based on the budget for parish expenses. But this budget gives but a slight clue to the giving capacity of the parish. To raise that budget may mean that every available cent has been scraped together. To add a quota to that means a burden in excess of giving capacity. It is quite remarkable that parishes have done as well as they have. It shows a loyal and vigorous effort to meet the expectations of the Church.

The National Church has not been exempt from the excessive zeal that has brought many a great business concern into difficulties. As their apparent resources grew, they expanded the work, creating additional liabilities. Many corporations did this to their sorrow. They created new facilities for the production of goods, and when the demand ceased to grow, they found themselves with burdensome and idle equipment.

A large part of the income of the National Church has been secured from the most uncertain of resources, the gifts of parishes. And when the parishes' resources decreased for the countless reasons that affect them, the National Church found itself under obligations, with no money to meet them.

There is a way out and the Church should have the courage to retrace its steps, and to seek that way.

That way lies in an effort to secure gifts and legacies for a National Endowment foundation.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

V. The Catholic Church

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IN FOLLOWING the history of the Church it is very difficult to get rid of our theories and to ask ourselves not what we prefer but what Christ planned. We must endeavor to get His purpose rather than to confirm our prejudices; to get his telescopic view rather than our microscopic inspection of a little segment of His whole plan.

Whether we accept this or that theory of Church polity it would seem as though Christ desired to "make of one blood all nations of the earth" and to create a household of faith in which His disciples should be the salt of the earth. He also warns us that the salt may lose its savor and then it is good for nothing.

He designed the Church to be the instrument for perpetuating the faith and for creating a brotherhood which should be bound together by the ties that He indicated. The difficulty in doing this is that we are always evaluating His purpose in terms of our own personal salvation. Let us grant that God can and does save individuals regardless of the group to which they belong. Then ask ourselves what He wants us to do besides saving our own little souls. Liberty was a wonderful idea and many people longed for it, but men did not enjoy liberty until it was embodied in an institution. And it would be a poor soldier who would interpret the constitution of the United States in terms of his own personal safety.

So the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ is a wonderful privilege and men may receive it in various ways, but there are values other than that of our own personal salvation that we ought to consider. Let me state them. First there is the development of the corporate virtues as distinguished from personal piety. He purposed that we should love one another rather than that we should think alike. What we prefer is to belong to a party in which everyone thinks alike. What we need is to belong to a kingdom in which we have to harmonize different notes. We are to "keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace" which is very different from keeping the uniformity of our opinions in the bonds of prejudice. Christ never intended to institute a picket-fence religion, nor an orchestra in which the instruments were all saxophones.

It is the sect idea, based upon intellectual agreement, which has destroyed the bigness of the Church and the magnitude of Christ's plan. It isn't that Christians are so wicked as it is that they are petty.

But in planning His kingdom Christ intended to place upon His disciples the obligations incident to a covenant relationship. Just as the narrow group demands a sect so the tolerant group demands a fog. Tolerance today is a synonym for shallow thinking and avoidance of responsibility. It is true that Christ founded a kingdom and not a party, but it is also true that He intended that those who became His disciples should have certain definite responsibilities, and should obey a larger authority than that of their own egotistical self will. His orchestra was to have many instruments, each striking its own note, but harmony does not come in each player following his own bent and playing anything he pleases. So the primitive Christians continued steadfast in the Apostles' doctrine (not their own philosophies); in the Apostles' fellowship (not as unrelated individuals); breaking bread (as an act of loyalty); and saying their prayers in common (not merely as soloists).

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

This general principle was universally recognized by the primitive Church. To be a citizen of the kingdom one had to be baptized, confirmed and observe the Lord's Day by breaking bread. As a citizen of the kingdom he was expected to respect the authority of certain officials (whatever they may have been called at any one time or place). The continuity of the Church as well as its unity was bound up in such corporate life.

This ministry was limited to those who were officially related in some way to the Apostles and was universally distinguished from sporadic groups who refused to cooperate with the existing society. The organization had such solidarity that they had a common creed from which the Apostles' Creed as we have it was derived, and, whatever local differences there may have been in its recitation, it was unanimous as to the cardinal doctrines which St. Paul outlined in the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians.

It was a going society for which the Roman Empire grew to have an intense hatred. There was no doubt in the mind of those Roman officials as to the solidarity of the Church and its corporate existence.

But the weakness of the Church lay in the fact that Christ elected to use human instruments for the propagation of the faith; men who were liable to all the faults and weakness common to our human nature. It has been difficult in any age for men to get an international viewpoint. We are still far from having it. It was natural that each race should interpret the Gospel in terms of its national importance instead of orientating the nation to Christ's larger conception of a Catholic Church which should be a universal brotherhood. So in the history of the Church we shall find constantly that men were insisting on a hyphenated Catholicity. In the Epistle to the Galatians we find St. Paul battling against those who were insisting upon a Hebrew-Catholic Church. It was the tendency to Judaize the Church which caused St. Paul to proclaim that there was neither Jew nor Greek in the brotherhood. It was this tendency to localize Catholicity which caused a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews because their widows were neglected. Of course the destruction of the Temple and the large infusion of Gentile converts soon overthrew this Hebrew supremacy.

Then for about three centuries or more the Church was dominated by the Greeks. Even in Rome itself the Christian Church was looked upon as a Greek religion. As a matter of fact, of the first ten bishops of Rome nine of them had Greek names. The books of the New Testament were in Greek; the General Councils were dominated by the Greek bishops; the creeds and canons were set forth in the Greek language.

It was the period in which the faith was defined and interpreted by minds which were familiar with Greek philosophy. It was in fact a Greek-Catholic Church, which to this day has never acknowledged the Papal supremacy, chiefly because the claims of the papacy were subsequent to the leadership which the Greeks had exercised for centuries. But this principle will be manifest in the subsequent history of the Church. First a Hebrew-Catholic Church; second, a Greek-Catholic Church; third, a Roman Catholic Church. And if we do not look out these will be succeeded by an Anglo-Catholic Church.

But it is an axiom in both mathematics and religion that the whole is greater than any of its parts. As soon as you hyphenate Catholicity it ceases to be Catholicity, for in Christ Jesus there is neither Jew nor Greek, for all are one in Him. As St. Paul says the hand cannot say to the foot I have no need of thee; neither can one part of the Catholic Church cut off another part from the body. It is an assumption of authority which exceeds the authority of any part.

It is sufficient for the present to lay down these principles. The institution which Christ evidently outlined and the Apostles devotedly organized does have certain characteristics, which may or may not be related to the salvation of the individual (God knows); but which is related to the ultimate purpose of Christ to make of one blood all nations of the earth and in doing so to form a brotherhood in which the members have specific requirements and obligations. They are a part of a continuous whole, however much the tree may have separated into branches. It is still true that He is the Vine and we are the branches, and that the branch cannot bear fruit except it abide in the Vine.

(To be continued)

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

●

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

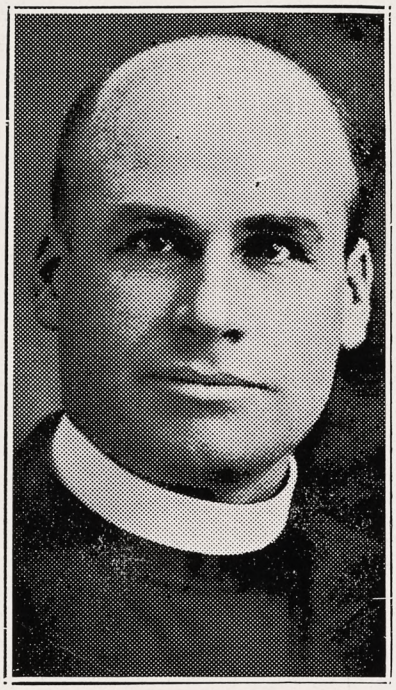
●

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

MILLIONS PLEAD FOR DISARMAMENT AT CONFERENCE



By Henry A. Atkinson

"The world is sick and tired of war, its staggering cost, its senseless futility and its dismal failure to make secure any nation or people. The world is in desolation today because of war and the war makers. Things are all wrong and will never be righted until the war system is abolished." This is what the deputations from peace organizations, women's clubs, the churches, schools, colleges, universities, and the labor unions told the delegates in a most impressive session of the Disarmament Conference.

Whatever the cynic may say and however hard they may work who want to see the conference fail, and however difficult the problems may be, there is no doubt that the common people of all lands are stirred up on this question and united as perhaps on no other issue that has presented itself to the mind of man in our day. If the common people had their say, arms would be slashed, and after all, these are they who pay the taxes out of their toil and who furnish most of the soldiers. A new question in international gatherings is emerging. Do these delegates gathered here in Geneva really represent the people and their various countries, or are they here to represent special interests? This is the same old question that we are asking in our cities and in our nations. Two answers are given. If the delegates here are really representing the people and public opinion, there will be secured in this conference a drastic reduction in armaments. If they are not, the very failure of the conference and the weight of public indignation will force changes and embarrass governments to an extent that is not pleasant to contemplate. The world is awake and alert and a group thus representing the people can not fail without the people knowing of that failure.

Whatever may be the outcome, this session was a great day for the peace forces of the world and I believe that the determination expressed by these deputations will not go unheeded. The churches and religious organizations of the world were represented by two speakers, Madam Steenbergh-Engeringh, president of the International Union of Catholic Women's organizations, and Dr. Joachim Muller, who represented innumerable organizations, including the Federal Council of Churches in America and the Lambeth Conference. There were many petitions presented, including a hugh one signed by eight million women.

The situation in the Far East is

Charles Collett
Leads Western Conferences

of course having a great effect on the Disarmament Conference. There was a report circulated on February 25th that the Chinese delegates had made a formal request that a loud speaker be installed in the hall and that a hook-up be made with the battle area in Shanghai so that the delegates, as they talked of reduction of arms, might hear the roar of Japanese cannons. China has shown her pacific spirit by her willingness to arbitrate. However war's intervention into the conference may be the one thing needed to bring home to the minds of the delegates the almost impossible task of stabilizing peace as long as nations remain armed. It is also convincing many of them of the futility of treaties.

The peace organizations are not the only ones represented at the Conference.

There is another group, not numerous, but ubiquitous and powerful, which has made itself felt even before the conference convened. It is the unofficial, unclassified group representing the munition makers from America, England, Germany, France, and other industrial countries. While others are seeking a method by which recurring problems in international life can be solved in a peaceable way, these sellers of war material, manufacturers of gunpowder, makers of guns and instruments of war, are busily spreading the information that this problem is too difficult to be solved in our generation. They are laying a smoke screen behind which they hope to be able to inspire more distrust than already exists, so that they can carry on their traffic in human blood.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

A considerable stack of letters, from people of all ranks within the Church, have come to me as a result of the editorial printed in the issue of February 18th, called "Stand By the Missionaries." Most of them patted me gently on the back. A few however panned me rather vigorously with accusations of "rocking the boat in a storm" and of "throwing monkey-wrenches into the machinery" and of "blowing off steam without really knowing what you are talking about."

I fear that I am the sort of person who does blow off steam on occasions. But in doing it I hope that I do not hesitate to be destructive if the facts seem to warrant it. There is nothing that gets me quite as mad as folks who write urging me "to be critical if you like, but please be constructive about it." Clearing the ground is necessary before the construction gets under way, and I believe history bears out the statement that both jobs have seldom been performed by the same person.

However it just happens that I was entirely constructive in that editorial of February 18th. I doubt if a negative statement can be found in the entire thing. It is also true that I worked very hard over it. First I sat up several nights digging up facts. I then presented these facts to a group of distinguished Churchmen in New York and asked their advice. I then spent hours in the Church Missions House, conferring with innumerable people of distinction. Next I wrote the editorial and mailed copies to a dozen people, including the Presiding Bishop and several other officers at the Church Missions House. Suggestions and criticisms offered by these various people were carefully considered and a number of changes in the editorial were made as a result. So don't say that it was done hastily. It might, as a matter of fact, have been a better editorial if less pains were taken with it. One never writes particularly well with the brakes on.

Of course one can insist that to say anything was ill advised. But it did not seem possible, to me at least, to have The Witness urge the people of the Church to support the effort being made to raise $400,000, which we do emphatically, without also expressing the opinion that there are situations that need correcting. A Bishop of the Church, himself one of the most outspoken champions of the present administration at the Church Missions House, said to me the other day: "The whole thing is sound at the core. Our job is to insist upon this fact and to stand by the administration in this emergency. After this job is done we can set to work removing the bad spots which I admit are there."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

He has said exactly what I attempted to say. Support the effort now being made to raise the $400,000. That is absolutely essential if the Church is to carry on without crippling the work beyond repair. But the job is done less than well if we let the matter end there. The matter of cuts should be reopened and considered carefully by a committee not directly involved. Also there should be a thorough study of the entire work done by the National Church, at headquarters and in the field. And the time to insist upon this is now. Otherwise what we now speak of as an emergency will become a chronic condition.

* * *

Now a word or two about the recent affairs of the National Church. For one thing the Presiding Bishop, Bishop Perry, sailed on February 26th to visit the churches in Europe. He is to visit Dresden, Munich Paris, Rome, Florence, Nice and Geneva. He is to visit London for a week, sailing for home on April 13th so as to be on hand for the meeting of the House of Bishops which convenes in Garden City, Long Island, on the 26th. There has been no little chin-wagging about the departure of the Presiding Bishop during the present emergency in council affairs, particularly in view of the fact that Bishop Burleson visited the European Churches only last year. Many have said that his leadership is essential here at this time. Others have questioned the expenditure. In reply to the latter it should be generally known that episcopal visitation of the churches in Europe is financed entirely by endowment provided in the will of the late Bishop G. Mott Williams of Marquette.

* * *

Meetings of bishops, diocesan representatives and Auxiliary leaders are being held in all of the eight provinces to promote the effort now under way to secure additional offerings by Whitsunday for the 1932 Deficiency Fund of $400,000. Incidentally it should be borne in mind that this fund is not for the purpose of restoring the ten per cent reduction in the salaries of missionaries. Rather $400,000 is needed to prevent further cuts. Two meetings were held in February, one in Boston with Dr. Louis B. Franklin, vice-president of the Council as speaker, and the other in Washington with Bishop Perry and the Rev. David Covell as the National Council representatives. The third meeting was held in the Church Missions House, New York, last Thursday, with Dr. Reinheimer and Dr. Franklin as the speakers.

GEORGE THOMAS
Pays Tribute to Bishop Anderson

On Wednesday a meeting was held in Chicago at Brent House, with the Rev. F. P. Houghton and Dr. Franklin as the speakers. Means you see that Dr. Franklin is doing some stepping about. On March 10th Bishop Fred Bartlett gathered the leaders of the Northwest in Minneapolis and they heard the story of the emergency from the Rev. F. P. Houghton. On the 11th there is to be a meeting in Atlanta, called by Bishop Penick, with addresses by Dr. Reinheimer and David Covell. Meanwhile the Rev. Charles H. Collett, general secretary, presents the problem on the Pacific Coast and points adjacent; Dallas on the first of March; the southern part of the Pacific Province held a meeting also this week; the northern part is holding one today, and there is to be a meeting of leaders of the sixth province in Omaha on the 15th. The Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, executive secretary of the field department, is to share the program with Mr. Collett at several of these meetings. So things are under way very definitely as you see.

* * *

Here are a few remarks from abroad about the ten per cent reduction in the salaries of missionaries. Bishop Binsted of Japan says: "All our staff are courageous, sympathetic and loyal, but appropriations reduction means distress for native workers, forfeited opportunities, inevitable retreat when times demand advance." Bishop Graves, Shanghai, said the reduction will cause great distress especially among Chinese workers. "The reductions, added to wide-spread distress from flood and war, are a crushing blow and will involve serious retrenchments going so far as to require possibly the closing of St. John's University." Bishop Campbell of Liberia says that the reduction is terribly serious, necessitating the closing of half the mission schools. Bishop Huntington of Anking, China, says that the reductions mean great difficulty, especially for the Chinese clergy and teachers who suffered severely in the floods. Bishop Roots of China says: "Hospitals and churches will severely feel reductions just when China, in the midst of famine, political insecurity and other manifold distresses, increasingly welcomes comfort and hope of the Christian message. Workers and Chinese particularly hard hit because of rapidly mounting living costs." Bishop Colmore, Porto Rico, writes of the difficulties of his field and of applying the reductions to the members of the staff there, many of whom are hardly able now to get on. He asks that his own salary be reduced. Finally a missionary in China, whose name is not given, says these will be the results of the cut: 1. Decrease the efficiency of workers by increasing already great financial cares and tempting them to undertake extra-parochial activities. 2. Work undue hardship upon their children. 3. Cripple work already in progress. 4. Prevent the undertaking of imperative advance work.

* * *

Well, there you are. The job, obviously, is to get the money so that no further cuts in the mission field will be necessary. And then, as stated in the editorial in this paper February 18th, have a thorough study made of the entire business in order to clear up a lot of questions which are dampening the enthusiasm of many people.

* * *

Bishop Huntington, now en route to China, received the following cable from the Rev. Lloyd R. Craighill from Wuhu, China: "Local situation quiet. Future very uncertain. It may be necessary for us to leave." He also advised Bishop Huntington not to bring his family to China at this time. Bishop Huntington therefore arranged to leave Mrs. Huntington and their children in Honolulu.

* * *

There is enclosed in all copies of THE WITNESS going out this week in bundles a Business Reply Postal. If you are not a regular subscriber to THE WITNESS may we make this suggestion: first find out from your rector whether or not the paper is to be on sale at the church after Easter.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

If so we hope you will continue to buy it there. But if the bundle is to be discontinued with the Easter Number we urge you to mail the postal at once so that we may put your name on our list to receive the paper at your home regularly each week.

* * *

There is pictured on the cover this week an interior of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. It shows the beautiful lectern, the work of the Gorham Company of New York.

* * *

A parish social service project at Grace Church, Newark, N. J., takes the form of feeding undernourished school children. In the New Jersey parish, about sixty children from the nearest public school, some of them in really serious condition from lack of adequate food, are given a lunch every school day. They have one hot dish, bread and butter, milk, and a simple dessert. Their home conditions are watched and care is taken to help the most needy children; the school teacher in charge of nutrition selects them. Volunteer workers manage the work. The woman in charge of buying and cooking is a mother who has successfully reared ten children of her own, so she ought to know something about it.

* * *

The Rev. T. DeWitt Tanner, rector at Joliet, Illinois, for twenty-one years, has resigned to accept the rectorship of St. Paul's, Bellingham, Washington.

* * *

Something has happened in the Church,—a gathering of bishops did not discuss budgets, depression, schemes for this and that. On February 24-25 at the College of Preachers, Washington, D. C., the Presiding Bishop held a retreat for bishops of the south. Present were Bishops Gravatt, Jett, Goodwin, Thompson, Darst, Horner, Finlay, Thomas, McDowell, Juhan, Wing, Green, Morris, Maxon, and Woodcock. The theme was a deeply spiritual search into the real values of the Ministry. Especially impressive was the study of the pastoral office. So helpful was this retreat that Bishop Perry is being urged to do the same for other groups of bishops. The College of Preachers has been kindly offered for this purpose.

* * *

There is more than one way of raising cash. They had a parish dinner at St. Thomas', Buffalo, the other night to discuss ways and means. A farmer present said he had no cash but he would like to give a pig. This he promptly did and the fatted porker, up for auction, caused such lively bidding that the parish netted $30 by the sale. Now if each one of us would deliver a pig to the Church Missions House it might be arranged to have some bishop auction them off in Madison Square Garden. It would be a lot more exciting than a six day bicycle race and might go a long way toward raising that needed cash for missions. We need to inject a bit of fun into a very serious job and this might just turn the trick. We could decorate the pigs with pretty ribbons and plaster them with signs like "Support the Missionaries", "No Retreat" and "Purchase a Pretty Pig for Anking" and have them paraded up Fifth Avenue by charming young ladies, with the procession headed by a Rolls Royce decorated with bishops and surrounded by screeching motorcycle cops. Or if they insist on being ecclesiastically correct they might bring up the rear of the procession—it doesn't matter. Arriving at the Garden we might open the ceremonies by having Mayor Jimmie Walker make a speech. Then after Al Jolson has sung "Happy Days Are Here Again" we could get at the pigs and raise that half million dollars in a hurry. Seems to me the idea has all sorts of possibilities—I haven't much of a mind for working out the details but if the general idea was turned over to experts I am sure they could do a lot with it.

* * *

The Rev. George Thomas, Chicago, paid a fine tribute to the late Bishop Anderson in a service on February 24th at the Anderson Chapel of the Western Theological Seminary, where the late primate of the Church lies buried. "Bishop Anderson's life was one piece. His absorbing passions were Jesus Christ and the love of souls. That is why he carried his best into every action. Fair play, interest in all sorts and conditions of men, a generous host, a good neighbor, a man never suspected of duplicity, always giving his best to people with no ulterior motives of profit, loved by youth and children, never losing his sense of humor—these are qualities that far from being lightweight are foundational for the Gospel of glad tidings on which to build the good and great man he was.

"Bishop Anderson frequently said: 'I owe nothing and I own nothing.' In a materialistic, shoddy, gambling and

A Message

—to those eager to spread God's Word and to assure themselves of a safe life-income.

IN THIS interesting booklet (which will be sent for the asking) you will find a sincere message—of service to others and of interest to yourself.

Here you will read of a Society which has given 122 years of Christian service, and which now distributes over 900,000 Bibles and Scripture portions each year—in 71 languages to immigrants, sailors, the poor in slums, the forlorn in prisons, the sick in hospitals, and in raised type to the needy blind.

You protect yourself from bad loans and investments when you place your money in the Annuity Bonds of the New York Bible Society. These bonds pay you a fixed income (ranging from 4% to 9% according to your age) as long as you live. Besides bringing you a sure income your bond also makes you a partner in the great Christian work of spreading the Word of God.

Let Us Send You This Message

Read the message contained in the booklet, "A Truly Christian Investment." The coupon will bring your copy, without the slightest obligation. If you are sincerely interested in rendering a worth-while service to others at the same time you assure yourself a safe income, send this coupon at once.

New York Bible Society
Dept. 8C, 5 East 48th Street,
New York, N. Y.

Without cost or obligation to me, please send me your booklet "A Truly Christian Investment" which tells all about your Bible Annuity Bonds.

Name ..... Age

Address .....

City ..... State .....

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

warring generation, now stung and eating its heart out over failures of greed and the love of money—'I owe nothing and I own nothing'—what an Apostolic testimony to the Man who had not a place to lay his head, to the faith once delivered to the saints! What a rebuke and a challenge to the times! What a warning of failure to them who love riches! What a witness that righteousness is great riches!"

* * *

Bishop Beecker of Western Nebraska spent the week of February 21st in the diocese of Maryland, telling all sorts of Church groups about Buffalo Bill and the Indians. Which reminds me of a remark made recently by a well known Bishop of the West: "When I got into my missionary district, much to my horror, I found that there was no Indian work. Of course I started some at once. You have to have it in order to raise money in the East."

* * *

The work of the department of city missions, diocese of Maryland, is now under the direction of a committee headed by the Rev. Philip J. Jansen, until the successor to the late Rev. R. F. Humphries is secured.

* * *

The last word to be received in this office about the resignation of the Rev. Charles E. McAllister as the rector of St. Luke's, Evanston, is that he expects to leave Chicago very soon. His resignation was effective at once and the Rev. J. McNeal Wheatley, assistant, was made priest in charge until another rector is elected. It was emphatically denied that the sudden resignation was prompted by interference in parochial affairs by Bishop Stewart, rector of this parish for 26 years. Both Bishop Stewart and Dr. McAllister declared that their relationship had been the most friendly and cordial. Members of the vestry also denied this rumor. Beyond the statement that "differences of opinion between himself and his vestry" was the cause for the sudden resignation no positive information is available. Dr. McAllister was the rector of St. Luke's but ten months. He was seen at the Church Missions House, New York, a few days after his resignation and it was thought that he might be again returning to his old position as a member of the field department. This was denied however by officers of the National Council.

* * *

There is considerable to-do in the diocese of Newark over the election of a Bishop Coadjutor, which takes place on the 15th. Rumors are flying all over the place, with the names of the Rev. Appleton Lawrence of Providence and the Rev. Frederic Fleming of the Intercession, New York, most frequently heard.

* * *

Bishop Abbott of Lexington was the preacher last week at Old Saint Paul's, Baltimore.

* * *

There are enough news stories about George Washington services held on the 21st and 22nd of last month to fill a paper the size of the Sunday Times. Sorry, but there is but one thing to do when we get too much of one thing, no matter how good.

* * *

No less a person than the Archbishop of Canterbury made the following comment in a recent speech in England about his visit to the Near East:

"I was particularly struck by the kindliness and friendliness of our Armenian brethren, not least of the company of really fine-looking young men who are there being trained for the priesthood of the Armenian Church, particularly under the teaching and help of Canon Bridgeman, a member of the Episcopal Church of the United States, who is doing work

Two Panels of Great Te Deum Window

in the Church of St. Michael and All Angels

CHURCH FITTINGS

in

MARBLE - WOOD - STAINED GLASS - MOSAICS

BRONZE and WROUGHT IRON

Chalices and Communion Sets in Gold and Silver

THE GORHAM COMPANY

ECCLESIASTICAL STUDIOS

576 Fifth Ave. New York

MIDWEST REPRESENTATIVES

SPAULDING-GORHAM, INC.

MICHIGAN BOULEVARD—at Van Buren Street—CHICAGO, ILL.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Books
with a Lenten message

On Being Alive
by Walter Russell Bowie

For the six weeks in Lent here are six glowing chapters on "Being Alive to Truth," "to People," "to God," etc., with a powerful climax—"On Life After Life."
252 pages $2.00

Body, Mind and Spirit
by Elwood Worcester and Samuel McComb

The fruit of twenty-five years' experience in mental, spiritual and bodily healing. A helpful, reassuring and enormously interesting book.
367 pages $2.50

Portrait of a Carpenter
by Winifred Kirkland

"Brings an authentic illumination for our understanding of the mind and soul of the infinite Man of Nazareth."—WALTER RUSSELL BOWIE.
248 pages $2.00

The Meaning of the Cross
by Henry Sloane Coffin

"The most satisfying book of recent years on the Atonement. Every layman can read it from cover to cover without being baffled by a single sentence."—The New Chronicle (London).
Fourth Printing. 164 pages $1.50

Charles Scribner's Sons, New York

FOR THESE HARD TIMES, —A NEW RELIGIOUS NOVEL

The Macmillan Company of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel based on Scriptural "higher criticism," and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In THE LIVING CHURCH, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes, "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries."

The author, whose earlier volume, "Sociological Study of the Bible," is a standard work, says, "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature coming out of hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from the Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00—Advt.

of the greatest value in the Armenian Theological Seminary in Jerusalem."

Canon Bridgeman is supported by the Good Friday Offering.

* * *

The Teaching Mission on the Great Commission is under way in the diocese of New Jersey. A series of brief, intensive meetings is being held in every parish, each lasting three days. The purpose is to present in an attractive way the fundamental principles of Christian belief and practice and to teach definite, concrete facts about the work of the Church throughout the world. No effort is being made to raise funds. It is a teaching mission and not a campaign.

* * *

The Rev. Donald Aldrich, rector of the Ascension, New York, was the preacher at the annual service of the Church Mission of Help, held on February 28th at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

* * *

Depicting the history and progress of Christianity from its beginning to the present day, one of the tallest stained glass windows in any cathedral in the world has been installed in the apse of Washington Cathedral. The window is 65 feet high.

* * *

A mass meeting is to be held tonight at Holy Trinity, Philadelphia. The subject is announced as "The Call to Service" and the card informs me that it is a "joint service for Junior W. A.—G. F. S.—C. P. C.—St. B. G.—D. A. G.—D. K.—C. M. H.—Y. P. F.—W. A. and St. A. B." Now there is a chance for you to test your knowledge of Church organizations by translating into words those letters of the alphabet. They ought to offer a prize or something. The speakers are the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, Dr. William C. Sturgis and Miss Helen Littell.

* * *

Bishop Rowe of Alaska was the preacher last Sunday at St. James Church, New York.

* * *

The Faith and Youth program of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew has been translated into Japanese and was carried out in Tokyo the latter part of January. As a result 106 young Japanese signed forward step cards, including 47 non-Christian students asking for baptism.

* * *

Some time ago the diocese of Long Island contracted with the Church Life Insurance Corporation for group insurance on the lives of all the clergy of the diocese, the premium being paid by the diocese. The Rev. J. H. Heady, rector at Farmingdale, who died on February 19th, was the first to die in active service since the insurance was taken out. A check

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

FOR EASTER
Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.
ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY
Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.
Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.
BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP
Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts. Send for Prayer Book Circular 28.
The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. New York, N. Y.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

for $500, the amount of the insurance, was mailed to his widow the same day her husband died.

* * *

Bishop Sterrett of Bethlehem was the preacher last week at the noonday services at the Incarnation, New York. The preacher this week is the Rev. Henry Darlington of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, with the Rev. E. G. Lier of Tarrytown, New York, the following week. The Rector of the parish, the Rev. H. Percy Silver, is to be the preacher during Holy Week.

* * *

A record attendance of 100 per cent of the communicant strength of the parish was achieved in a mission held in St. Paul's, Coffeyville, Kansas, February 14th to 21st. The mission was conducted by the Rev. J. N. MacKenzie of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, and the Rev. O. F. Crawford of Pittsburg, Kansas. There was a grand choir composed of the choirs of churches in Independence, Sedan and Parsons.

* * *

Miss Grace Lindley, executive secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, spoke at a mass meeting of the Auxiliary of Rhode Island last week. Her subject was the "Place of women in the spread of the Church."

* * *

The diocese of Rhode Island has followed the example of the clergy of Massachusetts in accepting cuts in their salaries, the money to go to "281" to help toward the emergency fund of $400,000. A letter has been sent to all the clergy inviting them to send a pledge of a fraction of their salaries or income to the Presiding Bishop as an expression of brotherhood and loyalty. "Our thought", the letter reads, "is that the clergy of the Church are one great brotherhood; we are proud to be missionaries of the Church whether in China or Rhode Island. Must we not every one of us be willing to share this sacrifice of our brethren in the mission fields." The clergy pledge whatever they wish to the treasurer, the Rev. William Pressey, who keeps the information strictly confidential. The amount already received was telegraphed to Bishop Perry just before he sailed for Europe.

* * *

Roman Catholics and Jews are now cooperating in running the centre for the unemployed of Providence which was started early in the winter by our Church. Methodists, Baptists and Congregationalists some time ago joined in the endeavor. Among the interesting features of this enterprise is a barber shop, operated by men out of work; unemployed tailors and bootblacks also help pay for the privileges they enjoy by improving the appearance of their fellows.

* * *

A series of leadership training and life guidance conferences are being held on the Pacific Coast under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The leaders are the Rev. Irwin C. Johnson of the diocese of Michigan and Mr. Walter MacPherson, western representative of the Brotherhood. They got under way at the Cathedral, Los Angeles, on February 26th and 27th. On the 28th they were at San Diego and on the 29th at Redlands. On March 2nd they went to St. Mark's, Berkeley, and on the 3rd held a conference at St. Margaret's House. On the 4th and 5th they were at Trinity and at St. Paul's, San Francisco. They then moved up the coast to Oregon, with conferences at Eugene, Corvallis and Portland. On the 16th they opened the conferences in the diocese of Olympia, closing on the 19th with a conference at Trinity, Seattle.

* * *

Are you praying regularly for the World Disarmament Conference? It is vital certainly that we all do this. Here is a letter from Mrs. Robert B. Gregory of Chicago which contains a valuable suggestion.

"The eyes of all the world are largely turned toward Geneva, but would it not be well if we should lift up our prayers daily to the God of Peace and especially on every Sunday pray for the 'Family of Nations'.

"I asked the rector of Grace Church, Chicago, to use that prayer (p. 44 of the Prayer Book) and also the one for the 'Unity of God's People' (p. 37). He gladly did so, prefacing it with the words, 'Let us pray for the peace of the world'. This draws the special attention of the congregation to the share which each one can have in the work for Peace which we all desire."

* * *

A plan inaugurated about two years ago at St. Michael and All Angels' Church, Savannah, Ga., by the Rev. Joseph Burton, rector, to have Evensong conducted entirely by the young people themselves has proven most successful. They meet with the rector three or four times a week for rehearsals and, except for the choir, different ones are in charge of the service each Sunday.

* * *

The Rev. Walter C. Middleton has become the rector of Trinity, Watertown, New York.

* * *

The meeting of the House of Bishops in Garden City, April 26, 27

Impressions and Opinions

An Autobiography

By Rev. J. G. H. Barry, D.D.

Rector Emeritus of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York.

Cloth 12mo. Frontispiece $2.50

Dr. Barry's Autobiography is a most enjoyable and vivid picture of an interesting person. It rings true to the character of the man known as a great priest.

CHURCHLY EASTER CARDS

on sale from 5c upwards.

Spring catalogue on request.

Postage extra on all orders.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.

18 West 45th Street New York

Individually Tailored by American Craftsmen

VESTMENTS

FOR CLERGY AND CHOIR

EMBROIDERIES

ALTAR LINENS - - - - FABRICS

Custom Tailoring for Clergymen

The Lenten and Easter season is an especially appropriate time for procuring of new vestments. Orders placed now will receive the benefit of the special prices and discounts.

The house that has satisfactorily served the Church for half a century.

COX SONS & VINING, Inc.,

133 East 23rd Street, New York

OXFORD PRAYER BOOKS

Oxford Prayer Books and Hymnals—The Altar Service
The Bible, Apocrypha and Prayer Book in One Volume

At all booksellers, or from the publishers

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, 114 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

The School of
NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
Newark, N. J.

Fully Accredited School and Hospital.
High School graduates accepted.
Classes entering February. Enroll now.
Address
DIRECTOR, SCHOOL OF NURSING

and 28 is assured as more than the necessary number of acceptances have been received. One hundred bishops had indicated their intention of being present up to March 2nd.

* * *

The Rev. Henry Hale Gifford has resigned the rectorship of St. Andrew's, New Berlin, N. Y., effective this spring.

* * *

The Rev. Ernest W. Churchhill, Windsor, N. Y., has accepted the rectorship of Grace Church, Nyack, New York.

* * *

The Ven. V. G. Lowery has a notable record of twenty-one years as a diocesan missionary in Alabama. He went to Prattville in 1910 as a lay-reader and was ordained the following year. He built up the work until in a short time he was serving seven mission stations. He has never been the rector of a parish, and I take it does not want to be. But he has, during his ministry, served at different times twenty congregations in the mission field of the diocese. And that isn't all; he has played a large part in the affairs of the diocese, particularly as a member and as treasurer of the department of missions. He was largely responsible for wiping out a debt of the department which ran to $7,300. Ought to run his picture here but unfortunately we haven't one.

* * *

Two thousand sandwiches may not be the most important statistic in Bishop Jenkins' latest report of the missionary district of Nevada, but as a statistic it does stand out. The sandwiches were made by Miss Alice Wright, formerly of Alaska, now at Nixon, Nevada, and her cohort of helpers. The occasion was the opening and dedication of St. Joseph's Hall, now mission center and recreation room for the Indians around St. Mary's Mission. The need for such a place has been extremely pressing. As the Bishop wrote last year, gambling, drinking and promiscuous living have crept in among the Indians, to degrade and impoverish them, and the mission has been greatly hampered by having no recreation to offer them, no place for them to gather. Three hundred Indians attended the opening festivities, with a band, and everybody had a grand time. This was an Advance Work project.

* * *

About sixty university men on the staff of a wireless station near Tochigi, Japan, meet with the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Andrews once a week for English lessons. They have a fair knowledge of the language, and they are always ready to discuss Christianity with him from any standpoint and write him letters between sessions.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

NOW 10% EXTRA DISCOUNT ON ALL orders while present linen prices continue. Qualities unchanged. Samples and price-list of Pure Irish Linen for all Church uses sent free on request. New, complete Mackrille Handbook 50c. Mary Fawcett Co., 812 Berkeley Ave., Trenton, N. J.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Dr. Andrews has carried on evangelistic work in Japan since 1899. Another part of his work in and around Tochigi is with a class of high school teachers, to whom he is lecturing on the philosophy of Shakespear, a subject rich in Christian implications.

A third group includes a dozen or so men and women who have been led to the mission one by one through their individual problems and griefs. One is an artistic genius who fell into despair. One is a deserted wife. One was a would-be suicide rescued from the river with her dead baby. To them Dr. Andrews is giving a series of talks on the simple subject, "What is worth while?" The artist is learning to say "Our Father." The woman is finding new values in life. The girl has not missed a meeting.

* * *

Six babies arriving in one day, at St. James' Hospital, Anking, China, were too much for the already crowded wards, and the babies had to be kept in the operating room for several days. To perform operations surrounded by the squalls of this continent, Dr. Taylor says, was "interesting." Dr. Taylor has been in China since 1905.

* * *

An encouraging step forward in social service is the appointment of a full-time resident chaplain for the Mayo Hospitals in Rochester, Minnesota. He is one of our clergy, the Rev. George L. Brown. This has been a long-standing need, carried at first by the rector of Calvary Church, Rochester, the Rev. Guy Menefee, who is also social service chairman for the diocese. Then Mr. Brown did what he could from Chatfield, where he was rector, but this meant much loss of time in travel and less time for the hospital work than it required.

As chaplain he has been caring not only for Episcopal Church patients but for over 1,600 people, last year, who registered no church affiliation whatever. One man who was visited for six weeks asked to be referred to our rector in his home town when he left, and he and his wife have since been confirmed. Correspondence with clergy, to follow up contacts made at the hospital takes much of the chaplain's time. Sundays he looks after three near-by diocesan missions.

* * *

Did you notice in your February copy of the National Geographic an article on Tokyo Today, by the Hon. William R. Castle, Jr., assistant secretary of state? Mr. Castle is a new member of the National Council and of the Departments of Social Service and Foreign Missions. For many years he has been a member of the Commission on Ecclesiastical Relations.

Bishop Willis confired Mr. Castle years ago in Honolulu. His grandparents were missionaries there; not in the Church of England, however. Mr. Castle has told the story that on the night of his confirmation in the Cathedral, there was a prayer meeting of the group he was leaving who offered earnest prayer on behalf of the young man who was taking such a dubious step.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

At a meeting of the Bishop and Clergy of Long Island held on Monday, February 22d, 1932, at St. Thomas' Church, Farmingdale, L. I., the following resolution was adopted:

John Henry Heady, for twenty-seven years a faithful and devoted priest of the Church, has exercised a ministry marked by consecration and courage. He has ever shown that full sense of a priest's care for his people, giving himself in conscientious and indefatigable labors.

We rejoice in the witness which he bore, at times in difficult fields.

During an extended illness he has shown such a spirit of Christian fortitude as to inspire those who knew him.

We thank God for his life and service.

To his family and congregation we extend our sympathy, and rejoice that in his dying they have seen with us his living faith.

Committee:

Benjamin Mottram
Bayard H. Goodwin
Henry Mesier

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Stephen's, Chicago
The Little Church at the End of the Road
3533 N. Albany Avenue
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker
11 A. M. 4:30 P. M.

St. Luke's, Evanston
Charles E. McAllister, D.D.
Sundays: 7:30, 8:15, 11 and 4:30.
Daily: 7:30 and 5. From Chicago off at Main, one block east and one north.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Answer of the Dioceses

Cheering Messages Reveal Instant Co-operation Toward Completing $400,000 Emergency Offering On Or Before Whitsunday, May 15th

IF ALL will measure up to the earlier responses of the Dioceses we can save the missionary work of the Church and open the way to a genuine advance. Remember—the Budget has been cut by the National Council to a point that threatens wreckage. The Emergency Offering will restore nothing. It merely prevents further havoc after July 1st.

Says the Presiding Bishop:

"I ask every loyal member of the Church to consider seriously the great issues at stake and to take part in the effort which will be organized within each Diocese for the restoration and adequate support of the Church's Mission at home and throughout the world."

The following have pledged their full 1932 Quotas.

5 Dioceses:

Delaware
East Carolina
New Hampshire
Rhode Island
Southern Ohio

9 Domestic Districts:

Arizona
Eastern Oregon
Idaho
Nevada
North Dakota
Oklahoma
South Dakota
Utah
Western Nebraska

6 Overseas Districts:

Alaska
Canal Zone
Haiti
Honolulu
Porto Rico
Philippines

4 Foreign Districts:

Brazil
Cuba
Liberia
Mexico

Some Early Responses

Massachusetts—"The Brotherhood Fund." Led by the Bishop the clergy have contributed $28,000.00 from their salaries for the Deficiency Fund and hope to increase the sum.

Rhode Island—Has unhesitatingly followed the Massachusetts plan, reporting $4,000.00 contributed by its clergy and more to be added.

Chicago—The Bishop has appealed to the parishes to secure an additional $34,000.00 to be applied equally to the diocesan Missionary Budget and the Deficiency Fund of the General Church.

Albany—"Additional Missionary Gifts" have been asked for, $7,500.00 for the diocese and $10,000.00 for the Deficiency Fund of the General Church.

California—Did not wait to formulate plans or fix a goal but notified the Presiding Bishop that the contribution of California would be "as much and as quickly as possible."

Erie—Has launched a "Church Loyalty Fund" and aims at securing two hundred individual contributions of $50.00 each, and expects to "come through better fitted for greater tasks in the future."

Duluth—Speaks of the Deficiency Fund as "a challenge to the spiritual resources of the Church rather than a cause for discouragement . . . the outskirts are with you."

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MARCH 17, 1932

GOD'S OPPORTUNITY

By

BISHOP MORELAND

NEVER was a grander opportunity than now to fulfill the promises of Christ. People are disillusioned. The world offers fewer glittering and delusive prizes while the real values of life remain solid and unbroken. Men have been passing through a thrilling spiritual adventure. Deprived of profits, dividends, even of employment, they are rediscovering God. If we were really alive unto God we could win hundreds of our neighbors this year. The Church depends too much on money and machinery, too little on the persuasive power of love. Let us offer to our neighbors in need the unsearchable riches of Christ. Because the United States has suffered financially it has grown spiritually. Man's extremity is God's opportunity.

MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.

COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Cassocks

For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS

Altar linens, embroideries materials

Clerical and lay tailoring

J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS

"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze

Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request

ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS

The Pride of the Church

Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.

350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.

M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown, Maryland

J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS

NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

Stained Glass Artists

By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Craftsmen in Stained Glass

J. M. KASE STUDIOS

19. W. 8th St. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.

Established 1888

BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

R. GEISSLER, INC.

450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1867

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY · LTD

Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass

EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

A. R. MOWBRAY & CO., Ltd.

28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
CHOIR OUTFITS
Cassocks Surplices
Copes Chasubles
Stoles Veils Burses
Altar Linens
Metal Work Woodwork

Particulars from
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

BELLS CHIMES PEALS

Write for literature. Address Dept. 28
McSHANE BELL FOUNDRY, BALTIMORE, MD.

MENEELY BELL CO

TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO. BELLS

ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY

Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches

Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

The D'Ascenzo Studios

PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.

Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.

Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City.

Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability

Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
JOHN R. OLIVER
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI. No. 30 MARCH 17, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE GOAL OF CHRISTIANS

By

REINHOLD NIEBUHR
Professor at Union Theological Seminary

AN ABSOLUTELY Christian way out of the present dilemma of civilization would be for the rich and the powerful to divest themselves voluntarily of their special rights and privileges. Modern society has centralized power and privilege to such a degree that not only human and ethical values are imperiled but our social system has become economically unfeasible. There is too much wealth in production and too little for consumption. The workers can not buy the products which their hands produce. Thus we have poverty and want while our granaries are filled and our factories are glutted with unsold products. We will probably come out of this depression in time but the sorry cycle will begin again. Too much goods will be produced not for the needs of men but for their pocketbooks. We will again try to export more than we import but that game won't work very much longer because the world is becoming industrialized.

DR. NIEBUHR

Clearly the Christian way out of this difficulty is to develop toward an equalitarian society by voluntary sacrifice of those inordinate gains and those special privileges which now produce inequality in our society. Everyone knows however that it is impossible to secure such a voluntary sacrifice of rights on a large enough scale to build a new society. Even the philanthropy of Christian wealth, which the church frequently identifies rather uncritically with the love spirit of Christianity, usually falls short of what an adequate taxation program would produce. Only rarely is the religious spirit so pure and social imagination so perfect that men really sacrifice their rights for the sake of the needs of others. If this is not possible on a large scale there is no Christian way out. But there is a way out which may be mitigated and qualified by the Christian gospel and the Christian ethic.

THE way out is for the weak members of our society, the workers, to organize and use the economic and political strength of their combined efforts to create an equalitarian society. That method can hardly be called Christian. It is the method of social struggle. Unfortunately human beings, particularly in their group and collective activities, show no signs of developing a sufficient degree of ethical sensitivity to obviate the necessity of social coercion. The best we can do in terms of the Christian spirit is to prevent the social struggle from issuing into violence.

If the Christian church could analyse human nature more realistically than it does and thus reduce the moral conceit which obscures most selfish conduct the social struggle in society could be prevented from issuing into violence. Strong men would yield power and privileges, not without pressure; but they would at least not invite violence by an uncompromising insistence upon their rights and by the use of violence to maintain their rights. Unfortunately the dominant groups in society today, whether they call themselves Christian or not, use the police power of the state and even avail themselves of extra-legal violence and coercion whenever their special privileges are threatened.

A nation which does not have the social intelligence to adopt an adequate social insurance program in the third winter of depression, is far from a Christian solution of the social program. It is so far from that goal that realistic Christian leaders will have to begin at the very beginning in creating a Christian spirit which expresses itself in ethical terms relevant to the needs of an industrial civilization. Every bit of social repentance and social imagination which the church can create is valuable. But we ought not to delude ourselves into believing that we can make men sufficiently unselfish to obviate the necessity of social coercion. If we can produce more ethical self-restraint and self-criticism we can prevent society from sinking into chaos but we can not overcome the need of using social force to level down privilege and power. Society is still "the world" in the old Christian sense of that term and can be only partially Christianized if we mean by "Christian" anything faintly approaching the gospel ethic.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

MARY K. SIMKHOVITCH

Head Resident of Greenwich House, New York

IT IS impossible for anyone to be wholly Christian in an unChristian world. We do not live in a vacuum, but we are beset by forces and patterns of life which largely determine our actions. It is impossible for the world to become Christian without the existence of individual Christians, but it is equally impossible for individual Christians to be anything but "sinners" in an unChristian society. We thus live in a continual clash and tension, and no sooner does one conflict resolve than another appears. In fact, our life consists in the passage through one conflict to another. The Christian way out, is, therefore, an ever evolving process. It does not consist of an absolute set of regulations, but it is the ever closer approach to that society dominated by love which alone can be called Christian.

MRS. SIMKHOVITCH

This vital connection between the individual and society is very irksome to the individual. In his desperate search for perfection he is tempted to set himself apart, to use his margin of freedom in acquiring for himself the life he desires. But this is an abandonment of the problem. A piety that turns its back on the world is a subtle denial of the Incarnation. The monk and the conscientious objector alike, can and do justify their isolation and exemption from the common life and fate only by the service their special function renders society.

For the individual must obey God first, and society only secondarily. No society has a right to the unlimited obedience of its members. But this primary duty of man to obey his conscience, rather than the state, also calls upon man to express their convictions within the structure of the state. For the state has a claim to loyalty which cannot be set aside, except in the interest of a higher loyalty. An age long contest exists between church and state, between conscience and government, for supremacy. There is a certain irony in the fact that the 100% Americans who oppose anyone who places God higher than the state, are the very people who are so horrified by the Russian doctrine of the supremacy of the state. We can hardly, therefore, refuse to allow a man the title, "Christian", if he is one of this conforming number. For the light of the Christian ideal is bound to be deflected by the material of human life and history.

BUT society changes when new factors appear within the social structure, and when new activities are developed by individual members of society. There is a permanent inter-relationship of the individual and the social structure. The impact of each on the other effects a constant change, and the "believer", the convinced man, the conscientious objector of any kind, plays a great role in this change. Christians-in-the-making are egged on by those of loftier standard, but they cannot be forced to standards beyond them.

In social life, also, force, "putting over" a policy on those whose choice is not in agreement with that policy, is not the way out. The prohibition law is an example of the attempt to force a conduct which is unacceptable to a large group. The consent of the governed has to be more than a majority vote to be effective.

Thus, too, divorce, which may well be refused by the Church as a way out of family difficulties, must be allowed by the state in order not to force a standard wholly unacceptable to the great mass of the state's citizens. Forcing people to stay together doesn't work, and is wrong. Voluntary acceptance of a law above the state's is the Christian way.

WE MAY not know the way out of this economic crisis in detail, but certain basic facts are clear to us. To the Christian, the motive of private profit is unworthy and to put it bluntly, sinful. To the Christian, everything is God's. All that we earn or make is not for ourselves. It is the motive of private profit that stains our civilization, and that must be replaced by a social motive. How to effect this change, is the question. But force is not allowed us. There must either be a change of motive or a breakdown of our present system that will lead to a different order, or both. We see indications of both these changes.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Christian holds that primary human needs must be met by society. In one way or another, society must look after its feeblest, and incompetent or most unfortunate members. Even the poorhouse is a primary, if crude, witness of this conviction. The fact that millions of unemployed must resort to relief for lack of opportunity to work, is the gravest criticism of our social economic order.

Pending more fundamental social and economic changes, a system by which those of the greatest wealth pay proportionately heavier income taxes than those in the lower income groups, would seem equitable. It would indeed be a satisfaction if people would voluntarily choose to make this sacrifice. We ought to expect this of wealthy Christians. But the story of the camel and the eye of the needle confronts us with its tragic truth.

Another obligation for Christians as employers is to render to wage earners services such as old age and unemployment insurance. Such insurance ought to be a normal charge on industry. The public conscience is being aroused in regard to this obligation, and legislation recognizing this claim is pending in many states.

To the Christian, forgiveness is not a sentimental attitude, but rather a plain duty. I cannot believe the Christian way out can indicate anything less in our foreign relations, than a cancellation of all foreign war debts to us. The misery of the world demands it, common sense demands it.

As war is unChristian, every Christian should work for disarmament. The money used for national armaments, released for domestic expenditure, would also doubtless assist in economic recovery.

The Christian way out, means, then, the substitution of the motive of common welfare for the motive of private profit, and the securing of steps for bringing about such a change, both in industry and in the social structure as a whole. It means a greater sense of communal responsibility, a greater attitude of friendliness toward other nations, including as the first practical step a cancellation of war debts. The transformation of society until it becomes synonymous with the Kingdom of God, is the Christian's aim. But the fact that this is an infinite process does not excuse us from meeting the obvious and primary opportunities of today.

These primary steps are accepted by many who do not claim the Christian name, or know the way as such. What about us who claim the Christian name, but who fail to walk in the Way?

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Have members illustrate the "clashes" between Christian ethics and accepted standards.
2. Is the first obligation of the Christian to the will of God as he understands it or to the state?
3. Do you agree that the motive of private profit is sinful?
4. Make up a list of practical steps that might be taken in the next few years that would make for a more Christian social order.
5. Do you agree that voluntary sacrifice to right injustices and inequalities is too much to expect?
6. Do you feel that the method of social struggle, as indicated by Dr. Niebuhr, falls short of the Christian ideal?
7. Is the use of violence unChristian?
8. If so do you consider a boycott, such as Nationalists in India use against England, and China uses against Japan, to be wrong?
9. Dr. Niebuhr says that dominant groups in society today use violence when their privileges are threatened. Have members of the class give instances if possible.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

VI. An Early Christian

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IF YOU had lived in Rome about 100 A. D. what would have been the religious opportunities which would have presented themselves to you? In the first place as a loyal citizen of Rome you would have taken part in the Emperor worship which was the national religion. Nobody believed in it but everyone found it to their advantage to practice it. At the public games, at the theatre, at a banquet, at a civic gathering you would have participated in the rites which proclaimed the divinity of emperors, past and present.

In addition to that you would have had a choice of attendance upon the rather questionable practices of oriental religions; or the secret rites of Mithra; ōr the philosophical theories of the Stoics or the Epicureans. It was a jumble of curious theories, of ritualistic practices and of sensual indulgences. None of these religions had much to do with the morals of the individual. Philosophers, like Seneca, propounded high sounding phrases which had little or nothing to do with their private practices.

Like the Centurion of the Gospels you might have turned to Judaism and have become a proselyte of the gate, but the Jews were exceedingly unpopular throughout the Empire.

In such a quandary you might have heard of the Christians. You would have been told that they were haters of mankind, joykillers who absented themselves from all those social functions which were so essential to the welfare of the Empire, but so impossible for Christians.

Perhaps eventually you would be approached by some cautious friend who would tell you about this new faith. But there were stories about the awful rites in which a child was sacrificed and where they fed on human flesh. Rome was full of cerdulous people who would believe anything about those whom they hated.

Finally some friend would offer to take you to one of their meetings under pledge of secrecy. Possibly you would be taken to the cemetery and conducted to an underground room in the catacombs, dimly lighted by candles and oil lamps. There you would hear expounded the life of Jesus and the obligations which that life had placed upon His disciples. You would learn that in order to belong to the Church you must for a period of months receive instruction, after which you would be baptized and then confirmed. Up to this time you would not be permitted to remain for a celebration of the Holy Communion, but would be required to leave at a certain part of the service. But finally having received the laying on of hands you would be admitted to the sacrament of the altar, and would then understand the basis of those stories that Christians ate human flesh.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

All of this time you would be liable to become the victim of a malicious neighbor who might inform the Roman officials that you were participating in the rites that had been forbidden by the Roman state. If you were thus suspected you would be arrested and required to offer incense to a statue of the emperor and to repudiate your allegiance to Christ. From time to time you would hear that some of your companions had been arrested and had been sacrificed to the lust of the Roman mob for human victims.

It wasn't exactly easy to be a Christian in those days and the Church was not much bothered with social climbers. Nor was it divided as yet into many sects, each demanding that its own particular dogmas be accepted.

What then was the Church at this period? It was essentially a secret society with its officers whom we learn from St. Ignatius were called bishops and presbyters and deacons. There was no Sunday holiday but these Christians used to meet in the early morning, since that was the safest time, to celebrate the Lord's supper, and particularly did they assemble for this purpose on the first day of the week. The Christians had ceased to observe Saturday in order that they might not be looked upon as a Jewish sect. They selected Sunday, the day of the Resurrection, when God had finished the creation of a new heaven and a new earth, in which all things were to become new. Of course there was no Lord's Day observed by the Roman people. Sunday was like any other day, and until the edict of Milan in the days of Constantine there was no day of public worship in the Roman Empire.

There was no New Testament in the year 100 although the various books which composed it were in existence. However the teaching was oral. It was not safe to have written documents and while the churches in Rome might have a gospel or two and a few epistles they would be jealously guarded and deposited in secret archives.

The thing that would have impressed you however would have been the solidarity of the Church and the solemn obligations which it required of those who had been received into its communion. Like the early Christians they continued in the Apostles doctrine and fellowship, although all the Apostles had gone to their reward. They faithfully observed the Breaking of Bread and, as Justin Martyr tells us a little later, they had a liturgy which they devoutly observed.

There were no church buildings, no conventions, no public demonstrations. There were bishops but they wore no insignia of office and performed their rites in secret. Yet it was this secret organization scattered throughout the empire, meeting in all sorts of curious places, composed of artisans, women, children and slaves which kept the faith and passed it on to succeeding generations.

For three hundred years the Church had to exist sub rosa. While there were periods during those three centuries in which the Church dared to come out in the open, yet the time inevitably came when persecution was renewed.

The persecutions of these centuries may be divided into three groups. During the first century it was the contemptuous anger of a great beast at the little insects who were annoying its comfort. There was no studied persecution during this period but rather an occasional outburst of hate and cruelty. But as time went on the anger of the empire increased and under such emperors as Marcus Aurelius the Christians were regarded as inimical to the welfare of Rome and they were systematically persecuted as obstinate fanatics. But it was in the third period that the empire viewed with rage the growth of Christianity and attempted a systematic destruction of its leaders and its literature.

It was not until Constantine won his imperial laurels, largely with the aid of Christians, that the state recognized the Church and the imperial family interested itself in its welfare. In many ways this last condition was worse than the first, for the Church under imperial favor attracted a type of disciples who lacked the sincerity and courage of the early martyrs.

The beast had failed to destroy the Church; it now proceeded to corrupt its personnel, and the evils attendant upon a union of Church and state began to be manifest. But from the days of the Apostles down to the year 310 the Church had overcome the world by virtue of the courage and zeal of a long line of martyrs, who patiently bore witness to Christ. Whatever happened during these three centuries the Church was not corrupted by the time serving mercenaries of the succeeding period.

(To be continued)

Choir Offices

By

IRWIN ST. JOHN TUCKER

A YOUNG priest was bewailing the architecture of his church — complete in every detail — because there was no room for a prayer desk in the choir. The stalls came close to the wall that separated the chancel from the nave.

"What do you want it for?" I asked. He seemed surprised. "Why, so that I can say Morning and Evening prayer" he replied. "Those are the ancient choir offices."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

To this I dissented. Morning and evening prayer are not "ancient choir offices"; they are not " a rehash of ancient monastic forms of prayer". They are the method whereby the congregation of the average church today offers prayer and thanksgiving. Where the compilers of the various books got their ideas from is of no consequence whatever. "The living, the living shall praise thee" says the psalm. The people in your church today are doing the worshiping.

So I suggested that he try the modern idea of considering that the normal place of a priest is at the altar, and that if the absolution is declared from the steps of the altar—as it should be—both choir and congregation will be before him as he delivers it. The sentences and the exhortation may well be delivered by a lay-reader from the choir stalls, while the priest stands facing the altar. He should kneel on the altar steps to say the confession, with the people; and then rise, turn to the people and the choir, if there is one, and declare God's pardon.

I have often wanted to insert the words "of you" in this Declaration; thus: "He pardoneth and absolveth those of you who truly repent, and unfeignedly believe his holy Gospel;" with the sign of the cross. Some time I shall. I wish the Church would authorize it; it adds so much power to the declaration.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

Washington a Deist?

THE Washington Bicentennial is on—commencing with his birthday on Feb. 22 and continuing until next Thanksgiving Day. No doubt most Episcopal congregations heard him extolled as a Christian and a Churchman on some Sunday last month. His Christianity has been called in question by a certain stripe of writers lately. He has been called a Deist.

Now, Deism was a vague sort of thing which cropped up in England toward the close of the seventeenth century beginning with the writings of a man named Lord Herbert of Cherbury. It ran through many variations, claiming such men as John Locke, Matthew Tindal, Shaftesbury, Bolingbroke. Its best known advocates in England were Hume and Gibbon. It travelled over to France where it went to still further extremes in Voltaire and the Encyclopedists, finally running off into a materialistic Positivism.

Puritanism was in its most violent mood at the time Deism came in the field. Many intelligent people were disturbed, disquieted, or disgusted with the perpetual squabbling. Deism was an attempt to rise above the bickering by an appeal to religion interpreted in the terms of natural science. Lord Herbert laid down "Five Articles" as the basis of his system—(1) there is one supreme God, (2) who is to be worshipped, (3) the principal part of worship is piety and virtue, (4) repentance for sins and pardon, (5) future rewards and punishments. Most of these early Deists considered that God had created the world and then let it alone to go on its own way. There was quite a difference among them about Providence—that is, whether or not God exercised any influence on the course of human events. The term "Providence" representing God in His relation to human affairs was constantly discussed. As time went on the Deists went in for a study of other great religions and developed a critical examination of the Holy Scriptures. Some of them opposed the Church, some supported it. Some declared their adherence to Christianity, others became very antagonistic toward it. They came to be called Freethinkers. In France they went in for an increasingly materialistic, non-religious way of thinking. Of course the influence of it all came over to the American colonies, at first in its more gentle English form and, after the French Revolution, in its more radical and aggressive French development. Tom Paine was its most noted exponent in this country. Jefferson and Franklin were much under its spell.

No doubt this is the reason for Washington's repeated references to Divine Providence in his public utterances. Perhaps it also had something to do with the formal restraint which characterized his religious attitude—tho that was also a natural part of the man. But to draw a line marking him off as a Deist and not a Christian is absurd. For twenty years a vestryman, actively sharing in the Church's work, remarkably regular in public worship, a personal friend of rectors and bishops—these are the marks of a Churchman.

One might draw a parallel with Humanism today. It is a formless thing, differing greatly with different Humanist writers. But it is much discussed and read about. You can find many an intelligent man who discusses it, uses its phrases, recognizes what virtues it has but who lives the life of an honest, sincere Churchman at the same time. He would laugh at you if you were to denominate him a Humanist and not a Christian. George Washington was not a pious saint but he was an honest Churchman.

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. Auguste Demant

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

FINE EDUCATIONAL WORK OF CHURCH IN THE HOLY LAND

By G. W. Browning

From the Rev. Charles T. Bridgeman, the Episcopal Church's educational chaplain in Jerusalem, comes a copy of Falastin, Palestine newspaper and Arab national organ, English edition. It contains an article about St. George's School for Boys, in Jerusalem, a Church of England missionary institution founded in 1899.

In spite of the fact that the article is a frank appeal for funds for building and repairs, the newspaper editor gave it nearly a full page, and he said in introduction to it:

"We cannot at this stage pronounce any verdict on schools which are based on religious principles but at the same time it would be foolish to deny that Palestine has got most of its education from such schools. And among these institutions St. George's School certainly comes first.

"The headmaster out of modesty has not given us the list of prominent old boys. If he had, one would have found that most of those who lead today the political, educational and social movements of non-Christian Palestine have had their lesson from this Christian school."

In the article the Headmaster says: "St. George's is emphatically a Christian school, but with equal emphasis it must be stated that no attempt is made to proselytise from other Christian bodies, and no undue pressure is ever brought to bear on any non-Christian to change his religion."

Most of the Palestine schools are either wholly Arab or wholly Jewish or Christian or Moslem. St. George's welcomes all alike, discountenancing religious or political controversy.

Last year, of the 234 boys, 63 were boarders. One household included 2 Church of England, 4 Jews (2 Palestinian, 1 English, 1 Russian), 1 Armenian Christian, 34 Arab Christians (25 Orthodox, 1 Uniat, 8 Protestant), 20 Arab Moslems, and 2 Persian Bahais. In the whole school there were over 80 Greek Orthodox, 78 Moslems, 9 Assyrians, 5 Roman Catholics.

The linguistic problem is complicated, as may be imagined. All the boys must know Arabic and English. The first four primary classes are taught in Arabic, and English is used for the rest. They learn it. Last year there was a little Jewish boy who knew only Hebrew and French, and another who knew only Hebrew and Russian. Now they both know English and Arabic as well. And the two little English boys chatter colloquial Arabic like natives. Not a dull institution, one would say.

This bringing together into one harmonious household the jarring racial and religious discords of Palestine is symbolic of the Church's mission there.

* * *

Is it worth while to leave a small legacy to the Church's missionary work if one cannot leave a large amount? A note from the English diocese of Borneo tells what was accomplished in an S. P. G. mission there with a legacy of less than $2,000. It added a much needed extension to the church and rebuilt the ant-eaten belfry, provided a water supply for the girls' school where every bit of water had been carried by hand, paid a debt that remained from enlarging the school and a debt on the priest's house.

* * *

A little naked boy was picked up less than twenty years ago by the S. P. G. missionary in North Borneo. The child's father, a Chinese pepper planter, and his mother, a Dyak woman, had both died of smallpox. Neighbors were feeding the child but no one felt the slightest responsibility for him beyond this. The mission clothed and educated him, he graduated from the Divinity College, and about a year ago was ordained and became the missionary's curate, able to minister acceptably to the European congregation, and to preach in English.

* * *

We have an immediate contact with the English Church's work in Borneo and reason to be thankful for it, because our American mission in Zamboanga finds several Chinese Church people who have come from Borneo and other neighboring Church of England fields. The mission in Zamboanga is making a beginning at work for the Chinese in addition to its long continued work for foreigners and Filipinos.

* * *

From a student hostel in Tokyo an English missionary writes: "We feel more than ever the witness of Christian worship to be the greatest power in leading enquirers to our Lord. Numbers of college students come to our Bible classes, but because they live at a distance we cannot persuade them to come to the church here, and it is difficult to get them to go to churches near their homes where they have no Christian friends. The result is that after a certain point they advance no further.

"On the other hand, students who live with us and can attend the services go on steadily advancing towards a real faith in our Lord as God and Saviour. They feel Him to be present and they come to Him simply, without being kept back by the intellectual doubts which hinder others."

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

The clergy this summer are to be given a chance to get in on the summer school in Cincinnati, hitherto conducted by Dr. William S. Keller only for qualified seminarians. The course, running from July 11th to the 29th, has been arranged in response to frequent requests from many parsons. Three days each week will be devoted to lectures and to inspections of social service agencies and institutions. The remaining days will be devoted to rest, relaxation and study, depending I take it, on the man. The cost is $9.50 for board and room, plus carfare and laundry and incidentals, which Dr. Keller announces will be fully $10 more, indicating possibly that incidentals come high in Cincinnati. If you want to go you must have a college and a seminary degree, and you must be "young spiritually and intellectually and able to assimilate new ideas readily" which all seems fair enough. Application blanks may be secured from the social service executive of the diocese of Southern Ohio, the Ven. Joseph T. Ware, 223 West 7th Street, Cincinnati.

* * *

Several hundred men and boys participated in the leadership training conferences held recently in Los Angeles under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. They opened up with a dinner at which there were speeches by Bishop Gooden and Dean Harry Beal. Also one by the star of the conference, the Rev. Irwin C. Johnson, director of boy's and young people's activities in the diocese of Michigan, imported for the occasion. One of the features of the affair was the gathering of forty clergymen to discuss the work with youth.

* * *

The Church Congress is to meet in Hartford from April 26 to the 29th and there will probably be flocks of bishops there, at least the last day, since it comes about the same time as the meeting of the House of Bishops in Garden City, bringing over a hundred of them to this part of the country. Here is the program: "Should the Church Sanction the remarriage of the divorced?" with papers by Bishop McDowell, Bishop Page and the Rev. John Mockridge of Philadelphia. "What should be the relation of the Church to economic change?" with papers by Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., Mary Van Kleeck of the Russell Sage Foundation and the Rev. J. Howard Melish. "Did Christ Teach Pacifism?", Bishop Hobson and the Rev. A. L. Kinsolving. "Should the Church allow the election of bishops from one diocese to another?"

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

with papers by Professor J. H. Beale of Harvard and the Rev. J. R. Crosby of Seaford, Delaware. "What figure of Christ emerges from New Testament criticism?", Professor Easton of the General, Professor Hatch of Cambridge and Dean Nes of New Orleans? "Should there be a final court of appeals in doctrinal matters?", Dean Washburn of Cambridge, Mr. Origen Seymour of New York and Professor Foley of Philadelphia. "Is religion necessary for a high morality?", Bishop Booth of Vermont and the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins of Philadelphia.

* * *

The social service commission of the diocese of Pittsburgh has arranged for a representative of the commission to help in each of the districts of the city of Pittsburgh with the work of the federation of social agencies and the emergency association.

* * *

The Rev. Thomas H. Clough of the diocese of Western New York died in Buffalo on March 2nd. Mr. Clough, in spite of the "Rev." was a Buffalo business man. For many years he served the Indians on the reservation at Irving, N. Y. as a layreader. As a recognition of this service he was ordained a deacon in 1922 by Bishop Brent. He continued to serve them up to the time of his death, in his 84th year.

* * *

The Woman's Auxiliary of Chicago, through their president, Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson, is getting steamed up over a course of study that is being given at Columbia University, New York. It seems that Mrs. Williamson read about it in the papers. So she wrote Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler to find out if Columbia was allowing "free love" to be taught. She received the answer that only two days out of two years' work are given over to a discussion of the problems of the family and marriage, and that there is no course on "free love" and that no such doctrine is taught. Not satisfied, Mrs. Williamson, with the approval of the Chicago Auxiliary, is seeking further information.

If it is true that but two days out of a two years' course is given to a discussion of marriage and its problems, one would think that the young people were allowed to graduate sufficiently ignorant on the subject to satisfy anybody. I am writing these notes in a stuffy hotel room in a far distant city and therefore away from my files, but as I recall it the Auxiliary in Denver after considerable study on the part of a distinguished committee, reported that what is needed, to make for better homes and more permanent marriages, is more information rather than less. I know as little about the Chicago Auxiliary as they do about Columbia University, but it does seem rather silly for them to break into the newspaper headlines with a denunciation of a great University when they are a thousand miles away from the scene.

* * *

"The Girl and the Machine Age" is to be the subject discussed at a conference of the Girls' Friendly Society to be held in Philadelphia May 15 to 19 at the time of the National Council of Social Work. The leader is to be Mary Van Kleeck, director of the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation.

* * *

The Church has lost one of her true saints in the death in St. Louis of Carroll M. Davis. Dean Davis, for many years the dean of Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, until recently was in charge of domestic missions of the National Council. With the reorganization that took place a year or so ago in the affairs of the National Council Dean Davis stepped out to make room for the new department of domestic missions, headed by Bishop Creighton. He then returned to St. Louis to be a canon of the Cathedral where he served so many years as dean. He was the secretary of the House of Deputies and was known throughout the Church for his saintliness and for his genial and encouraging word to all those laboring for the Kingdom of God.

* * *

Two fine churches in suburban Philadelphia were opened for services recently on the same day; Trinity, Swarthmore and St. Michael's, Yeadon. The new church at Swarthmore is the first of a group of three buildings which will eventually be erected on this property. St. Michael's was erected as a gift of Mrs. John A. Brown, communicant. It is a chapel of St. Mark's, Philadelphia.

* * *

The Hon. Clinton Rogers Woodruff, social service expert who was recently appointed director of public welfare for the city of Philadelphia, shared the program with the Rev. Rankin Barnes at a meeting of the clerical brotherhood held in the Church House, Philadelphia, on February 29th.

* * *

Are there any of you who would like to place yourselves unarmed between the Chinese and Japanese combatants? Maude Royden, popular English preacher, Canon Sheppard, formerly of St. Martins-in-the-Field, and Herbert Gray, British lecturer who is well-known in America, have issued a statement that this is the only effective way of stopping the fighting in Shanghai. "We have written the League of Nations," reads a statement from them, "offering ourselves for service in such a peace army." They say that they will gladly keep the names and addresses of any volunteering for this service and will keep them informed of further developments. They say that they are convinced that advocates of peace should act and not leave the matter entirely to experts. Might be a lot of fun but how are we to get there? Of course there is always Mr. Ford.

* * *

The Rev. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church, New York, delivered the noonday Lenten Services last week in Washington, under the auspices of the Federation of Churches.

* * *

St. Paul's, the oldest church in New York, dating back to pre-Revolutionary times, still maintains many of the ancient British church customs. Last Sunday, for example, was "Mothering Sunday," when each child received flowers and cakes to take home to their mothers.

* * *

The Rev. John Rathbone Oliver, Baltimore, was the preacher last week at the Transfiguration, New York.

* * *

The Rev. Charles H. Boynton, retired professor of the General Seminary, is to be the director of the Wellesley Conference this year. The chaplain is to be the Rev. Benjamin M. Washburn, rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston.

* * *

The Hon. Samuel B. Coffin of Hudson, N. Y., has been appointed chancellor of the diocese of Albany by Bishop Oldham. Judge Coffin is a vestryman and a member of the standing committee.

* * *

The Rev. W. J. Gardner, rector of

NOTICE

MAY we again call the attention of all those who are receiving this paper at their parish churches to the business reply card enclosed in all bundle orders this week. Many bundles are ordered merely for the Lenten season, to be discontinued after the Easter Number of next week. Inquire if this is so at your parish. Use the postal only if it is to be no longer possible for you to secure THE WITNESS at your church. We want you to have the paper each week throughout the year. Buy it at the church if possible. However, if it is not to be on sale there after Easter use the card so that the paper may be mailed directly to your home. The series of articles on "The Story of the Church" is to be continued for some weeks, together with other features to be announced presently.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

St. Paul's, Flatbush, Long Island, and his assistant, the Rev. H. S. Olafson, have voluntarily surrendered ten per cent of their salaries for this year to help the effort being made by the Council to raise $400,000.

* * *

One hundred and two were recently presented to Bishop Stires for confirmation at the Cathedral, Garden City, Long Island.

* * *

A cable from Bishop Graves of Shanghai reports that St. John's University and St. Mary's Hall, both in Shanghai, are not operating at present because of disturbed conditions. He reports that they may open on April first—if not, then in September.

* * *

The fifth province has launched their drive for $78,000 which they hope to raise toward the $400,000 deficit fund for the work of the National Church. This amount represents the difference between the payments to the Council in 1931 and the pledges of 1932. This decision was arrived at the other day at a conference held in Chicago at which the crisis in Council affairs was presented by the Rev. B. H. Reinheimer executive secretary of the field department of the Council. There were all sorts of suggestions offered. Here are some of them: that a percentage of the open offering in each church be sent to the National Council throughout the year; that a tenth of the Easter offering be sent; that specific items in the budget be assigned to different parishes thus humanizing the appeal; release the children's Lenten offering as a part of the parish quota and designate it for the deficit; get the vestrymen into a huddle and impress them with the seriousness of the situation; cash in on Washington's Bicentennial by special services, with offerings (to some apparently George has a stronger appeal than Jesus Christ); let the women do it through the Auxiliary; and a special Whitsunday offering. Well there is choice enough certainly. A province-wide day of intercession on Maundy Thursday will be observed if plans discussed at the conference are carried out.

* * *

Dean W. H. Nes of New Orleans, speaking at the Lenten Services at the Garrick Theatre, Chicago, stated that great obligations face the Church. These include the development of a better relationship between men and women; better relations in industry; amalgamation of varied nationalities in the nation and the injection of Christian principles into international relations.

* * *

The Rev. William Norman Guthrie said in his sermon last Sunday at St. Mark's, New York, that many of the misunderstandings of Scripture came from the fact that people do not appreciate the wit of Jesus. "He said some wonderfully witty things. He made jokes to make his enemies unhappy and to silence them. That is the best way."

* * *

The Chicago clergy honored two veterans at their Round Table Meeting held last Monday at Grace Church, Oak Park. They were the Rev. H. L. Cawthorne, who is retiring as the rector of St. Luke's, and the Rev. S. R. S. Gray, the retired rector of St. James', Dundee. Mr. Cawthorne has been in the ministry fifty-one years and Mr. Gray forty-seven.

* * *

Churches in Brooklyn have been active for peace. The Federation of

FROM MACMILLAN'S SPRING LIST

LIBERATING THE LAY FORCES OF CHRISTIANITY
By JOHN R. MOTT

The value of the layman in the church of today forms the subject of this book by the chairman of the World's Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. The book offers a range of constructive ideas that is of value to every progressive minister and layman. $2.00

THE EXCELLENT BECOMES THE PERMANENT
By JANE ADDAMS

A series of addresses in which the distinguished founder of Hull House and recent Nobel Prize Winner sums up her credo. Originally delivered in honor of various people connected with Miss Addams' great work, the chapters are unified by their discussion of the problem of a future life. $1.75

FAITH, HOPE and CHARITY in PRIMITIVE RELIGION
By R. R. MARETT

Hope, fear, lust, cruelty, faith, admiration, conscience, curiosity and charity—what is their part in the pre-history of religion? Dr. Marett views primitive religion in its development toward morality and writes an important book on the emotions and institutions of early man. $3.00

THE DAY OF WORSHIP
Edited by W. W. DAVIS

This is an answer to the question: what is sane Sunday observance? The authors of this book, leaders in the Protestant churches and in the professional life of this country, view the problem from all angles and give a series of unbiased, deeply thoughtful opinions. $1.00

PERSONAL PROBLEMS OF CONDUCT AND RELIGION
By J. G. McKENZIE

Nervous troubles, moral conflicts, religious doubts, are dealt with here by the author of "Souls in the Making," whose years of experience as a spiritual adviser have given him a unique grasp of the subjects on which he writes. $1.25

THE MASTERY OF SEX Through Psychology and Religion
By LESLIE D. WEATHERHEAD
Author of "Psychology in Service of the Soul"

DR. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON writes: "I think it far and away the best book dealing with that extremely difficult subject from the Christian and scientific point of view that I have seen. It would do no end of good if it could be widely and wisely read."

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY writes: "The best and bravest effort I have read to put into practice the now almost universally accepted theory that instruction in matters of sex should be open, full and fearless." $2.00

THE APPROACH TO RELIGIOUS EDUCATION
By BASIL A. YEAXLEE

"There are many wise and useful things said in these lectures. . . . The book is both suggestive and inspiring."—Expository Times.

"It is what many of us have been looking for for years; a foundation for a good Religious Education theory . . . it is tightly packed and profound."—The Rev. John W. Suter, Jr. $1.50

THE DISCOVERY OF GOD
By JAMES H. SNOWDEN

The word "Discovery" is the key-note of the book. Dr. Snowden begins with the universal urge toward discovery and traces it to its final goal in the discovery of God. "He guides as one who absolutely knows the path, and holds the reader's confidence on every page."—G. Walter Fiske. $2.00

LYRA MYSTICA: An Anthology of Mystical Verse
Edited by CHARLES CARROLL ALBERTSON
With an Introduction by DEAN INGE

A world anthology of mystical verse from all ages. Fully indexed. Printed on thin paper. $3.00

Prices subject to change. At all Bookstores

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY NEW YORK
Chicago Boston Atlanta Dallas San Francisco

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Churches of the city has a committee on the disarmament conference with which 138 churches have expressed their desire to cooperate. Thirteen activities have been suggested—petitions, sermons, writing congressmen, posters, outside speakers, study groups, peace pageant, united peace service, distribute literature, peace lessons in Sunday school—and there are three Episcopal Churches on the honor roll for having pushed many of these enterprises. Holy Trinity has done twelve of them; Grace Church, Jamaica, and St. Philips have carried on nine of the activities.

* * *

The Rev. James B. Gibson, rector of Trinity Church, Covington, Kentucky, died on March 6th. He was 48 years old.

* * *

The commission on Church drama and pageantry and the Morehouse Publishing Co. are jointly offering prizes of $50, $25 and $10 for plays and dramatic services suitable for presentation in churches or parish houses. If you are interested you may secure the rules of the competition from the department of religious education, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

* * *

An interparochial normal school has been held at St. Paul's, Augusta, Ga., lead by Mrs. J. W. Griffeth, executive secretary of religious education in the diocese.

* * *

Trinity, Boonville, N. Y., has received a gift from the estate of a man outside the parish. This is the fourth received in recent years from persons entirely outside its membership.

* * *

The Rev. MacVeigh Harrison, Order of the Holy Cross, conducted a preaching mission at Christ Church Cathedral, New Orleans, February 14th to 28th. A feature of the affair was a young people's mission which was attended by large numbers.

* * *

The men's club of St. Paul's, Watertown, N. Y., each Sunday evening, is presenting a dramatization of some religious topic. The scene is the rector's study where a lawyer, a business man, an insurance man and several other churchmen talk over matters. They are packing them in. Whether they are using Dr. Atwater's "Episcopal Church" as a basis for their little sketches is not stated in the news item, but I do know that chapters in this popular book have been so treated in many parishes.

* * *

Here is some more information from that disarmament committee of the Brooklyn Federation of Churches. They sent out a questionnaire recently in regard to the Chinese-Japanese situation. Of the 1179 answers they received 1059 stated that "the United States should absolutely refuse to be drawn into a war with Japan." Almost as many, 1039, voted that "American citizens should immediately leave the danger zone or remain strictly at their own risk." Ninety-two per cent, or 1093, voted that "the president should declare that to supply American loans to fighting nations is against public policy" while 1032 voted against the exportation of war supplies to either combatant.

* * *

The Bishop of Kansas, James Wise, was the preacher last week at the Lenten Services in New Orleans, held under the auspices of the Church Club.

* * *

The Rev. Harry Price, assistant at St. James the Less, Scarsdale, N. Y., since 1928 has been elected associate rector of the parish.

* * *

Bishop Freeman of Washington confirmed a class of forty last Sunday at St. Margaret's, Washington.

* * *

A Lenten Clinic was held from March 6th through the 13th at Emmanuel Church, Great River, N. Y., conducted by the Rev. John Gayner

HYMNALS
and
PRAYER BOOKS FOR EASTER

THIS is the time when each Parish should have a complete complement of Hymnals and Prayer Books, which are so essential to praise and worship.

These books, suitably inscribed, as a gift from a communicant, form an appropriate and lasting memorial of increasing spiritual value.

We are the publishers of the authorized and approved Hymnal of the Church, and of the Prayer Book, and have made them available at the following prices:

HYMNALS

Standard Musical Edition for the pews, $1.20 a copy
(or $1.00 a copy in lots of 100 or more)

Special Choir Edition, heavily reinforced, $1.50 a copy
(or $1.30 a copy in lots of 100 or more)

Word Edition, 40 cents a copy

PRAYER BOOKS

Pew Edition, in various bindings, 25 cents a copy

Chancel Edition, in various bindings and larger print, 50 cents a copy

Circulars sent upon request

Order direct from

The Church Hymnal Corporation

(A Subsidiary of the Church Pension Fund)

20 Exchange Place New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —A New Religious Novel

The MACMILLAN COMPANY, of New York City, issues the first novel based on modern Biblical scholarship. Unique. Historically accurate. Commended by religious leaders such as Bishop F. J. McConnell, Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and Prof. Shailer Mathews. Plot cast in a highly dramatic period, when struggle for social justice and international peace gave motivating force for evolution of monotheism. Shows Bible as a literature developing in hard times. "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel," by Louis Wallis. All booksellers, or the Macmillan Company, New York City, $2.00.—Adv.

FOR CHILDREN'S CORNERS

Set of six original plaster figures, illustrating Easter Tomb scene, exquisitely colored, $10. Also other statuettes. Miss Medary, Taunton, Mass.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.

Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature

18 West 45th Street, New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

HALL ORGANS

have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.

The Hall Organ Company

West Haven, Conn.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER

2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street

New . York . City

—o—

STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION

—o—

CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

Banks. The purpose of the clinic was to stress the positive side of Lent, and particularly the healing power of Jesus Christ.

* * *

The Rev. Richard W. Trapnell, general secretary of the field department of the National Council, completed a week's mission on the 13th at St. John's, Bethesda, Maryland.

* * *

About two-thirds of the clergy of Rhode Island have responded to the appeal made recently that they follow the example of the clergy of Massachusetts and take cuts in their salaries, the money to be sent to the National Council to help with the $400,000 that must be raised in order to carry on the work of the Council. The total amount pledged is $4,253.

* * *

Bishop Stires of Long Island, in a recent sermon at the Messiah, Brooklyn, N. Y., supported Bishop Manning's recent statement that the clergy have the right and the duty to speak from the pulpit on public questions of high morals important to the community. He also strongly denounced the political conditions that have been revealed by the Seabury investigation. "I plead," he said, "for such a demonstration of faith for that champion of honesty and justice, such a pledge of support for the crusade waged in our behalf, as will give him the encouragement he has earned and will inform all holders of public office that we shall insist upon the continuance, and, if necessary, the enlargement of this investigation until we can be sure that we know the truth concerning public servants and their methods."

* * *

Work has been started on the construction of a new $160,000 fireproof dormitory and dining hall for Williams Smith College, Geneva, New York.

* * *

Close to three and a half million dollars has been raised for the Program of the Church in the diocese of New York during the past six years. Two million of this has gone to the National Council, the remainder being spent upon missionary projects within the diocese. Over one-half of the three and a half million was given by just ten New York City parishes.

* * *

Here is a new sort of subject for a parson—"Tropical Fishes and Their Scales." It was the subject of an address given recently by the Rev. W. F. Bumsted of New York before the Aquarium Society. Versatile lot, us clergy, what?

* * *

The diocese of Pittsburgh hopes to raise $7,000 for the deficit of the National Council. There was a conference of the clergy on March 7th, called by Bishop Mann, when plans

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN

Designer and Worker in Stained Glass

36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET

Opposite Trinity Chapel

NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

FOR EASTER

Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.

ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY

Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.

Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.

BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP

Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts. Send for Prayer Book Circular 28.

The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. New York, N. Y.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

were made for a campaign to end with an offering Whitsunday.

* * *

Captain Mountford of the American Church Army is planning to attend the jubilee conference of the Church Army in London in May. It will be his first trip back to his native land in eight years.

* * *

The Rev. Francis W. G. Parker of the Order of Holy Cross conducted a preaching mission at St. Simon's, Brooklyn, from February 28th thru the 4th of March. One of the features was the children's mission, when the method used at the Church of St. Sulpice, Paris, was used. I am not sure just what this method is beyond the statement in the news story that it is a blending of the old monastic ideal with modern psychology. Sounds interesting.

* * *

The Transfiguration, Buffalo, recently completed, dedicated their new church on March 13, with Bishop Ward of Erie officiating.

* * *

With this drive on for $400,000 for the deficit there is real danger that the one non-quota offering of the Church—the Good Friday Offering—will suffer. If it does it will mean the withdrawal from important work being done in the Holy Land under the direction of Canon Bridgeman and Rev. John Panfil who has been in charge of the Assyrian Mission in Mosul.

* * *

A chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew has been organized among the lepers on the island of Kusatsu, Japan.

* * *

The social service commission of the diocese of New York is issuing from time to time most valuable multigraphed bulletins, dealing with questions of social importance. The latest one deals fully with unemployment insurance, telling you briefly what has been done, what some of the difficulties are and what legislation has been proposed.

* * *

Signs of Spring — the first announcements of the Church summer schools and conferences. The dates of the Wellesley Conference have been announced as June 27th to July 8th, with the Blue Mountain conference being held at the same time. Here are some of the leaders at Blue Mountain this year; the Rev. Thomas A. Conover of Bernardville, N. J., who is to be the chaplain; Rev. James T. Addison of Cambridge Seminary; Dr. J. R. Brackett of Boston, a social service authority; Miss Mary Brisley of the Church Mission of Help; Miss A. H. Brown, member of the child study commission of the National Council; Bishop Creighton, secretary of the department of domestic missions; Miss Elizabeth Frazier, member of the child study commission; Rev. Frank Gavin of the General Seminary; Miss Mildred Hewitt, secretary for Church schools of the department of religious education; Miss Joy Higgins, member of the commission of religious drama of the department of religious education; Rev. L. C. Lewis of Philadelphia; Rev. W. Brooke Stabler, secretary of college work of the department of religious education; Rev. C. L. Taylor of the Cambridge Seminary; and Rev. F. Walter Williams, rector of St. Dustan's College of Music.

* * *

We are coming to a truer sense of values, so Bishop Fiske told a congregation at the Transfiguration. He preached at the noonday services at this New York parish.

"Religion, as it is constituted in America, is an afterthought," he said. "After material comforts have been provided and social desires satisfied, after men have lived their lives and fought their battles, taken their pleasures and heaped up their possessions, then they think to propitiate their deities. What they do is hardly more than an apology for giving God 'the go-by.' A rich man

MORE
Lay Thoughts of DEAN INGE

In this provocative volume by the Dean of St. Paul's are his pointed views on a great variety of timely subjects: "Should We Limit the Population?" "Choosing a Career," "Women in Politics," "Is Betting Wrong?" "Spending or Saving," "The Gospel and Wealth," "International Hatred." He has never written more entertainingly or expressed himself more freely on matters of wide moment.

MORE LAY THOUGHTS OF A DEAN
By William Ralph Inge
$2.75
G. P. Putnam's Sons, 2 W. 45th St., N. Y.

A Religious Book Club Selection
A History of Christian Thought
Volume I — Early and Eastern by Arthur Cushman McGiffert author of "A History of Christianity in the Apostolic Age"

A long-awaited work by an international authority on church history. The volume now ready deals with the beginnings of the Apostolic Age and continues through the foundation of the Eastern Church. The second volume is in preparation. Each volume, $3.00

The Minister, The Method and The Message
by Harold Adye Prichard
Practical effectiveness in preaching is the aim of Canon Prichard's new book. It is filled with suggestions on preaching gleaned from years of special study. A notable feature is the section in which well-known preachers of to-day give intimate glimpses of their preparatory methods. $2.50
at your bookstore
CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, NEW YORK

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64. The Oval. London. S.E.11. England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE

OXFORD
"THE WORLD'S BEST BIBLE"
At all booksellers, or from the publishers
OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, 114 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

propitiates God with a gift of memorial buildings to town or college. Sunday worship? Once in a while. Gifts for charity? When you are in a sentimental frame of mind. Money for the church? Occasionally, when you are in a good humor. As for the women—only at the last do some of them come desperately searching for new and thrilling kinds of religion."

"May we not hope," he said, "that out of this long period of depression will come a truer sense of values? We are discovering that 'a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things he possesseth.' We find ourselves driven to think of the things which abide.

"Men who never thought very much about religion are thinking about it now. Business men have told me that without religion there is no hope of an improvement in conditions. Industry and business are earnestly seeking to rebuild on firmer foundations. All the commissions in the land cannot induce people to stop hoarding money if they have lost faith in investment bankers and in political blowhards. What religion can do is to bring faith and hope and good will. It can bring confidence and trust. The only hope for our future lies in the return to spiritual values."

* * *

This may be old to you. It is an ancient prayer that was found in Chester Cathedral:

Give me a good digestion, Lord,
And also something to digest.
Give me a healthy body, Lord,
With sense to keep it at its best.
Give me a healthy mind, good Lord,
To keep the good, and pure in sight:
Which seeing sin is not appalled,
But finds a way to set it right:

Give me a mind that is not bored,
That does not whimper, whine or sigh,
Don't let me worry over much
About the fussy thing called I.
Give me sense of humor, Lord;
Give me the grace to see a joke;
To get some happiness from life
And pass it on to other folk.

* * *

Religious leaders of the country, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, met in Washington last week for a three day conference on religious prejudices and ways to allay them. Prejudices in text books, religious discrimination against job-seekers, harmful missionary tactics and other matters of a like nature were frankly discussed. The opening session, broadcast, was addressed by Bishop Freeman, the Rev. F. J. Haas, Roman Catholic, and Rabbi Abram Simon of Washington. On Wednesday evening Newton D. Baker gave an address over a nationwide hook-up.

* * *

The Rev. Malcolm S. Taylor,

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Greenville, S. C., was elected director of evangelism on the national commission on evangelism, at a meeting of the commission held recently in New York. His job will be to keep in touch with "The Seventy" (a group holding missions from time to time under the auspices of the commission), to correlate and unify all existing agencies in the Church dealing with evangelism, to cooperate with the National Council in their evangelistic programs, to serve on the faculty of the College of Preachers. He starts on his job May first.

* * *

The Young People's Fellowship of Buffalo held an institute during Lent, meeting each Tuesday—supper, chapel and then group meetings to discuss "The Church Through the Ages."

* * *

They have a new church at Fort Thompson, South Dakota, replacing one that is nearly sixty years old, damaged by tornadoes and in bad repair. The consecration services of the new building began with a memorial service in the old building, followed by a solemn procession into the new church. In the line of march, besides parish organizations, there were about twenty people who had been baptised in the older church before 1883. There have been 315 baptisms and 661 confirmations in the mission since the days of its builder, the Rev. Hakeliah Burt. The late Archdeacon Ashley began his ministry here in 1874 as Mr. Burt's assistant.

The mission is the headquarters of the Dean of the Niobrara, the Rev. David W. Clark, now completing his thirteenth year of work in this field.

* * *

A Pastoral Letter on Disarmament and World Peace has been issued by the Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of England in Australia. They say: "We can no longer believe that if you want peace you must prepare for war: rather it is true that if you prepare for war long enough and diligently enough, you most certainly get it."

* * *

Custom offices can do odd things. A parish in Baltimore, which is an American city, recently sent a box of toys to Manila, which is also an American city. The toys were marked "Made in Germany." The mission in Manila had to pay duty on them, regardless of the fact that duty must already have been paid when the toys first came to the United States from Germany.

* * *

A kind of dragon, very huge, lives under the mountains in China, and on rare occasions bestirs himself or turns over in his sleep, causing floods of water to rush down onto the plains. This accounts for last summer's floods. So the uneducated country people tell you in one part of China. The Rev. John Magee met an elderly man who had actually seen part of this august animal.

* * *

Bishop Davis of Western New York, upon the advice of his physician, is spending the month of March some place where it is warmer than it is in Buffalo. He had pneumonia last winter and has not as yet fully recovered his strength.

RUPTURES

Need firm but comfortable support

The patented Brooks Appliance retains securely without annoying springs or hard pads. Allows full body freedom. Worn and praised by active men and women in every walk of life. Over 3 million sold. Sent on 10 days' trial. Not obtainable through any store or agent in U. S., but made to individual measurements and sent direct from Marshall. Full information and free 28-page Rupture booklet sent in plain sealed envelope. Send for trial offer.

C.E.Brooks,Inventor

BROOKS APPLIANCE CO., 340 State St., Marshall, Mich

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
HARTFORD, CONN.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE GOOD FRIDAY OFFERING

THE RT. REV. RENNIE MacINNES, D.D.
Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem
Who Died Christmas Eve, 1931

Sanctioned by General Convention

Assists the Jerusalem and the East Mission maintained by all churches within the Anglican Communion centering around the Cathedral of Saint George the Martyr

In Jerusalem Canon Bridgeman serves as American Chaplain and as instructor of Armenian and Syrian Students.

FACULTY AND DEACON STUDENTS OF ST. JAMES' THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

GENERAL Convention, by sanctioning this Good Friday Offering, has afforded an opportunity for the Episcopal Church to express itself as a unit. It is a free-will offering. The action of General Convention is based upon recognition of a challenging opportunity for willing sacrifice that puts aside every conflicting interest on the day sacred to our Lord's Passion.

Unless other arrangements have been made by the Bishop of the Diocese, checks should be made to the order of Lewis B. Franklin, Treasurer, and marked for Good Friday Offering. This Offering does not apply on the quota.

Commission on Ecclesiastical Relations, Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Ave., New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MARCH 24, 1932

Easter

by

MAY RICKER CONRAD

WHAT does Easter mean to you?
Stately church with cushioned pew,
Where, Lenten season gone at last
And days of self-denial past,
Richly-clad, devoted throngs
Of worshippers unite in songs
Of praise in lily-scented air?
Is this what makes your Easter fair?

Does it mean the end of winter's reign,
Bright skies and welcome warmth again,
Singing of birds, budding of trees,
Sweet spring odors on the breeze,
From daffodil and crocus bed
And balsam branches overhead?
Sad is the world and cold and gray,
If this is all of Easter Day.

But if this blessed season brings
A firmer faith in holy things;
Assurance of a living Lord;
A strengthening of the tender chord
Of love that binds us to the life to come
Where loved ones 'wait us in the heavenly home.
No pain or loss can e'er efface the bliss,
Dear Friend, of Easter when it means all this.

MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

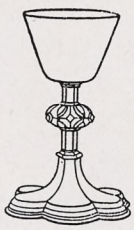
Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

the J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK



Distinctive Church Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet on request

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1871

J · WIPPELL
& · COMPANY · LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

A. R. MOWBRAY & Co., Ltd.
28 Margaret St., LONDON, W. 1,
and 9 High St., Oxford, England.

ECCLESIASTICAL METAL WORK
Altar Crosses Vases
Candlesticks Chalices
Missal Stands
Ciboria Processional Crosses
Particulars from Vestments
MR. PAUL S. BUCK
Distributor
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 31 MARCH 24, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

WE OUGHT TO BE more concerned over our spiritual depression than our economic setback. In each instance there have been worse ones in days gone by. By far the most serious spiritual reversal took place during those three sad days just previous to Easter. It is difficult for us to understand or appreciate the utter hopelessness of that little band of disciples that had followed the Christ only to have Him suddenly taken from them. That Cross seemed to have checked their enthusiasm and in some cases to have shaken their loyalty. They were now a flock without a shepherd. The Master tried His best to make them understand, but His assurances of ultimate victory found little response. So when that first Easter dawned it found the people unprepared and left them in a state of bewilderment. We can easily see why. No soul can leap out of heaviness into joy and gladness. This applies to yesterday and today. It was not until the Master eased up behind two of those discouraged souls hiking along on the Emmaus Road that the full meaning of the Resurrection dawned. Their hearts burned within them as the little group sauntered along. The truth of the risen Christ slowly absorbed them. The depression was ended.

No doubt the Resurrection is the greatest miracle of all time. Therefore it implies complete divinity and certainly much of the supernatural. But let us tuck in here a word of caution. To interpret this mighty event only in terms of deified achievement is to invite merely bewilderment and amazement. Our spiritual depression today will end on the Emmaus Road. Our hearts will again burn within us—our spirits will be revived as the Risen Christ eases up and into our fellowship. The Resurrection, like the Crucifixion, wasn't for heaven but for earth, wasn't for angels but for men. The angels proclaimed the Risen Christ and doubt and fear prevailed. The Master uttered a few words and was understood. The greatest benefit that the Easter message can bring is an emphasis of the renewal of fellowship with the Risen Christ which banishes depression, and ushers in happiness and finally immortality.

IN DISCUSSING the affairs of the National Council and the effort now being made to raise $400,000 to see us through this year, too little attention has been given to the point raised by Bishop Fiske in his letter recently published in the Church weeklies. He asks: "I wonder if due consideration has been given to the question as to whether this is an emergency, to be met now, as an accompaniment of depression, or whether it is an evidence of deflation which may prove permanent? Are we likely, for a long time, to be getting back to the scale of spending which we reached some years ago? Is the National Council facing the probability that we may not?" As he points out, certainly that probability was not faced by General Convention in preparing a budget for the National work. Neither was it faced by the National Council at its February meeting. Both the Convention and the Council based their deliberations on the assumption that we are at the bottom of another business cycle and that prosperity is just around the corner. Pull through 1932, they reasoned, by raising an emergency fund of $400,000 and we can look forward to 1933 with a considerable degree of confidence that diocesan pledges will approximate the expenditures called for by the General Convention budget. The articles appearing in this paper on "The Christian Way Out" by such leaders as Nicholas Murray Butler, Bishop Parsons, V. Auguste Demant, B. I. Bell, Vida Scudder, Reinhold Niebuhr, W. G. Peck and others—all keen students of economics—should convince us, by their very unanimity, that the world is facing a situation more serious than a dip in the business cycle. The House of Bishops and the National Council at their meetings next month will do well to give serious consideration to Bishop Fiske's question, and plan for the future accordingly.

SENATOR COSTIGAN of Colorado has introduced a bill in Congress calling for an investigation of conditions in the Kentucky coal areas. There is no doubt that such a study has long been called for. Gun-rule has been rampant in several counties for months, with every semblance of civil liberties denied. Newspaper men representing the most responsible papers in the country have been driven from the area. Only recently a group of men of distinction went there to distribute food to the suffering miners. Their hotel rooms were entered and their suitcases searched. In one of them was found a program of the Foreign Policies Association. That being considered sufficient evidence that the owner was a radical agitator, he and his associates were turned over to a mob, loaded into automobiles, run out of the state, beaten and left by the roadside. The American people have the capacity for righteous indignation. But Kentucky is a long way from home for most of us, and we have troubles of our own. However we do believe Church people are sufficiently interested in justice and the preservation of our heritage of civil liberties to at least go to the trouble of writing their Senators and Congressmen urging the support of Senator Costigan's bill. People of the churches have graphically demonstrated their sympathy for these miners and their families by the great amount of relief that has poured in from church sources. A Senate investigation may accomplish little. It will however open up the territory. It may also convince coal operators and their hirelings that they are not a law unto themselves.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Do laymen stay away from church because the church is ineffective or is the church ineffective because laymen stay away? Do clergy fail in their leadership because the people are unresponsive or are people indifferent because the clergy lack moral courage animated by love?

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

VII. Nicaea

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THE early members of the Church were mostly simple people. St. Paul described his constituency in the following words, "Ye see your calling brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called, but God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things that are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen to bring to nought things that are, that no flesh should glory in His presence."

The Gospel took its root in the soil. It did not emerge from the minds of philosophers and then trickle down into the souls of common people. The seed, which is the word of God, found its way into the lives of the humble and the meek, and from there it grew up into the consciousness of the upper classes. And this was so because the Gospel was not primarily a philosophy, but a way of life requiring self sacrifice and devotion to the person of Christ, qualities not easily acquired by the privileged classes. "The common people heard him gladly"—the Greeks regarded him cynically. Special privilege looked upon Christ as a radical who would upset existing conditions. But the Gospel did not remain for long in its humble state. It soon forced itself into the attention of scholars and rulers, both those who attacked and those who defended its claims. The Church in the second and third centuries produced its apologists who defended its position, but it produced a greater number who attacked it.

In other words the Church began as a bare-footed boy on the farm, who by virtue of his ability and industry grows up into a leading citizen. Many a time when he is confronted with grave problems, the prominent executive wistfully looks back and wishes that he might once more become a barefooted boy on the farm. But he cannot. The die has been cast and he must remain in the position which his own efforts have attained.

SO FOR the first few generations the Church did not concern itself with defining the faith. They believed that God so loved the world that He had sent His only begotten Son to redeem the world. They recited the Apostles' Creed nearly as it exists today without any discussion of the Virgin Birth or the Risen Body of our Lord. It was the implicit faith of a child rather than the explicit faith of a teacher. It was a way of life which had for its motive the love of Christ, and for its objective, to be like Him.

But when the Church grew it penetrated palaces and academies so that its simple assertions became the subject of critical attack. The Church in its General Councils did not define the faith because it wished to do so; it defined the faith to protect itself from the false definitions which the scholars were setting forth. Of course so long as the Christian Religion was forbidden by the empire and spasmodically persecuted, it would have been impossible to hold a General Council. Such an act would have invited persecution. Moreover so long as it was extremely dangerous to be a Christian, not many philosophers or leading citizens were anxious to identify themselves with it. It was much safer for obscure people to be Christians than it was for prominent persons.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

When, however, Constantine became Emperor, all this was changed. He openly championed the Christian Church, although he did not identify himself with it by baptism until his death. He not only proclaimed Sunday as the Lord's Day and gathered ecclesiastics around him; he also had a deep concern for the unity of Christians. He passed by Rome because of the strength of paganism therein and built the Christian City of Constantinople in which no heathen temples were permitted.

The Christian Church was Constantine's greatest political asset, because it was the most compact and trustworthy group in the Empire. He showed great political sagacity in adopting this course, as he established a constituency which was dependable and which owed him such a debt of gratitude that they could not repudiate him. For the first time in three hundred years it was safe to be a Christian and the persecution under Diocletian only a few years before, was too vivid to be forgotten because it was the most cruel persecution of them all. Naturally when the Christian faith became the authorized religion of the empire, the character of its personnel underwent a rapid change. There soon rose up that rather questionable asset which has been with the Church ever since,—that company of prominent rectors and influential laymen, who were never conspicuous when their lives were in danger, but became active when it was not only safe, but profitable to be a Christian.

The Church had ceased to be a ragged urchin and had become a leading citizen.

This involved a radical change in the habits of the corporation.

NOW Egypt was the sensitive spot in the Roman Empire, because it was the private farm of the Emperors from which came the ships laden with grain by which the urban populace was fed. Free bread and free games were the methods used by Roman Emperors to keep the populace from riotous habits which are always dangerous. Well it happened that a prominent rector in Alexandria named Arius, began to teach modernistic doctrines.

"There was a time when Christ was not," said Arius.

Opposed to him was an able young deacon, named Athanasius who pointed out that if this were so then Christians were worshipping a creature and were no better than pagans, guilty of idolatry. Of course this is evident at first glance. Either Christ is of the Godhead or the Church must stop worshipping Him.

The controversy became intense—In hot countries violent emotions are easily transferred into emotional violence. Constantine was excessively annoyed. It would be a political disaster to have Christendom divided against itself. I am sure that he knew little about the merits of the debate and cared less, but he did not want a schism in his party. So he consulted his friend Hosius, Bishop of Cordova. It would have been easier to have asked the Bishop of Rome to settle the question, but as yet the Church was unaware that the pope was the vicar of Christ infallibly able to settle all disputes as to the faith. So Hosius recommended a General Council as the parliament which could settle the matter. So in 325 A. D. the Emperor summoned all the bishops of Christendom to assemble at his expense in his summer palace of Nicaea and quiet the controversy. Three hundred and eighteen bishops attended and produced (less than ten dissenting) the greater part of the Nicene Creed.

Let us observe that the bishops who attended this Council were men who had been through the Diocletian persecution and many of them bore the marks thereof on their bodies. Only a few of them at this time owed their position to imperial favor and they were men who were not afraid of anything but being false to their witness to Christ. They knew that when they went back to their constituencies, they must carry back the same faith which the Church had always held implicitly.

THE words of the Creed indicate what they believed that Christ was "God of God, Light of Light, Very God of Very God, begotten, not made, of the same substance of the Father." The debate raged about the Greek words Homo (of the same) and ousion (substance.) The sympathizers with Arius would be content if the Council would say Homoi (similar) ousion (substance), but more than three hundred bishops agreed that the faith of the Church demanded the former expression.

Carlyle sarcastically intimated that it was a quarrel over the letter "i", but it went deeper than that. It was the time when the Church must defend itself against those who would interpret the faith for her, by interpreting it for herself. The Nicene Council was not dominated by the Emperor who was interested solely in the political phase of the contention. He wanted unity, and was not concerned with theology. Later on his sons became partisans and his family during his lifetime took sides, but Constantine cared more for the unity of his constituency than for the nature of the debate.

The Nicene Council did not settle the matter. The controversy was to rage for years and the time was to come when the whole world (including the Bishop of Rome) had deserted Athanasius and supported Arius, but in the long run, the decrees of the Council prevailed and the Church went on record permanently as to the deity of Jesus Christ.

As to that article of the faith the Church has been uncompromising. One wonders also, how much the subsequent trend toward parliamentary power in civil affairs is due to the Councils of the Church, in which for the first time decrees emanated, not from a ruler, but from the corporate body. It is quite distinct from either the monarchical or the papal idea.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

REBUILDING THE JERICHO ROAD

The Christian Way Out of the Depression

By

SPENCER MILLER, JR.

Consultant on Industrial Relations to the National Council

THE scene of one of the most familiar parables of our Lord is the Jericho Road. Upon this highway leading to Jerusalem a certain man fell among thieves "which stripped him of his raiment and wounded him, and departed leaving him half dead." A priest and a Levite, as they journeyed down the road, saw him lying in the gutter, but crossed over to the other side and continued on. A Samaritan traveler, however, as he saw the man, had compassion on him and bound up his wounds and brought him to the Inn and made provision for his care until he should be well. Because he showed mercy he has received the appellation — The Good Samaritan—the symbol of a good neighbor and a true Christian. And the act of making provision for the care of the wounded man has been described as the beginning of Christian Social Service.

SPENCER MILLER, JR.

Today there is another lesson to be drawn from this parable. It concerns the condition of the Jericho Road. For centuries we have been performing the manifold acts of Christian charity—feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, and binding up the wounds of the afflicted. It has been necessary. But it has been in the nature of ambulance work. As the leaders of Christian Social Service turn from treating effects to removing the causes of our social maladjustments, they have come to realize that the type of ambulance work which has been performed in the past is not enough; it is merely temporizing with conditions. The causes which give rise to these conditions challenge our attention. The Jericho Road itself is in desperate need of repair; it must be cleaned up. And it will not suffice to patch the road up here and there, or even resurface it. What is needed is a new foundation!

The present depression, which Sir Charles Aldis has described as the worst in a hundred years, has disclosed furthermore how imperative is the need of new foundations for the Jericho Road. Face to face with the economic dislocation, the human tragedies and moral confusion which arise out of such world-wide distress, men everywhere are coming to realize that there are fatal defects in our present social order; indeed the present distress is itself an evidence of the break-down of our economic order. And no mere palliatives will suffice to repair their structural defects. So distinguished an American publicist as Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler asserted that this is the "full and final test of the entire capitalist system, a test to which it has never before been subjected."

The effort on the part of churchmen then to find the Christian way out of the depression must begin by a frank willingness to face the facts of our present predicament, and by a willingness "to recognize that drastic remedies must be taken." The quest is not easy; there is no royal road. But one thing is clear—the Christian way out is not the unchristian way in. The road has not been laid out by any of our existing political or economic systems. It is not in capitalism; it is not in socialism, nor is it to be found in communism. Each of these systems has disclosed fundamental defects which are not in accordance with the Christian Ethic. The Christian way out, in general, is the road which has as its goal nothing less than the realization of the Kingdom of God on Earth; and as its method The Way of Life proclaimed by Jesus.

It will be urged that this has been the goal and the mission of the Christian Church since its foundations by our Lord. Such, indeed, was the central theme of Christ's Sermon on the Mount: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness; and all else will be added unto you." As Christians on the one hand have made the gospel of the Kingdom the rule of their lives and their relationships, they have transformed the pagan world and elevated all men and women to a new estate. The extent of our progress since the first century A. D. can be measured in part by the extent to which Christian ideals of conduct have come to pervade the Western world. As Christians on the other hand have placed other things first, they have been rewarded in kind. As the Christian Churches, in turn, abdicated the whole area of social and political conduct during the past one hundred and fifty years as outside the dominion of religion, and left these relationships to irreligious or definitely unchristian forces, they lost a large part of their moral leadership in the world. "They acquiesced," said Richard Tawney, "in the popular assumption that the acquisition of riches was the main end of man, and confined themselves to preaching 'such personal virtues as did not conflict with the achievement.' "

The way out of the present depression thus cannot be a different way than the way which leads to the attainment of the Christian objective—The Kingdom of God. There are no lesser goals. There are no short-cuts. Christ is either the Lord of all life or of none of it. But when one begins to indicate the implications of the gospel of Jesus upon human relationships, they seem at once to be so antithetical to present practice as to be impossible of achievement. And yet we have all seen Mahatma Gandhi, in our time the great Indian leader, take one of the Christian principles of nonviolence and virtually alter the course of British history. To suggest, for example, that in the field of international relations, where anarchy still exists, that war is an essential denial of the principles of Love, of the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of Man, is but to suggest how far we must journey to our goal. And yet it is almost the essence of Christian Sociology as applied to International Relations that the Christian Church is not the palliative of international disorder, "she is the new international order. . . ." "The Christian Church is a new creation," asserts Dr. Daniel McGregor, "she is the new humanity of God. She is not as other groups are, but is called to the high destiny of bringing the nations of mankind into the Kingdom of God." If that is her destiny, it is obvious that competitive nationalism, so characteristic of the world today, is an essential denial of Christianity, and isolation is the expression of selfish indifference to the Christian claims that we must all "bear one another's burdens," and that "we are all members one of another."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Similarly if we set up the criteria of the Christian ethic by which to judge prevailing standards in industry, we see how far our practices have departed from Christian standards. How else could one explain the callous indifference of a Christian nation to the recurring cycles of unemployment in our land and its consequent devastating effect upon the moral life of great sections of the community? It would seem to be almost the first principles of Christian belief that if the personality of each man is sacred in the sight of God that we should not permit any act growing out of our industrial relationship which would deny in fact what we assert as a part of our Faith. The principles of a Christian sociology are few in number; they turn upon the four basic concepts: (1) the sacredness of human personality; (2) the spiritual value of material things; (3) Love as the motive of human fellowship; (4) the conception of all life as service. The application of these principles is multitudinous.

From time to time our own Church has sought to make explicit the application of the Christian principles upon contemporary problems. The great pronouncements of the Lambeth Conference by the chief pastors of our Church every ten years has given great emphasis to the social gospel. Our own General Convention at Denver last fall, speaking through the Committee on National and World Problems, has made abundantly clear the way out of the present world-wide distress caused by unemployment, lawlessness and war. It championed no panacea; it applied the Christian Ethic to our present problems. Similarly, the Bishops of the Church, in their stirring Pastoral, asserted among other things that the inequality between poverty and wealth, the contrast between "individual want and collective plenty could not be accepted as in accordance with the will of God."

The heart of the matter is this: If Christianity is a complete system of life it should be capable of enlightening the world not only about the "nature and destiny of human life," but also about the elements of such social defects as the present crisis in industrialism have disclosed. Such indeed is the dynamic of the Christian Ethic.

But it is clear that there is no specific Christian way out of the depression; there are Christian principles to guide us on the road which leads to the Kingdom of God. There is no permanent way to repair the Jericho Road, it must be built. And that means nothing less than the rebuilding of our western civilization in accordance with both the Mind and the Way of Christ.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

That Yawn

WHY do you politely place your hand before your mouth when you yawn? Because you were taught it was good manners, I suppose. The real reason goes much further back than that.

Primitive people, long ago, began to struggle with the question of a life-principle called the soul. They saw their friends live and die and they tried to figure out some explanation for the transformation. They decided that within every human body there must be some sort of shadowy, impalpable being which one day escaped, leaving the body without life. Since breathing stopped with death, it seemed plain to them that the mouth was the normal point of exit for the soul. Therefore if you would keep people alive, you must prevent the soul from escaping out of the mouth. So when a person appeared to be dying, they frequently held his mouth and nose to keep the soul from getting away. It is, I believe, still the custom among the Hindus to snap the fingers when one yawns in order to frighten the soul from coming out.

Even in sleep one was warned to be careful about an open mouth, lest the soul should depart and the sleeper might never awake. One traveller tells of an African native who was much distressed over a dream, repeated on successive nights, in which he persisted in smelling the odor of delicious food. The headman of his tribe decided that some witch was trying to entice his soul away from him while he was asleep and advised the man to take extraordinary precautions. For several nights the poor fellow cowered in the tropical heat under a heavy blanket with his nose and mouth tied up in a handkerchief to restrain his restless soul from the temptation. It's a wonder he didn't kill himself trying to save his life.

Then there was also the reverse danger. Careless opening of the mouth might admit a wandering spirit of undesirable quality which might create serious dissention in one's interior mechanism. It is said to be a precaution against such a catastrophe that many of the natives of North Africa wear a covering over the lower part of the face which, in some cases, is not even removed for eating and sleeping. It is not at all improbable that this is the original reason why Arab women veil their faces—other explanations having arisen later.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

That, then, is the real reason why you cover your mouth with your hand when you yawn—because some of your early forefathers believed that your soul might escape or an evil spirit enter if you did not protect yourself. Nowadays we know enough about human anatomy to smile at the fictitious peril and we have a better conception of spiritual values for the safe-guarding of the soul. Yet, after all, we don't know very much about it and some of our descendents, a few centuries hence, may smile at many of our enlightened ideas while still preserving twentieth century customs. It behooves us not to be too proud of our own knowledge and not to disparage the efforts of primitive people to solve questions which still baffle us with many an unsolved mystery.

A Facinating Book

Reviewed by
GARDINER M. DAY

"THE important point to be noted and remembered is that religion is not some new and peculiar thing which is unrelated to life's normal interests; it is the flood of a new significance streaming in to raise those interests to a higher level." This definition of religion well expresses the type of thought which characterizes a new volume of delightful essays from the pen of Dr. Walter Russell Bowie, the Rector of Grace Church, New York, entitled On Being Alive (Scribners, $2). In the manner of Abbe Dimnet, Dr. Bowie might appropriately have entitled this book, The Art of Abundant Living or The Art of Appreciating Life, for the volume is a series of lessons in appreciation, beginning in the first chapter with the more obvious objects in man's experience, such as nature, people, and principles, and advancing to the more subtle phases of experience, poetry, God and immortality. With the expansive appreciations of a man who has lived widely, the author combines that poise and serenity of thought which alone characterizes one who has lived deeply. In this age, which is so full of hectic, shallow, and self-absorbed people, the writer feels most keenly that the hope for the future is that man regain the poetry of life. "Life must be keyed not to a few harsh strings, and those the meanest in its gamut; it must attain that symphonic harmony which only comes when the lofty notes of love and loyalty and romance are struck. It is for this that we must covet both poetic thinking and an acquaintance with those great expressions which the poets, technically so-called, have put into words." The finest chapter is that on being alive to God, in which Dr. Bowie takes the modern bull, Humanism, by the horns, and shows how inevitably it proves its own inadequacy as a man's experience and thought matures. A belief like that of Thomas Huxley in the "sanctity of human nature" unrooted in a deeper and transcendent reality, with the passing of generations withers away and becomes in a grandson, Aldous Huxley, a view of life as something full of sound and fury signifying nothing. This review would not be complete without a comment upon the charm and almost poetic beauty of Dr. Bowie's prose.

Just Souls

By
C. RUSSELL MOODEY

Life has its trying, little way
Of wearing down the will,
So seek the Christ in daily prayer
And help your soul refill.

WHEN a fountain pen is full it is a great convenience. And when it is empty or dry we lay it aside or take time out to fill it. But between these two stages there is a very dangerous time, and that is when the pen is nearly dry. No doubt, you have had your religion severely tried more than once by a fountain pen. Just when your letter is about finished and you go back over what you have written, by a sudden move of the wrist your pen emits a drop of ink and your page is spoiled. Maybe the eraser will take it off and maybe it won't. However, you only have a few words so you begin again. Another blot, the calamity is now complete. Your letter goes into the waste basket. When a fountain pen is nearly dry the control of the ink is gone. So beware. Nearly empty is far worse than completely empty.

We never worry about good people. When they are full of idealism they can take care of themselves. And we are not so concerned over real bad people for they usually end up in some institution that protects society from their depredations. But we ought to be alarmed over those who are nearly bad. They are the ones who throw blots on life's pages. They are the ones that successfully elude the law. And the ones who wear a social mask. There is more harm done by these people than by all the thugs, bad men, gangsters and degenerates put together. For these fellows have access to our homes, our friendships and all the privileges that they beget. They are converted in the high places under the guise of respectability.

What's the remedy? Simply this—to fill up the soul with Christ, and keep filling it up. Don't ever let it get to the point where it is nearly empty. Otherwise life is sure to be spotted!

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By
V. AUGUSTE DEMANT
$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHINA SITUATION IS DESCRIBED BY BISHOP ROOTS

By G. W. Browning

Bishop Roots summarizes the problems of central China in a note written February 2, for the Hankow Newsletter. To whatever extent conditions may or may not have changed since then the information shows something of the difficulties the Bishop and his staff are meeting.

The clouds which hung heavily over this part of central China seem to be lifting a little. Japanese "positive" policy now focussed at Shanghai has been diverting military and constructive forces from their urgent local tasks. The provincial government has been weakened by the failure of national leaders to cooperate and the consequent weakness of the national government, while inability to collect taxes from more than half of the province threatens the solvency and the very life of the Hupeh Government. Flood relief is hampered by financial difficulties, bandit activities and the overwhelming magnitude of its task, with the consequent delay in the large and fundamental work of labor relief in dyke repairs. Most threatening of all is the extension of Soviet government, which now controls more than half of this province and is converging on the Wuhan cities.

For the moment these very dark clouds hang less heavily, for the world-wide attention being given to the Sino-Japanese crisis promises to save that situation. Local sources of financial help have been found which should carry the Hupeh government over the New Year (Feb. 6), providing among other things for paying the troops and thus strengthening their loyalty. Flood relief work has also taken a turn for the better through closer cooperation of all concerned, and especially through the timely help of Mr. Rewi Alley, whom Sir John Hope Simpson sends to supplement our staff for a few weeks. The Red Armies are now far enough away so that the gun fire of their battles with the government troops is not heard in these three cities as it was a few days ago.

The tension of the situation is still great, but after consultation with our consul general and the relief workers, as well as with my diocesan colleagues, I think I shall be able to attend the Hongkong conference with the appraisal commission of the Laymen's Missionary Enquiry, if it can be held as planned Feb. 12th to 16th. Needless to say I could not even think of being absent at this time were it not for the presence of Bishop Gilman.

* * *

As the man in Browning's poem (Robert Browning's) so feelingly exclaims, "How very hard it is to be a Christian!" One feels this in thinking over the many years of patient effort which have gone toward developing a native ministry for the Church in the Philippine Islands, effort which is still almost without visible results.

It is bound to take many more years in that field than in some others, for the Church there is dealing with people only a few generations removed from the extremes of primitive life and in many communities still primitive. Also, the foreign clergy have been too heavily burdened to give the individual attention necessary for developing native leaders.

The first and brightest hope was a young Filipino who was actually ordained deacon and served three years; then, just when he should have been ordained to the priesthood, he lapsed tragically and completely and had to be deposed.

A second young Filipino, well educated, born and brought up in the Igorot country, was sent to Sagada for two years' training, but proved to be quite impossible and had to be dismissed even from lay service.

Now a third, an Igorot, trained and proven, has entered the field. Deaconess Routledge first gathered him in as a child, from Tukukan, the place where the Rev. Edward Sibley recently died. The boy was brought up by Mr. Sibley himself, and then went to the government school near Baguio. After that he was sent, three years ago, to Besao, to be trained as a catechist by the Rev. Vincent Gowen, whose experience training catechists in China makes him a helpful guide.

The young man has just returned to his home at Tukukan, with his bride, to take up work under Deaconess Routledge. His name is Mark Suluen. May the day soon come when Bishop Mosher can say with St. Paul, "Bring Mark . . . He is profitable to me for the ministry."

They have quite a basketball team at the General Seminary. They have won seven out of nine games so far. Their hardest tussles have been with the Biblical Seminary. They licked them the first time 30-25, and then the Bible students turned around and won 32-26. The sailors from the U. S. S. Chicago also defeated them 37-34 but the seminarians evened that up handsomely in a return match by the score of 38-23.

BISHOP OF ALBANY THINKS FLAG USED TOO FREQUENTLY

By Emily B. Gnagey

In a letter to the diocese of Albany, published in the current issue of the diocesan paper, the Rt. Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, bishop of Albany, points out the ineffective and unethical use of the flag in our churches. The bishop considers the wide use of the flag at regular Church services a legacy of the war. He says: "It is no disrespect for the flag to assert that it does not normally belong in a service of worship to Almighty God, no more than it would be disrespect to the cross to say that it should not be used to lead our armies to battle or to adorn our government buildings." The bishop calls attention to the fact that ours is probably the only Church in Christendom that uses the flag regularly in procession, the Roman Catholics reserving its use for great civic occasions and the Protestant denominations seldom having processions.

The bishop then emphasizes the undesirable psychological effect of the promiscuous use of the flag: "Moreover, this constant use of the flag has an unfortunate psychological effect, in that it must tend to divert the mind of the worshipper from the main purpose of worship. Men come to Church on a Sunday morning, if they come in the right spirit, with a desire to get away from the world, even including one's own country. We assemble as citizens of another country, with thoughts of another and better world, whose builder and maker is God." He continues: "To see a flag borne in procession and thus necessarily the most prominent object there brings one's thoughts immediately to mundane things, tending to make less clear our consciousness of God as well as our realization of the brotherhood of man." This latter thought Bishop Oldham develops as the most important argument against the practice.

Bishop Oldham also points out that too frequent use of the flag defeats its own purpose by making it less significant on occasions when men are reminded of their civic duty. He commends a careful consideration of the subject, "so that what we do shall be based upon sound reasoning instead of sentiment and shall be intelligent as well as Christian."

A delegation of twenty Japanese Brotherhood of St. Andrew leaders is being organized to visit this country in 1933.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

Funny how these ecclesiastical affairs turn out. There we were with three or four halftones of prominent clergymen. We had the low-down on the election in Newark so all we had to do was to pick out the picture of the man elected and present it to you. But the brethren were at it all day last Tuesday trying to elect a Coadjutor for the diocese and the results were nil. Even worse than nil for Bishop Stearly indicated at the close of the day that he might withdraw entirely his request for a Coadjutor. The top men in the balloting were the Rev. Appleton Lawrence of Providence and the Rev. Charles L. Gomph of Newark, the former supported by the liberal group and the other by the Catholics. Others to receive votes were Bishop Suffragan Charles K. Gilbert of New York and the Rev. William O. Leslie, archdeacon of the diocese. Bishop Creighton of Mexico, executive secretary of domestic missions, was also nominated but it was immediately stated that he would not accept if elected so his name was withdrawn. The Rev. Luke White of Montclair also was nominated but withdrew before the balloting. Dean Dumper of Newark was nominated later in the day as a compromise candidate but he too refused to stand.

Dr. Lawrence was elected by the laity on every one of the ten ballots, and came within three votes of being elected by the clergy. Then the Rev. Augustine Elmerdorf of Hackensack made a speech in which he insinuated that Dr. Lawrence was not sound in the faith. It was reported, he said, that Dr. Lawrence does not take too seriously the doctrine of the Virgin Birth and therefore was not solid on the Incarnation. Also he was supposed to advocate birth control. This remark brought the Rev. J. F. Savidge of Norwood to his feet with the statement that any man with seven children should not be judged too harshly for his opinions on that subject. All of which brought forth a hearty laugh but apparently changed few opinions since on the tenth ballot Dr. Lawrence was six clerical votes from election instead of three. It is possible of course that some turned against him, on the presentation of this concrete evidence, because they felt that he did not believe in birth control strongly enough. In any case it was after supper time and men must eat, so they called it a day without having accomplished the task for which they were called together.

* * *

Do you preach sermons? Then you will be interested in the following terms and expressions, recently listed by a group at the College of Preachers, as frequently heard to the great detriment of otherwise excellent sermons. The group agreed that they should be avoided by all preachers. Here they are:

"In terms of"—
"My dear people" (or "friends")
"And I say it reverently."
"Of course."
"On the whole"
"I fancy"
"It seems to me"
"Now,—" (in transition)

Always to start with the text, same way.

Reference to exact numbers of Bible verses.

All references to personal European travel.

All anecdotes of having known great men—whether true or not.

"Er . . ." and "ah . . ."

"I am sure you will agree with me"

"In a word"

"Let us . . . ."

Perhaps the laity can add still more, from their years of bitter experience.

* * *

College girls in the East, the West and the South are having week-end conferences "to consider Christian service." Thirty-five girls from eleven colleges met at Windham House, New York, March 4-6; and similar groups met at St. Margaret's House, Berkeley, California, March 18-20, and will meet at Ruge Hall, Tallahassee, Florida (State College for Women), April 8-10. Leaders in Church work, education, social service, at home and overseas, confer with the girls on various aspects of that work and preparation for it.

* * *

Those of you who are receiving your paper this week from a bundle at the Church will again find inserted a business reply card. There are many thousands of copies of THE WITNESS distributed in bundles during Lent. In many instances these will be discontinued with this issue. Inquire if the paper is to be on sale at your parish church each week. If so we hope you will continue to buy it there. But if the bundle is to be discontinued may we make this final appeal that you use the postal and thus become a subscriber to the paper.

* * *

The appointment of Dr. W. W. Yen as Chinese Minister at Washington led Bishop Norris as chairman of the Chinese House of Bishops to send a telegram of good wishes "in the name of the Church of which Dr. Yen is a faithful member." The message was acknowledged by a radiogram from Dr. Yen. Bishop Norris says, "I am sure we all feel glad that he has once more such an honorable post in which to serve his distracted country."

* * *

The Chicago City Mission, not so often in the headlines perhaps, is nevertheless carrying on a big work under the direction of the Rev. John F. Plummer. It ministers to 31 institutions, including about all the hospitals, penal institutions and Homes in the city. All this is done with two full time clergymen, three on part time, five deaconesses, and the volunteer help of a number of rectors.

* * *

Dean Gates of the cathedral in New York, the leading authority of the Church on ecclesiastical architecture, says that St. Paul's, Eastchester, in Mount Vernon, N. Y., "must be put in the first rank of the great Colonial churches." The edifice is now being restored as an historical shrine because of its age and Revolutionary war associations. "It is on the same high plane as Bulfich's Church at Lancaster, Mass., Trinity Church, Newport, R. I., St. Paul's, New York, and the best of the Virginia churches", said Dean Gates. "In certain ways it is superior to these since it is built of stone."

There has been a considerable amount of activity in this old parish during the past year or two since

ANNOUNCEMENT

IT had been our intention to conclude the series of articles on "The Christian Way Out" in this number. However, affairs of the National Church, which we felt compelled to deal with editorially, made it necessary for us to postpone publication of one article in the series. The article by Dr. Harry W. Laidler, president of the National Bureau of Economic Research, will therefore appear next week. We are also happy to announce an additional contribution on the subject by the Rev. Conrad Noel, distinguished clergyman of the English Church who is well known on both sides of the Atlantic for his courageous utterances. These articles will be followed with a concluding summary of the series by the managing editor of THE WITNESS. The series on "The Story of the Church" by Bishop Johnson, as originally announced, is to be continued over a number of weeks.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the Rev. W. Harold Weigle became rector. There was, for example, a big to-do there about a year ago with Governor Roosevelt and Judge Seabury playing leading parts. Just recently however, there have been rumors of bitter strife between the rector and his vestry. It is reported that the bishop of the diocese attempted to hold a conference to get at the bottom of the difficulties but that Mr. Weigle declined to attend, saying that his physician had ordered him to take a rest.

* * *

The Rev. F. S. Fleming, vicar of the Intercession, New York was the preacher at the General Seminary on March 14 and the Rev. Donald Aldrich of the Ascension on the 21st.

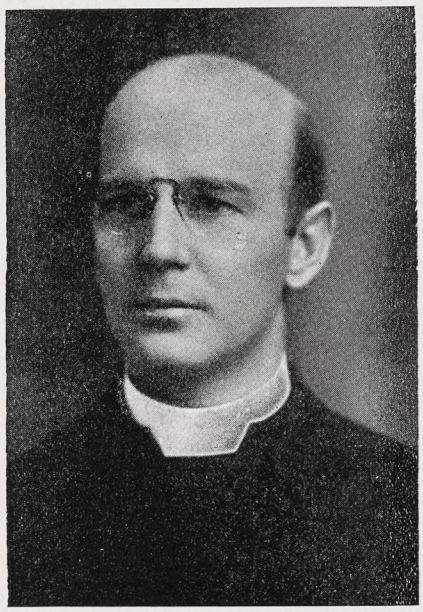
* * *

Miss Edna Eastwood, who is a worker among the isolated, was a lecturer last week at the Church Army Training Center in Providence. She also addressed diocesan leaders and as a result plans are under way to develop the work among the isolated in Rhode Island.

* * *

Bishop Davies of Western Massachusetts has been ill with a blood clot. He is rapidly recovering however at his home in Lenox.

* * *



"When descendants of the men and women who came over on the Mayflower speak to me in glowing terms of their ancestry I tell them that my people sent a reception committee to meet them. And I sometimes add that it was fortunate that there were no immigration laws in those days." These hard-hitting remarks were made last Sunday at the Cathedral in Providence by the Ven. Wellington K. Boyle, archdeacon of Indian work in Duluth.

* * *

The graduate school of Grace Church, Orange, N. J., was brought to a close on March 15th with a lecture on Church Music by the Rev. Victor Mori of Madison, N. J. The Grace Church choir illustrated his lecture with selections from Palestrina, Bach and Roberton. A pageant, "A Day at a Wayside Shrine," written by the rector of the parish, the Rev. Charles T. Walkley, was also presented. The school is to continue at this parish next fall, since it has proved highly successful. Last Tuesday for instance the Presbyterians nearby called off their Prayer Meeting in order to attend the school.

* * *

The Rev. George Francis Nelson, canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, died on March 16th in New York. Canon Nelson was known throughout the Church. For many years he was secretary of the House of Bishops and he has played a glorious part in the life of the Church in New York. He was eighty-nine years old.

BISHOP OLDHAM
"Flag Used Too Often"

* * *

The place of religion in education was the subject of an address given by Professor Frank Gavin of the General Seminary last Wednesday evening at a meeting of alumni and friends of the Hoosac School. The meeting was held in New York. Bishop Lloyd paid a tribute to the founder of the school, the Rev. Edward Tibbits, and the Rev. Spence Burton, trustee, spoke of the work being done by the present rector, the Rev. J. L. Whitcomb in glowing terms. Dr. Whitcomb was unable to be present because of illness.

* * *

The Church Army has been holding missions in Providence this past month. One was held at St. Martin's, Pawtucket, with Bishop Bennett also taking part, and another at St. George's, Central Falls.

* * *

Here is another anniversary that hangs up a record. The Rev. John A. Goodfellow on the 4th Sunday in Lent celebrated the 60th anniversary of his rectorship at the Good Shepherd, Philadelphia. He preached his 60th anniversary sermon in the morning; there was then a luncheon, with addresses of course, and in the afternoon Bishop Taitt confirmed a class of fifteen. During this long ministry Dr. Goodfellow has baptized 2951, presented 1475 for confirmation, married over a thousand couples and buried 2259.

* * *

A priest who until recently was a Methodist has proved that it can be done. He is the Rev. George A. P. Jewell, rector of St. Andrew's, Kokomo, Indiana. He has been there just a year. During this time the Church school has been more than doubled, he has presented 22 for confirmation and has 25 now waiting for the bishop. The property has been improved; brick veneer for the parish house; new heating plant for the church; new pews; three rooms added to the parish house. There are an unusually large number of unemployed in the parish and yet they have adopted an increased budget for this year.

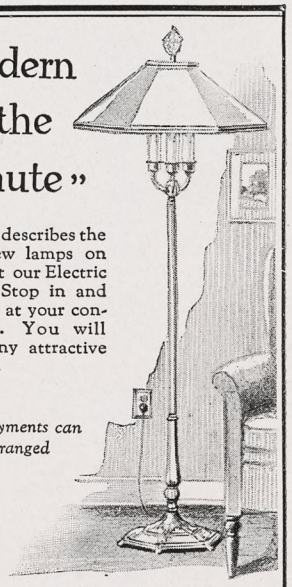
* * *

Bishop Stires was the preacher last week at the united services of the parishes in the hill zone of Brooklyn. The parishes are St. James', St. Mary's, Messiah and the Incarnation which for many years have been uniting for their weekday Lenten services.

* * *

The Rev. L. M. Robinson, custodian of the Book of Common Prayer and professor emeritus at the Philadelphia Divinity School, died on Saturday last of a heart attack while attending a baseball game in Florida. Dr. Robinson was seventy-four years old.

* * *



Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford, is one of the oldest Gothic stone churches in America. Built in 1829, for many years its tower was a conspicuous land mark for boats going up and down the river. Now, however, it is hidden by tall office and store buildings, and the Main Street on which it stands is thronged all day with insurance girls, and shoppers, and the crowd of a downtown district in a busy city of some 250,000 inhabitants.

Once it ministered primarily to "Modern to the Minute" perfectly describes the many new lamps on display at our Electric Shops. Stop in and see them at your convenience. You will find many attractive bargains.

Time payments can be arranged

COMMONWEALTH EDISON
ELECTRIC SHOPS
72 West Adams Street and Branches

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —A New Religious Novel

The MACMILLAN COMPANY, of New York City, issues the first novel based on modern Biblical scholarship. Unique. Historically accurate. Commended by religious leaders such as Bishop F. J. McConnell, Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and Prof. Shailer Mathews. Plot cast in a highly dramatic period, when struggle for social justice and international peace gave motivating force for evolution of monotheism. Shows Bible as a literature developing in hard times. "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel," by Louis Wallis. All booksellers, or the Macmillan Company, New York City, $2.00.—Adv.

FOR CHILDREN'S CORNERS

Set of six original plaster figures, illustrating Easter Tomb scene, exquisitely colored, $10. Also other statuettes. Miss Medary, Taunton, Mass.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.

Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature

18 West 45th Street, New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

KNIGHTS OF STS. JOHN

Wins young men to the Church. Provides worthwhile things to do. Endorsed by leading Bishops and Clergy. Manual of initiations $1. Rev. F. M. Wetherill, 3012 W. Coulter St., Phila., Pa.

"Love's Last Gift, Remembrance"

Beautiful Memorials that Abide for Ever

OLD English and Irish Crosses in silvery grey cornish, dark grey Scottish or warm red Devon granite.

VIIIth St. Minver Cross

4 ft. high $83.00

Packed in case for shipment

Approximate freight to New York $19.50

Illustd. Booklet Mailed Free

Maile & Son, Ltd.

— Founded 1785 —

Sculptors and Church Art Craftsmen

367 Euston Road, London, N.W.1, Eng.

the "best people" of Hartford. Now, while some of them are still in the pews, the congregations contain representatives from every strata of society in the city.

It is always open, heated and lighted, with daily Eucharist, noonhour service, and Evening Prayer. Its invitation to "Come in, rest and pray", conspicuously displayed in the open porch, is accepted by many every day.

* * *

The Auxiliary of Chicago, with the Church Periodical Club, have organized a lending library to serve Church people in isolated districts. Books are loaned on request, the only charge being the postage.

* * *

There is a going chapter of the Order of St. Vincent, national guild of acolytes, at Christ Church Cathedral, Lexington, Kentucky. Five new members were admitted the other day by Dean Sparling, bringing the total to ten. They have their own room in the Cathedral House with a meeting twice each month. They also serve breakfasts in the Cathedral House each Sunday Morning after the early service with a marked increase in attendance at early service as a result.

* * *

Church Army reports a mean trick at one of their rural stations. While one of their men was away from the mission house on a missionary errand, some thief milked the mission cow. However, they say their work would be easier if more people drank milk instead of other things.

* * *

The Rev. Stuart G. Cole, curate at St. Paul's, Syracuse, N. Y., has accepted the rectorship of Trinity, Seneca Falls, N. Y.

* * *

Hua Chung, which in English means the Central China College, opened on February first with an enrollment of seventy. It may be recalled that the college is a federation of five former colleges; Boone; Griffith John of the London Mission (English Congregational); Wesleyan (English Methodist); Huping (American Reformed), and Yale-in-China. The new college occupies buildings on the Boone campus and is already crowded for space. It hopes eventually to grow to an enrollment of 240, with about one third of the number women. Last year 41 of the 52 students were Christians with 25 of them belonging to the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui (Episcopal Church).

There has been no trouble over registration this year. The government passed over with no comment at all the statement of purpose sent from the American trustees in New

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN

Designer and Worker in Stained Glass

36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET

Opposite Trinity Chapel

NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

FOR EASTER

Prayer Books, Hymnals, Pew Books, Litany Books, Missals, Bibles.

ALTAR BOOKS A SPECIALTY

Lectern Bibles
Oxford, Cambridge and Nelson editions.

Gold Stamping Free
Liberal discount to the Clergy, Sisterhoods, Deaconesses, etc.

BEAUTIFUL IMPORTED EASTER CARDS, 5c UP

Consult us on your Church or Church School needs and take advantage of our discounts. Send for Prayer Book Circular 28.

The Redding Masonic Supply Co., Inc.
9 West 23rd St. · New York, N. Y.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

York and also a clear statement of the Christian character of the institution which was contained in the historical sketch submitted. The college is the only Christian college in four provinces with a population nearly as large as that of the United States.

* * *

The First Century Christian Fellowship (Buchmanites) is to hold a house party at Briarcliff, N. Y., from April 22 to May 2nd. The notice states: "Is there an answer to the urgent problems of personal insecurity, family disunity, national selfishness and international strife now confronting the world? A growing number of people in many countries are discovering that the Holy Spirit is the answer. The purpose (of the House party) is not to discuss a new program but to realize a new life, based on a personal discovery of Jesus Christ and His Holy Spirit."

* * *

Representatives from three dioceses in Texas met at St. Paul's, Waco, March 1 and 2 for leadership training courses. Two series of classes were held, one for the Woman's Auxiliary and the other for Young People's work. There was present from the Church Missions House, New York, Miss Grace Lindley, executive secretary of the Auxiliary; Miss Beardsley, assistant; Miss Ruth Osgood and Mrs. Augusta Tabor, Auxiliary field workers; Mrs. T. K. Wade, supply secretary and Miss Margaret Marsden, educational secretary of the Auxiliary. Miss Rachel Sumners, director of young people's work in the diocese of Dallas, Miss Dorothy Fischer, diocese of Texas and Mrs. Bishop Quin were also conference leaders. There were sixty delegates there representing the Auxiliary and forty representing young people's groups.

* * *

The diocese of Chicago is seeking $34,000, half for the deficit of the National Council and half for the diocese. The total pledged to the fund thus far is more than $4,000, of which $1,000 is from the clergy of the diocese.

* * *

Twin boys, sons of Norwegian Lutheran immigrant parents, baptized in an Episcopal chapel, formerly used exclusively by Indians, by an Episcopal missionary, who until recently was a Baptist minister. Lutherans and Episcopalians as godparents, six denominations represented among the white people in the congregation, the Indian half of the congregation all Episcopalians. No one talked about it. It is usual and expected by everyone on Crow Creek Reservation where for thirteen years the Rev. David W. Clark has been bringing the Indians and the white settlers together into working congregations. An Indian said after a well-attended Lenten service, "If we can get the white people to church like this more of them will soon be baptized!"

* * *

The Rev. Howard R. Brinker, rector in Chicago, got such a thrill out of being held up the other evening that he preached on the subject, "How it feels to be held up", the following Sunday. The story that came from the diocesan publicity office in Chicago rather marvels that it hadn't happened before. It says: "Although he has been in the city nearly ten years he had his first experience on Friday night with hold-up men." It was a drug store hold-up and Mr. Brinker merely had to stick up his hands while three boys cleaned out the cash register.

* * *

The Church of the Holy Cross, Pittsburgh, have a new organ, dedicated on March 6th by Bishop Mann. The total cost was $4,300 and the congregation made up entirely of Negroes contributed $3,700 of it.

* * *

The Church work done by our hospitals is too often neglected when praise is being handed out. Here is St. Margaret Hospital, Pittsburgh, for example, reporting that 85% of their work during January was charity work. A new ward was opened recently to care for the increasing number of free patients.

* * *

Near the new buildings of the capital of India, at New Delhi, in the diocese of Lahore, the foundation-stone of St. Thomas' Church was laid on January 30, by Countess Willingdon, wife of the Viceroy. The service was begun by the Rev. A. B. Chandu Lall of St. Thomas' Church, Simla, who spoke in Urdu, and finished in English by Bishop Banerjee, assistant bishop of the diocese. About four hundred people attended.

Clerks and other employees of the capital have their quarters at the southwest end, where the new

CHURCH FURNITURE
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

LITTLE BOOKS

The Personal Christ
By Bishop Johnson
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

History of the Church
By Bishop Johnson
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Evolution
By Bishop Stewart
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Foundation Stones
By Bishop Abbott
Now 75c (formerly $1.25)

Quest of the Sangreal
By Irwin St. John Tucker
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

The Way of Life
By Bishop Johnson
Now 20c (formerly 35c)

Lenten Addresses
By Dean High Moor
Now 25c (formerly 50c)

Meaning of the Real Presence
By G. A. Studdert-Kennedy
A new edition of a tract which has been in great demand.
5c a copy.

American Shrines in England
By A. Manby Lloyd
$1.25 a copy

Cushioned Pews
By Bishop Johnson
Now 75c (formerly $1.75)
Forty of his editorials selected by a committee as being his best. Fine for layreaders.

CASH WITH ORDERS PLEASE
Any books reviewed can be secured from us at publishers prices.

WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave.
CHICAGO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

church is located. It will also serve the thickly populated area of southwest Delhi and is not far from the large suburb of Karaoli Bagh, which has no Anglican church at all. St. Thomas's is intended to be a center of evangelistic activity and will therefore normally have its services in Urdu. The nearest church is a mile and a half away, at the other corner of the capital area, and has English services. It has been difficult to duplicate them in Urdu for the hundred families of Indian Christians, who have been holding their services in a large room in a government building.

* * *

Things do move with slow deliberation in Latin-American countries and missionary work makes large demands on patience. An instance comes in a recent letter from a missionary in the West Indies. Eight years ago he urged a man and woman to marry, as they were living together according to the all too frequent custom of the country. They said yes, some day they would be married. Year after year went by. They brought five children, one after another, for baptism, and each time they said yes, some day they certainly would be married. The other day they appeared and asked the missionary for the marriage service. He gained his point after eight long years of waiting.

* * *

This is the staff that Bishop Littell has gathered in for the new Shingle Memorial Hospital on the island of Molokai, Hawaii. The administrator, a volunteer worker, is Dr. Mildred Staley, whose English father was first bishop of the Hawaiian Islands, consecrated in 1861. Dr. Staley was born in Hawaii, educated in England, served in India until the war, served in France, Serbia, Greece and the Near East from 1914 to 1920 (receiving at least five decorations), spent five years in medical missionary work in Malaya and Fiji, retired to New Zealand, and then settled in Hawaii.

The superintendent of nurses, Mrs. L. C. McAdam, is a Canadian, trained in Cincinnati where, after war service in France, she was superintendent of the Children's Hospital for two years. Miss Thelma Burkee, a second member of the nursing staff, trained in Minneapolis and Chicago. The business manager is also bookkeeper of a Pineapple Plantation Company and serves the hospital with the cordial consent of the Plantation officials.

* * *

Work in the county jail is but one part of a manifold service carried on by the Church through the City Mission of Newark, N. J. The jail is over-crowded and has been so for

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

some time. The chaplain talks with the men individually and in groups, prays with them as opportunity affords, and finds frequent occasion for religious instruction. Many of them read their Bibles regularly. Bibles and Testaments have been supplied on request, including several in Italian, two in Modern Greek and one in Russian.

The Newark City Mission works in twenty-one institutions, with only two and a half chaplains. The "half" is very much a whole man but on part-time. Even on part-time he makes weekly visits to six hundred ward patients in the city hospital, where he is responsible for all who are not Roman Catholics. Twenty-two other institutions are cared for by voluntary chaplains.

* * *

After one's own heart is the little girl quoted in the January issue of Findings in Religious Education. Having used a child-study test on the Church and Industry, some eighth-grade girls wrote their own comments on the subject of Work. One of them said:

"It is a good thing to have work because there would not be anything in the world if there wasn't any work. If people didn't have any work to do it would be bad for them. But I don't like to work myself."

* * *

Bishop Oldham's famous little statement about "America First," has appeared again, this time in the Missionary Review of the World. Spoken years ago at the close of a sermon, these words have appeared as a poster issued by the Council for the Prevention of War, have been incorporated in school text-books, and translated into various languages other than English.

* * *

Miss Virginia Zimmerman has recently become the secretary of religious education of the diocese of Long Island, succeeding Miss Eveleen Harrison, who made an admirable record in this work. Miss Zimmerman is from Cincinnati and is a graduate of St. Faith's, New York.

* * *

In Brooklyn there were a number of union services for the Three Hour service on Good Friday. At St. John's the congregations of the Congregational, Presbyterian, Methodist and Reform churches joined with the St. John's congregation, the service being from the Book of Special Offices and the addresses were given by the various pastors. At the Messiah, Brooklyn, a similar service was shared by the Congregational, Baptist and Presbyterian churches of the neighborhood.

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK

A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Grace and St. Peter's Church
Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Answer of the Provinces

Cheering messages reveal instant co-operation which ring clear and true with loyalty and confidence, to every member, every parish and mission, and every diocese and missionary district, to put the heart back into the missionary work of the Church with an offering of $400,000 by Whitsunday, May 15th.

Where the Answers were registered

That ten provincial conferences were held in the midst of Lent and within six weeks after the meeting of the National Council in the interest of raising the 1932 Deficiency Fund is convincing evidence of the corporate responsiveness of the Church.

FIRST PROVINCE
Boston, February 19th

THIRD PROVINCE
Washington, Feb. 23rd

SEVENTH PROVINCE
Dallas, March 1st

FIFTH PROVINCE
Chicago, March 2nd

SECOND PROVINCE
New York, March 3rd

EIGHTH PROVINCE
(Southern section)
Los Angeles, March 9th

SIXTH PROVINCE
(Northern section)
Minneapolis, March 10th

FOURTH PROVINCE
Atlanta, March 11th

EIGHTH PROVINCE
(Northern section)
Portland, March 11th

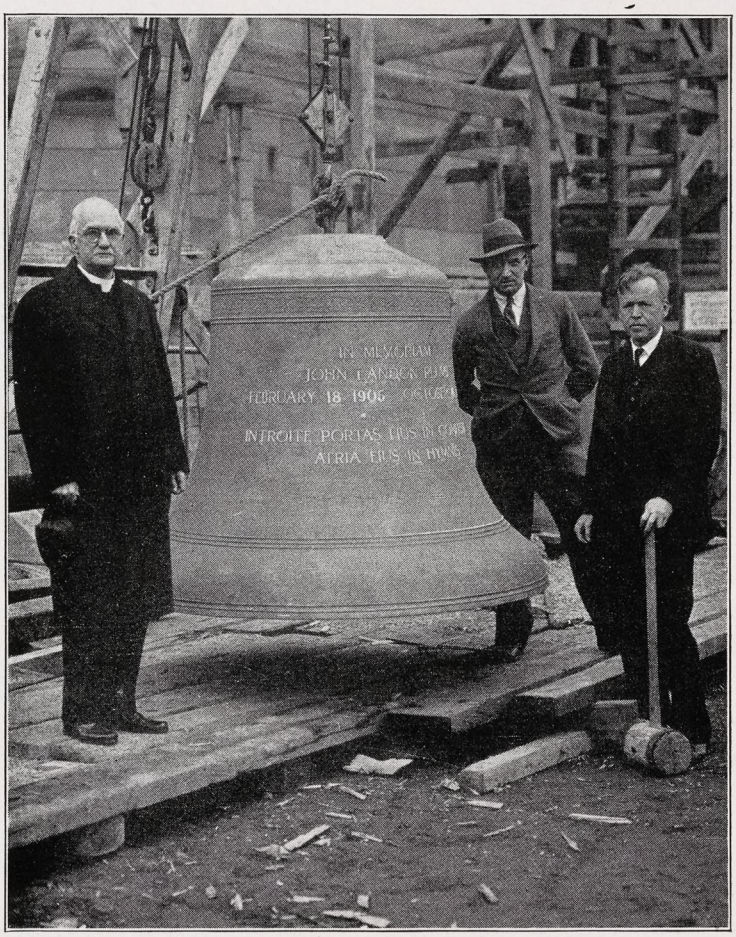
SIXTH PROVINCE
(Southern section)
Omaha, March 15th

Provincial Findings

The Brotherhood and Solidarity of the Clergy—can be depended upon in this crisis. There is the same sacrificial quality in the widespread acceptance of reductions in salary and in the readiness of clergy not so affected to contribute portions of their salaries. Both acts are directed to the preservation of the Church's work.

Individual Gifts of the Laity—With nearly two months remaining before we reach Whitsunday, the announcement of the Deficiency Fund has again emphasized that the Church is served by a small and precious lay clientele of men and women who, in the presence of a crisis in parish, diocese or general Church, wait neither for organization nor a personal summons, but send in their individual contributions forthwith to hearten their leaders at the outset.

Itemized and Personalized Appeal—Every dollar of the $400,000 needed by Whitsunday is itemized and personalized to an extent that has never been true of any previous appeal to the members of the Church. Each dollar represents the existence of definite work impaired by a cut already made and with all margin of a possible lapsed balance already squeezed out.



We are Dealing with Realities—Every dollar of the $400,000 asked for by Whitsunday involves the continuance beyond July first of definite missionary or other religious work impaired by a cut already made and out of which all possible margin of safety in the form of a lapsed balance has been squeezed.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MARCH 31, 1932

DONOR AND PRESIDENT

Testing a Bell of the New Trinity Carillon

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESD 1857

The CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 The Oval London SE11
England
CHURCH FURNITURE
& PLATE
ILLUSTRATED BROCHURE
WILL BE FORWARDED
UPON APPLICATION

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Church Memorial Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. Eighth&Court Sts.
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Write for our Booklet

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.,
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 32 MARCH 31, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

OFFICERS AT THE CHURCH Missions House are patient in their effort to make the rest of us understand their figures. A number of bulletins have recently been received from headquarters giving us all sorts of important figures. Nevertheless we still feel that in revising the budget they have cut missions drastically, but have failed to reduce, really the expenditures of the departments in New York. Their most recent communication states that the decrease in estimated expenditures in 1932 as compared with 1931, for all work done under their direction both at home and abroad, will be approximately $331,805. However they do not make clear, at least to us, just where this saving is to be made. A previous communication stated that the expenditures of the departments at 281 Fourth Avenue (general administration, social service, religious education, finance, publicity and field) totalled $415,863 in 1931. The reduced budget for 1932 allows for the possible expenditure of $408,836 by these same departments. This indicates a saving of but $7,027, which is hardly a figure to justify the superlatives used by the department of publicity in announcing "drastic cuts which have gone beyond mere economy and have actually crippled the work." The difference between appropriations and actual expenditures (lapsed balances) will materially increase this saving. Nevertheless it seems improbable, as things now stand, that there will be sufficient savings in these departments to bring them up to a figure indicating that they are bearing even a proportionate share of the cuts that have been necessary. The will of the Church, as expressed at General Convention, was very definitely that these departments should bear, not a proportionate share of the burden, but as large a part of it as possible in order that the work in the field might not suffer. These figures seem to show that the opposite is the case; that the missionary work is bearing a large part of the burden in order that the work of secretaries at the Church Missions House may continue practically undisturbed.

THE IDEA, long accepted by most Episcopalians, that matters pertaining to politics should not be mentioned in a pulpit seems to be passing. Speaking at the dedication of Seabury Hall at the General Seminary, Bishop Manning urged his clergy to preach sermons in support of Judge Samuel Seabury who is waging a battle against corruption in politics. A few weeks later Bishop Stires of Long Island urged, even more strongly, that it was the duty of the clergy to attack political corruption from their pulpits. More recently at the service for the relief of the unemployed, held the evening of March 20th at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, Mr. William H. Matthews, director of the emergency relief bureau of the unemployment committee of the city, criticised the churches for not bringing pressure to bear upon municipal and state governments with demands for more adequate relief for the destitute. Churchmen are unanimous in their opposition to political corruption and in their desire for adequate relief for unemployed workers, and we are entirely with these New York Bishops who had the courage to speak out. Nevertheless it should be pointed out that the use of the pulpit for the advocacy of these worthy causes is breaking down a precedent long accepted in the Episcopal Church. Possibly it is time that it was discarded. But those advocating the change should do so only if they are prepared to have expressed from our pulpits political opinions with which they themselves may thoroughly disagree.

TOO MUCH PRAISE cannot be given to the treasurer of the National Council, Dr. Louis B. Franklin, for the manner in which he has handled the trust funds of the Church. We doubt if there are a half dozen business establishments in the country that can show such a record. At a time when there is drastic depreciation of investment securities of all types, so carefully have the funds of the Church been handled that Dr. Franklin was able to report to the

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Council a net loss of only two per cent. The report shows the purchase of $5,243,362 worth of securities. The market value of these securities on January 11th was $4,907,837. Against this small depreciation the report shows a credit of $236,654 as a profit on the sale of securities at prices above their book value. Business men, a bit enviously, praise loudly, such an accomplishment.

IS THE WORLD sick because men have believed in God or is it sick because Christians have misrepresented the God in whom they profess to believe?

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

HARRY W. LAIDLER

President of the National Bureau of Economic Research

RALPH FLANDERS, vice-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, recently declared that, with proper social planning, engineers in this country "could provide raw material, machinery and trained labor sufficient to flood, bury and smother the population in such an avalanche of food, clothing, shelter, luxuries and material refinements as no Utopian dreamer in his busiest slumbers has ever conceived."

H. W. LAIDLER

And yet we find today millions of human beings in the charity lines, many of them facing actual starvation, while machinery stands idle and food is rotting on the ground.

A few years ago many boasted that the new capitalism was leading us to the promised land. Under that new capitalism there were, from 1920 to 1927, anywhere from a minimum of 1,400,000 to 4,200,000 out of jobs, while many who had work were receiving far less than was required for a normal existence. Today that great army of unemployed has reached seven or eight millions and, if we consider those partly unemployed as well, around twelve million. What demoralization of body, mind and spirit is represented by these cold statistics of enforced idleness it is impossible even to describe.

Confronted by this situation, such conservative thinkers as the Dean of the Harvard School of Business Administration declare that, "if something is not done which changes the situation, we may well be facing an immediate major breakdown of capitalism."

FUNDAMENTALLY our present insecurity is due to our extremes in wealth and income distribution and to our lack of social planning for the common good. A few years ago a gentleman died in New York with an estate valued at $180,000,000. About the same time the average wage in the country was estimated by the National Bureau of Economic Research at about $1200 a year. It would take 3,750 wage earners, working for a forty year period, to earn, but not to put aside, as much as that one individual was able to put aside by the time that he died. The 513 receivers of incomes of a million dollars or more in 1929 received returns equivalent to the yearly wage of over a million average wage-earners.

Such differences in income and wealth were attributed in the old days primarily to difference in ability, in industry, in thrift, in risk. The marked differences of income which confront us today are due primarily, however, to the differences in the ownership of our natural resources and of the basic industries of the country. Nor are they necessary as an incentive to industrial activity. They do little to increase the happiness of their recipients. They are a frequent cause of arrogance, of parasitism and of anti-social activities on the part of the wealthy. They make permanent the misery of the poor; corrupt our sense of values and in the end, must lead to a demand for a fundamental change.

These extremes are a prime cause of unemployment. Almost automatically those possessing great wealth put aside a large part of their income into new productive machinery to turn out more goods for the mass of the people, with limited funds, to buy. The result has been the construction of an industrial equipment in many industries out of all proportion to the effective consumption power of the people. As mass production takes the place of small scale production, this lack of balance between productive power and the consumption power of the masses becomes an increasing source of insecurity.

Today we have planning within one plant or corporation. We have no planning in industry as a whole. Each corporation is thinking in terms of maximum profits for itself, not social welfare for all. After every depression each corporation endeavors to expand its force and machinery with the aim of acquiring as large a proportion of the business in a specific field as possible. This leads to overexpansion, to the saturation of the market, and ultimately to the falling off of sales, the discharge of the workers and to another period of depression. Only when we organize industry on a nation-wide or on a world-wide scale can we eliminate such periods of economic chaos.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

OUR present organization of economic society gives no assurance of security, of equality of opportunity, of human brotherhood. Its motto is, "Each for himself and the devil take the hindmost." Its god is profit, and, in most decisions on policies of hiring and firing, of wages and hours, of individual and collective bargaining, of price and quality of goods, and of international relationships, the first consideration is given to profits, rather than to human personality.

The present order thus runs directly counter to the ethical concepts of Christianity. Christianity will succeed or fail in proportion as it is able to translate its ideals into the social fabric and to bring about in our tremendously important economic relationships a kingdom of justice, of security, of equality of opportunity, of human brotherhood, a kingdom where human welfare is placed before money and where every endeavor is made to provide for the masses the life more abundant.

Only when the primary drive of industry is service, not the amassing of great fortunes; only when reward is dependent upon merit, and not on the accidents of birth; only when all men and women able and willing to work are assured a job and when the mass of men and women have an opportunity to enter into the finest heritage of modern civilization, will such a kingdom come near to realization. An increasing number of Christians are coming to the conclusion that these things cannot be achieved except by a complete transformation of industry from the basis of private ownership to that of cooperative or community control of our industrial life. And such a transformation, they believe, will, for the first time in civilization, lay an economic and social foundation conducive to the finest development of the spiritual nature of the common man.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

VIII. The Petrine Claim

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

BEFORE the reign of Constantine (308 A. D.) the Church was a brotherhood, existing in the Roman Empire in defiance of the State. It was therefore singularly free from those who used their religion for social uplift or for the loaves and fishes. When Christianity became the state religion, it entered upon an entirely new sort of existence. It at once attracted to its membership those who sought the favor of the court and those who posed as scholars. It was impossible for the Church to avoid giving a reason for the faith that was in it. In order to make the creeds palatable to the wise and to the mighty Christian philosophers began to assert their explanations of our Lord's divinity in order to suit their academic theories, and this process has gone on ever since.

We have seen how Arius, who was a prominent rector in Egypt proposed to explain that Christ was a creature whom God had adopted rather than the only begotten Son of God. It was true that he had an able antagonist in Athanasius, but no forensic skill of itself could have persuaded the Nicene fathers to repudiate the implicit faith which they had in our Lord's deity. They had not worshipped a creature and they had worshipped Christ. It was however, the statement of Arius which forced them to define Christ's divinity which they had previously taken for granted. This passion for definition continued, as it was quite in keeping with the Greek mind, and it was the Greek and not the Latin who dominated the Church for the first five centuries.

The claim of the Papacy that it has been the mouthpiece of the Church from the beginning breaks down in the study of early history. We do not blame Cardinal Manning for having said that "an appeal to history was treason to the (Roman) Church". The modern claim that it had infallible authority in the early Church is quite unknown in the records of that day. The General Councils and not Papal bulls settled questions of faith. There was, what Father Puller has well named, "a conspiracy of silence" about these ex cathedra utterances of Rome prior to 450 A. D.

It would be difficult to build up the Papal theory upon the utterances of the Greek fathers at any period of the Church's history. The General Councils were not summoned by the Pope. He did not determine the place where they met nor the canons that they passed. Indeed the Roman Pontiff was quite indignant that the fourth General Council should have met in the East and should have made further definition of the faith, and that the Canon of Chalcedon (451) attributed the primacy of Rome, not to the fact that it was the See of Peter as Leo desired them to do, but to the fact that Rome had the primacy because it was the imperial city.

In order to understand the Roman claims, you must first understand that even if our Lord had given a supremacy to St. Peter, He had not indicated that he received such a commission as bishop of Rome, nor had He indicated that such authority should be vested in those who succeeded him in that See. It was the desire of Pope Leo to establish that connection with Peter when he asked Chalcedon to declare that Rome had the primacy because it was the See of Peter and it was the unwillingness of this fourth General Council to ratify this statement which has always proved bothersome to those who support these claims.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

There are three or four questions that have to be answered before the Petrine Claim can be acknowledged by others than those who have prejudged the case in their own favor.

There is very little evidence to show that St. Peter ever had any diocesan jurisdiction in Rome. It is difficult to understand how St. Paul, writing to the Romans somewhere about A. D. 50 could have ignored the jurisdiction of Peter or have failed to salute him as he did many others; and after the year 60 in writing to Timothy he again omits reference to the fact that he was writing in the jurisdiction of one whose greetings to Timothy he so studiously neglected.

In the next place there is no evidence either that our Lord bestowed upon St. Peter the jurisdiction of that see, or that St. Peter passed on to his successor, who was selected after his death, such a vital authority as that of infallible supremacy. Moreover in what particular method did the sainted apostle bestow this supreme authority to his successor? Certainly not by any laying on of hands, for he was among the departed when his successor qualified. In whom did the power reside during the interim? Moreover such authority as the Papacy now claims has never received universal assent, for the Greek Church never honored the claim, but on the contrary by their action at Chalcedon the primacy of Rome was given on other grounds. To understand this question, the reader must be careful to distinguish between these three words:—primacy, supremacy, infallibility.

It is easy to make language which in the early Church referred to the primacy, fit into a theory of supremacy. The early Church cheerfully assigned to the bishop of Rome the primacy which became the basis of the theory of supremacy, but the whole Church never endorsed the latter claim, although it acknowledged the former in various General Councils.

It would be difficult therefore to find any records in history of either the Metropolitan of Alexandria or Constantinople accepted the ruling of the Roman Pontiff as placing upon them the obligation of blind obedience. It is curious that the keystone of dogma in the Roman theory insists upon a doctrine which does not exist in the Scriptures or the early fathers. It is a pure assumption that what our Lord said to Peter referred to Rome which He did not mention.

It is also curious that not only did the great General Councils fail to set forth the Petrine theory of imperialism, but actually practiced the democratic theory of constitutional action and refused at Chalcedon to accept the statement of Leo requesting them to give the primacy (never the supremacy) to Rome because it was the see of Peter. Indeed if you had been a Christian in Rome during the first century you would have been regarded by your enemies as belonging to a Greek religion. The Scriptures were written in Greek; of the first ten bishops of Rome, nine of them had Greek names. The liturgies were in Greek. Later on the General Councils were all in the East; the canons were set forth in the Greek language; the creeds were Greek creeds.

Naturally the Metropolitan of Constantinople, which also was an imperial city, contested with the Bishop of Rome as to the matter of supremacy. They fraternally excommunicated one another over this question.

It has been the sad story of the Church that provincially minded ecclesiastics have sought to hyphenate our Lord's catholicity. Although He came to make of one blood all nations of the earth and although in His Church there was to be neither Jew nor Greek nor Roman, yet we have successively hyphenated Catholicity.

For the first few years the attempt was made to make it a Hebrew-Catholic Church.

Then for some centuries it was a Greek-Catholic Church with the Metropolitan of Constantinople claiming universal jurisdiction.

Then in the Middle Ages, in Western Europe, it became a Roman-Catholic Church.

And there are Anglicans who would like to see it an Anglo-Catholic Church, but the Councils and the creeds proclaim instead one holy Catholic and Apostolic Church without any hyphen to limit its universality.

(Continued next week)

Benefit to Dioceses

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

IN PREVIOUS articles I have advanced the idea that the work of the National Council could be on a safe foundation only when the pledges from dioceses were permanently fixed. The National Council could expect a certain amount each year from any diocese, and could arrange its budget accordingly.

It will be asked "if the dioceses fail to pay their pledges now, or if they revise them downward, how could there be any assurance that they would not fail in the future?" This possible contingency must be guarded against by three provisions. (1) The diocesan pledge must be based on a careful calculation of average diocesan performance over a period of years. The pledge must be somewhat below the average of performances. (2) The diocesan pledge must be paid in full from the money received from the parishes, before the diocese benefits from such moneys. (3) A reserve of undesignated legacies must be set up, which could be called upon if a diocese through unusual difficulties, had to modify its pledge.

This would seem to assure the National Council a fixed income. It could plan its work for years ahead with some certainty. And this plan would effect very great economies in the cost of all the printing, appeals, and travelling expenses of speakers.

What about the dioceses. I can fairly feel the surging tide of opposition arising from bishops and diocesan organizations over the suggestion that the pledge to the National Council be paid first.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

It is my firm conviction that diocese will benefit by this plan. The reasons are these. (1) Inasmuch as the pledge to the National Church would be below average performance in each diocese, the diocesan share of parish gifts would not be adversely affected, if the parishes maintained their quotas. (2) But as I have said elsewhere the parishes may be unable to maintain their quotas. Would the diocese suffer? The answer is that the diocese would suffer no more than at present from such a decrease in parish gifts. The diocese would seem to stand all the decrease, but inasmuch as the National Church, under its present system, will come back to the dioceses to pay up deficits, the diocese has now to face two difficulties, the National and the diocesan. Under the proposed method, it would face but one, and the one it is best prepared to meet. (3) Admitting that the diocese must stand all the fluctuations of parish support, are there not alleviating conditions that make it possible for the diocese to do so, with real chance of success. (a) The diocese, relieved of any anxiety about national work, can with better heart concentrate on its own problems. (b) The diocese, with a fixed national pledge, can expand its own work, without the menace of an increased national expectancy hanging over it. (c) The diocese has direct and personal contact with givers. Diocesan officers have immediate knowledge of financial resources. They can approach the persons having excess giving capacity. While such gifts ought to be credited to parish quotas, the diocese will benefit by any excess over the quota. (d) The people can be more quickly educated in diocesan enterprises and needs than in national undertakings. (e) The parishes could with more safety give in excess of their quota.

The system today tends to encourage parishes to give somewhat less than the quota for fear that the quota be increased. The system today causes a year or two of prosperity to set an expectancy which increases the diocesan pledge to the National Council, and thus leads to false hopes that such performance is normal. Both diocese and National Church are now suffering from such false expectancy.

But if the Diocesan pledge is fixed, the parish can give more largely to the diocese in good years. The parish officers can confer with diocesan officers about the condition of the parish. The parish can have its quota adjusted to conditions.

Thus the diocese will have a very fair knowledge of what to expect. (f) The diocese can with less difficulty adjust itself to a fluctuating budget. A fluctuating budget for the National Council is disastrous. (g) This proposed method minimizes the danger which now exists that parishes will grow weaker because money needed for their own work should be drained off for new work. The very first concern of the diocese should be for the strength, stability and efficiency of its parishes. The parish is the vital unit of production. It is a powerful missionary agency in its own field. The distinction between a parish and missions is purely arbitrary. Every parish worth the name is an active and aggressive mission to the unchurched, the needy, the distressed. If any method devitalizes the parishes, the entire diocesan and national structure is in jeopardy.

The method of having the diocese stand the fluctuations of parish giving is but wise cooperation to prevent the capital assets of the parish from being drained off to support other enterprises. Parishes can stand such a drain for a time, but suddenly they will collapse. The diocese that in its zeal fails to take the condition of parishes into account, first of all, is launched on a policy that will in time bring the whole diocesan structure into dire difficulty.

(h) The clergy will be greatly sustained and stimulated if they can feel that the great work of the National Church is on a secure foundation, and that the dioceses are working with the parishes, and not in competition. Many of the clergy now feel that the chief concern of the National Church, and of the dioceses, for the work of the parish, is that the parish pay its quota. This feeling is probably not justified, for many a bishop is most sympathetic and kind in parish affairs. But such a feeling should have no possible ground for justification.

For all these reasons the diocese would perform a service of unparalleled value to the whole Church if they would determine upon a fixed sum to be paid to the National Council, and pay it. This would reduce the area of uncertainty about income to a limited area where it could be more easily managed with best hope of success.

Then the General Convention could say with authority to the National Council "Let your budget each year be determined by your fixed income for the year."

We could then say farewell to crises, alarms, deficits, cuts, and distress of missionaries, for all time, and the Church would not be always under the wailing wall of despair.

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. Auguste Demant

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEW COOK HALL AT TRINITY

TRINITY COLLEGE EXPANDS

By
W. G. BRILL

THE new chapel at Trinity College, now nearing completion, and the crowning feature of a building program that in three years has produced three outstanding new structures, is but the outward and visible sign of a solid progress and enduring growth that has marked the ten-year administration of the Rev. Remsen B. Ogilby as president. Every phase of the college has felt the impetus of new vigor since the completion of the centennial endowment fund in 1923 made possible attention to matters other than finance.

The chapel, a gift of William G. Mather, Trinity 1877, of Cleveland, will be a notable contribution to college and ecclesiastical architecture in America. As a whole, and in almost numberless details, the building is as near perfection in beauty and usefullness as architects, builders, and donor can make it. It represents English Gothic architecture as that type of building was developed from the Norman to the highly ornamented late Gothic that gave to the world some of its most beautiful cathedrals. The crypt chapel, under the sanctuary of the main chapel, is Norman, and the development of the Gothic type is exemplified throughout the main structure, culminating in a 163-foot tower that soon will become one of the beauty spots of Hartford. The architects have carried out their idea even to the extent of making a single pointed arch in the crypt chapel, the doorway leading from the sacristy, their fiction being that between the beginning of construction and the completion of this chapel there was a period of wars and a change in abbots, with the newcomer finding his bulk too great for the tiny Norman doorway designed by his predecessor.

Such minute attention to detail has characterized the entire construction of the building. Long ago, the workmen took an oath that no slovenly or dishonest work should sully their craftsmanship, and for several months every man on the job has started his week of labor with a special service, conducted by President Ogilby on Mondays at 8 o'clock in the crypt chapel.

The 13-foot Rose window in the west end of the nave is a memorial to the mothers of all Trinity men who contribute to the fund for it. As the afternoon sun strikes through it, this window becomes a veritable jewel on the breast of the Madonna. The side windows of the main chapel will illustrate the gradual unfolding of man's conception of the Deity, one showing fire worshippers, another Mohammedanism, another Judaism, and so on, culminating in the great Te Deum window over the altar, where the heads of many men notable in the history of Trinity appear, along with those of the fountains of Christianity.

The small, or North, Chapel has been designated "The Chapel of the Perfect Friendship." Here the college fraternities will hold their annual corporate communions. The seals of all fraternities will be embedded in the floor around the altar, and the windows will illustrate the great friendships of history and literature: Damon and Pythias, Roland and Oliver, Aeneus and Achates, Launcelot and Arthur, etc. Over the altar of this chapel is a beautiful Last Supper window, with the Beloved Disciple the most prominent of the twelve.

In the chapel tower there has been placed a carillon of thirty bells, the gift of Rev. John F. Plumb, executive secretary of the diocese of Connecticut, and Mrs. Plumb, in memory of their son, who died while a student at Trinity. These bells, cast by John Taylor and Company of Loughborough England, were first played by Kamiel Lefevere, carilloneur of the Riverside Church, New York, and delighted the hearers with their purity and mellowness of tone.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE first building constructed in Trinity's development program houses a 75-foot swimming pool and six squash racquet courts, and is to be the central one of a three unit physical education plant. The swimming pool is of unusual beauty, and the courts are considered the best thus far built to provide accommodations for this fastest growing of individual games. Last year Trinity, founder of the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Association, joined with Harvard, M.I.T., Yale and Princeton in organizing the Intercollegiate Squash Racquets Association.

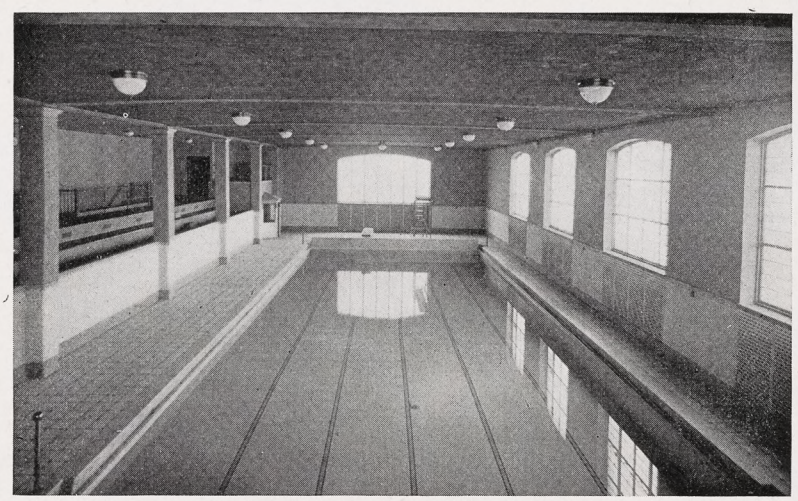
In January a new dormitory, named Cook Hall in honor of the donor, became available and relieved conditions in the old dormitories, which are crowded to capacity, with three students in most of the suites designed for two. This building, of brown stone similar to the material used in the original buildings on the present site of the college, turns the corner of the south side of the quadrangle that was started fifty-odd years ago by the 600-foot line of Jarvis Hall, Northam Towers and Seabury Hall. Matching it on the north is the library and office building, known as Williams Memorial. The north line is being completed by the chapel and a projected addition to the Williams Memorial. The south side of the quadrangle will be closed by an addition to the new dormitory, and a projected and badly needed new chemistry laboratory. The east side will remain open, with the bronze statue of Trinity's founder, Bishop Brownell, in the center. Upon completion, this quadrangle will be one of the outstanding collegiate structures in the country.

Matching the physical progress of Trinity has been the increase in quantity and quality of students. Three years ago the undergraduate body numbered 269, two years ago 296, last year 341, and this year 412. Geographically, the drawing power of the college has increased each year and a larger number of students from private schools has been recorded. Scholastic mortality has shown a steady decline during the period, and now is less than five per cent of the student body. In the last two years, only one student above the grade of freshman failed scholastically. Trinity graduates are welcomed in the ranking graduate and professional schools of the country.

All undergraduate activities are thriving, and provide opportunity for every student to develop his potentialities. Last winter the glee club, in its first organized post-war season, under the direction of Trinity's new professor of music, finished fourth among eleven clubs entered in the New England trials for the intercollegiate championship.

ON THE COVER

THE first memorial given to the Trinity College Chapel was a carillon of thirty bells, donated by Rev. and Mrs. John F. Plumb as a memorial to their son who died during his undergraduate course. The photograph on the cover shows Mr. Plumb, who is the secretary of the diocese of Connecticut, Mr. Harris, the representative of the bell founders, John Taylor and Company of Loughborough, England, and President Ogilby, who has just tested the largest of the bells by wielding the mallet in his hands. The chapel construction, photographs of which have previously appeared in this paper, is in the background. The completed chapel will be dedicated at the June Commencement.



MR. McALLISTER'S RESIGNATION CAUSE OF FALSE RUMORS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

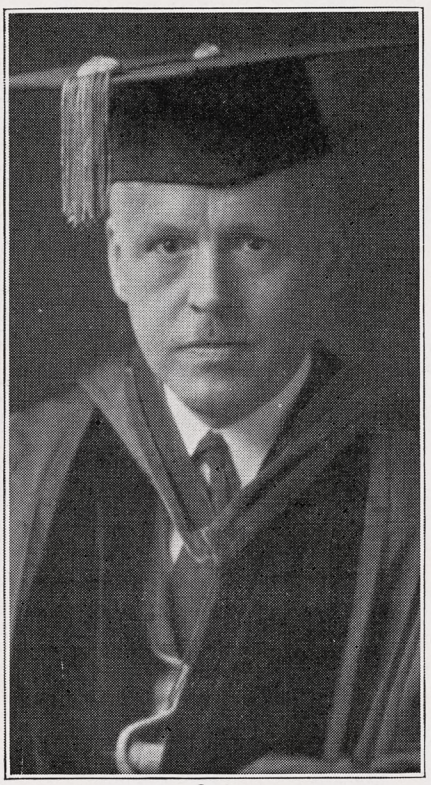
When a man resigns as the rector of one of the strongest parishes in the country, after having served for only ten months, people naturally are interested to know what lies behind it. So there has been an unusually large amount of discussion over the resignation of the Rev. C. E. McAllister as the rector of St. Luke's, Evanston, wherever Church people have met during the past few weeks. Mr. McAllister came to St. Luke's ten months ago, succeeding Bishop George Craig Stewart who had been the rector of the parish for twenty-six years. Then suddenly came the announcement of the resignation, with the statement given out that it was to be effective at once. A report a week later stated that Mr. McAllister was to leave Chicago almost immediately. Rumors spread about rapidly that the difficulty was caused by interference in the affairs of the parish on the part of a former rector—a natural supposition possibly since Bishop Stewart had virtually created this parish and of course must retain a tremendous interest in it. Any such cause has been denied repeatedly by Bishop Stewart, by Mr. McAllister and by the St. Luke's vestry. The rumor still persists, however.

THE WITNESS is now able to state positively that no such cause is in any way responsible for this sudden resignation. Those who do know the inside story feel apparently that it is to the best interests of the Church if it is not generally known. That being the case we propose to print nothing further about the matter, and say this much merely to help quiet, if possible, the entirely false rumor that interference by Bishop Stewart was responsible for the resignation. On the contrary Bishop Stewart has stalwardly stood by Mr. McAllister and has aided him in every way possible.

Members of Christ Church, River Forest, Illinois, young people's service league believe in supporting their parish and the Church's program. The Rev. George W. Ridgway, priest-in-charge, appealed to them to assist in the Every Member Canvass. They have raised $182 in pledges and have pledged $200 to the parish building fund as a result of the appeal. Not all of the group are members of the Church.

THE NEW SWIMMING POOL
At Trinity College, Hartford

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.



NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

There is a bit more that I would like to tell you about the bells presented to Trinity College by Dr. Plumb. The son in whose memory the bells were given was a senior in Trinity. He became ill of appendicitis and was very sick in the Hartford Hospital. But he knew there was a football game and that if Trinity won he would hear the old chapel bell ring out. Late in the afternoon, near death, he heard the peal of the bell and was delighted. His father and mother therefore felt that a carillon of bells would be a particularly appropriate memorial to him. His father writes: "On the anniversary of his death members of his fraternity asked President Ogilby if he would give them an early communion service in memory of John. Dr. Ogilby consented, there was a 100 per cent attendance, and the service has been held every year since. The attendance is always fine which seems quite remarkable since none of the boys there now knew him. We love to think that his Christian character made a deep impression on his fellows and has become a tradition in the fraternity, and that through the bells in his memory he will still be calling them to worship."

* * *

The 12th annual social service conference of the Church, held under the auspices of the department of Christian social service of the National Council is to be held in Philadelphia May 13 to 17, running at the same time as the National Conference of Social Work. Among those on the program are Miss A. R. Swan of the Auxiliary of the diocese of Pittsburgh, Mrs. William M. Sharp of the Training School, Philadelphia, Mrs. J. Willis Martin of the Auxiliary of Pennsylvania, the Rev. Donald Wonders, chairman of social service of the diocese of Ohio, the Rev. Rankin Barnes, executive secretary of social service, the Rev. Floyd Van Keuren, secretary of social service of the diocese of New York, the Rev. Almon R. Pepper, secretary of social service of Ohio, Miss Margaret C. Maule, social service chairman of the Girls' Friendly, Miss Mary Van Kleeck, director of Industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation, the Rev. J. T. Ware, social service secretary of the diocese of Southern Ohio, Miss Mary S. Brisley, Church Mission of Help and Dr. William H. Jefferys of the Philadelphia City Mission. And I thought that was all but here is another page with further important names: Mrs. John M. Glenn, president of the Church Mission of Help,

REMSEN B. OGILBY
President of Trinity College

Miss Bertha Reynolds, associate director of the Smith College school of social work, Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr.. and Professor Sumner Slichter of the Harvard Business School. Quite a crowd.

* * *

The Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, for thirty-three years the rector of Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia, died on Thursday of last week of bronchial pneumonia. He was in his eighty-third year. The early years of his ministry were spent in the mission fields of the west. Later he was the rector of St. James Church, Keene, N. H.; Calvary Chapel, New York; Christ Church, Hartford; St. James, Chicago and Grace Church, Providence. He was the author of several books and was very prominent in national and diocesan Church affairs.

* * *

The last session of the 1932 Round Table Fellowship, sponsored by the department of religious education of the diocese of Michigan, was held on March 14 in Detroit. During the five weeks of the Fellowship 617 persons have enrolled with an average attendance of over 500, representing practically all the parishes and missions of Greater Detroit. The Rev. D. A. McGregor of the Western Seminary was the speaker at this closing session.

* * *

An anthology of Anglo-ecclesiastical literature of the seventeenth century is being prepared under the direction of a group of educators of our Church. The editors are Professors Paul Elmer More of Princeton and F. Leslie Cross of Oxford. Others on the committee are Dean Fosbroke, the Rev. Frank Gavin of General, Dean Ladd, Dean Washburn, Professor Whitman of Nashotah, Professor Allison of Yale, Professor Murdock of Harvard and Professor Root of Princeton. The book will depict the character of the English Church during the readjustment period following the Reformation.

* * *

The Rev. Malcolm J. Van Zandt, Trinity, Detroit, has resigned to accept a call to St. Thomas', Neenah-Manasha, Wisconsin.

* * *

A great service to stimulate the effort to raise funds for the relief of the unemployed in New York was held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine the evening of March 20th, with parishes from all over the city uniting. The first speaker was Mr. William H. Matthews, director of the emergency work bureau, who said that the church-going population of the city had been derelict in its duty toward demanding that the city relieve distress by making ample appropriations and he held that the State Legislature would not have reduced needed relief appropriations had the churches made any proper protest.

"In the days of the war we held many mass meetings, many parades of respectable people, protesting this, advocating that," Mr. Matthews said. "But in these matters which no less mean life or death to many people, we aren't very much stirred up."

He was followed by Bishop Manning who pleaded for $250,000 for relief. "I ask you who are here and all our people to consider not only the material effects of this suffering and want, but also to consider the moral and spiritual effects upon those who are in this situation, the strain upon home life, the breaking down of morale, the loss of hope and courage and efficiency and self-respect which such a situation brings.

"This call to us is immediate. Further and more far-reaching remedial measures must be considered later. The situation calls now not only for generosity, but for sacrifice to aid those who in their great distress are looking to us for sympathy and help."

Bishop Gilbert stated that there were at least 2000 Church families in New York city alone who were absolutely destitute. Mr. George W. Wickersham also spoke and assured the congregation that there was hope for improvement in general conditions but that the present emergency must be met.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Every seat in the Cathedral was filled, with a large overflow crowd in the ambulatory and the choir. There were about one hundred clergymen in the procession.

* * *

The Rev. C. E. McAllister, resigned rector of St. Luke's, Evanston, assisted at St. Luke's, Scranton, Pa., during Holy Week. He preached the Three Hour Service on Good Friday and was also the preacher on Easter Day. The Rev. Robert Kreitler is the rector of the parish.

* * *

Holy Week Services in Scranton, Pa., held in the heart of the city each noon, were attended by fully 2000 people each day.

* * *

The Rev. Harry S. Weyrich, assistant at Emmanuel, Baltimore, has accepted a call to Christ Church, South Amboy, N. J.

* * *

Mrs. Eliza D. Powers, wife of the rector of the Holy Nativity, Baltimore, died on March 22. In addition to her husband she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. James Mitchell of Alexandria, Virginia, and two sons, Hugh W. S., Jr., and Henry Powers.

* * *

A classified and annotated reading-list on "Preparation for Marriage" has been prepared by the Social Service Department of the National Council and may be obtained at five cents a copy from the Bookstore, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York. Intended primarily for the use of the clergy, this bibliography will be found of service to all Church workers, parents, teachers and "other leaders who have responsibility for character education."

* * *

Mr. Parson, have you a sermon which you consider to be worth $250? The Macmillan Company has offered a prize of that sum for the sermon which, in the judgment of a board of editors, is considered the best submitted to them. From the manuscripts submitted it is intended to form a volume of about thirty sermons. It is their hope that the material gathered may serve to indicate how keen minds and consecrated hearts are meeting the spiritual, intellectual and social needs of this age. So if you want to win $250 by writing the best sermon, or desire a national hearing for your sermon even if it is only one of the thirty best, write to Mr. L. H. Titterton, head of the religious book department of the Macmillan Company, sixty Fifth Avenue, New York City, and he will send you the rules of the contest.

Better send for the rules in any case. They are interesting since they state the points on which your manuscript will be judged. Might mention THE WITNESS in writing. It will identify you as an Episcopalian and it should be more generally known that we are as interested in good sermons as are our brethren of other churches. Certainly it will be a real distinction to have a sermon in this book.

* * *

On a recent Sunday the Rev. David Clark made his monthly visitation to Holy Name chapel on the Lower Brule Reservation, South Dakota. It is only 125 miles from his headquarters to this chapel; the thermometer registered from zero to 15 below and there was a deep covering of snow on the prairies. However, Mr. Sam Medicine Bird, warden of Holy Name chapel, a man who speaks no English, was on the job and had the chapel warm. He had been down with the flu for a week but got up Saturday afternoon and though not very well walked four miles in the face of a cold north wind to keep his appointment! What if the missionary had failed? To be sure the battery fell out of his car, but he walked the last half mile and arrived in good time.

* * *

The Concord Conference, province of New England, opens at St. Paul's School on June 27 and runs until July 6th. Among the leaders this year are the Rev. Gardiner M. Day,

There is
No Depression

. . . for those who enjoy the benefits of an annuity. Annuities are of particular advantage to persons of mature years who wish to be free from the worries occasioned by an irregular income derived from an investment in bonds or stocks.

. . . and for those without dependents, too much cannot be said for this arrangement of their finances.

For full information address

The
Church Life Insurance
Corporation

20 Exchange Place
New York City

A Subsidiary of The Church Pension Fund

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —A New Religious Novel

The MACMILLAN COMPANY, of New York City, issues the first novel based on modern Biblical scholarship. Unique. Historically accurate. Commended by religious leaders such as Bishop F. J. McConnell, Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and Prof. Shailer Mathews. Plot cast in a highly dramatic period, when struggle for social justice and international peace gave motivating force for evolution of monotheism. Shows Bible as a literature developing in hard times. "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel," by Louis Wallis. All booksellers, or the Macmillan Company, New York City, $2.00.—Adv.

The Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

BISHOP STRIDER
Heads Important Commission

the Rev. Theodore R. Ludlow, the Rev. E. A. Dodd and the Rev. James S. Neill, all of whom are to give Bible courses. Bishop Brewster of Maine is to teach the Prayer Book and the Rev. Ralph Hayden, also of Maine, is to give a course on Church history. The Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., is to head the courses given for teachers, assisted by Mr. H. T. Lowe, superintendent of schools at Newport, R. I., Mrs. Maude Copley and Miss Lillian M. Boyd, both of the department of religious education of the diocese of Massachusetts. The Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, executive secretary of the field department of the National Council, is to give a course on missions and the Rev. Edric A. Weld, rector of Holderness School, is to give a course for young men on building a Christian World. The courses for the young people's fellowship are to be given by the Rev. Arthur Phinney and the Rev. R. R. Carmichael. Personal religion, always stressed at Concord, is to be handled by the Rev. John M. Groton, Rev. F. C. Lawrence, Rev. Gardner Monks and Mrs. Edric A. Weld.

* * *

The Commission on a new laymen's organization, set up by General Convention to look into the desirability for such an organization, and to create one if they consider it wise, met in Cincinnati on March 6th at the call of Bishop Strider of West Virginia, with eleven of the sixteen members present. It was unanimously agreed that there is "a need and an opportunity for further enlisting the laymen of the Church in the promotion of the work of the Church," and several committees of the commission were appointed to consider the details of a plan for such an or-

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ganization. The members of the commission are the Rt. Rev. R. E. L. Strider, the Rt. Rev. Henry W. Hobson, the Rt. Rev. Elmer N. Schmuck, the Rev. Dr. Charles Clingman, the Rev. H. S. Musson, the Rev. A. W. Noel Porter, Mr. Warren Kearney, Mr. George M. Block, Dr. Walter Hullihen, Mr. Robert H. Gardner, Mr. Courtenay Barber, Mr. Eugene E. Thompson, Mr. John D. Allen, Judge Philip S. Parker, Mr. Frank P. Dearing, Mr. Harry S. Gregg.

* * *

The scheme for Church unity in South India has advanced one more step. A special session of the General Council of the Church of India, Burma and Ceylon, which corresponds to our General Convention, was held in Calcutta in February. The questions about the scheme which had been referred to the Lambeth Conference in 1930 for advice were discussed again in the light of the communications from Lambeth.

Finally, a resolution of general approval was carried almost unanimously, instructing the Anglican members of the Joint Committee on Union to ask for certain modifications but showing that in spite of some dissatisfaction and the need of much further consideration, every part of the Church of India is in favor of persevering with the scheme.

The next step, in the Anglican Communion, is that every one of the organized dioceses in India must consider the schemes, in their councils, and it must be approved by at least two-thirds of them. There are thirteen. The fourteenth, Nasik, still ranks as a missionary diocese. Then the scheme will come up again in the General Council's next meeting, in 1935.

For the other Communions concerned, there are four Wesleyan Councils, three of which have approved, and the decision of the fourth is awaited. In the organization known as the South India United Church, there are nine Councils, and six have so far approved.

It is thus possible that the scheme might be inaugurated in 1936. Bishop Westcott of Calcutta, Metropolitan of India, has written to Bishop Norris, chairman of the Chinese House of Bishops: "You must not think that the scheme is likely to go through rapidly. I am inclined to think that ten years' more work will be required before there is that real measure of agreement that would justify the inauguration of the experiment. . . . The Bishop of Nasik . . . says that he is more than ever in sympathy with the scheme, but he is impressed with the extent of the gaps which still have to be bridged, and that process will take time."

Thirteen diocesan bishops were present (the see of Lahore being vacant), forty-four priests and thirty-nine lay representatives. Every diocese was represented by both orders.

* * *

The diocese of Western New York is following the example of the dioceses of Massachusetts and Rhode Island—in any case they are making a try at it. A number of the Buffalo clergy have sent a letter to every clergyman of the diocese asking him to take a cut of 10 per cent in his salary, the fund thus raised to go to the National Council to apply on the $400,000 that has to be raised. Collections are also to be taken in most parishes on Whitsunday for the deficit.

* * *

Now here is an idea. Bishop Rowe, stopping over in Chicago the other day on his way west, suggested that the government send a million or two of its unemployed to Alaska. The depression is hardly known there, he said, and the country can easily provide a livelihood for five million people, whereas only 75,000 live there now. The first paragraph of Dr. Laidler's article, elsewhere in this issue, rather indicates that even this good old country might also easily provide a livelihood for many millions

THIS MAN'S IDEA IS A GOD-SEND TO FOLKS WHO NEED MONEY

By P. H. Graham

This is a true story. I know this man personally. I know of the folks he has helped. I know of widows with children to support who thank him for their incomes. I know of men who lost their jobs but are now making more money than ever before. Yes, I know of literally thousands of folks to whom this man's idea of doing business is a god-send.

How Much Do You Need?

If you need money I know you will be interested in the wonderful opportunity this man has to offer you.

He is President of a large million-dollar manufacturing company. He started a few years ago with an idea. It was this. He said, "I will share the profits of my business with the folks who help me." His business became tremendously successful. And today it is still growing. Right now he needs 300 men and women in all parts of the country. He needs someone in your section to help handle increased business. To everyone who comes with him he guarantees a fair, square deal and an amazing opportunity to make money in pleasant, dignified work.

Will $40 a Week Help You?

You don't have to invest any capital. He has taken care of that. You don't need any experience. He tells you the few things you need to do in simple, plain language. I'll be surprised if you don't make $25 to $35 a week for a few hours of your spare time. If you want to, you can stay on with him permanently. Your earnings will be in proportion to the time you can devote. I know of people who make anywhere from $40 to $100 in a week.

Your Income Can Start at Once

I sincerely ask you to fill out and mail the coupon. You don't obligate yourself or risk anything. You will receive complete instructions by mail. You can start right away and have the money you need coming in. It will certainly pay you to give this a trial. By all means, get the details. Just put your name and address on the coupon. Mail it today.

ALBERT MILLS, President,
283 Monmouth Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio

Yes, I want to make money. Without cost or obligation, send me full details of the wonderful opportunity now open in my locality.

Name .....

Address .....

.....

(State whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss. Write plainly.)

"My Father's Rupture Appliance Was Kept by 3,000,000 People AFTER 10 Days Free Trial"—Harold Brooks

C. E. Brooks invented his remarkable "Air-Cushion" Appliance 31 years ago. It brought him safety, comfort and the results he had long desired. Today more than 3 million men, women and children have purchased a Brooks after first trying it at home for 10 days. The trial cost them nothing and the same 10-day Free Trial is yours for the asking. You owe it to yourself to Write Now for Free Trial details, also Free Brochure, both sent in plain, sealed envelope. Act Now!

C. E. Brooks, Inventor BROOKS APPLIANCE CO. 340-A State Street, Marshall, Mich.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

that are not getting it now, if we considered that as our primary job. Why go to Alaska for something to eat when they are burning wheat here because there is too much of it? Figure out the simple answer to that question and we can check you down as being wiser than most of our legislators in Washington appear to be. The answer has been repeated time and again in the series of articles on "The Christian Way Out." Read Dr. Laidler's article this week for instance—the gist of the whole business is there.

* * *

The Auxiliary of Western New York is to hold its spring meeting this coming month at St. Luke's, Jamestown.

* * *

The Rev. Henry Darlington, rector of the Heavenly Rest, New York, has deeded to the diocese of Newark certain lands adjoining Eagle's Nest Farm, Delaware, N. J., the site of the diocesan camp.

* * *

The convention of the diocese of Western New York is to be held at Trinity, Buffalo, May 16, 17 and 18.

* * *

The world today is not asking what is God's will but what is the expedient thing to do in the immediate crisis, the Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity, New York, declared in his sermon last Sunday.

"The world is suffering today, but it is not redemptive suffering," he declared. "We must consciously bear the results of our sins, only so can there be any hope for mankind. Every man should repent for his sins, suffer for them, be willing to die as a sacrifice for them if necessary."

He declared that sins are not isolated things but are a part of the spirit of evil that God has seen as destroying the world, and that every person has an individual responsibility for his share in the corporate wrong.

"One should say not how wicked is society today but what share have I in the wickedness and unfairness that is in the world," he said.

* * *

The Rev. J. Howard Melish of Brooklyn, who speaks out on occasions, had things to say last Sunday about the tie-up between Tammany Hall and gangsters and racketeers. Speaking of our political rulers he said:

"They levy tribute upon every business man dealing with the government, from the chalk used by the child in the schools to the railway and electric light necessary to the welfare of all," he said. "They are in league with gangsters and racketeers, without whom they could not exist.

"The organizations operate under the names of great political parties,

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

even as Caiaphas in Christ's time operated under the name of the Church and Pilate in the name of the empire. But party names are only counters to catch fools."

* * *

The Transfiguration, New Buffalo, N. Y. church, was formally dedicated on the 13th by Bishop Ward, of Erie, acting for the bishop of Western New York who is on a holiday. The rector of the parish is the Rev. Edgar L. Tiffany who came to Buffalo from the Ascension, Pittsburgh, in 1928. This new church will seat 300 people. At the moment the parish has 400 communicants, eighteen active societies and a Church school of two hundred and fifty. The growth and accomplishments of the parish over a short period reflects credit upon the leadership of Mr. Tiffany.

* * *

The dates of the Gambier Conference are from June 27 to July 8. Among the leaders are Spencer Miller, Jr., who is to give a course on industry, the Rev. Arthur Sherman on missions, Rev. Freeman Whitman of Nashotah on English Church history, Rev. John Bradner on religious education, Miss Florence Newbold on the Girls' Friendly Society.

* * *

A luncheon in honor of the Rev. Phillips Osgood of St. Mark's, Minneapolis, was given in Chicago by laymen of the diocese. Dr. Osgood was in the city as the preacher at the noonday services at the Garrick Theatre. In his address Dr. Osgood declared that he has complete confidence in the outcome of our present economic difficulties, indicating possibly that things are not quite as bad in Minneapolis as they are in Chicago. Said he: "Conditions are ripe today for a great religious awakening. It is a day of starvation for the Christian message. We are on the threshold of a new apostolic age if history means anything. The Christian Church has a great opportunity and responsibility for advance ahead of it which will be just as effective in its mission as an onsweeping avalanche."

* * *

The whole question of opportunities for work for women in the Church has been referred to a special committee appointed by the National Council for investigation and study. This is in line with the following resolution of the 1930 Lambeth Conference:

"The Conference wishes to insist on the great importance of offering to women of ability and education, who have received adequate special training, posts which provide full scope for their powers and bring to them real partnership with those

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK

A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30). 11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

St. James, Philadelphia
Rev. John Mockridge
22nd and Walnut Sts.
Sundays: 8, 11, and 8.
Daily: 7:30, 9, and 6.
Holy Days and Thursdays: 10.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

who direct the work of the Church, and genuine responsibility for their share of it, whether in parish or diocese, so that such women may find in the Church's service a sphere for the exercise of their capacity."

The Presiding Bishop appointed a small committee to inaugurate the study. This committee has added to its members Church women who are representative of various professions. The active membership is for reasons of economy and expediency at present limited to the eastern part of the country, but women throughout the whole country are actively interested. The Committee will hold an all-day meeting on April 1st, at the Church Missions House, in New York City.

Among the committee members are: Miss Grace Lindley, honorary chairman; Miss Charlotte Tompkins, educational secretary of the diocese of Central New York, chairman; Deaconess Frances R. Edwards, secretary; Miss Edna Beardsley; Miss Margaret Marston; Miss Mary E. Ladd, in charge of Windham House; Miss Mary S. Brisley, of the Church Mission of Help; Dr. Gertrude Bussey, of Goucher College, Baltimore; Mrs. Vladimir Simkhovitch of Greenwich House, New York; Miss Eva Corey of Massachusetts; Deaconess Elizabeth Chappell, field secretary of the retiring fund for deaconesses; and Dr. Irene G. Woodcock, clinical and private practitioner in Oral Health, New York City, and member of the child study commission of the department of religious education.

* * *

John Carlton Turner, protege of Bishop Juhan of Florida, was ordained to the priesthood at the Good Shepherd, Jacksonville, on March 6th. He is in charge of two missions near the city.

* * *

The Rev. William T. Sherwood has accepted the rectorship of Trinity, Tyrone, Pa.

* * *

Archdeacon Leslie of Newark dedicated a new parish house at Lincoln Park, N. J., on March 6th.

* * *

The Bishop of Chicago, generally referred to in the newspapers as "one of the young leaders of the Church," is now a granddaddy. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stewart last Saturday.

* * *

Mrs. Ernest V. Shayler, wife of the bishop of Nebraska, died in Omaha on Saturday last after a short illness of pneumonia.

* * *

The Girls' Friendly of the diocese of Chicago is to hold its annual missionary service next Sunday at Emmanuel Church, LaGrange. Archdeacon Ziegler is to speak and the rector, the Rev. Irvine Goddard, is to officiate.

* * *

The Rev. Francis J. Hall, formerly professor of theology at the General Seminary and a distinguished scholar, died on March 12th at his home in Baldwinsville, New York.

* * *

A group from St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, New York, journeyed to Douglaston, Long Island, on the 13th and presented four episodes from Kahlil Gibran's "Jesus the Son of Man" at the afternoon vesper service at Zion Church where the Rev. Lester L. Riley is rector.

* * *

More than 13,000 books were circulated among patients of St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, during the past year, according to the annual report of Mrs. D. W. Warinner, librarian. The detective story is most in demand among patients. Running second in the type of books read are biographies.

St. Luke's Library is a branch of the public library and is operated in conjunction with Grace church, which adjoins the hospital.

All is not drab in this old world!

For instance, did you know that this country is now producing the finest stained glass in the world?

THE WITNESS is presently to run a series of articles on that ancient art written by

ELEANOR H. WILSON

ELEANOR H. WILSON

Then there are our great Church Boarding Schools, a heritage not sufficiently appreciated by most church people.

Within a few weeks we are to start a notable series of articles on our leading schools which will be of interest to all Episcopalians, and particularly to those planning to enter children in some school this fall.

THE WITNESS

QUALITY - BREVITY - PRICE

and as a result

LARGEST CIRCULATION OF THE CHURCH WEEKLIES

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ARTICLE BY CONRAD NOEL

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 7, 1932

TABERNACLE
In Christ Church, New Haven

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD. 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Praise God
Church Furniture
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Stained Glass Memorials
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet sent on request

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.,
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& · COMPANY · LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 33 APRIL 7, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE DEPARTMENT of Christian Social Service of the National Council has issued a useful bibliography on The Preparation for Marriage which may be had for five cents by sending to the Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York. There is a list of recommended books for the clergy, for parents, for young people, and for those about to be married. The new canon on marriage passed at the last General Convention requires instruction on the nature of Holy Matrimony. This leaflet is therefore particularly timely. The department has also issued a pamphlet which presents three outlines for sermons on marriage by the Rev. Howard C. Robbins, professor at the General Seminary; the Rev. Harold Holt, rector of Grace Church, Oak Park, Illinois, and Archdeacon J. T. Ware, the executive secretary of social service of the diocese of Southern Ohio.

ALL SORTS OF PLANS have been suggested, and adopted by various dioceses, to raise the $400,000 necessary to bring the National Council out of the red. Many of them have been reported in our news columns. Could each parish be persuaded to do its share there would be no need for feverish excitement. We have more than 1,200,000 communicants. If every communicant gave fifty cents the desired objective would be far exceeded. Rectors need not be disturbed. The National Council is not trying to raise the debt of the federal government. If your parish gives a sum equal to fifty cents per communicant you are doing more than your share.

IN THE DEATH of the Rev. Floyd Tomkins of Philadelphia, reported in these pages last week, the Church has lost one of her most distinguished sons. A pioneer in missionary work and in social service enterprises he lived to see his once radical proposals accepted by the Church which he so greatly loved. He was an outstanding figure at General Conventions and wherever Churchmen met to debate vital matters. He labored long and well. May he rest in peace.

IN THE RECENTLY published book, "The Church and Industry", written by Spencer Miller, Jr. and the Rev. Joseph Fletcher, appears this statement: "The Church League for Industrial Democracy stands almost alone today as an organization in the Church which is facing the economic problem armed with the commands and promises of Christ." During recent months this organization has done vital and timely work among the miners in West Virginia and Kentucky, the textile workers of North Carolina and Virginia and the silk workers of Paterson. It has steadfastly stood for the sort of economic society urged by Lambeth Conference and General Convention resolutions, and stands alone in interpreting this message to workers, thousands of whom are forsaking the Church each year for the want of just such a message of hope from some Church source. Churchmen and women will, we feel, realize the vital necessity for this pioneer work and will respond as generously as possible to the emergency appeal which appears on the last page of this paper.

DO PARISHES fail to meet their missionary obligations because they are weak or are they weak because they have no vision beyond their own needs?

CHURCHMEN AND WOMEN planning to be in England during July would do well to attend the Summer School of Sociology, to be held under the auspices of the Anglo-Catholic Congress, at Keble College, Oxford. The general subject is "The Social Mission of the Catholic Revival", and the lecturers are to be the Rev. V. Auguste Demant, the Rev. P. E. T. Widdrington, the Rev. W. G. Peck, Mr. Maurice Reckitt, with a devotional address on each of the four mornings of the conference by Canon V. Spencer-Ellis of Liverpool. These men are in the front rank as Christian sociologists. There are Episcopalians who would prefer the word "Christian" to the word "Catholic" in the subject to be considered, but we are sure that it would be a mistake to stay away on that account. The dates of the conference are July 25 through 28. The entire cost, including room and meals at the college, is but two pounds, ten shillings—barely two dollars a day at the present rate of exchange. Miss V. Hirst, S. Agathe's Vicarage, Sparkbrook, Birmingham, is the person to whom applications should be sent.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE CHRISTIAN WAY OUT

By

CONRAD NOEL

Vicar of Thaxted, England, and Leader of the Catholic Crusaders

IT IS imperative to assume, because of the short space at my disposal, that the essentials one mentions here as fundamental to Christ and His immediate followers in their demands for a New World Order will be shared by the Christian public generally as authentic and need not be elaborately argued point by point.

After a life's study of the gospels and early Christian literature I am convinced that the Sermon on the Mount, the story of Dives and Lazarus as implying the social teaching of Moses and the Prophets, the Jewish backgrounds generally, especially the weightier matters of the Mosaic economic and social law, the land for the workers and no loaning at interest (Luke 6: 34-5), the frontal attack on the exploiters in the Temple; that all these are paramount examples of that New World Order which He was about to inaugurate for all the Nations of the world.

This international Commonwealth was to be a kingdom of equality in which none should be eased while another was burdened; all within it would be workers, ministers, contributors; within its borders should be neither Greek nor Jew, male nor female, bond nor free; it should recognize no distinction of race, sex, or class.

Practically all the early Christians were looking forward to such a New World Order, some believing it must come after a short period of accommodation within the empire, others that no such accommodation was possible; all believing that sooner or later the corrupt Jewish Polity, the Roman empire and all other empires must be swept away and an International Community founded on God's righteousness would be established. The Church was not the Kingdom but its organ and midwife. Not till the corrupt compromise of the days of St. Augustine was the Church identified with the Kingdom and the hope of its fruition postponed into a world beyond the grave. Christians were to prepare and live for the coming of "The Day." Whether they themselves by God's inspiration were to hasten it and actually inaugurate it, or whether their role was to be more passive and one of merely waiting is still a disputed point of criticism, although I cannot myself but think that their part in it was to be more active than is generally supposed.

NOW in applying these principles to the modern world crisis I am convinced that no tinkering with the capitalist order, no attempt to make it a little more endurable, is consistent with the Will of God as revealed in Scripture, nor would any compromise with capitalism in its last phase, namely, capitalist-imperialism be consistent with His Will. The system is evil at the roots and not merely at the circumference, seeing it is built on profit making, trickery, land robbery, greed, domination, forcible exploration of dependencies. All such phrases as "The British Commonwealth of Nations" merely serve to mask our determination to hold on to our very profitable dependencies and to keep them in bondage to a rentier, industrialist and financial oligarchy. The British Empire is of course no worse than the American or the French; in all lie concealed the same unchristian motives under a veneer of moral sentiment. We extract some three hundred million pounds per annum from the "natives" who sometimes work for a few pennies per day under conditions which suggest the old Roman imperial latifundia slave mines.

All this must be swept away, either by the conversion of those who rule, or by the rising tide of the millions below. Each nation must put its house in order; and each, having achieved self determination must use its freedom for cooperation and interdependent service. So only can the New World Order as envisaged by Christ be established. We believe that in reality such an Order would be in the best interests of all mankind, and would give a more joyous life to the present rich and comfortable as well as to the workers. If the "classes" were not so blind they would make common cause with the manual workers, but can they be persuaded? History seems to negative so hopeful a solution. But with or without their help it must be made, for it is the Will of God and they who oppose it will ultimately be swept aside.

THE actual technique of such a revolution would nowadays be comparatively simple, for our problem is no longer poverty in the midst of scarcity but poverty in the midst of plenty. A World redeemed nationally and internationally would form its real League of Peoples (not the present travesty called the League of Nations) with its economic intelligence departments. Nations would be encouraged to produce what their respective soils and climates made it most natural for them to produce, and all would contribute over and above what was home consumed to the common international store. In place of world conferences busy with the problems of how best to destroy wheat, cotton, oil, rubber, coffee, etc., there would be a permanent world conference regulating production for use not profit according to the needs of each group. The enormous energies now wasted in methods of destruction would be harnessed to channels of production and nations would beat their swords into plough shares.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Machinery would liberate mankind from drudgery and they would turn their leisure hours to creative arts and craftsmanship. The reign of joy and plenty spoken of by Christ and the prophets would at last have dawned and that early saying attributed to them would in effect have been fulfilled, when every vine would bare a thousand branches and every branch a thousand clusters of grapes and every harvest would be an hundred fold increased, for mankind has only to seek first the Kingdom of God and Justice and all these material blessings would spontaneously be added to them.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

IX. The Rise of the Papacy

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IN FOLLOWING the history of the Church one is impressed by the fact that an institution which was so simple in its original form, so lacking in influential members, so persecuted by powerful interests and so contrary in its ideals to popular sentiment, should have not only survived the Roman Empire but should have successfully endured during the chaotic period which followed the Fall of Rome from 450 to 800 A. D. These centuries have been properly called the dark ages.

In the third and fourth centuries there was a Græco-Roman civilization bordering on the shores of the Mediterranean Sea, which in magnificence and luxury would equal that of our own day. In the fifth century the barbarians of the North looted and dominated the entire population. During the sixth, seventh and eighth centuries, Western Europe presented about as much cohesion as China did under the rule of Mandarins and war lords. Of course the barbarians who ruled were not entirely ignorant of Roman culture but they were disdainful of it. It was about as if several tribes of Indians who had come in contact with civilization through war and trade should have conquered the United States, divided it up among them and substituted their tribal traditions for the law of the land. It is true that the Romans might have their own courts in which cases involving Romans only could be heard, but the Teutons scorned the intricacies of such courts and decided cases in which they were involved by their own crude methods. Education declined almost to the vanishing point. Religion deteriorated and was often a strange mixture of Christian doctrine and pagan ceremonies.

These barbarians called themselves Christians, thanks to the despised missionaries who had labored among them, but their comprehension of ethics was very meagre and their practice far removed from any precepts of the Sermon on the Mount. To this disorder in the West was added the rise of Mohammed and the subjection to Islam of most of the East (except Constantinople and a small area surrounding it). All of North Africa and most of Spain fell to Islam.

The Eastern Church was thus entirely cut off from the West during this period; and prior to this era the jealousies between Rome and Constantinople resulted in constant friction and mutual recrimination. But Constantinople retained its culture and remained civilized whereas Western Europe became barbaric. It is marvelous that the Church preserved its faith and discipline through this long dark night of barbarism. We must always remember in following the story of the Church, that while it received its faith and sacraments from our Lord, the administration of these divine gifts was placed by Him in human hands. Even in His life on earth, His apostles strove as to which should be greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. Moreover, in the days of the Apostles the Church was divided between those who followed St. Paul and those who followed St. Peter. In the same spirit, the bishops of the two imperial cities claimed a universal jurisdiction on their brethren, and during the period preceding the Dark Ages they were continually striving with one another for the mastery. The rise of Mohammedanism left the Bishop of Rome the sole claimant to this universal jurisdiction so far as Western Europe was concerned. The East became completely isolated.

Previous to and during this period of the Dark Ages, the papacy was aided in its contention by several factors. In the first place she had a definite claim based upon Scriptural Texts which she had dexteriously applied to the See of Rome. The General Council at Chalcedon had definitely refused to allow this claim and the Eastern patriarchs never have acknowledged it. This contention between Greek and Roman is the fundamental one. The Church of England has merely allied itself with the Greek Church in their repudiation of Papal claims. As has been well said, "The Greek Church is the breakwater behind which the Anglican Church may rest her case."

But back in the reign of Gratian (375 A. D.) who was the Western Emperor, certain things happened which strengthened the Pope's position. Gratian was a young and devout Catholic, about the only one of the Emperors who could be thus described. Previous to his reign, the Roman See, in agreement with the common practice of patriarchial sees, had an appelate jurisdiction over adjacent territory. That is, if contentions arose between dioceses, or over matters of faith, the case was appealed to the Archbishop in whose province it originated. There had been a previous controversy between the Pope and Cyprian, a North African primate, over papal interference in Cyprian's jurisdiction. But Gratian invoked his secular power to extend the jurisdiction of Rome to Gaul and North Africa. It is ominous that it should have required an imperial rescript to give the bishop of Rome an extended jurisdiction which however was far short of universal control. Gratian also was the first of the Emperors to refuse the title of Pontifix Maximus, an imperial office which made the Emperor the high priest of pagan worship. Previous Emperors had less tender consciences; but Gratian was too devout to retain the office. It was too valuable an asset for the Bishop of Rome to overlook and it is a most significant fact that the earliest genuine papal credentials date from Gratian's reign.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

It was about the same time that Gratian, or his son, removed the Altar of Victory which was the great shrine of Pagan Rome. It is not surprising that both Gratian and his son were murdered. Paganism made its final stand in the Roman Senate. It marked however, the official overthrow of Paganism, and the transfer of certain pagan prerogatives to the Christian Church. Who was so meritorious to receive these legacies as the Bishop of Rome?

It is not surprising that a few years later, Leo was insisting upon the recognition of Roman claims by the action of a General Council. Both the Greek and Anglican Churches preferred the pronouncement of a General Council to the growing claims of the Papacy. They cheerfully conceded the primacy but declined to accept the supremacy. This absence of any papal credentials (which in that day resembled the decisions of a Supreme Court, but not the mandate of an executive head) caused a devoted partizan of the Roman See to manufacture a series of credentials from St. Peter to the Papacy. These credentials were regarded as authentic (indeed it was not safe to question their authenticity until the scholarly period of the Reformation) and so they had an important bearing upon bolstering the Roman claims. Unfortunately the monk who manufactured them gave scriptural quotations from Jerome's translation of the Bible in the fifth century, in a document proporting to have been produced in the first. Today no scholar could validate the Forged Credentials, but they did their work before the jury for several centuries. It ought not to have been necessary to support a divine right by such a clumsy equivocation.

Far be it from me to detract from the value of the Papacy during the Dark Ages. Without its intelligence and authority it would have been almost impossible for the Church to have survived the chaotic conditions of those times. It was quite necessary that there should have been a spiritual power whom those barbarous chieftains regarded with fear and awe. But all tyranny usually has its foundation on services rendered. Nero was the beneficiary of the services of Julius and Augustus Caesar. It does not follow that because the original Caesar rendered valuable services to Rome, therefore Nero reigned by divine right. In the same way one cannot attribute supremacy and infallibility to the successor of the Papacy because at times and places the Roman bishop may have saved the ship from shipwreck. It is a specious argument but it has little to do with the case. The issue must always be whether the possession of the primacy and the rendering of many great services in this capacity, carries with it a subsequent supremacy and a belated infallibility.

(Continued Next Week)

Understanding the Parishes

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

WE HAVE a notable group of men at the head of our National Church. The National Council is the pick of the Church. They give of their time and strength to upbuild the Church and to extend it. In no word that I have written in these articles would I imply any word of criticism of their motives or their zeal and consecration. Likewise they have selected an able group of secretaries and officials who function at 281 Fourth Avenue, New York City. But these men have rested their labors upon a chain of support that has two weak links. These links have suddenly given way. The result is that the National Church is confronted with very great difficulties. I realize that I am repeating what I have said before, but it must be repeated until it becomes clear.

The first weak link is that the National Council undertakes work with only the security of diocesan pledges which may vary from year to year. If all the diocesan pledges are revised downward some of the work of the National Church is wrecked. The remedy for this is to have a constant and unvariable diocesan pledge which must become the first charge upon the diocesan sums collected from the parishes.

The second weak link in the chain is the dependence of the whole system upon the ability of every parish to pay in full the arbitrary amount apportioned to it, called the quota. The inability of the parish to pay its quota affects ultimately the diocesan pledge and consequently the National work. The remedy is to relieve the strain upon parishes and dioceses and to replace their gifts by income from endowments secured by gift and legacy from persons who have large giving capacity.

The depression in business has brought out these weaknesses. For the income of many a parish has been affected. But there is a conviction in many quarters that even if there had been no depression hundreds of parishes could not long meet the demands made upon them. I shall treat the changing condition in parishes in another article, but here I wish to call attention to but one condition which affects their giving capacity. I refer to the constant appeals made to our people to support all kinds of charitable work and institutions.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The pressure upon all people living in communities has grown to be enormous. They are the often unwilling victims of high-pressure drives, of campaigns, of the appeals of friends and neighbors, of the necessities of local institutions. Our people are affected by these efforts. Necessary and good as some of these purposes may be, the result of reiterated appeals, often accompanied by improper pressure, is to annoy the givers, and render them insensible to the real merits of the cause they are asked to support.

With this flood of appeals comes the appeal of the Church. Is it any wonder that it is hard to create the enthusiasm necessary to achieve the desired results. We are in competition with numerous agencies most of which have merit in their claim and inspire in their supporters the feeling that they are doing the Lord's work when they give. This is one of the many things that are affecting parish support. The parishes have done nobly in missionary giving for the past five years.

Many of the clergy look with alarm upon the effort of the National Council to raise $400,000 in a high pressure campaign in order to meet the revised budget. There is a growing conviction that such an effort at this time will not only affect unfavorably the systematic effort of parishes to meet their 1932 quotas, but will merely postpone the crisis to 1933 when it will overtake the Church in more severe form. It is little short of wilful blindness not to see that the confidence of the people in the present system has been shaken. The people may not be able to lay their finger on the defect in our system, but they know that no matter how generously the parishes give, the very increase of giving tempts the enlargement of the general work, and thus creates the greater and greater expectation of support. This but aggravates the trouble and increases the magnitude of the disaster, when the parishes have reached the very limit of their resources.

The excess giving power of the Church, the wealth of the Church, cannot be allured into supporting a work subject to recurring deficits. There is no promise of permanent gain in such a work.

We may well cry out as did the people of old, "What shall we do then?"

The answer seems obvious. Before asking for $400,000 or any other sum, let the Church through its House of Bishops, assure the parishes and dioceses that steps will be taken to give the National Council a fixed income from the dioceses. The House of Bishops should assure the dioceses and parishes that the National Council will arrange to spend its fixed income from all sources, and no more, until that income is increased by permanent endowments.

If such assurance could be authoritatively given, then the House of Bishops could with better heart ask the people to give a sum sufficient to save the essentials of its missionary program. They could ask for help in this crisis, because they had done everything humanly possible to make certain that there would never be another crisis of this nature.

To restore the confidence of the whole Church in its own system is of more importance in this crisis than to raise any given sum of money. A present decrease of income may result in giving up temporarily some features of our work, but a loss of confidence in the system will affect the Church for a long, long time.

Jungles Preferred

Reviewed by
GARDINER M. DAY

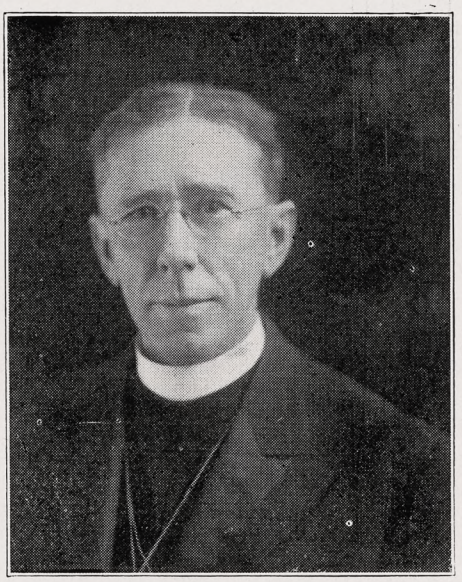
IT MAY seem strange to turn from Dr. Bowie's interpretation of the best way in which to live the most abundant life in our modern civilization, recently reviewed, to Janet Miller's description, in a most fascinating volume, Jungles Preferred (Houghton Mifflin), of how she enjoys life to the full in the heart of Central Africa. "As I write," says Mrs. Miller, "the sun has gone down in such a blaze of glory I feel as though a glimpse of celestial splendor had been granted us. We have tied up as usual on the edge of the jungle, as darkness has settled around us. I feel far, very far away from my home people tonight, farther than the farthest star which shines there hardly discernable in the fathomless sky, but I feel less a stranger in a strange land than I have ever felt, for I have had a glimpse into the heart of the black people —kind, and responsive to kindness—which I had not had before." The whole volume is filled with intimate descriptions of the ways of the different animals of the jungle. Surely few of our modern city dwellers could read it without learning a great deal about lions, crocodiles, chimpanzees, water buffaloes, and all their cousins. In addition a beautiful picture is painted of the moors and manners and beliefs of the primitive black man and his over-decorated wife. No one could read this volume, written in a mission station in the Belgian Congo, without becoming convinced of the absolute necessity of the work of missionaries. An example of the kind of instance that appears again and again is the story of how the witch doctor administers a poison drink to an individual suspected of a crime, on the old belief that if he gets well he is innocent, while if he dies—which he always does—he is guilty. Not very different from this is a story illustrative of the natives' confidence in the power of fetiches, which they believe will protect them from all evil. A five year old child was devoured one day by a crocodile because the child's mother believed so implicitly in a fetich the child carried that she never warned him of the danger of crocodiles. Consequently the child became a victim while playing by the edge of the river. More fascinating hours in the heart of the jungle can hardly be imagined than those which will be given the reader of this amazing record.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE CHINESE PAY A REAL TRIBUTE TO ROBERT WOOD

By G. W. Browning

March 29th was celebrated by numbers of people, Chinese and foreigners, up and down the Yangtze River, as the sixtieth birthday of a distinguished missionary. The Rev. Robert Edward Wood of St. Michael's Church, Wuchang, has been working in China since 1898. He has been longest in China of all our missionaries except Bishops Graves, Huntington and Roots and the Rev. Dr. Pott, though a few others are near him in length of service. He is famous for his understanding of the Chinese, for his kindly dealings with ricksha coolies and other poor people, for the beautiful Chinese he speaks, for his hospitality to foreigners and Chinese alike, for his self-effacing modesty, his deep spiritual insight and his irresistible sense of humor. When Mrs. Habersham was taking her motion pictures of the staff in Wuchang, Father Wood walked up to the camera grinning and saying, "If you can get anything pretty out of me, you're welcome!"



* * *

A thrilling little missionary biography just published in England is the story of Clifford Harris of Persia. He was an English boy who went out to Persia in 1926, when he was twenty-one years old, gave himself devotedly to his work, and at the age of twenty-five died of typhus caught from poor people he was serving. His brief and splendid career, out of all proportion to the usual length of service, recalls a line from E. A. Robinson's Tristram, "Years are not life . . . Time is not life." One of his friends says of Clifford Harris, "I always saw in him a happy combination of St. Francis and Peter Pan."

* * *

Are you one of the wise people who know exactly where to look on a map of the world for the island of Tristan da Cunha? If so, you know that it is probably the Church's most isolated and remote mission. It is a tiny British island in the south Atlantic, midway between Capetown and Buenos Aires. For the past eighty years the English Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has shepherded the little colony of fewer than two hundred people, and priests have gone out for three-year terms, cut off from all touch with the world except for a ship's calling perhaps once or twice a year.

There is a little church of native stone, a school house and some twenty cottages with little struggling gardens, a small herd of cattle and a few sheep. A bare wind-swept mountain peak towers above the little settlement, and a rocky coast and the stormy ocean surround it.

BISHOP MORELAND
Host of Pacific Synod

The Rev. A. G. Partridge has just finished a three-year term there. Bishop Watts of St. Helena, whose diocese includes Tristan da Cunha, went over on the boat that was to take Mr. Partridge away, and the British Admiralty sent along two doctors and two dentists. The doctors found the islanders in good health, and the dentists found so many perfect sets of teeth that even the New York Times has been led to comment on them. (The people never use toothbrushes, it seems. Their fine teeth defy explanation, unless by the fact that meat and flour and sugar are rare luxuries in their diet, and all food is rather scarce so that overeating is unknown.)

Bishop Watts confirmed forty people in the little church which the islanders say is the very heart and soul of the island. The service was one of great beauty save for sadness because their much loved priest was departing.

The people are friendly, simple, shy, and for all the rigors of their life, would not hear of evacuating their lonely island, nor would it seem wise for them to be compelled to do so. Conditions do not demand it, and they could scarcely make a living elsewhere.

A Tristan Welfare Committee has now been formed in Cape Town cooperating with Mr. Douglas M. Gane of London, who for forty years has been the mainstay of the island and by sending supplies has made life possible there.

The island was named for the Portuguese admiral who discovered it in 1506.

CONFERENCE ON BUDGET DEFICIT IN THE NORTHWEST

By C. H. L. Chandler

Four Bishops with a number of clerical and lay representatives of the Province of the Pacific, met in the Cathedral parish house, Portland, to decide upon definite action to aid the National Council in raising the $400,000 deficit. The Bishops were Rt. Rev. M. S. Barnwell, of Idaho; Rt. Rev. S. A. Huston, of Olympia; Rt. Rev. E. M. Cross, of Spokane and Rt. Rev. W. T. Sumner, of Oregon. Bishop Barnwell acted as convenor of the conference, introducing the Rev. C. H. Collett, of the National Council, who presided, and also presented the urgency of the occasion demanding the conference.

The representatives pledged their respective diocese or district to do all they "possibly can to make good the deficit" by the time of the Whitsunday special offering, on May 15.

* * *

At the noon luncheon of the representatives of the conference referred to above, when a number of leading church business men, were present, Bishop Barnwell said:

"The tragedy of the whole thing is not money matters, but lies in the hearts of the people in the Church at large, who have become scared by the depression, and have lost faith in God and in themselves. They forget that God is still in Heaven although the bottom has fallen out of the stock market."

A number of women, members of the Woman's Auxiliary also were present, and volunteered the hearty support of those whom they represented in supporting the efforts to make good the shortage.

* * *

A series of weekly programs, designated "Neighborhood Nights Entertainments," has been sponsored for some time past, by twelve community organizations and groups, in the south east section of the city of Portland, Oregon. The object being "to promote inter-neighborhood friendliness," and to provide opportunities for a social outing for those who might not be able, otherwise, to enjoy such an evening. Admission is free, by ticket, secured from committees representing the parent teacher's association, of the churches. Among the latter participating in the undertaking are, Our Lady of Sorrows, Roman Catholic; All Saints', Episcopal, the Methodist Episcopal and the Community Church. The attendance each night has been a capacity house,

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

The problem of "mixed marriages," especially of the marriage of Protestants and Roman Catholics, is treated as a question of serious importance by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America in a study made public last week. The report was made by its committee on marriage and the home, as a result of several months' study, and was approved at the March meeting of the administrative committee of the council.

The report was originally drafted prior to the decree from the Vatican on the same subject on February 5. The Vatican decree requires that the children of marriages between Catholics and non-Catholics must be reared in the Catholic faith under pain of annulment of the marriage, refusal of participation in church activities, denial of a church funeral and, in extreme cases, public excommunication.

The Federal Council of Churches refrains from making any attack upon the Roman Catholic Church, but in good temper takes issue with its position on mixed marriages, on the ground that it is intolerable. The Council's conclusions, which are put forth, not as regulations, but as suggestions to church members for their consideration, deal both with inter-marriage of members of different Protestant groups and also of Protestants and Roman Catholics. These conclusions are embodied in a series of four recommendations, as follows:

"1. Where the persons contemplating marriage are members of different communions nearly related in doctrine or polity, they may well be advised by their respective pastors to settle the question before marriage by agreeing to attend together one or other of their churches, or even a third church, and to bring up their children in it.

"2. Where only one of the persons is a member of a church of the Protestant group and the religious differences are profound, such persons should be advised to consider the situation with great seriousness, in all its aspects, and to reach an agreement before marriage.

"3. Where intolerable conditions are imposed by either church in which membership is held, persons contemplating a mixed marriage should be advised not to enter it. The committee on marriage and the home protests earnestly against the requirement by any church that the children of mixed marriages should be pledged to that church.

ON THE COVER

THERE is pictured on the cover this week the beautiful tabernacle and throne in Christ Church, New Haven. It is intricately and delicately carved in limewood, all finished in burnished gold, antiqued. It has the pelican carved on the doors, the symbol of self sacrifice. It is a very lovely piece of work designed by Frohman, Robb and Little, architects, made and finished by Irving & Casson—A. H. Davenport Company.

"4. Where conferences in the churches interested in the questions arising from mixed marriages can be arranged, such conferences should be welcomed with a view to safeguarding the sanctity of marriage and the spiritual welfare of the home."

The chairman of the commission is the Rev. Howard C. Robbins, professor at the General Seminary.

* * *

The Lenten services held this year in a downtown theatre in Louisville were more successful than ever. This is the first time for some years that a theatre has been available. The first preacher was Bishop Woodcock. He was followed by the Rev. Franklyn Cole Sherman who substituted for the Rev. Charles F. McAllister whose engagement was cancelled at the last moment. Dr. Sherman was in the city conducting classes for the American Guild of Health and was rushed into the breach. Other preachers were Bishop Wise, the Rev. John Gass of Charleston, West Virginia, Bishop Gailor and the Rev. Irving Goddard of LaGrange, Illinois.

* * *

There is a stir in New York over the absence this year of Hot Cross Buns. A man, writing to one of the New York dailies, said that it was absolutely impossible to purchase them this year. Oh, you could get buns all right but as he said; "without the cross the buns tasted insipid and were without virtue. When I was a boy many of them had crosses made of icing and these sold like hot cakes. Why this profane lapse?" The letter prompted the enterprising editor to send out scouts to find the answer. First of all he took his encyclopaedia off the shelf and read: "The sale of cross buns has been a ritual ever since the pagan Saxons devoured cross-bread one day each year in honor of Easter, their goddess of light. The Church adopted the custom centuries ago and devoted years to establishing the rite." "Well," said he, "such an old custom surely must go on. Go out boys and see what has happened to it." They finally discovered a baker who was quite as indignant as the writer of the letter who started all the hub-dub. "I never would have believed it, buns with no crosses on them," he declared. "The buns I sell have crosses dented on them, an impression in the dough. I do a big business in them too. The Good Friday hot cross bun is different from the every day bun. The dough is richer and there is more filling in them, raisins and spices and things like that. Without a cross it wouldn't seem right."

However, sad to relate, the large wholesale bakeries admitted that they did not bother with this sort of frivolity, though they all admitted that the bun output during Holy Week (the editor called it Easter Week, but you can't expect an editor to know everything) was greater than on ordinary occasions.

Well maybe another year we will have men in our streets on Good Friday shouting:

"Hot cross buns! Hot cross buns!
One-a-penny, two-a-penny, hot cross buns!
If you haven't any daughters, give 'em to your sons."

Incidentally the editor, after considerable research, discovered that the bun reached an all-time high in England a century or more ago when there were two well known cross-bun houses in Chelsea which were thronged from dusk until dawn every Good Friday.

* * *

The diocese of Kentucky held their annual "call to the ministry" supper in the Cathedral House, Louisville, recently with young men attending from the various parishes in the city. The speakers were the Revs. John Gass, Charles F. Wulf and Charles G. Leavell.

* * *

The Daughters of the King now has 412 chapters and 75 junior chapters in this country. The order was organized in 1885.

* * *

A throng of fully 40,000 attended the sunrise service in the Hollywood Bowl on Easter Day.

* * *

Approximately 5000 attended Easter services at Washington Cathedral. Among those present were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Herbert L. Satterlee, son of the first bishop of Washington who was assistant secretary of the navy during Roosevelt's administration, and General John J. Pershing. Another impressive Washington service was the sunrise service held at Arlington National Cemetery. There was a drizzling rain, but there were nevertheless thousands there, including President and Mrs. Hoover. The brief sermon at this service was preached by Bishop Freeman, with the Rev. Barney Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, taking part of the service.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

There was a bit of a radio mix-up in Boston on Easter. Cardinal O'Connell, as some of you may know, is strong in his denunciations of jazz bands and radio crooners. On Easter he spoke briefly over the radio, introducing what he supposed was the choir of the North American College of Rome, which was to broadcast Easter hymns. But there was a mix-up somewhere, for no sooner did the Cardinal finish his remarks than there came floating over the air from the imperial city a jazz band playing the great American classic, "Ain't She Sweet". Explanations came later — it seems that some one at the Italian Broadcasting Company neglected to pull a switch in time.

* * *

Several thousand attended the sunrise services at Columbia University, New York; 3500 attended such a service in Brooklyn and about 3000 turned out for this early service on Staten Island.

* * *

Fully 4000 attended the eleven o'clock Easter Service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, with many more unable to get in.

Easter bears with it three supreme messages, Bishop Manning said. The first is that Jesus Christ is alive, he said, and secondly, that "Jesus Christ on the throne of God is the one light and guide for our life in this world, and the one hope for the world's future."

Developing his second point, Bishop Manning continued: "We know absolutely that the way that Jesus shows us is the way of God. Which of us does not know that if Christ's way were followed there would be no more war, no more selfishness and wrong and greed in our industrial life, no men and women in want and suffering through unemployment, no repudiated marriage vows and broken homes, no children orphaned by divorce.

"The new paganism which now menaces us, the crime and lawlessness, the mad sex obsession which disgraces our literature and defiles our life, and which finds encouragement even in the lecture halls of some of our colleges and universities, comes from men and women who have turned their backs on Jesus Christ.

* * *

Bishop Stevens of Los Angeles, now recovering rapidly from a series of operations, sailed from Los Angeles on the 19th of March, bound for New York by way of the Panama Canal. He was accompanied by Mrs. Stevens.

BISHOP STEVENS
Takes a Sea Voyage

* * *

While en route near Banning, California, on March 19th, the automobile of the Rev. Anthony H. Dexter of South Pasadena hit a sand covered rut and turned over four times. Mrs. Dexter died two days later while Mr. Dexter and two daughters were taken to a hospital, severely injured. Mr. Dexter is the assistant chaplain of the City Mission Society of Los Angeles.

* * *

There was a heavy rain in Baltimore on Easter. Nevertheless there was a total attendance of 1633 persons at Grace and St. Peter's, and we have no doubt that other parishes in the city did as well. There were over 800 communions made, over half of them at the two early services. And the offering was over $5000 — quite a remarkable sum in view of the depression and the fact that the parish had just made a great effort to meet its missionary quota of $17,500. The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers is the rector.

* * *

Mr. Harvey Lee Marston was ordained deacon on March 27th at St. Michael and All Angels, Baltimore, by Bishop Helfenstein. He was presented by Bishop Cook and the rector, the Rev. Don Frank Fenn, preached. Mr. Marston is a student at Alexandria. In June he becomes an assistant at St. Luke's, Montclair, N. J.

* * *

The Rev. Frederick Fleming, vicar of the Intercession, New York, was the leader last week at conferences at the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral. He also preached on Sunday morning at the Cathedral.

* * *

Mid-day Lenten services at St. Paul's, Baltimore, brought out unusually large congregations this year, with the church completely filled on several occasions though the church holds about a thousand. The Good Friday addresses were given by the rector, the Rev. Arthur L. Kinsolving, for the 26th consecutive year. The church was crowded throughout the three hours, with many standing.

* * *

Three enamelled stained glass panels were dedicated on Easter at the Ascension, Yonkers, N. Y. The work was executed by James Powell and Sons (Whitefriars) of London, and designed by the artist James H. Hogan. The only other example of this exquisite material is in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York, and made by the same firm.

* * *

Here is something not many bishops could do. On Easter Bishop Cheshire of North Carolina celebrated his 82nd birthday by officiating at the 11 o'clock service at the Good Shepherd, Raleigh; preached, and confirmed a large class, two members of which were his grandchildren.

* * *

The Rev. Warren W. Way has resigned as the rector of St. Mary's School, Raleigh, the resignation to take effect at the end of the present school year. He has been the rector for 14 years and under his administration the school has attained an excellent reputation for scholarship. He is to return to parish work.

* * *

The head of the Church Army, Captain Frank Mountford is sailing for England on the 15th of April to attend the jubilee conference of the Church Army in London. Nine hundred evangelists and mission sisters are expected to attend. He is to be back in New York on the 13th of May.

* * *

Washington Cathedral at the suggestion of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission has recently installed in its south crypt aisle a public exhibit of the history of religion in the United States, consisting of ten large colored charts and graphs, depicting the progress of Christianity in the country since its settlement and for the 200 years from 1732, the birth of the first President.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

The Rev. Randolph Ray observed the ninth anniversary of his rectorship at the Little Church Around the Corner, New York, last Sunday. In the afternoon he dedicated a shrine to the Blessed Virgin, a memorial of unusual beauty, the work of the firm of Calvert, Herrick and Riedinger of New York.

* * *

The Rev. Graham Brown, principle of Wycliffe College, Oxford, has been appointed Bishop of Jerusalem, succeeding Bishop MacInnes who died last Christmas Eve. Dr. Brown is a leading member of the evangelical party in England and is greatly interested in Church unity, being a leader in the negotiations between the Anglican Communion and the Old Catholics.

* * *

Trinity Church, Boston, has just been given a large estate in Dublin, N. H. to be used as a vacation home for people of the diocese of Massachusetts. It is the gift of Mrs. William Amory of Boston, who also presented the parish with a fund of $100,000 for the maintenance of the property.

* * *

Chicago reports unusually large congregations at the Holy Week and Easter Services. Fully 5000 people attended the three hour service at the Methodist Temple, under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Churches. All the non-Roman churches in Rogers Park united for Good Friday services held at St. Paul's-by-the-Lake, and a similar union service was held at Wilmette at St. Augustine's where the Rev. Hubert Carleton is rector. The preacher at the three hour service at St. Paul's, Kenwood, was Bishop Wilson of Eau Claire. Bishop Stewart was the preacher, before large crowds, at the services held at the Garrick Theatre during Holy Week.

* * *

Seven persons were received into the Church from the Roman Church at the Intercession, Trinity Parish, New York, recently. At the same service Bishop Lloyd confirmed a class of ninety-nine. The Rev. Frederic S. Fleming is the vicar.

* * *

St. Barnabas mission for colored people, East New York, diocese of Long Island, at last has its new church, complete and in use. The basement, for a number of years the church, has been converted into a fine parish hall. The mission was started in 1907. Rented quarters served as a church for some time; then land was bought and a stone basement was constructed. Now under the leadership of Bishop Larned the upper church has finally been built, and the mission is now equipped with a church, parish hall and rectory, which is next door and which was purchased some years ago. The Rev. L. C. Dade is in charge.

* * *

Mrs. Arthur Selden Lloyd, wife of Bishop Lloyd of New York, died last week at her home in New York. She was seventy-five years of age. Surviving are Bishop Lloyd, and four daughters, Mrs. E. T. Danbridge of Nashville, Mrs. C. J. Symington of New York, Mrs. C. J. Gibson of Richmond and Mrs. Gavin Hadden of New York. Funeral services were held at the seminary in Alexandria, Va., and burial was in Richmond where Mrs. Lloyd was born.

* * *

New York City churches are seeking 2500 teachers to carry on their daily vacation Bible schools this year. There are 400 schools in the city, opening as soon as the public schools close and continuing for five weeks. The training school for teachers is to open on this Saturday in the parish house of St. George's Church, and will continue for ten Saturdays. All teachers are required to attend these classes.

* * *

Fully 10,000 people attended the Good Friday Service at Old Trinity, New York. Business offices in lower Manhattan were closed for the day in many instances; with many others closing at noon. People leaving these offices streamed into the church for at least a part of the Three Hour Service. Bishop Oldham of Albany preached.

* * *

The synod of the province of the Pacific is to be held at St. Paul's Cathedral, Sacramento, California, April 20-22. Bishop Moreland is host.

* * *

The diocese of Olympia is the latest to discontinue its diocesan paper. They are falling by the way side one by one.

* * *

Three of the noonday preachers during Lent at St. Mark's, San Antonio, Texas, entered the ministry from that parish; the Rev. DuBose Murphy, rector at Tyler, Texas, Rev. E. H. Jones, rector of St. Paul's, Waco, and the Rev. H. N. Herndon, rector at Uvalde, Texas. On Palm Sunday the rector of the parish, the Rev. A. R. McKinstry, presented a class of 92 for confirmation.

* * *

Word reaches us of Bishop Perry's visit in Europe; of a delightful visit to Dresden where the Rev. Edward M. Bruce is the rector of the American Church of St. John. The presiding Bishop confirmed a class of five. He then went on to Munich where he spent nearly a week with the Rev. Dr. Kirkus who is now in charge of our work there, and who is doing much to invigorate and strengthen it, particularly the work among American and English students. There is no church here at present but there will be one soon—a memorial to a young girl who, three years ago, received her first communion there just before a fatal operation. Everyone in the city is eager for this new building.

* * *

Now here is a real bit of news. The United States Senate the other day passed a bill awarding St. Paul's Church, Selma, Alabama, the sum of $5,680 for damages done the church by Union soldiers during the Civil War. One of the senators from Alabama must be a vestryman or something.

* * *

Parents cannot rid themselves of the responsibility of "recklessly large families" by saying that "God sends them," the Bishop of Liverpool, Dr. A. A. David, says in his new book "Marriage and Birth Control."

"Both versions of the book of common prayer insist sex intercourse in marriage has a function apart from procreation," Dr. Davis said. "Marriage has a physical counterpart. The time has passed when the physical side must be put aside as 'something not quite nice."

"Parents have not only the right but the duty to space the births of their children and limit their numbers reasonably."

* * *

Bishop Parsons of California was the speaker at the Churchmen's Round Table luncheon held in San Francisco on March 16th. The Round Table is a laymen's affair, meeting once a month.

* * *

Harvard School, Los Angeles, has launched a campaign for a half million dollars, the money to be used for expansion. The alumni of the school are attempting to raise half that amount after which they will make a general appeal. Twenty-five acres of land has already been secured in West Los Angeles for the new school, and the campaign is making such headway that it is thought that construction may start this summer. The Rev. Harold H. Kelley is the headmaster, succeeding Dr. Robert B. Gooden, now Suffragan Bishop.

* * *

Dr. Ichiro Itoi, assistant director

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —A New Religious Novel

The MACMILLAN COMPANY, of New York City, issues the first novel based on modern Biblical scholarship. Unique. Historically accurate. Commended by religious leaders such as Bishop F. J. McConnell, Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and Prof. Shailer Mathews. Plot cast in a highly dramatic period, when struggle for social justice and international peace gave motivating force for evolution of monotheism. Shows Bible as a literature developing in hard times. "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel," by Louis Wallis. All booksellers, or the Macmillan Company, New York City, $2.00.—Adv.

The Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

DEVOTIONAL MANUALS FOR CONFIRMATION CLASSES

Forty-fifth Thousand

A MANUAL OF DEVOTION

By the Rt. Rev. T. F. Gailor. New and revised edition. illustrated, 16mo. Cloth.....50c

This helpful and excellent manual has been revised and enlarged to conform with the changes in the Prayer Book.

Forty-first Thousand

THE PRACTICE OF RELIGION

A Short Manual of Instructions and Devotions. Illustrated. By Rev. Archibald Campbell Knowles. With a Preface by the late Bishop of Fond du Lac 75c
Cloth, thin paper $1.00
Leather $3.00

DEVOTIONS FOR PRIVATE USE

By Rev. C. C. Edmunds, D.D. Revised edition. Fifth thousand 30c

This little book has stood the test of practical experience. It is found in the hands of many a father as he leads his family in their morning and evening devotions.

EDWIN S. GORHAM, INC.
18 West 45th Street, New York

of St. Luke's Hospital in Tokyo, and one of Japan's leading physicians, arrived in Chicago the other day on his way to New York where he is to study as a fellow of the Rockefeller Foundation. He was accompanied by Tokeo E. Imamura, a young student who is here also to study.

"The Japanese people are not much excited about the Shanghai and Manchurian affairs," said Dr. Itoi, who is making his first visit to the United States. "They hardly know that warfare is going on and life in Japan pursues a normal course. Do you know that Chinese students, wearing their native costumes, have been attending Japanese universities and have never once been molested. As to the causes of the trouble I am not acquainted. I am a physician and have nothing to do with politics."

* * *

Captured by the idea of Whitsunday as "The Birthday of the Church," the people of Western New York are making the Church an enthusiastic birthday gift this year in a new way, for the purpose of helping the 1932 deficiency fund.

Applying the idea which is familiar to many children throughout the Church as the Birthday Thank Offering, grown-ups and young people alike are making individual offerings based on their age. The sum chosen to be multiplied is one cent or one dollar or any amount between, or any greater amount. Perhaps a boy twelve years old will be able to take ten cents as the amount to be multiplied by this age, and will make an offering of $1.20. A man of fifty who is able to afford it might chose $10 as his base, and give $500. A woman of thirty on a tiny salary with dependents to support might not be able to multiply more than five cents, and would give $1.50.

The thing is to have every person making a joyful willing birthday gift, the whole diocese joining in a great act of thanksgiving for the Church on Whitsunday.

The tremendous educational value of such an undertaking, education as to the meaning of Whitsunday and as to the Church's missionary work, is emphasized by the leaders, and their imagination soars to think what such a Birthday Offering would mean if it were established throughout the Church, over and above all regular giving.

The Rev. Henry F. Zwicker, D.D., rector of Grace Church, Lockport, N. Y., who is chairman of the committee in charge of this offering, writes that "of course it means work, a great deal of work, on the part of the clergy between Easter and Whitsunday." Several district meetings of clergy and vestrymen

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

DEVOTIONAL

The Confraternity of the Mystical Life (see page 218 of the Living Church Annual for 1932) offers monthly studies in Personal Religion, sent by post, without obligation other than voluntary donations. The work of the C. M. L. is commended by many bishops and priests of the American Church. First study sent on request. Address, Box 144, Wall Street Station, New York City.

SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE

We buy and sell Theological libraries and collections of good books. Correspondence solicited. SCHULTE'S BOOKSTORE, 80-82 Fourth Ave., New York City, New York.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Answer of the Provinces

Cheering messages reveal instant co-operation which ring clear and true with loyalty and confidence, to every member, every parish and mission, and every diocese and missionary district, to put the heart back into the missionary work of the Church with an offering of $400,000 by Whitsunday, May 15th.

Where the Answers were registered

That ten provincial conferences were held in the midst of Lent and within six weeks after the meeting of the National Council in the interest of raising the 1932 Deficiency Fund is convincing evidence of the corporate responsiveness of the Church.

FIRST PROVINCE
Boston, February 19th

THIRD PROVINCE
Washington, Feb. 23rd

SEVENTH PROVINCE
Dallas, March 1st

FIFTH PROVINCE
Chicago, March 2nd

SECOND PROVINCE
New York, March 3rd

EIGHTH PROVINCE
(Southern section)
Los Angeles, March 9th

SIXTH PROVINCE
(Northern section)
Minneapolis, March 10th

FOURTH PROVINCE
Atlanta, March 11th

EIGHTH PROVINCE
(Northern section)
Portland, March 11th

SIXTH PROVINCE
(Southern section)
Omaha, March 15th

Provincial Findings

The Brotherhood and Solidarity of the Clergy—can be depended upon in this crisis. There is the same sacrificial quality in the widespread acceptance of reductions in salary and in the readiness of clergy not so affected to contribute portions of their salaries. Both acts are directed to the preservation of the Church's work.

Individual Gifts of the Laity—With nearly two months remaining before we reach Whitsunday, the announcement of the Deficiency Fund has again emphasized that the Church is served by a small and precious lay clientele of men and women who, in the presence of a crisis in parish, diocese or general Church, wait neither for organization nor a personal summons, but send in their individual contributions forthwith to hearten their leaders at the outset.

We are Dealing with Realities—Every dollar of the $400,000 asked for by Whitsunday involves the continuance beyond July first of definite missionary or other religious work impaired by a cut already made and out of which all possible margin of safety in the form of a lapsed balance has been squeezed.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
CHURCH MISSIONS HOUSE
281 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson

BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

were held the first week in April to explain the plan and discuss ways of accomplishing it.

* * *

St. Margaret's, New York City, had an Easter visiting committee that went about the parish before Easter reminding the people of their Christian obligations.

* * *

When you say, if you ever do, that you belong to the Anglican communion have you any idea just what that includes? Well, at present it consists of the Churches of England, Ireland and Wales; the Episcopal Church in Scotland; the Church of England in Australia, Canada, India, Tasmania, the West Indies; the Church of the Province of South Africa, and of the dioceses in eastern South America; Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui in China, and Nippon Sei Kokwai in Japan, and the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, with its missions in Liberia, Cuba, Mexico, Hayti, Brazil and elsewhere. Quite a Church as you see. Now there is this intercommunion with the Old Catholics, approved by the Church of England, which will doubtless be approved enthusiastically by our Church, which means that the Anglican Church has ceased to be Anglican merely and has become international in its fullest sense. The Old Catholics are a group of eight self-governing churches, retaining the ancient faith and order of the Catholic Church, but refusing to accept the infallibility of the Pope and other doctrines which they consider contrary to the teaching of the Primitive Church. These eight churches are in Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Poland, with large numbers also in the United States. They number about 250,000, with about 250 clergy and thirteen bishops.

* * *

The Chinese army general in command of Yangchow requested the local Christians to have a series of special prayer meetings for China. He attended one of the meetings himself and gave the people some very plain talk about the weakness of the Chinese character, and how they did not need to fear Japanese airplanes and cannons so much as their own hearts. The Rev. E. H. Forster says the meetings showed a genuine Christian attitude, with much earnest prayer that the truth might be known, that officials of China and Japan might act with justice and righteousness, and that the hands of the League of Nations and all other organizations working for world peace might be strengthened.

The general above mentioned had a fiftieth birthday recently. The Yangchow Chamber of Commerce

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

sent him a handsome present but he refused it and every other gift, and asked that all who wished to honor his birthday would contribute to flood relief.

* * *

The jurisdiction of the Anglican Bishop of Gibraltar reaches from Oporto in north-west Portugal to Baku in south-east Russia, a distance of over 5,000 miles by rail. It includes English chaplaincies, permanent or seasonal, in fourteen countries and more than ninety cities and towns. It has been called St. Paul's Diocese, reaching as it does from Asia Minor to Spain.

* * *

The diocesan Social Service Department in Mississippi has issued a mimeographed folder in which for the first time the social resources of the state are summarized for ready reference, indexed under the headings of health, education, welfare, and miscellaneous. "I should not have known where to turn for the information here provided for me," is the comment of one priest. Simple as the folder is, it illustrates well how a diocesan social service department operating on a tiny budget can assist the clergy to serve their parishioners and their community more effectively.

* * *

The Young People's Summer Conference of the diocese of Maine is to be held at Bowdoin College, June 26 to July 2.

* * *

The provincial conference of the Young People's Fellowship of New England is to be held at St. Paul's, Pawtucket, R. I., May 7-8.

* * *

If denominational representation is a fair test then the Church of the Air, sponsored by the Columbia Broadcasting Company, is a success. There have been 53 broadcasts, two each Sunday since the opening in September when Bishop Irving P. Johnson gave the first broadcast. Ten denominations have been represented since. The Roman Church has had fourteen, the Jews ten, Methodists, Presbyterians and Baptists have had five each, while we, along with the Lutherans and Congregationalists have had four each. Bishop Johnson, Bishop Stewart, Bishop Scarlett and Bishop Freeman have been our broadcasters.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK

A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 6.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE CHURCH LEAGUE for INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY is an organization of the Episcopal Church for the purpose of bringing together for prayer, study and action those who seek to apply the principles of Christ in industrial society. It has entered labor struggles, notably in Marion, N. C., Danville, Virginia, Paterson and Passaic, New Jersey, and the coal fields of West Virginia and Kentucky, where efforts were made to further the sort of economic relationships for which the Church officially stands. It is the one organization of the Church carrying forward such work. In addition the League sponsors educational work through lectures, conferences, preaching and summer schools.

At this time when there is such a tremendous need for such work the organization finds itself with a depleted treasury.

If you share with us the opinion that such an organization has an important place in the life of the Church in this industrial age we urge you to lend your support, both through membership and donations. The dues are two dollars annually. Donations, however small, will help greatly in maintaining a vital work that is operated on an exceedingly modest budget.

RT. REV. EDWARD L. PARSONS
President

MR. WILLIAM F. COCHRAN
Treasurer

REV. W. B. SPOFFORD
Secretary

RT. REV. BENJAMIN BREWSTER
MISS CAROLINE B. LAMONTE
REV. J. HOWARD MELISH
MISS VIDA D. SCUDDER
MISS MARY VAN KLEECK
Vice-Presidents

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

RT. REV. CHARLES K. GILBERT
MISS ELIZABETH GILMAN
REV. SMITH OWEN DEXTER
MRS. MARY SIMKHOVITCH
REV. NORMAN NASH

Office of the League:
154 Nassau Street New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 14, 1932

ALTAR AND REREDOS
At Christ Church Cathedral, Hartford

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESTD 1857

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Craftsmen in Stained Glass
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL
& COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown, Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 34 APRIL 14, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

IN CONNECTION with the appeal to meet the large deficit for missions it is reassuring to know that there are indications of a fuller consideration of some of the problems, so serious and acute, which the National Council is facing. For example, it is understood that the recommendation of the Evaluation Committee, made six years ago, has now been put into execution and a general survey is in process to show the amounts contributed to every aided parish and mission; the number of baptisms, confirmations, communicants, etc., in these places over the years, and the amounts received from those to whom aid is given. This is with a view to taking up the question of static work and its continued support from missionary funds.

IT IS ALSO of interest to know that at the meeting of the Bishops of the Second Province, held early last month, a committee consisting of the Bishop of Newark, the Bishop of Central New York and the Bishop of Albany was appointed to draft a statement suggesting new lines of economy in administration and other departmental work. This committee has been in conference with some of the workers at the Church Missions House and will doubtless bring in a report at the meeting of the House of Bishops in Garden City later this month. Bishop Fiske has no doubt won for himself the reputation of being a fault-finder in official Church circles. Nevertheless we feel that Church people generally will, with us, commend him for his courage in heading up an increasing demand for such economies at headquarters as will reestablish the waning confidence in the administration of the Church Program.

THE RECENTLY published statistics of the United Stewardship Council show that the recession in giving to churches, down to the spring of last year, had been effected only six and a half per cent. In all probability a larger recession will be shown for this past year for which figures are not yet available. In the Methodist Church there was a falling off of but four-tenths of one per cent, from $94,117,400 to $93,680,933. The Presbyterians dropped from $64,685,810 to $59,274,016, a recession of eight and three-tenths per cent. Our own Church dropped from $50,140,163 to $45,944,896, also eight and three-tenths per cent. The communions hardest hit are those in the south. The Southern Methodists dropped thirteen and seven-tenths per cent; the Southern Baptists twelve and three-tenths per cent; the Southern Presbyterians nine and three-tenths per cent. Of the twenty communions included in the study there was only one to show an increase, the Northern Baptist Church in which givings increased from $32,597,662 to $33,289,670, an increase of two and one-tenth per cent. The total sum given to these twenty communions for all purposes for the year was $451,166,539, a figure which represents but a fraction of the cost of religion in the United States since the Roman Church, Jewish congregations and many Protestant communions are not included.

THE ACTIVITIES of Japanese Christians in behalf of peace is encouraging. During the early stages of the Japanese military activities against China a delegation of Japanese churchmen urged their government to settle the dispute by pacific means. More recently they have definitely appealed for a "speedy settlement in the spirit of the League Covenant, the Kellogg Pact, and the Nine-Power Treaty." Most encouraging of all is the report that a group of Japanese Christians, accompanied by American missionaries, went to Shanghai last month on the invitation of a group of Chinese Christians. The purpose of the meeting is to create, if possible, an atmosphere of goodwill between the two countries.

THE CAUSES of crime are set forth in a volume just published by the National Probation Association. The association is composed of eminent authorities; judges, probation officers, psychiatrists, criminologists and others interested in the treatment and prevention of crime. Here are the primary causes in their opinion: first, lack of a sufficient regular family income to insure health and at least a minimum of decency and comfort. Second, inefficient and dishonest standards of government. Third, lack of vocational guidance and clinical facilities in the schools. Fourth, the lack of proper recreation facilities. Fifth, the inability of the Church to hold the young people of today. The book also points out a fact over which we should all be greatly concerned—that the age of offenders has been slowly descending so that now the grave crimes are committed largely by youths.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

BUILDING GOOD CHURCHES

By

MILO HUDSON GATES

IT SEEMS hardly comprehensible that there should be anybody in the Christian churches to-day who objects to beauty, but, at a recent convention of Church Commissions of Church Art and Architecture and architects, it became evident that there still are people who think churches ought to be built as cheaply, as modernly, and, while they would not call it ugly, as a matter of fact, as ugly as possible.

Not long ago, a distinguished clergyman, in my presence, set forth the thesis that there had never been any great preaching done outside of bare, foursquare and ugly churches, and he defended his thesis by naming a certain number of clergymen who were great preachers and who had preached in buildings like Moody and Spurgeon's tabernacles, tents and the City Temple of London. Finally, however, he did acknowledge that Liddon, St. Chrysostom, Newman and Phillips Brooks were great preachers and that they usually had preached amidst beautiful surroundings.

However, the progress of beauty in our churches has been little short of miraculous in the last generation. It is a matter of satisfaction to us to realize that, in this advance, our Church has been the leader. We established the first Commission on Church Architecture and the Allied Arts, and the architecture in the Episcopal Church in this country has had a beneficent and uplifting influence on all the churches. They have come to realize what was so well stated by Gerald Stanley Lee, when he said:

"It would be hard to deny that, if the Christian Church exists for one thing rather than another, it exists for the purpose of making God eloquent. And if men are on the street, it must make God eloquent on the street. If the Church building, that especially represents God on the streets of the city, is vulgar and hideous or shabby or insincere, or if it is a mere sitting-room, with colored windows, where people drop in pleasantly for a cozy comfortable chat with Him before whom hell is naked, who stretcheth out the north over the empty place, and hangeth the earth upon nothing, why should one notice God? But I do believe that the main fact about the church of the future is that it is going to take the idea of the incarnation seriously. It is going to act on the principle that while the Bible has declared in a general way that God is a spirit, the most important thing about the spirit, as a matter of human history, is that it has always insisted upon having a body. It also seems to be a matter of history that the final test of the vitality and reality of a good spirit is that it can get a body. In other words, I believe that if the modern church rules the modern city, it is going to look impressive. If it rules, everybody is going to know it. The only church that shall ever rule them shall be a church with a cathedral spirit. It shall be a church of the Strong Men. And the spirit of the Strong Men shall build on all the great streets of the world, mighty homes for God. The church of the future shall not be one that can be looked down on by mere opera-houses, by great hotels or temples for feeding people. It shall be one that suggests, when one looks at it, nations and empires, centuries of love and sacrifice and patience, and it shall gather the great cities like children about its feet."

In spite of the fact of the modern development of what I call the "inserted church,"—that is, the church inserted in a commercial building, and, in spite of the fact that this was hopefully expected to solve all financial problems, the advance in church beauty, I say again, has been miraculous, and the failure of "inserted churches", both financially and artistically, gives us ground to hope that this sort of thing is near its end.

ONE of the things that obsesses the so-called practical layman is the idea that art and good architecture are in some ways first cousins to dreams and visions, and other Cerulean vaguenesses. Let us smite the so-called practical layman, and let us teach him that on the contrary, one of the most practical, the most useful and most valuable things in Church life is good architecture. Over and again, I have said that a well built, rightly built, beautiful church will almost carry itself. It is the most financially practical thing there is in the parish life. It costs no more than an architectural monstrosity, to which no one wants to go, because, once inside, the ugliness therein gives one the horrors.

This we are living in is one of the greatest church building ages the world has ever seen. Enormous sums, running up through the millions are being spent in America alone on churches. The effort of the commissions in all the churches is to see that these sums are rightly spent, that the churches now being built shall be ornaments to their communities, shall elevate and not degrade the taste of our people.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

We rejoice that the past twenty-five years, especially, has witnessed such upward progress. Is it realized that not for hundreds of years has there been such a cathedral building age? How splendid and how magnificent and how right are the cathedrals which are now being built.

I want to offer a certain number of what might perfectly well be called "Church Architecture Axioms" for the Church.

Religious Art must be the best obtainable.

Imitations, substitutes and dishonesty of every kind, together with second-rate work or poor craftsmanship, are intolerable.

Aesthetic infallibility does not inhere in a bishop, a parish priest, the wardens and vestrymen, a clerical or lay benefactor, or in any architect or other artist because of his vocation.

An architect, just because he is a member of the A. I. A. need not necessarily know anything about church building or religious arts.

A firm that employs many and plausible "drummers", may very likely produce "art goods" that are a scandal.

Paying for a new church, an altar, a window, or a rood-screen does not give the donor the right to impose his own taste on posterity, or justify the rector, wardens and vestrymen in accepting something that is bad.

Nepotism in Church art is as bad as nepotism in Church preferment.

Competition is the worst possible way of selecting an architect, a memorial window, a statue or anything that is linked with the Church.

THE ART OF STAINED GLASS

By

ELEANOR H. WILSON

THE art of Stained Glass is of all the arts, the most nearly akin to that of music. It is related that a certain lad thought himself listening to music from the glass itself when the organ commenced playing during the time he was gazing raptly up at one of the great rose windows in the Cathedral at Chartres. The harmony of color, the melodious flowing of tone into tone, suggests, as does nothing else, a great symphony, such as Beethoven's Fifth, to which I listened today, played magnificently by the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. Color and light! "Stained glass," says a writer, "is not merely a decoration for a window, not only an artistic supplement to architecture, it is a manifestation of matter being interpreted by something not material."

Reviewing in memory the glorious windows in the cathedrals of the Old World the beauty that "flashes upon that inward eye, which is the bliss of solitude," one is impelled to render grateful tribute to those faithful artisans whose devoted and painstaking industry has given us such a rich heritage.

The story of stained glass is a fascinating one, from the time the monks labored for the honor and glory of the saints, the rise of the Gothic style in the middle of the 12th century, the brilliant flowering of the art during the 13th century in France, its development in England and Spain during the 14th and 15th centuries, the Renaissance period in France in the 16th. Five centuries, and the art of stained glass passed in oblivion. At the beginning of the 19th century an effort was made to revive the ancient art, a difficult task, as many processes in its creation had to be re-discovered. It is now coming back into its own, but before telling you something of the leading artists of today let us go back to the Middle Ages to see how this wonderful art originated, and consider some of its early examples as found at Chartres, Canterbury, York, Laon and Seville.

ONE of the chief glories of the later Middle Ages in Western Europe is to be found in the stained glass windows of the churches. Ralph Adams Cram thus explains the beginning of the art: "When Christianity came as the definite revelation of absolute and ultimate truth, it found a great number of arts established and it took over these arts, but Christianity demanded something more, another art more poignant in its quality, more appealing, more constructive, more dominant in spiritual power and more direct in its application than arts that had been taken over from paganism, and so it brought into existence an entirely new art, stained glass.

Early artists worked out their pictures in small pieces of glass called mosaics which were fastened to the walls of the church; then they discovered these mosaics would be even more effective by causing light to shine through the color. Long ribbons of lead were devised having channels on each side to retain the edge of the glass, and so when the window was created,—"light imprisoned in color, material beauty shot through with spiritual light." On account of its beauty and costliness stained glass was always protected with the greatest care and for this reason often escaped destruction, so that the most fragile material proved here the most lasting.

Stained glass, as the term is ordinarily used, is taken to include also painting upon glass, but these are really two quite different processes, employed from the earliest times in close association. One method is to build up a mosaic of pieces of glass colored not only on its surface, but in its very substance, known as "pot metal" glass. The other is to paint the design upon white or colored glass. Throughout the 12th and 13th centuries the rise of Gothic architecture in Northern France, with its immense increase in the size of windows, brought stained glass into prominence, not only as one of the most important accessories of architecture, but as the one prominent color factor in the great church interiors. The preciousness of the glass of the Gothic church does not lie entirely in the quality and hue of its color, but derives also from the spirit of its treatment by the early glaziers who framed and combined bits of glass in the manner of goldsmiths setting precious stones. Years of experimenting with various combinations taught them secrets of design that have never been surpassed.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

One of the results of coloring glass in the pot was that the tone was unequal throughout; this difference in the shading of each piece, as well as the unevenness of its surface, produced great brilliancy, and the freedom from paint resulted in limpidity of color. The 13th century window has far more charm in its color than in its drawing.

THE designer of the Gothic Age worked with small pieces of glass using the leads to outline his picture, the only paint used was a brown pigment to delineate features and accentuate folds of garments. The window surface was usually divided up into medallions each enclosing a little scene. The best of this is to be found in the exquisite little Sainte Chapelle in Paris. The artist obtained his superb effect by knowledge of the interaction of color, by juxtaposition of complementary colors and the effect of distances, the technique,—that of glass colored not on the surface but in the mass. We are told that color in stained glass is never absolute. It is always modified by neighboring color. An illustration is the lace-like rose window in the north transept of Notre Dame in Paris. It yields a splendid purple tone but this is produced by its deft mingling of reds and blues. This is one reason why 13th century artists used smaller bits of glass than the men of the previous century. In spite of increased labor in leading it resulted in greater interplay of color.

It was early realized that to compensate for the dim light yielded by the medallion windows below, it was necessary to have better illumination from above. Thus was developed what is called "grisaille," made up of softly toned uncolored panes, sometimes picked out with points of color. The light comes through in a cool silvery tone. The finest display of grisaille in the world is the group of lancets called the Five Sisters at York. It was much used in England, it being more practical for a country having little sunlight.

(This is the first of a series on this subject)

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

X. The Temporal Power

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IT IS very difficult for us to place ourselves back in the Middle Ages. Life was so very different then than now. Society was not divided into nations as it is at the present time. Theoretically Charlemagne about the year 800 A. D. revived the Roman Empire, and in order to give it a Christian appelation it was called the Holy Roman Empire. There was a great service at St. Peter's in Rome on Christmas Day and in an apparently extemporaneous fashion the pope placed the Imperial crown upon Charlemagne's head. He was duly surprised but not entirely reluctant.

Of course this Holy Roman Empire was not Roman but Teutonic; and it was never particularly holy, and as an empire it became largely a theoretical one after the death of Charlemagne's son.

It is interesting to note how this Holy Roman Empire came into being. Of course the Papacy conceived the idea of temporal power at a very early period. There was in existence a document known as the Donation of Constantine which set forth that Constantine turned over the City of Rome to the Pope and built Constantinople because he recognized the Pope's right to be supreme in Rome. Like the Forged Credentials this also was finally proved a forgery, but for many centuries it was regarded as authentic. It helped greatly to substantiate the Pope's claim to universal empire. This forged document was created for a very obvious reason. The story is rather an interesting one. Charlemagne's ancestor, Pepin, was Mayor of the Palace in France in the time of the Do-nothing Kings. It was a case in which the prime minister really ruled the kingdom, and naturally aspired to be king. At this time the Pope's sovereignty in the City of Rome was threatened by the Lombards whose greed for territory was far greater than their respect for the papal claims. In his extremity the Pope appealed to Pepin, who in turn not only repulsed the Lombards but deprived them of considerable territory which he turned over to the Pope. This was in reality the foundation of the Papal States and the temporal power which was to be eagerly pressed at a later day. Thus each gave to the other something that he did not really own. Pepin gave to the Pope the Papal States and the Pope gave the crown of France to Pepin. In due season as a sequel to this proceeding, the Pope crowned Charlemagne as the Holy Roman Emperor on Christmas Day.

From Charlemagne's standpoint this was a great honor which he no doubt appreciated, but from the standpoint of the Papacy this was a great privilege for it established the right of the Papacy to bestow crowns. But there was an embarrassing conflict in this claim. The Papacy had received the Papal States at the hands of Pepin. It was inconvenient to have the right to bestow temporal power due to the largesse of Pepin. So the Donation of Constantine duly appeared in order to demonstrate that Pepin had merely restored to the Pope that which was originally recognized by Constantine as his divine right.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

During the life time of Louis the Pious who was the son of Charlemagne this empire had a semblance of reality, but when Louis died, the map of modern Europe was determined by the distribution among his grandchildren. In this division Charles the Bold took France; Ludwig took Germany and Lothair, the eldest son, took a shoe string kingdom including both the summer and winter capitols, out of which shoe string inheritance came the modern kingdoms which afterward separated France and Germany. From Holland to Italy, these buffer states (including Lorraine named after Lothair) became the source of much European diplomacy in later days.

This disintegration of the Imperial power left the fiction of an Emperor with whom the Papacy was subsequently to be at variance at various times. The history of the Middle Ages became an account of the struggle for temporal sovereignty between a long line of able Popes and an equally long line of less able Emperors. To an increasing degree the Pope fought for temporal power until in the 13th century Europe became a theocracy in which the Pope ruled and ecclesiastics were the diplomats. The Supreme Court of Europe was at Rome, to which all sorts of appeals were made at enormous expense, exasperating delays and with indifferent justice. Rome became a city of ecclesiastical lawyers running into the thousands who lived on retainers and fees extracted from all over Europe. At one time in England it was calculated that more English money flowed into the papal treasury than into the royal treasury and England suffered severely from the drain made upon its gold supply.

In this particular economic situation, there was no import from Rome to balance the export to Rome, and England was facetiously referred to as the "milch cow of the pope." It was this economic situation which caused the revolt of king and parliament at various times. Under King John the right to plunder the people was the issue as between the barons of England and the Pope who had succored John in his extremity. King John gave his crown to the Pope and received it back again as a fief of the Papacy. This was something that William the Conqueror had flatly refused to do. The Magna Carta was really a bill of rights of one privileged class against another. The Common people had no rights. It was merely a choice between being exploited by English Lords or Italian prelates.

Following John's reign there were a number of parliamentary laws aimed at this foreign master. In Edward's reign there was statutes of mortmain, provisors and praemunire, forbidding the Church to inherit any more real estate. (It already had about one-fifth of the real property in England.) There were also statutes forbidding the appointment of foreign ecclesiastics to English living, because their sole interest in the sheep was for the wool and the mutton. Laws were passed forbidding papal legates to land in England without royal permission. One must get this background if he is to understand what happened in the reign of Henry VIII. Back of the separation between Canterbury and Rome lay an economic struggle in which England at one time was exploited by the Papacy to raise funds which were loaned to France to fight against England. It was first of all an economic struggle between the crown and the tiara, without any particular theological differences. This is why the Reformation in England differed from the Reformation on the Continent—although subsequently there was more or less of a fusion in the two revolts. The tight little island with its own consciousness very strongly developed, objected to being exploited for temporal ends far more than that she repudiated the theology of the time. It was the itching for temporal power which had its finals in the Spanish Armada which made the Papacy so unpopular in England that the settlement under Elizabeth was finally effected.

In the time of Henry VIII the objection to the faith and worship as practised was not the source of the final split. It was far more economic than it was religious.

(To be continued)

A Summary

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

FOR eight weeks I have been writing about the financial situation of the National Church. There has been proposed in these articles a revision of the present method of maintaining the work of the National Council, so that it shall not be affected by deficits, cuts, recurring crises, and so that our missionary work everywhere may be on a strong financial foundation.

In order that the reader may have the clearest possible view of these proposals, this article will present a summary of the others. It is of course obvious that a summary cannot give all the reasons for the proposals. The articles discussed them at length.

(Premise I) The missionary work of the National Council is of vital and primary importance.

(Premise II) The National Council cannot do this work efficiently with a fluctuating income. It must have a fixed income, or else the work will suffer.

(Premise III) The chief cause of the fluctuating income of the National Council is the fluctuation in diocesan pledges to the National Council.

(Premise IV) The cause of fluctuations in diocesan pledges arises from the fact that dioceses pay to the National Council a fixed proportion (different in various dioceses) of their income from parishes. Dioceses retain a fixed proportion for their own work.

(Premise V) If the quotas assigned to parishes are too large, and the parishes cannot pay the quota in full, then the diocesan pledge is not paid in full and the National budget cannot be met and the work suffers.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CONCLUSION. Each diocesan pledge to the National Council should be a fixed sum, based on average performance, and should be a prior claim on the receipts from parishes on the quota. Thus the National Council has a fixed income from parishes.

The benefit of this method to the National Council's work is obvious. The benefit to the dioceses is fully set forth in one of the papers in this series.

How shall the Missionary work undertaken by the National Council grow and expand?

(Premise I) A fixed income means a limited work. The National Council must have an increasing income.

(Premise II) The wealth and strength of the Church are not equally distributed among the parishes.

(Premise III) There is no sure method of apportionment that can enlist this wealth, because parish groups are not equal to the task of recruiting the wealth of the Church.

CONCLUSION 1. The excess giving power and wealth of the Church must be sought by the National Council directly.

CONCLUSION 2. In order to avoid deficits and trouble, and also in order to impress the wealthy of the Church with the stability and permanency of their assistance, these special gifts must be used to create an Endowment Foundation, the income from which may be used to promote the missionary work of the Church.

CONCLUSION 3. The National Council must educate people to make legacies to the Endowment Foundation so that the income may permanently assist the missionary work.

CONCLUSION 4. The National Council must erect a budget within its fixed and sure income. Thus it can plan for years ahead, being certain of its resources.

The missionary work of the Church will then grow steadily, securely and effectively. Each year, for all time, it will develop, with the growing income.

CONCLUSION 5. Thus the normal giving power of the Church is available for the normal needs, and the excess giving power (instead of creating an expectancy which may not again be fulfilled) is consolidated into an Endowment from which will flow security and growth.

GENERAL CONCLUSION:

The Church faces an unparalleled opportunity at this time to establish itself firmly upon the solid rock of financial security. Such a method would give courage to missionaries, and inspire wealthy men and women to perpetuate their help to missions. It would give heart to dioceses. It would cause a thrill of achievement to flow through parish life and effort. It would replace the atmosphere of panic, of deficit and debt, of fear and anxiety and defeat, with the atmosphere of security, of accomplishment, of vigorous growth and stability, with the atmosphere, in short, of triumphant victory.

Just Souls

By

C. RUSSELL MOODEY

Great is the story of power and glory
If Christ directs it all.
Without the Master man courts disaster—
His power effects his fall.

PASSED by the power-house the other evening and couldn't resist the temptation to peek in. Saw the mighty wheels going round and round without noise or effort. Saw other intricate machinery in action but most of it I cannot name, for my knowledge of electrical equipment is lacking. I did recognize the governor and its whirling balls swinging gracefully in its orbit. No noise here either. Man must be clever to be able to construct such graceful monsters and make them produce power. Power that has the power to produce power and light. The whole city depends upon this machinery, and were those wheels to stop the community would be cast into outer and inner darkness. Leaving this montrous plant I went on my way and for quite a while I pondered over those huge wheels in graceful revolution. Then my thoughts centered in that little governor and how important it is in the creation and control of power. Without it the great dynamo would be utterly useless, for balance is indispensable to mechanical performance whether the equipment be simple or complex.

To describe the civilization of our day we can truthfully say it has supplied the world with power. Man and his engines, man and his science has created something that is bordering on genius. Set the power-plant, described above, down in the jungle and the bushmen will gather round and kneel before it as though it were a god. They, too, would watch the great wheel turn over. They too would pass by the little governor, for humanity isn't very different the world over—we worship bigness and power. And we overlook the necessity of balance and control.

I think religion is the governor of the ages. It keeps society balanced, in judgment and in behavior. I know that there is nothing comparable to the Christ spirit to round out the life and give it grace and poise. So many people have the mania for power—so few see the need of balance. And power in itself is so dangerous. Without a governor which in this instance is the Master, life can only destroy. We must see the need of religion and all that it represents. Our power-plant must house the Christ if our soul is to be dynamic, spiritually.

CUSHIONED PEWS
By Bishop Johnson
Cloth bound—$1.00 a copy.
WITNESS BOOKS
6140 Cottage Grove Ave. Chicago

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

RICHEST MILE IN ASIA MINISTERED TO BY ENGLISH

By G. W. Browning

The richest mile in Asia is said to be an island opposite the southern Chinese city of Amoy, an island occupied almost wholly by Chinese who have made money in Singapore and Java. Amoy is in the English diocese of Fukien, established in 1906, though work began in Fukien eighty years ago.

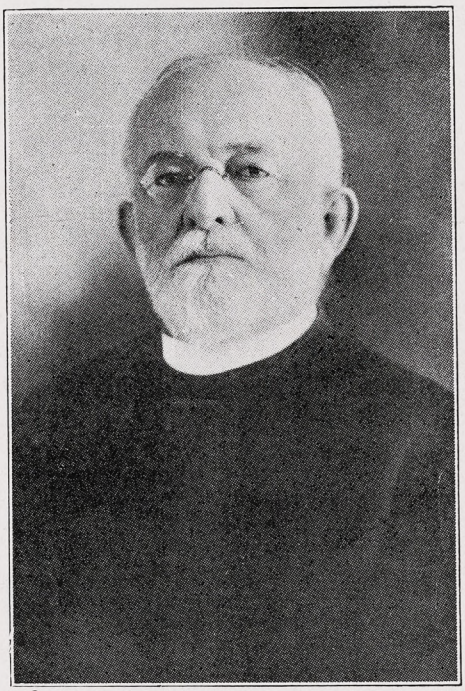
How far these rich gentry contribute to the life of the Church, or whether they contributed at all, is not reported, but whether they do or not, the diocese of Fukien is now said to have the largest membership of any in the Chinese Church, and is farthest advanced toward self-support and self-government. Bishop Hind has a Chinese assistant, Bishop Ding, and a cathedral in Foochow, both the bishop and the cathedral being consecrated in 1927. Fukien is fortunate in having received a fairly steady stream of missionaries in past years, from two English organizations, the Church Missionary Society and the Church of England Zenana Missionary Society.

* * *

"The natural trend of the Chinese Church is towards social Christianity," writes an English missionary in western China. "One of the outstanding weaknesses is in the matter of personal religion, private and family prayer, with the intelligent and devotional use of the Bible."

To encourage and deepen personal religion in their students, in the school from which this missionary was writing, they have set apart special "quiet rooms," one in the boys' building and one in the girls' building, where students may go at any time, especially before breakfast, when a member of the staff is there with them in quiet prayer, sometimes directing their meditation, sometimes only saying a closing prayer. This plan has just begun; no reports about it have had time to come.

* * *



One more west China picture. A Chinese Army officer, formerly a colonel, turned an English missionary out of a mission house and occupied it for a while, not many years ago. That former colonel is a general, and he is now sending his daughter to the girls' school in that same mission. The Chinese head of the school didn't want her and tried not to take her, but the general had asked advice from all his friends, and they all told him that was the best school. She comes in a smart rickshaw (west China for Cadillac), attends the Bible class and follows all the rules of the school.

* * *

Some one was asking what becomes of the Russian Orthodox students who are trained in the Russian Seminary in Paris. They go out to serve their Church people scattered in many lands. This past year one of the former students was sent to India as a priest, to serve a Russian community there and to make contact with the ancient Syrian Church of India. Another was sent to Canada to minister to Ukrainians.

In the north of France one of these young Russian priests is doing missionary work among Orthodox in four places, workmen and their families, including 200 children. They are Russian, Serbian, Roumanian, Greek, Bulgarian. "He is radiant in spirit," the report says. "His salary of $37 supports a family of three. Truly some of these graduates are examples of unselfishness. Emigré life does not assure them normal comfort, but their motive is the maintenance of the spiritual forces among their scattered people."

Bishop Bury, who knows a lot about Russia, writes: "One cannot speak too highly of the zeal, industry and self-denial of these young men. They will be a splendid body of clergy to minister to their refugee fellow-countrymen while Russia is closed to them, and to return, when its frontiers are opened again, and take the place, as far as they can supply it, of those who have died."

BISHOP CHESHIRE
Celebrates Eighty-second Birthday

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

The schedule of meetings for the annual session of the House of Bishops and the April session of the National Council and its department has been announced as follows:

April 26, Tuesday: Morning and afternoon, House of Bishops meeting, Garden City, Long Island, New York; National Council departments meeting, Church Missions House, New York City. Evening, joint meeting of House of Bishops and National Council, Garden City.

April 27, Wednesday: Morning, separate meetings of House of Bishops and National Council. Afternoon and evening, joint meeting.

April 28, Thursday: Separate meetings of House of Bishops and National Council, the House probably adjourning at noon and the Council meeting all day.

* * *

"We are strongly recommending that contributions to the 1932 deficiency fund be in cash rather than in pledges," says the treasurer of the National Council, Dr. Lewis B. Franklin. "We know the difficulty with which a large proportion of our people are keeping up with their regular contributions to the Church and paying their living expenses, and we do not want to add a continuing burden in the way of extra pledges.

"This money ought to come from those who are able to make a cash contribution over and above their regular giving, even though that cash contribution may be only one dollar or five or ten dollars.

"A few days ago we had a check for $2,500 for the fund from a woman who had read about the need. We have several contributions of $1,000 each and several between $1,000 and $2,500.

"Of course we are not laying down any rule against pledges. Some dioceses have adopted a plan which allows payments up to the end of the year, but if this can be avoided we think it is advisable to avoid it."

* * *

The Rev. Remsen Ogilby, the president of Trinity College, had a service recently for a lot of crippled children in an institution in Hartford. At the end of the service he spoke about heaven and these lame little tots wanted to know if they would have to hobble about on crutches there too. They got their answer and I rather imagine it was a satisfactory one, judging from this poem which Dr. Ogilby jotted down on a bit of paper after he got home.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

I do not pretend to know how it stacks up as poetry, but I do know that I like it and hand it on to you because I think you will too.

I Cor. XV:35-54.

It was Children's Day in Heaven,
And they had a big parade,—
Saxophones some nineteen hundred—
You can guess the noise they made.
Booming bass drums by the thousand
Fair drowned out the angel choirs,
Who gave up and smiled in silence
With their idle golden lyres.

Mary Blest reviewed the marchers
On the Throne beside her Son;
In her hands she held the prizes
To award when all was done.
Pleased she heard the drummers drumming
And the tiny bugles toot;
She acknowledged with precision
Every juvenile salute.

Paul led off: the children chose him
For they loved his shining sword;
Brave St. Martin, half his cloak gone,
Well they knew would please the Lord.
Kind St. Nicholas with his reindeer,
St. Sebastian with his bow:
All these saints felt gravely honored
To be asked to march, you know.

But now look! Who are these coming,
Swinging down the golden street?
Who are these so bravely marching?
Hear the rhythm of their feet!
Every head held high and graceful,
Every back so straight and fine,—
It's the Corps of Crippled Children,
Marching, marching, line on line.

Gone the plaster cast and bandage,
Gone the braces and the pad,
But each carries like a banner
A pair of crutches he once had,—
Crutches, once a bitter burden,
Barring hope for race or run,
Now they raise aloft in triumph,
Symbols of a victory won.

Cherubs cheer them, seraphs hail them
Passing the reviewing stand:
Earth's great soldiers loud applaud them,
Michael waves his warrior's hand.
Awestruck saints see tears of gladness
Fill the Blessed Mary's eyes,
For the Corps of Crippled Children
Easily wins The Marching Prize.

* * *

A regional conference of the Catholic Congress is being held next Sunday at All Saints', Dorchester, Mass. The subject is "Values of the Holy Eucharist" and the speakers are to be the Rev. S. C. Hughson, O. H. C., the Rev. Julian D. Hamlin, rector of the Advent, Boston, and the Rev. G. D. Fosenthal, vicar of St. Agatha's, Birmingham, England. Other reginal conferences are to be held soon at Long Branch, New Jersey, at Utica, New York, and at a young peoples' conference early in May at St. Mary the Virgin's, New York.

* * *

The rector of Trinity Parish, New York, the Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, entertained at the Harvard Club on Wednesday last in honor of the tenth anniversary of the coming to Trinity of the Rev. William B. Kinkead, priest-in-charge, and Channing Lefebvre, organist and choirmaster. Both of them have become distinctively identified with the life of this Mother Church of the great New York parish, which is such a factor in the life of downtown business people.

* * *

The conference of young people of the province of the southwest is to be held at Winslow, Arkansas, July 11-23. Bishop Capers is to give a course on personal religion; Dean John W. Day of Kansas is to give a course on the social teachings of Jesus; Rev. C. W. Sprouse is to lecture on current problems; Rev. W. P. Witsell on Church history; Rev. C. H. Horner on the Bible; there are to be several courses on teaching, and Bishop Scarlett of Missouri is to be the conference preacher.

* * *

I do not know how long it took him to do it—I should think all the morning. Bishop Budlong confirmed a class of 208 people at St. James', Danbury, Connecticut, on April 3rd. This number included 12 received from the Roman Church and one from the Greek Orthodox. In the past three and a half years 635 people have been presented for confirmation in the parish by the rector, the Rev. Hamilton H. Kellogg. Quite a record.

* * *

A Whitsunday Birthday Thank Offering is being planned throughout the district of Spokane to raise funds for the $400,000 deficit of the National Council. The clergy of the district met for an all day session on March 30th, under Bishop Cross, to make plans.

* * *

A stone from St. Albans, Glastonbury, England, was inserted in the corner stone of the Cathedral of St. John the Evangelist, Spokane, Washington, at the children's service on Easter afternoon.

* * *

The Rev. Clarence Kopp, Ellensburg, Washington, has accepted a call to St. Peter's, LaGrande, Oregon.

* * *

A new parish house was dedicated on April 6th at St. Thomas Church, Hancock, Maryland. It was dedicated by Bishop Helfenstein. Bishop Cook of Delaware was the preacher in the morning and Bishop Wyatt Brown of Harrisburg gave the address at the service in the afternoon.

* * *

Writing from Anvik, Alaska, the Rev. H. H. Chapman says, "This winter our mail comes part way by airplane. It is landed at Iditarod, about 100 miles east of Anvik, and brought the rest of the way by dog-team every two weeks. So far it has not been very satisfactory. It is reported that the airplanes have been catering more to passenger traffic.

"A little girl came to the mission to have her tooth pulled the other day. An unpleasant time was had by all. She suffered physically and I suffered mentally and nervously. A traveling dentist visits us every summer, but in winter there is no dentist nearer than Fairbanks, six hundred miles away. So far we have come through the winter without any epidemics other than colds."

* * *

A class of fifty-seven young people was confirmed at St. Luke's, Scranton, Pa., last Sunday by Bishop Sterrett. The class was one of the largest to be presented in a number of years, though the rector, the Rev. Robert P. Kreitler has established several records for presenting large classes.

* * *

A recent note from Archdeacon Goodman on the coast at Tigara (Point Hope) says his Esquimeau

CLERICAL SKETCHES

THE Rev. Rodney J. Arney, rector at Kent, Washington, was born in England in 1870. He came to this country in 1886 and was educated at Washington College, Tacoma, and at the University of Washington. He then attended the Seabury Divinity School, graduating with the class of 1900. His first charge was that of St. Paul's, Seattle, which he served until 1905. He then was placed in charge of work at Dunlap, Reuton, Auburn and Kent. The work under his direction was built up and soon became independent so that the work at Kent eventually became his sole charge. When he came to Kent there were 28 communicants. Now there are over 300. The Sunday school likewise has increased from 20 to over 130. Thus has Mr. Arney demonstrated, by his ministry of 27 years in one town, that the Episcopal Church is the Church for small towns as well as urban centers.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

people had had epidemics of influenza and a hard winter generally. The supply of driftwood, almost indispensable for fuel, was low, the nearest being several miles away, and the sealing had not been very good. Seals in sight but ice conditions made it impossible to get them. The mission had been able to provide some relief.

* * *

The treasurer of the National Council, Dr. Franklin, writes that the report of collections to April first does not offer much opportunity to congratulate anybody. Out of the 99 dioceses and districts 31 have remitted in the three months of the present year either nothing or only nominal amounts. Only one diocese has paid 100 per cent of the proportionate part of its quota—Delaware. On the basis of what dioceses told the Council to expect they are short $137,000 on collections, and they are $65,000 below April 1st of last year.

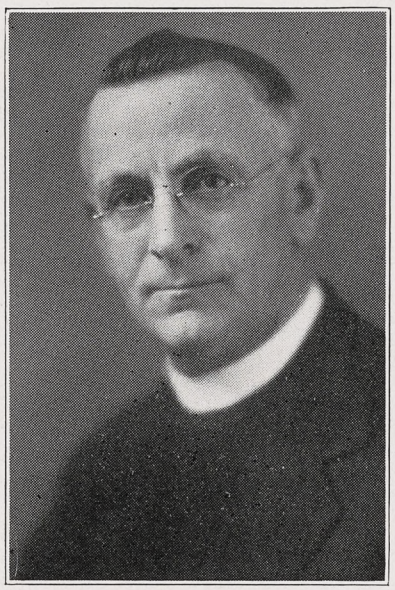
* * *

The 11th annual conference of Church workers in the mountain area of the South met in Knoxville, March 28th. Twenty workers were present, including Bishops Abbott and Horner, and three from the Church Missions House, Bishop Creighton, Spencer Miller, Jr. and Rev. Franklin Clark.

* * *

The diocese of Bethlehem had a conference on April 12th to consider ways and means of raising funds for the $400,000 deficit.

* * *



The Presiding Bishop was in Paris from March 14th to 21st. He confirmed five there on the 18th and another class of eleven on Palm Sunday. His week was filled with official conferences and visits to various centers. On the 21st he went to Florence where he confirmed a class of five at St. James. On Easter Day he was in Rome at St. Paul's. On Easter Tuesday he reached Nice for the convocation of the Churches in Europe.

* * *

Southern Virginia is to observe a week of self-denial. Church people will go without something, put the money in a box and then turn it in to the church to be applied on the fund for the $400,000 National Council deficit.

* * *

Word comes in of lively doings in various spots in behalf of the drive for the deficit. Oklahoma is holding regional meetings. Incidentally they, along with a number of other dioceses and districts, are setting up their organization now for the Every Member Canvass in the Fall. Louisiana is depending on a Whitsunday offering to bring in their share. Western Michigan has a committee

RODNEY J. ARNEY
Rector at Kent, Washington

of laymen on the job; the bishop of Virginia sent a letter and a special envelope to every communicant; New Hampshire is striving to raise its full 1932 quota; North Carolina has a special committee at work, and so it goes all along the line. Meanwhile along comes a letter to the treasurer of the Council from a layman suggesting that 400 laymen kick in with $1,000 apiece and he offers to be the first one, just to show that he means it. His name is John R. Van Derlip and he lives in Minneapolis. The report comes from the Church Missions House that there has been a fine response to the need on the part of individuals scattered throughout the land, though there has been no direct solicitation.

* * *

Dean Dumper, Trinity Cathedral, Newark, N. J., is to have noonday services every day, being prompted to do so because of the great success of the Lenten services this year.

* * *

The present financial emergency in support of the Church's missionary work is by no means wholly due to the world-wide economic depression but it is a symptom of underlying conditions which have long received and will continue to receive more than ever, the earnest attention of all Church leaders, national, diocesan and parochial.

"In spite of the past twelve years of hard work (since the Nation-Wide Campaign of 1919) only one-half of our people are giving regularly to parish support and only about one-third are giving regularly to the Church's mission," says the Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, executive secretary of the Field Department. The Budget of $4,225,000 (adopted by General Convention for 1932) for national work, and combined budgets of perhaps $3,200,000 for diocesan missionary work, after allowing for income from endowments and other such revenue, require giving on the part of the people of about $6,500,000 a year. This equals about $5.50 per communicant member. No matter what the economic conditions, we cannot admit that our people will not give an average of ten cents a week for the extension of Christ's Kingdom."

* * *

Good idea for city parishes: St. Mary's Church, Manhattanville, a New York City parish, has had a series of six Wednesday night services at which the preachers were New York diocesan missionaries. In almost any diocese where distances permit, it will be found that men in charge of rural missions, archdeacons, chaplains of diocesan institutions, and other diocesan missionaries have inspiring stories to tell, and need the encouragement of the parishes in their own diocese.

* * *

This isn't exactly Church news but it is nevertheless an interesting bit; at El Paso, Texas, they have turned the prisoners out of the jail in order to make room for the more deserving —the unemployed.

* * *

The Rev. James E. Stratton, vicar of St. Thomas' Mission, Tulsa, Oklahoma, a Negro worker, died March 20th at the age of 28. The cause of his death was given as over-work. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1930.

* * *

A fine new church is being built at Norman, Oklahoma, as the result of a grant of $25,000 from the National Council. Norman is the seat of the state university and an important work has been done there for some time by the Rev. M. J. Lindloff.

* * *

The summer conference of the diocese of Marquette, under the chairmanship of the Rev. Maurice Clarke, dean of the cathedral, is to be held from July 18th to 27th. Among the instructors will be the Rev. Percy Houghton, field secretary of the council, Miss Ruth Osgood, a field secretary of the Auxiliary, the Rev. J. B. Hubbard of Park Ridge, Illinois and the Rev. Hubert Cowley-Carroll who is to conduct a class on the Bible. A special course is also planned for the clergy on evangelism and preaching missions. The conference is to be held at the Methodist camp grounds on Lake Michigan. Other courses are to be announced later.

* * *

Just to let you know that there are probably people worse off than you are let me tell you this story. In

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —A New Religious Novel

The MACMILLAN COMPANY, of New York City, issues the first novel based on modern Biblical scholarship. Unique. Historically accurate. Commended by religious leaders such as Bishop F. J. McConnell, Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and Prof. Shailer Mathews. Plot cast in a highly dramatic period, when struggle for social justice and international peace gave motivating force for evolution of monotheism. Shows Bible as a literature developing in hard times. "By the Waters of Babylon, A Story of Ancient Israel," by Louis Wallis. All booksellers, or the Macmillan Company, New York City, $2.00.—Adv.

The Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

Philadelphia the other day a little school girl fainted away. The doctor was called and soon discovered that the child was slowly starving to death. When she came to she was told that she should go home and get something to eat. To this she replied: "There is no sense in my going home. It isn't my turn to eat today." Upon investigation they discovered that the children in this particular family took turns eating. And they burn wheat in the fields because there is too much of it.

* * *

One doesn't think of the diocese of Fond du Lac as being a missionary area particularly, and yet there is an important Indian work there at Oneida, and there are 25 aided congregations in the diocese, some getting help from the National Council and others getting support from diocesan funds. One outstanding bit of work is at St. Paul's, Big Suamico, where the Rev. L. D. Hopkins has developed in thirty years a congregation from 24 members to 130 members. It consists of farmer and fisher folk unable to assume as yet entire responsibilities of the work, but on their way. Another important work is at Green Bay where the Rev. Edward Hutchinson is carrying on an intensive piece of religious and social work among the poorer people in this city of 40,000 inhabitants.

* * *

Golden jubilee services of thanksgiving, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the consecration of their church, were held at Calvary, Batavia, Illinois, on April 10th and 11th. Bishop Stewart confirmed and preached at the service last Sunday afternoon, and also was a speaker at a meeting in the evening. On Monday the Rev. John Rathbone Oliver of Baltimore was the guest, and spoke at two meetings.

* * *

Mrs. Georgia Drake Carpenter of Manchester, N. H., widow of Hon. Josiah Carpenter, died on March 26 at the age of 96. She was a woman of large philanthropies. With her husband she gave the parish house of Grace Church, Manchester. She also gave the gymnasium at Holderness School and gave many gifts of money to both Holderness and St. Mary's School.

* * *

Not many people have an opportunity of unveiling stained glass windows that are placed in honor of themselves. This honor befell Dr. Archibald M. Campbell of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who on Easter Day unveiled a five-light chancel window at Trinity Church placed in recognition of his fifty years as a vestryman. The window was formally dedicated by Bishop Manning on April 4th. It is the work of Mr. James H.

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

DEVOTIONAL

The Confraternity of the Mystical Life (see page 218 of the Living Church Annual for 1932) offers monthly studies in Personal Religion, sent by post, without obligation other than voluntary donations. The work of the C. M. L. is commended by many bishops and priests of the American Church. First study sent on request. Address, Box 144, Wall Street Station, New York City.

SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE

We buy and sell Theological libraries and collections of good books. Correspondence solicited. SCHULTE'S BOOKSTORE, 80-82 Fourth Ave., New York City, New York.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Hogan, who was present at the dedication, and was executed by James Powell and Sons of London.

* * *

The new parish house, costing $160,000, of Christ Church, Manhasset, Long Island, was dedicated by Bishop Stires on April 3rd.

* * *

The Rev. Henry Mesier has been placed in charge of St. Thomas', Farmingdale, Long Island, succeeding the late Rev. John H. Heady.

* * *

A cable from Shanghai to the department of missions announces the reopening on April 1st of St. John's University and St. Mary's Hall, both of which had been closed in February.

Bishop Graves had been hoping it would be possible to open at this time, but owing to unsettled conditions in Shanghai it seemed probable that it would be necessary to delay reopening until after September 1st.

It is evident from the Bishop's message that not only has the Shanghai situation improved greatly, but the demand for the service that St. John's and St. Mary's can render to young men and young women is so great that all difficulties have been disregarded by parents and guardians of students.

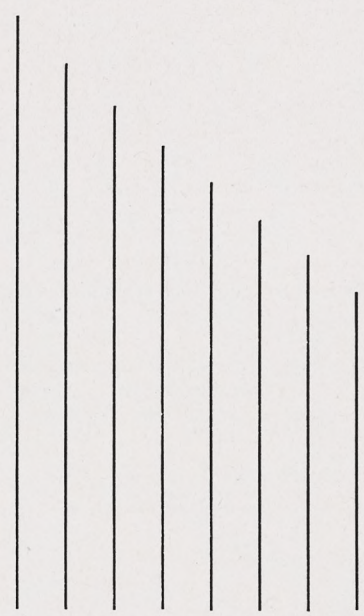
* * *

Regional meetings are being held throughout the diocese of Pittsburgh on the drive for funds to make up the deficit of the National Council. The campaign is to close with a service at the Cathedral, Pittsburgh, Whitsunday night when representatives from every parish and mission will present their offering.

* * *

An important feature of the Wellesley Conference for the past two years has been the School of Christian Social Ethics of which Vida D. Scudder is the dean. Miss Scudder is professor emeritus of English literature at Wellesley, and is widely known for many things, not the least of which is her interest in social questions. In the ten days of the conference, from June 27 to July 8, there will be three courses given by this particular school, one by Professor Fleming James of the Berkeley Divinity School on the social teaching of the Old Testament, one by Professor D. A. McGregor of Western Seminary on Christianity and the international situation, and a third course under the direction of the secretary of the Church League for Industrial Democracy, which is to deal with the present industrial situation. Those wishing details regarding the school, or the whole Wellesley Conference for that matter, should write Miss Marian DeC. Ward, 50 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

* * *



The Rev. A. L. Schrock, rector at Goshen, Indiana, believes in going out after them. The Church, as you may possibly know, is not strong in the rural sections of the state. But he has dug up a number of Church families in towns around Goshen and brought them to baptism and confirmation. On Easter there were people present at the services at the parish church in Goshen from ten of these nearby villages. Not so nearby either, for some of them had to travel 100 miles to get there. Then there is one family that comes in every Sunday for service and Church school, travelling 30 miles to and fro to do it.

* * *

The Ven. J. Henry Brown, vicar of St. Augustine's, Savannah, a Negro congregation, gets his folks up early on Easter. There was a packed

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64. The Oval. London. S.E.11. England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE

There is
No Depression

. . . for those who enjoy the benefits of an annuity. Annuities are of particular advantage to persons of mature years who wish to be free from the worries occasioned by an irregular income derived from an investment in bonds or stocks.

. . . and for those without dependents, too much cannot be said for this arrangement of their finances.

For full information address

The
Church Life Insurance
Corporation

20 Exchange Place
New York City

A Subsidiary of The Church Pension Fund

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

church at 4 o'clock in the morning, when the choir presented a cantata. Then at 5 o'clock there was a choral celebration. Following that service the Rev. J. B. Moseley introduced himself to the Rev. Mr. Brown. "I am the pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Church," he said, "and I brought my entire congregation of 25 members over here so that they might see what a real Easter service is like."

* * *

The Rev. Walter W. Ware, assistant at Christ Church, Media, Pa., has accepted the rectorship of St. Paul's, Savannah, Georgia.

* * *

Church school children of the diocese of Chicago turned out in great numbers last Sunday for the annual post-Easter rallies. The services were held in ten well located churches in the diocese.

* * *

Mr. James E. Brown, age 59, for many years a prominent member of the standing committee of the diocese of Pittsburgh and a vestryman of St. Stephen's, Sewickley, died on March 31st, following an illness of several months. He was a deputy at several General Conventions and has played a large part in diocesan affairs.

* * *

The car in which the Rev. and Mrs. John Henry Hopkins, formerly rector of the Redeemer, Chicago, were riding was hit by an express train and completely demolished. Both miraculously escaped instant death. Mrs. Hopkins came out of it with a broken leg and wounds, while Dr. Hopkins was only slightly injured. The accident occurred in Florida where they have spent the winter.

* * *

Miss Charlotte Tomkins, director of religious education in the diocese of Central New York, was one of the speakers at the recent annual conference on vacation and week-day schools, held under the auspices of the New York State Council of Religious Education. She spoke on the opportunity of vacation schools.

* * *

They made some sort of a record at St. Thomas', Dover, N. H., Easter. There are 416 communicants enrolled in the parish. Yet 418 communions were made Easter, with over 300 of them being at the 6:30 service. The Rev. Arthur M. Dunstan is the rector.

* * *

The Rev. Frank Benfield has resigned the Chenango County Mission, diocese of Central New York.

* * *

The diocese of Harrisburg has organized an ecclesiastical court in marital relations. It is to meet quarterly. Several cases have already

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., L.L.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

been brought to the attention of the court but no action will be taken on them until they have been presented formally on the proper forms which are now being prepared. The members of the court, elected by the standing committee of the diocese, are Dean Treder of Harrisburg, who is the president, Rev. Paul A. Atkins of York, Rev. A. G. W. Pfaffke of Blue Ridge Summit, the Hon. F. S. Reese of Carlisle, Harry S. Knight of Sunbury, William K. Meyers of Harrisburg and Lesley McCreath, clerk of the court.

* * *

A son was born to Bishop and Mrs. Wyatt Brown on March 19th.

* * *

The Rev. Oscar C. Taylor has been placed in charge of St. Matthew's, Alliance, Nebraska, and had his first service there on Easter day. He was a deacon when he arrived but was advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Beecker last Sunday.

* * *

Bishop Stewart of Chicago was the preacher at St. Christopher's, Oak Park, on April 3rd, when the parish began a week of festivities to celebrate their 20th anniversary.

* * *

Archdeacon Poyseor of the diocese of Marquette, who handles an exciting bit of work in the mining towns of northern Michigan, is in the east lecturing under the auspices of the National Council.

* * *

St. Peter's, Auburn, N. Y., has received a legacy of $5000 from the estate of Sarah B. Hills, for many years a communicant of the parish.

* * *

The churches of Alabama were hit by the recent tornadoes along with everything else. Our correspondent, the Rev. G. W. Ribble, rejoices that there were no casualties among our Church people, but he attributes this largely to the fact that "so scare are Episcopalians in some portions of Alabama that wide swaths might be cut without discovering any." However property did not fare so well. St. Michael's Faunsdale, was completely destroyed, and the rectory nearby was twisted all out of shape so that it will have to be demolished. Then there were minor damages to other church property. The churches throughout the diocese are active in relief work.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK

A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 6.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Answer of the Parishes

During the month of April the movement to put the heart back into the missionary work of the Church has entered the stage of parochial action and response. There are 3,620 parishes and 3,954 missions within the United States. If each congregation does something no congregation need do much to produce an offering of $400,000 on Whitsunday, May 15th.

NEW YORK—"The vestry of Christ Church (Corning) has accepted the Missionary apportionment in full this year. It amounts to nearly $6,000. The rector hopes that our Easter offering will amount to $3,000. It is good to know that all our money (unless otherwise designated) received on the Glorious Feast of the Resurrection will go for others—will go for the spread of the Gospel of Jesus Christ throughout the world.

LATER: "We received over $4,000, which shows that the appeal for Missions is not dead even in a time of financial depression." (Signed—F. F. Lynch, Rector.)

IT is the conviction of the members of the National Council that the efforts of our Church to assist society in the adjustment of its present difficulties on the basis of truer Christian standards will be impaired if we permit the life and work of the Church to be curtailed.

VIRGINIA—"As we have 20,000 communicants in the Diocese we calculated that an average contributed of $1.00 per communicant would make up this sum. ($3,000 for the General Church's Missionary Deficiency and $7,000 for the diocesan deficiency). Some of the churches decided to take up the offering on Easter but the majority will take it up on Whitsunday. . . . I have just heard from one church in Richmond which has 600 communicants that their Easter gift was a little over $1,000."

CHICAGO—"While at Christ Church, River Forest, for confirmation the other night, the Bishop was informed by Father Ridgeway that the 1931 and 1932 confirmation classes had decided to give $113 to the 'Plus Fund.' This is from a church which pledged and paid $700 to the Quota in 1931, and has pledged $1,000 for 1932. Later the Bishop learned that this $113 had been collected to buy a 'Calvary Group' for the rood."

MASSACHUSETTS—Vestry's letter to the parishioners of Trinity Church, Boston:

"In recent years the offerings on Easter Day have been added to the Phillips Brooks Memorial Endowment Fund. This year the Wardens and Vestry have voted to use these offerings to help the National Church."

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
Church Missions House
281 Fourth Ave. New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 21, 1932

The Christian Message

by

TOYOHIKO KAGAWA

THE Christian Message must mean the reconstruction of society, nothing less! A notable characteristic of Jesus Christ was His eagerness to reach the least of men. By reaching the least we reach the masses, and by changing the masses we change society. The redemption of Jesus is a hundred per cent redemption—spiritual, physical, economic, political and social. We have been inclined to interpret Christianity as concerned with spiritual and individual redemption only. It is an interpretation that is entirely too comfortable.

MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown, Maryland

The J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
No. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Distinctive Church Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet on request

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

J. WIPPELL & COMPANY · LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

Church Furniture
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 35 APRIL 21, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

FOLLOWING THE MEETING of the National Council in February there appeared in this paper an editorial dealing with National Church affairs. On the eve of the meetings of the House of Bishops and of the National Council next week in Garden City we repeat the suggestions made in that editorial. First we believe that the present situation calls for a committee of trained investigators to thoroughly study every work of the National Council in order to discover whether it is producing commensurate with the costs. Second, we believe that the whole matter of cuts in the budget should be reopened in order that the work in the field may be the last to suffer. The responsibility for the recent budget cuts was placed on executive officers who were themselves, with their departments, involved. We believe that the cuts should have been made by an impartial and disinterested group. The entire work of the National organization is important. But when funds are not available to carry on the entire work of the Council, we believe the people of the Church want the first cuts made, where the General Convention said they should be made, by administrative and departmental economies.

THE PLIGHT OF our Church Weeklies is most adequately set forth in a brochure by the Church Literature Foundation, a corporation which is attempting to raise an endowment of a quarter of a million dollars for the support of The Living Church. If the value of a Church newspaper is questioned by anyone we believe the reading of this brief thesis, "Building for the Future," will do much to change his attitude. However, there is little question, we believe, about the need. Some possibly believe our Church could get along with fewer weeklies, but as the brochure points out, our Church is at once Catholic and Protestant, Liberal and Conservative, Modernist and Traditional and "the synthesis of these varying viewpoints demands a press that provides adequate expression for each of them." The author then generously gives it as his opinion that the four present weeklies "satisfactorily accomplish the purpose of providing expression to these varying viewpoints while each of them is thoroughly loyal to the Church as a whole." Under just which classification he would place THE WITNESS he does not say. Bishop Johnson, our editor, was once asked by an irritated subscriber: "Just what is the policy of THE WITNESS anyway?" His reply was briefly but adequately as follows: "Dear Madam; Replying to your recent inquiry as to the policy of THE WITNESS, I beg to inform you that our policy is exactly the same as that of the Episcopal Church. We haven't any." However we do hope that we are correctly described as being thoroughly loyal to the Church, and we mean to be sufficiently comprehensive in our point of view to be acceptable to all schools of Churchmanship.

THE INTERESTING QUESTION of course is why our four weeklies cannot be self-supporting. The answer to this question is given as follows: "In this era of high-pressure salesmanship and mass advertising, scarcely any religious periodical is self-supporting. It is well known that it is not the money received from subscriptions but that from advertising that supports any periodical. But the whole trend of modern advertising has been to mass circulation so that the religious and other class periodicals of comparatively small circulation have been entirely eliminated from the advertising budgets of large national advertisers. Therefore practically all religious periodicals today incur an annual deficit which must be met either by the gifts of those who are interested in having them continued, by grants from a Church board, or by the income from an endowment." The officers and trustees of the Foundation conclude by proposing an endowment for the maintenance of The Living Church and state most emphatically "that unless this endowment is raised, within a short time, The Living Church will have to be discontinued." We cannot believe that the Church will allow a periodical which has served so long and so well to pass, and we are convinced that some method will be found to prevent such a catastrophe. In saying this we are not unmindful of similar situations that exist on the other weeklies. The matter was the subject of considerable discussion at the last General Convention, though it was finally decided that it was impossible to give them any aid. Faced with the fact that the Church is about to lose its press, with its great integrating and unifying force, possibly some of our Church leaders will be prompted to reopen the question.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

XI. Before the Reformation

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

IT IS quite the fashion for those who are critical of the Anglican Church to point to Henry VIII as its founder, thus raising two questions and blending them into one indictment. Henry's morals were one thing and his relation to the English Church quite another. There is little or nothing gained by throwing mud at the characters of the fifteenth century. Perhaps it is enough to say, "like Pope, like King." If Henry was a licentious king he differed in no way from Pope Sextus IV (1471-1484) who was accused of advancing his illegitimate children to profitable positions; or Innocent VIII (1484-1492) of whom it was facetiously said, that "God willeth not the death of a sinner, but rather that he should pay and live" and then Alexander Borgia (1492-1503) who was accused of murder and lust. When someone said that Alexander sold the keys, it was replied that he bought them, so he had the right to sell them.

Henry was no better and no worse than the Popes from whom he received his inspiration. If his character reveals anything, it reveals the low standard of morals and justice as administered by the Church in his day and before him. Whether he founded another Church or not is a question which we will consider later, but that he was what he was cannot be attributed to any other causes than those that surrounded him in the Church in which he was reared. The conditions preceding the reformation were certainly terrible and if revolt is ever justifiable it was when Martin Luther nailed up his theses for public consideration. Outside of the general immorality which characterized those in high places, there were three abuses which cried to Heaven. First, there was the abuse of clerical privilege. The papacy was a law unto itself. It could repudiate its own contracts and claimed to be answerable to no man. All clerics were exempt from secular courts, and by the word "cleric" was meant nearly any one who could read and therefore held a minor office in the Church. "Touch not mine anointed" was the theory upon which this condition was based. But laymen were not exempt from clerical courts and the inquisition. If one looks at Italy, Spain, and Mexico as having been priest ridden, the situation was mild compared with the heavy hand of the ecclesiastic in the Middle Ages. Annas and Caiaphas would have felt perfectly at home in the hierarchy of those days.

Second, there were the appeals to Rome which were made easy by the Pope and very expensive by his satellites. Papal law courts claimed the right to most any sort of appeal and the briefs cost from twenty to forty times their legitimate fee. The papal curia was filled with ecclesiastical lawyers. The papacy reaped a large revenue from its taxing of the scribes who in turn made large money from charging the litigants. It was estimated that more money went into the Papal treasury during the reign of Henry IV than went into the royal coffers, and this exportation of coin created a serious economic situation in England.

Third, the sale of indulgences. Sellers of pardons travelled over Europe and sold the remission of sins for a few shillings per capita. "Everywhere" says Erasmus, "the remission of purgatorial torment is sold: nor is it sold only but forced upon those who refuse it." The performance of Tetzel—who sold indulgences in order to collect money for rebuilding St. Peter's Church in Rome became the immediate cause of Luther's revolt. In Luther's theses (No. 48) he said, "Christians should be taught that the Pope in granting pardons has both more need and more desire that devout prayer should be made for him, than that the money should be readily paid"—and again (No. 82) "Why does not the Pope empty purgatory for the sake of most holy charity and of the supreme necessity of souls, if he redeems an infinite number of souls for the sake of that most fatal thing, money, to be spent on building a basilica." It is no wonder that Luther was disliked by the hierarchy. The truth is that the Papacy had become the open sore of Europe and from it the whole body was becoming sick. The Papacy had in 1500 A. D. become its own reductio ad absurdum.

But here again one must raise several questions. One has no right to deny the great benefits which the Church had received from the See of Rome in the past because the power of the Keys had fallen into evil hands. It is difficult to reconcile that Papacy with infallibility, if that word has any definite meaning. It is not difficult to reconcile it with a primacy which it had enjoyed and might enjoy again in spite of evil men. And then again, while one sympathizes with Luther in that which he opposed, it does not necessarily follow that he provided the right remedy. It is rather difficult to discriminate between the powers exercised by the Pope from those subsequently exercised by Luther, when power was given unto him, excepting that Luther's power was not of so mercenary a character. The Papacy had no doubt fallen upon evil days and into evil hands, but that fact does not establish the need of changing everything in the Catholic Church in order to correct the evil.

Erasmus, who agreed with neither Pope nor Luther, caustically commented upon the folly of the latter who in his desire to cleanse a vase must first smash it into pieces. Luther did not settle the question of how to amend, by stressing the necessity of amending. That a reformation was necessary is evident. What kind of reformation was advisable is a different question and the divided state of Christendom today is a sign of the difficulty in answering it.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

There were three different kinds of reformation attempted. First, the movement of Luther, Calvin and Zwingli, which substituted for the Catholic Church several individualistic systems in which they changed the nature of the faith, the sacraments and the ministry as well as the worship of the Church, and in which none of them agreed together. It was folly to attribute the wickedness of the hierarchy to their form of worship. It was rather due to the invasion of the Church by the secularly minded.

Second, the movement in England which proceeded from political and economic causes rather than from theological differences; which owed a temporary success to the personal problems of Henry VIII; but which became a settled policy under Elizabeth after Mary's ill-fated return to Papal control.

Third, the Counter Reformation of the Roman Church itself which removed many of the old abuses and gave an impetus to great missionary and philanthropic movements.

One ought to study these various reformations without passion and determine for himself which reformation conserved those elements of the faith most essential to the Church's life and mission. In the fifteenth century judgment gave way to passion and no judicial decisions made under the influence of violent passions can be held as valid.

It is interesting to note how the three most interesting characters of this period took the Reformation. Erasmus refused to go with the reformers and found himself out of joint with the Papacy. Sir Thomas More refused to accept Henry's claim to be the head of the Church in the same cool-headed way that he would have repudiated the claim of the Pope to be the head of the State. Henry cut off More's head and ended the argument of the best mind in England. John Colet was the third of this remarkable trio. He was the founder of St. Paul's School. He remained in the communion of the Church but disapproved of many of her practices. He died before Henry's separation from the Pope. These three men were the outstanding scholars of the time and their reaction to the Reformation illustrates the difficulties of the situation. None of them approved of Luther. None of them approved of the abuses in the Roman Church. None of them cared to exchange the Pope for the King as head of the Church. They preferred however the status quo with all of its difficulties to the substitutes then offered.

No one can say what they would have done if they had had the opportunity to conform to an historic Church in which neither King nor Pope was supreme, but from a reference to More's Utopia, it would seem that such was their ideal.

(To be continued)

KEEPING THE CHANNELS CLEAR

By

OLIVER J. HART

Rector of St. Paul's, Chattanooga

THE National Council is appealing for an Emergency Offering of $400,000 on or before May 15th. This sum is needed so that the Budget, already cut to a point that threatens disaster, may be balanced for the final six months of 1932. We must do our part in responding to this appeal but little permanent good will be accomplished if the whole work of the Church is not established upon foundations of greater security. Two things are necessary—direct information to our people and a direct method of response. The first of these means giving our people the facts. This is important and necessary but it is only half of the job. The other half is equally important. It deals with the channels of expression. Let us tell our people the story of the Program and at the same time let us do everything in our power to see to it that they have a simple and direct way in which to respond.

This involves three steps: First, the National Council must see to it that every nickel possible gets to the field. They can not be too careful about keeping the cost of administration down to a minimum. Constructive criticism of the Council's actions will always prove beneficial because they should be kept informed about what the people want them to do. But it is obvious that we must leave it to them to work out the details if we are to function as a National Church and not as a loosely-federated group of individual dioceses.

Second, the relationship between a Diocese and the National Church must be a real partnership. The diocese must forward to national headquarters each month a designated percentage of all receipts. Some dioceses now take care of their own needs first and send on to National Headquarters only what, if any, is left over. This gives the diocese a monopoly and destroys the partnership. It erects a very difficult barrier between the individual communicant and the General Program of the whole Church. It would be ideal if the diocese could guarantee to the National Church a fixed sum for each year. Then the National Council would be able to plan its work efficiently, but where a diocese is not in a position to guarantee all or a greater part of its quota, then it can at least let its people know what percentage of receipts will be forwarded to National Headquarters.

Third, the channel must also be kept clear through the parish to the diocese. The simplest way of doing this is to use the duplex pledge. What the individual communicant gives is his own concern but everyone who wants to give to the work of the Church outside his own parish should have a direct method of so doing. Some parishes may have outgrown the need of such a method. They may have become so missionary-minded that a tin can would do. But will these parishes be willing to stick to a simple method until the whole Church catches up with them and is ready to take a higher step? Certain parishes have evinced a fine spirit of corporate responsibility by assuming their full quotas and paying one-twelfth each month, even before the rector's salary. This is, of course, done on the basis of the single pledge. The tragedy is that certain other parishes have adopted the single pledge before they were ready to place the full quota as the first item on their budgets. The results can be seen all around us. The vestry becomes the final arbiter of the disposal of the offerings of the people. Not infrequently a contributor has to hurdle an elaborate parish budget to get anything outside to the Diocese and National Church. There is a steady decrease in the giving to the quota. Some parishes adopt the single pledge on the theory that they will force all contributors to give to missions whether they want to or not. In such cases the directors of such a plan are the only ones being fooled. The individual contributor is not being educated. His interest in the Church's work is not being aroused. No progress is being made as far as he is concerned.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

You simply cannot get away from the necessity of missionary education. In the last analysis, the scope and purpose of the Church's work will be determined by the individual contributor. Give our people the facts and then give them a simple and direct channel through which they can express themselves and we will be continually building up a more stable support of not only the parish program but of the diocesan program and the National Church program as well.

Missionaries' Salaries

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

THE salaries of all missionaries under the care of the National Council have been cut ten per cent. The National Council has issued a bulletin in which it states that about $200,000 will be saved by this cut.

The first concern of the Church should be to restore these salaries. I believe that many people think that if the Church raises $400,000 on or before Whitsunday, that the salaries will be restored. But in this the people are mistaken. That sum will only enable the National Council to carry on during the last six months of 1932 under the reduced budget. The restoration of the salaries should be the first charge against the $400,000, even if there must be further curtailment in other directions. For example, we can save probably $40,000 by discontinuing the "Church at Work."

The reasons for restoring the missionaries' salaries are these: (1) Every missionary has gone to his work with an understanding that his support would come from the Church. We are not keeping faith with them if we reduce salaries. (2) Constant appeals are made to congregations, to organizations, and to individuals to support the quota, because thereby they support missions. That is the big plea. Many people are unaware that only a portion of each gift to the quota goes to missions. The people give enough to maintain the salaries of missionaries, and they give with the understanding that the money goes to missions. (3) Missionaries are often far from home and isolated. They are often in an environment which provides no extra support of any kind. A ten per cent cut will inevitably produce a mental state not for the good of the work. (4) No person can cut each item of expense uniformly 10%. He often cannot reduce rent by that amount. Nor can he reduce insurance premiums. The burden of the cut falls on items in which most people of small salaries already feel pinched, that is, in food and clothing. (5) The most powerful and vital factor in our missionary work is the missionary. Give a real teacher a tent and he can have a school. We do, of course, need buildings and equipment, but most of all we need men and women. To underpay persons is a destructive policy. Nor do we want missionaries who are meek and resigned when subject to injustice. Whatever may be the pious acquiescense of an occasional person (as printed with complacent approval in our papers) the missionaries as a whole are right in feeling that some one has "let them down." And it is not the people in the parishes. They have given enough money to pay the missionaries. (6) Missionaries necessarily become experts in special work. Many of them have had to learn foreign languages. Their fields are quite different from home parishes. Consequently they become more and more valuable to the Church. To make a sudden cut of salary sets a precedent that might well cause men and women to pause before undertaking the labor, hardship and sacrifice incident to the missions. (7) No sane man wants to put his life's work, his family, his future into the hands of irresponsible employers. It is not courage, or hardihood, or consecration to jump off a cliff for the sake of the Church. We have an implied, if not an explicit, contract with missionaries. A ten per cent cut in salaries is a breach of that implied contract which will be disastrous to our future.

The appeal for Whitsunday will have far more "punch" if there is hope that the missionary salaries be restored. And there is a very strong conviction that economies can be effected and certain projects postponed that will in no wise affect the general future of our work.

A few of the missionaries may be able to make a donation of ten per cent of their salaries, but it should be entirely voluntary, not compulsory. We do not "save" an institution by "wrecking" its producing agents, any more than Congress can save the financial standing of the government by wrecking the business enterprises of the nation by improper taxation.

The Bishops of the Church and the National Council will meet next week at Garden City, Long Island. The Church eagerly awaits some cheering news from their deliberations, and the most cheerful news would be economies in non-essentials had been made, that the salaries of missionaries had been restored, and that the financial system has been made sure by assuring the National Council a stable income.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

CAIN'S WIFE

THE other night I was coming home by train from a Confirmation appointment. In the smoking compartment I fell into conversation with a group of men, one of whom soon became highly vocal on the subject of religion. Much to my surprise he finally burst forth with the question as to where Cain got his wife when Adam's family were the only created humans on the earth. I had thought that particular gag had been dead and buried these many years.

"Come now," I said. "You are not seriously asking that exploded riddle?"

"Your Bible says so," the man persisted, "and I would like to hear you explain it."

"Did you ever hear of a picture in words?" I asked. "That's what the Genesis story is. It pictures creation in the personal terms of one man and one woman and their family, representing human life itself."

"But it says Adam and Eve and Cain and Abel," the man declared.

"Certainly," I answered. "The word 'adam' means 'man', the word 'eve' means 'living', and in the same way 'cain' means 'possession' and 'abel' means 'vanity'. The story tells of the beginning of human existence when Man married Life and sought for Possession which proved to be Vanity. That's common experience, isn't it and it must have had a beginning. Suppose I tell you that Columbus discovered America. Does that mean that this one man got into a rowboat by himself and came across the Atlantic?"

"It means he was the leader of the crew," my questioner admitted.

"Certainly," I went on. "Columbus represents the expedition just as Adam and Eve represent primitive life. Let me tell you another story. Many years ago Pioneer married Companion and they came out to settle the wilderness of Wisconsin. They had two sons, Greedy and Tragic. The two boys learned to fish and trap. When they grew up, they divided the neighboring stretch of river between them so that each had his own fishing and trapping grounds. It seems that Tragic's catch was always larger and better than Greedy's probably because he was a better hunter. But Greedy became insanely jealous and one day slew his brother and stole his bag of game. Failing to explain his brother's absence to their father, Pioneer, and pursued by his own conscience, Greedy ran away to wander thru the woods alone. Eventually he settled down, married, and made a new home but all his life long he lived under the depressing shadow of his early crime. Ever since that time people have been fighting over the water rights of the lakes and rivers of Wisconsin, with frequent alternations of greed and tragedy.

"That's a true story of how civilization came to Wisconsin. It is much more true and much more interesting than all the government statistics about land grants, power concessions, and agricultural progress. Would you deny the truth of it until I could produce Greedy's wife? Now read the Creation story again with the same degree of common sense. The important thing is that God created human life and man abused his privileges. That's what the old story tells. It is absolutely true and I mean it when I assure you that I believe the book of Genesis."

"I never heard it explained like that," the man murmured. "But—" and then he was off on another one.

Lay Evangelism

By

WILLARD WARNER

AT THE first meeting of the National Commission on Evangelism held in the Mission House, New York, February 23rd, 1926, this statement was made: "Tomorrow the uppermost question before the National Council will be how to meet the budget without retrenchment. There are just two ways that this could have been done heretofore and can be done in the future. 1. By increasing the membership of the Church. 2. By increasing the spiritual perception of her members. Concerted and sustained evangelism will accomplish both of these objects and nothing else will. Evangelize or die. But the object of evangelism is not money, though it will spontaneously produce giving by making converted and consecrated Christians out of those who undertake it."

This statement is true and applicable today. The Episcopal Church in her domestic and foreign missionary districts is practicing evangelism for there that is of necessity the principal religious work. But in the domestic dioceses the saving of men's souls by means of evangelism is not noticeable on the part of even the clergy. How can the Church fulfill her divine mission or how can she justify her existence except by evangelism? Can she be longer content to make Christians in her domestic dioceses only of those belonging to her own constituency? Here very few outside the Church altogether are brought to Christ and the Church is being sustained largely by Christians from other communions.

Our Lord said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me," and again "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations." These commands were addressed not to His apostles alone but to all His disciples and the descent of the Holy Ghost at Pentecost was upon the whole number of disciples to consecrate them for evangelizing the world. So these commands apply to the laity as well as to the ministry. They are individual and personal, can not be obeyed by proxy and can only be satisfied by every Christian bearing his testimony wherever he is, at home or abroad, in his own family and his own neighborhood. Why is the Church not teaching the laity this supreme fact that they, each of them, have a responsibility to God not only to nourish their own souls but also to care for the souls of others. Is it not as if the Church was making silent Christians of its members or like the servant receiving the one talent who was afraid and went and hid his talent in the earth? Every baptised person is under sacred and avowed obligation to obey Christ's commands to make disciples. We are baptised with this declaration and "signed with the sign of the Cross in token that hereafter we shall not be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified. . . ."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Engaging in corporate worship, social service and Christian education will not suffice to discharge the inherent obligation of every Christian to do personal work for Christ. The Church fails to teach and enjoin evangelism—individual witness and testimony—upon the laity and therefore fails to utilize their great potentiality in a work that is more effective in spreading the Gospel than all teaching. This is the only way to employ large numbers of the laity in spiritual service that will effectively multiply the number of Christian disciples and also the only service that will at the same time perfect the Christian and produce in him a real and lasting spiritual growth. The laity must have other than temporal duties to perform if they are to become interested in and attached to missionary endeavor. We can not become active, useful and obedient Christians except by publicly witnessing to our loyalty and love for Jesus Christ as our Savior to the end that we may win others to Him.

This requires of the Christian definite preparation by prayer, by study of God's Word, by the right use of His sacraments and by means which the Church can provide. We need to be taught and to embrace, each one of us, the four requisites of becoming a Christian, that of personal trust in Christ as our Savior; personal surrender to Him as our Lord; personal experience of the Holy Spirit; personal service for Christ as our Master. Thus the Church can teach and train her members and have in every parish groups of evangelistic workers, who, with simple organization, without by-laws except the commission and commandments of their Lord and without dues, money or conventions, would perform a greater missionary work in the domestic dioceses than is done outside them by paid missionaries.

The Church can not expect her members to be enthusiastic about giving for, or engaging in missionary work until they have that personal experience of sins forgiven, grace conferred and the indwelling presence of Christ that finds an outlet in evangelism. We have one inlet of power, the Holy Spirit, promised to all who ask and are worthy, but just five outlets of power or means of witnessing: our lives, our lips, our money, our service and our prayers. Except the Spirit of Christ constraineth us we will not live right, testify freely, give adequately, work faithfully and pray earnestly. But if we live right and pray, can we not speak (witness) and work and give for that which we pray? How else can our prayers be sincere and effectual?

Love for Christ and loyalty to His cause determines the spiritual service of every Church member and upon that service depends the support of the Church. Personal witness for Christ is Christian evangelism and the greatest possible human means towards conversion. This can, among other ways, be attained, first, by a ministry trained in their seminaries to Personal Work and to leadership of the laity therein; second, by laying proper emphasis at confirmation time on the obligation to win others by evangelism; third, by definite assignment and responsibility to carry out this service; fourth, by making the real objective and goal of religious education and social service the development of such a Christian experience as will produce Christian witness for conversion of others; fifth, by prayer for evangelism and by proclaiming from the pulpit its definite injunctions in the Word of God.

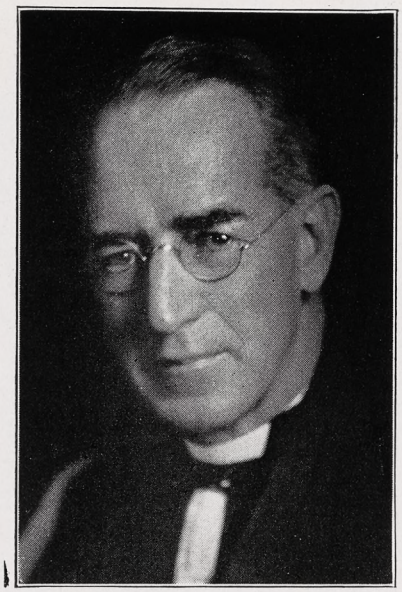
On Preaching

THE MINISTER, THE METHOD, AND THE MESSAGE. "Suggestions on Preaching." Rev. Harold Adye Prichard. Charles Scribner's Sons. 1932. $2.50.

This book is the outgrowth of the author's presentation of the subject of preaching at clergy conferences and in seminary class-rooms. As the title suggests, the work is divided into three parts. The first deals with the wider disciplines of a clergyman's life, the second discusses the problem of the preparation and delivery of sermons, and the third is concerned with doctrinal content of the sermon. One cannot read this book without becoming indebted to the author not only for specific guidance on many a concrete problem but also for the openness with which he shares his own experience with his readers. Some may take exception to certain statements here and there, and some may wish that the writer had not included so much in one volume, but none can lay down the book after finishing it without remembering what he has read for the modesty, honesty, and helpfulness which characterizes Canon Prichard's spirit throughout.

Of special interest and value is the author's incorporation of the detailed statements of nine prominent contemporary preachers as to how they prepare their sermons. These nine men are Dr. Bell, Dr. Robbins, Dr. Coffin, Dr. Cadman, Bishop Stewart, Dr. Bowie, Dr. Fosdick, Dr. Norwood, and Dr. Newton. Canon Prichard permits himself no word of criticism as to the technique of any of these men, but he points out in the case of each of them the special contribution that a particular method makes to the fulfillment of the preacher's task.

J. Foster Savidge.



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHURCH SOCIAL WORKERS TO MEET IN PHILADELPHIA

Church social workers of every description will be challenged by the forthcoming gatherings of the social workers of the nation at Philadelphia, May 15-21. As many as 7,000 are expected at this great annual week of the National Conference of Social Work and its constituent national agencies of which the Church Conference of Social Work is one. The primary purpose of the Church Conference is "to make religion a greater redemptive force in all social work." The Church Conference, which is an important promotion of the Federal Council of Churches, will have its headquarters at the Twelfth Street Friends Meeting House. The Chairman is Bishop Charles K. Gilbert of New York. The Conference will supply pulpits of the city with speakers on Sunday, May 15, and will hold Vespers every afternoon except Wednesday at 4:45 o'clock beginning Sunday.

Mornings will be kept free so that all church delegates may attend Division meetings of the National Conference. In these morning meetings church social workers will get the latest experience and thinking in the special fields of social work. A conference of ministers from Philadelphia and adjacent cities will be held on Monday, May 16. Bishop Francis J. McConnell will address the luncheon at one o'clock on "Changes in the Social Order Demanded by the Christian Ethic." The morning session, under the auspices of the Philadelphia Council of Churches, will discuss "Outline of a Church Program on Young People's Relationships, Marriage and Family Life." The speakers will be Professors L. Foster Wood of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, James P. Lichtenberger of the University of Pennsylvania, and Hornell Hart of Bryn Mawr College.

During the week the Church Conference will have a series of timely discussions and a Fellowship Dinner on Tuesday night, the latter to be addressed by Dr. Edward T. Devine on "Social Ideals of the Churches." There will be group meetings of theological seminaries, church child-caring agencies, social workers on the staffs of councils of churches, rural social workers, and councils of federated church women. The themes for the various sessions include The Church and Industry, Denominational Responsibility in Social Work, Development of Local Churches as Centers of Social Work, The Church in the Field of Recreation, Staffing of Institutions for Dependent Children, and Extension of Social Service to Rural Communities.

BISHOP GILBERT
To Lead Social Workers

The Church Conference of Social Work has five major aims: "To contribute to the development of scientific methods in the social work of the Protestant churches and councils of churches of the United States. To bring church social workers together for acquaintance and discussion of common problems. To bring to church social workers the value of the discussions and associations of the National Conference of Social Work. To develop understanding and cooperation between churches and social agencies in communities. To make religion a greater redemptive force in all social work."

The Bethlehem Summer Conference is from June 26th to July 1st. The faculty: Rev. John Hart, student chaplain at the University of Pennsylvania, is to be the chaplain, and courses are to be given by Rev. H. A. Woolfall of Washington on the Life of Christ; Rev. T. B. Smythe of Reading, Pa., on Church history; Rev. Richard R. Trapnell, general secretary of the National Council on the Program of the Church; Rev. Albert W. Eastburn of Philadelphia on personal religion; Rev. A. K. Fenton of Winton, Pa., on the Young People's Fellowship; Miss Anne Vernon, social service secretary of Rhode Island, on social service; Miss Victoria Lyles of York, Pa., on principles of teaching; Mrs. T. B. Smythe is to give a course on work with girls, and Mrs. E. L. Herndon is to give a course for the Auxiliary. The Rev. Charles J. Harriman is to be the dean of the young people's counselors and the Rev. A. M. Holloway of Minersville, Pa., is to be the leader of recreation.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

I have a little problem for the class this morning. The other evening I went into a huddle with four men with whom I went to college. We first of all cleared away the inhibitions we had built up since college days, after which we got down to serious discussion. Religion and the Church came in for more than its share. Now it just happens that all four of these men had close connections at one time with the Church, in addition to all being graduates of a Church college. Three of them are sons of prominent clergymen, the other is the son of a leading layman, with an uncle who is a parson and a grandfather who was a bishop. So by tradition as well as training they are ours. Yet there is not one of them who is a member of any parish; none of them go near a church unless they happen to be visiting the old homestead when they go in order not to hurt father, mother, Uncle Jack or Aunt Minnie. To all of them the Church is an outworn, ineffective institution. They couldn't see that the Church has any important objective, while the services that the Church performs today, at tremendous cost to the public, are done more effectively and certainly more economically by other organizations such as clubs, settlements, charity organizations, and schools.

It was possible for me to point my finger at each one of them in turn and accuse him of neglecting his duty as a citizen and as a child of God. But I am inclined to believe they would have united in giving me the raspberry had I done so. For all of them are eminent citizens, serving the community well. One is a leading banker, another is a lawyer of more than average ability, the third is a college professor and the fourth is a surgeon who stands high in New York where it is no easy task to get your head above your fellows. They take their jobs and their responsibilities seriously. But they simply are not sold any longer on the Church. Now the question for the class is this: if we cannot hold these fellows in line, all brought up under a strong Church-family tradition, what is the matter with us? I think it might be worth discussing for an hour or so in our seminary classes. And in discussing it I am sure it will prove more profitable if we begin by discussing what is wrong with us, rather than following the customary procedure of denouncing our critics as being unworthy of serious consideration. Of course it is possible to say that I might have handled this charming but difficult group more effectively had I been less eager to cast off my clerical inhibitions. But I really think that is too easy an answer. I am at my best as well as my worst when I am in a low cut vest and a red necktie.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

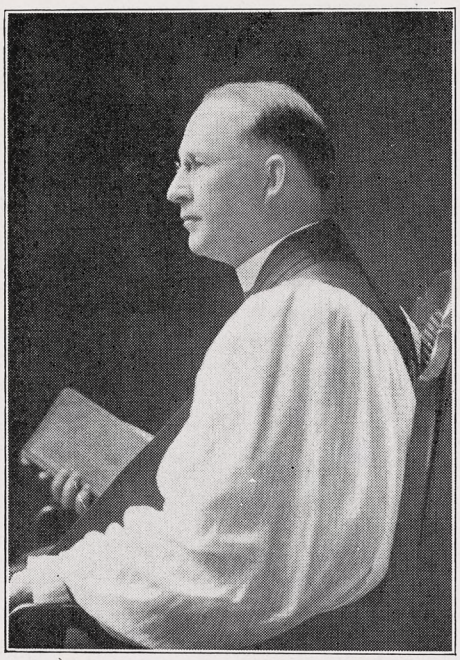
Well let's get at the news. A conference for college women to consider Christian service was held at Ruge Hall, student center at Florida State College, on April 8-10. There were representatives present from a half dozen southern colleges. Bishop Juhan was the chaplain, and the speakers were the Rev. Rankin Barnes, social service secretary of the National Council; Deaconess Maria Williams, who works in the mountains of Virginia; Mrs. Edmund Lee, former missionary in China who now helps her husband run a fine Church school at Chatham, Virginia; Miss Annie M. Stout, field secretary of religious education in the province, and Miss Hope Baskette, who does student work in the province.

* * *

The Rev. Eugene Pearce, rector of St. Mark's, Toledo, Ohio, died recently after an illness of several months. He was on his way home from the south where he had been since last fall. He was the rector of Zion Church, Rome, N. Y., for a dozen years before going to Toledo.

* * *

Bishop Green of Mississippi has gone in for higher education. The other day he was appointed president of the higher education board of the state by the governor. And just to show what the governor thinks of the bishop he appointed him for a twelve year term. The action was taken in order to remove the half-dozen state colleges from political control.



* * *

The Great Choir of Washington Cathedral is to be formally opened at the Festival service on Ascension Day, May the fifth. Bishop Freeman is to preach in the morning and Bishop Manning of New York in the afternoon.

* * *

Ninety per cent of all divorces are obtained on silly grounds according to the Rev. Harold Holt, the rector of Grace Church, Oak Park, Illinois.

"Religion has witnessed and sanctioned almost every variety of relation of man and woman in marriage," says Fr. Holt. "It has tried and discarded polygamy, polyandry, buying of wives, selling of wives, easy divorce and no divorce. Every conceivable variation from free love to companionate marriage has been approved at one time or another.

BISHOP GREEN
Honored by the Governor

Out of all this has been evolved a certain concept which we call Christian.

"Both man and woman are independent individuals, free in the sight of God and morally responsible. No buying, no selling, no idea of chattels or tyranny. Two children of God standing before Him, they promise an unswerving loyalty both of body and mind within this new union into which they enter. No true relation can exist without this faith and concentration on one object of love. Wandering affections are the sign of wavering characters. We rightly suspect the person who is always changing his mind. Adultery is not of the body first, but of the mind. Few divorces are secured unless the mind has lusted after another. Some person promises more sexual satisfaction, more romance or financial support or other dominant interest. Discontent and lack of loyalty follow. Love dies. Ninety per cent of all divorces are secured on silly grounds."

* * *

A diocesan acolytes service was held at the Cathedral in Albany on April 9th. There were about three hundred boys and young men there, attended of course by their rectors. The sermon was preached by the Rev. James L. Whitcomb, rector of Hoosac School. Bishop Oldham gave a short address of welcome. There was a luncheon at which the Rev. A. Vincent Bennett of Fitchburg, Mass., gave the address.

* * *

The largest annual convention ever held by the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese of North Carolina met April 5-7 at Henderson. The occasion was the golden jubilee of the Auxiliary so about four hundred women turned up. Bishop Penick preached, Bishop Cheshire celebrated, and there was an offering of $1500 for St. Augustine's College, Raleigh. On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings there were missionary addresses by Bishop Creighton, the Rev. Francis Cox and Miss Grace Lindley.

* * *

Bishop Perry sailed from England on the 13th and arrived in New York on Tuesday of this week. He left the following day for Providence to assume diocesan duties.

* * *

Bishop Bartlett of North Dakota has been stepping around since his consecration. He has already visited every parish and mission in his district. On April 5th he had all the clergy of the district together for a discussion of plans and policies. Now they are planning for a summer school out there, to be held at Pelican Lake, Minnesota, with Bishop Bartlett heading up the faculty.

* * *

The associates of the Girls' Friendly Society met in New York on the 17th, 18th and 19th. There was a discussion of vocational guidance, led by Miss Helen H. Ringe, recreation was presented by Miss Ethel Bowers and Miss Helen Becht and Dr. Adele Streeseman, authorities on unemployment and medicine also presented their ideas.

* * *

The diocese of New Hampshire is to receive $20,000 by the will of the late Mrs. Georgia B. Carpenter, and Grace Church, Manchester, receives $15,000. The diocese, Holderness School and St. Mary's School are the residuary legatees.

* * *

Leaders of the Auxiliary in the mid-west met at Brent House from April 12 to 15th. Miss Elizabeth Matthews of Glendale, Ohio, was the chairman and Miss Lindley, executive secretary, was there also. Speeches were made by Dean Frederick Grant of the Western, the Rev. Daniel A. McGregor, professor at the Western, and Professor Kingsbury of the University of Chicago.

* * *

The Diocese of Central New York is carrying on a unique campaign, under the direction of Bishop Fiske, in order to pay its full share of the deficit now facing the National Council. While Bishop Fiske has been insisting upon a thorough study of the headquarters work, with suggested economies in departmental and administration service, with possibly a reorganization of the entire work, he has also insisted that this ought not to influence Churchmen in the primary responsibility of raising funds to prevent the abandonment of missionary work in large fields. The plan in Central New York, as adopted after consultation with some of the diocesan leaders, is to send some 10,000 letters to communicants throughout the diocese, each letter signed by the Bishop himself, asking individual pledges towards meeting the deficit. An earnest effort is also in progress to help parishes which have fallen behind in their pledge payment towards raising the amounts promised.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

The Rev. John Rathbone Oliver, in the Hale lectures at the Western Seminary, told the young men training for the ministry all about the various types of mental maladjustments. He talked about schizophrenia, paranoia, paresis, alcholism, mental deficiency, phobias, inhibitions and obsessions. One always feels a little bit crazy after listening to Dr. Oliver lecture for a while, but there is value I presume even in that. In any case such information should be of the greatest help to men in parish work...and I am not taking a crack at the congregation in saying that either. Well, maybe I am but we'll let it stand.

* * *

If you are of the opinion that all is chaos in China you should have dropped in at the conference held at Wuchang recently. There were seventy-eight delegates there, representing twenty-one schools that are maintained by nine mission boards in four Central China provinces. There were services, with Bishop Roots taking the leading part; addresses, followed by lively discussions, on all sorts of subjects, such as religious education, college admission standards, and every subject taught in these schools. The purpose of the conference was to promote closer relations between the schools and to raise the standards.

* * *

Bishop Stewart of Chicago is sending a letter to every communicant in his diocese asking that he give to the fund of $34,000 being sought to make up the national and diocesan deficit. So far the diocese has raised $10,000.

* * *

There is a quarantine in La-Grange, Illinois, so that the missionary mass meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society of the diocese of Chicago, scheduled for a week ago, was postponed to April 24th.

* * *

Bishop Moulton of Utah was the speaker at a missionary meeting at St. Paul's, Brooklyn, last Tuesday, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary.

* * *

St. George's Day is being celebrated today at St. George's Church, New York City. A social affair is being held in the evening.

* * *

Mr. H. C. Beers, the Churchman who is the proprietor of the Art Craft Press, has a notice on page 12 of this number to which I call your attention. Having seen samples of his work I do this thinking that I am doing you a favor as well as him.

* * *

The conference of the diocese of Central New York is to be held at Skaneateles, July 6th to 11th.

Some of the leaders will be: Dr. Richard Trapnell of the Church Missions House; The Venerable A. A. Jaynes, Archdeacon of C. N. Y.; The Rev. James E. Clark, Christ Church, Oswego, N. Y.; Mr. Tom Greenwood, formerly of Church Army, now studying for the ministry doing missionary work at West Manchester, New Hampshire; Miss Mildred Fish, Trinity Church, Syracuse, N. Y.; Miss Gertrude Harris, Zion Church, Rome, N. Y.

* * *

News of a garden project in which unemployed men participated comes from Madison, Wisconsin. Last year, twenty acres of land were divided into gardens for 78 families. The Madison Garden Club was assisted by the public welfare association, a community organization, in raising money for seeds and paying for plowing. One family raised all the vegetables it needed during the summer, produced 28 bushels of potatoes, and canned 268 quarts of vegetables. It is suggested by the Madison group that local committees on organized self-help be set up on a nation-wide scale to arrange for the gardens, secure the necessary tools, and give direction to the enterprise.

* * *

Bishop Dallas of New Hampshire ordained William T. Reeves Jr. and Moorhouse L. Johnson deacons on Easter Monday in the chapel of St. Paul's School, Concord. Mr. Reeves was presented by the Rev. Frank Gavin of the General Seminary, who also preached. The rector of St. Paul's, Dr. Drury, acting for the Rev. Spence Burton, head of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, presented Mr. Johnson.

* * *

Men have been supplied with work and a church has been greatly improved as a result of a little plan worked out at Emmanuel Church, Pittsburgh. The emergency committee of the city raised cash for wages. The rector of the parish, the Rev. A. W. S. Gardner, secured the necessary materials. Then the two were brought together—wages were paid out of the emergency fund, forty men have been kept at work and a fine auditorium, which would have cost at least $15,000 has been constructed under the church. Money for wages ran out before the job was completed, but a flock of the men volunteered to finish the job providing they didn't receive jobs meanwhile. All they got for their labors was a nice dinner cooked and served by the women of the parish. Sounds a bit as though the church was taking advantage of a rotten situation to get an auditorium built for nothing, but as a matter of fact Emmanuel is a very poor parish and never could have had its auditorium otherwise. The church is being constantly appealed to for aid, and supplies it to the best of her ability. Dr. Gardner as a matter of fact is the chairman of the relief committee of the north side and the parish is known now, not as the "Church of Nine Millionaires" as it was 25 years ago when it was in the heart

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

KNIGHTS OF STS. JOHN
Wins young men to the Church. Provides worthwhile things to do. Endorsed by leading Bishops and Clergy. Manual of initiations $1. Rev. F. M. Wetherill, 3012 W. Coulter St., Phila., Pa.

"A thing of beauty is a joy for ever"
A STAINED Glass Window is one of the most beautiful forms for a memorial to be placed in a Church. The Glass with its jewel-like colouring is most decorative, and the whole appearance of the Building in which the Window is placed is enriched and beautified.
The following interesting Booklets illustrated in colours:
a. "The Glory of Stained Glass"
b. "Mural Tablets"
c. "Church Furniture"
d. "Churchyard Memorials"
Mailed Free on request
MAILE & SON, LTD.
Church Art Craftsmen and Stained Glass Artists
367 Euston Road, London, N.W.1., Eng.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —a New Religious Novel

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, a Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel which has the modern "higher criticism" as its background, and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a very dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In The Living Church, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes: "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries." Bishop Francis J. McConnell says: "The author's expert knowledge of the Old Testament is manifest on every page. I found the movement easy and the narrative vivid and refreshing."

The author, whose earlier volume "Sociological Study of the Bible" is a standard work, says: "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature produced in hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from The Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00. —Advt.

The Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

ART-CRAFT PERSONAL STATIONERY
Of heavy quality White Bond, "Secretary" size, 6¼x10¼ in., with envelopes to match. 150 Sheets and 100 Envelopes, postpaid, $1.15. Both neatly printed with name and address. A favorite both with clergy and laity. Several other equally good values. 6-page folder and samples sent gladly on request.
Art-Craft Press, Box 131A, Lanesboro, Mass.

of the fashionable district, but as the Church of God's poor.

* * *

A professor from the University of Chicago recently travelled about to 152 colleges giving intelligence tests. She now reports that Hobart and William Smith Colleges, both Church institutions as you know, rank in the first twenty. The median score for the 152 was 147 points. The median score for Hobart and William Smith was 177.

* * *

Page House for women, a new development in the work of the Detroit City Mission, has been opened, with the Rev. R. E. Randall in charge. St. John's parish turned over a house that they owned. It has all been fixed up, the work having been done largely by men from Mariners' Ill, a place for homeless men, and is now spick and span for homeless women and girls.

* * *

Changes in the diocese of Bethlehem; Rev. Kenneth E. Heim, special student last year at the General, has begun his work as associate minister at the Pro-Cathedral, Bethlehem; Rev. John H. Dickinson, rector at Hazelton, Pa., becomes the rector of Trinity, West Pittston on May first; Rev. A. E. Koch, rector of Trinity, West Pittston, goes to Hazelton. Just an exchange, that's all.

* * *

The Rev. Sheafe Walker has become priest-in-charge of All Saints, Littleton, New Hampshire.

* * *

The Council of the diocese of Louisiana has passed a resolution approving the effort of the National Council to raise $400,000 to make up the deficit. They also resolved that "it is the sense of this Council that if further reductions are required, these reductions should be made in such ways as will not require further reductions or curtailments in our domestic and foreign missionary work."

* * *

Construction has been started on the permanent camp for the diocese of Georgia, on St. Simons Island. The first building will be an administration building. It is hoped that another building will follow soon. In the meanwhile a house has been rented so that the camp for young people will get under way on the Fourth of July.

* * *

Three regional conferences have been held in Western New York to discuss plans for raising funds for the deficit of the National Council. They were held at Buffalo, Batavia and Jamestown. Addresses were made by Mr. A. F. Freeman, finan-

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

DEVOTIONAL
The Confraternity of the Mystical Life (see page 218 of the Living Church Annual for 1932) offers monthly studies in Personal Religion, sent by post, without obligation other than voluntary donations. The work of the C. M. L. is commended by many bishops and priests of the American Church. First study sent on request. Address, Box 144, Wall Street Station, New York City.

SCHULTE'S BOOK STORE
We buy and sell Theological libraries and collections of good books. Correspondence solicited. SCHULTE'S BOOKSTORE, 80-82 Fourth Ave., New York City, New York.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

cial secretary of the diocese and the Rev. Henry deWolf deMauriac, a priest of the diocese. The diocese plans to have offerings taken on Whitsunday.

* * *

Judge A. N. Hand of the United States Circuit Court and Mr. John M. Glenn, former head of the Russell Sage Foundation, have been addressing congregations in New York City in behalf of the effort being made to raise funds for the relief of unemployed Church families. Other prominent laymen will also join this group of Four Minute Men, reminiscent of war days, to bring the message of relief to every congregation in the diocese. Judge Hand, in his address at St. Thomas', apparently tried to frighten money out of the pockets of his listeners. He said: "We can get over our difficulties only when the individual gives all he can to his brother. We must remember what they are trying to do in Russia, something which I do not believe would work here, and we must regard ourselves as trustees of our property and guard our civilization by giving of our utmost."

Mr. Glenn in his address at the Holy Communion presented cold facts which revealed the great need among Church people. "Most of the families," he said, "have children in our Church schools; many of the parents have been faithful workers in our parishes and contributors; most of them have never before had to appeal for help." Bishop Charles K. Gilbert is in charge of the campaign in which it is hoped that $250,000 will be raised. So far there has been raised but $50,000.

* * *

A New York newspaper the other day ran an interesting account of a swanky wedding held in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, in which members of the House of Lords, including Lord Bishops, played a unique part. The Lord Mayor's coach was used, and the account states that the Lord Mayor, aldermen and sheriffs all occupied their own stalls in the great cathedral. But apparently there was not room enough for the story then states that "members of the House of Lords and of the House of Commons were seated upon the main dome." Rather uncomfortable I should think but it might have been all right at that if the weather was good.

* * *

Bishop Freeman of Washington left on April 15th for California where he is to speak at the synod of the province of the Pacific which is meeting at Sacramento. He is also to preach at Leland Stanford University. On his way out he

All Saints' Chapel, St. John's Church, Sharon, Pa., Rev. F. B. Atkinson, Rector

TRANSEPT or CHAPEL?

Where is the Rector of a parish church who has not felt the profound need for a chapel seating a small group of people?...The original layout for St. John's Church, Sharon, provided no space within its limited confines for just such a chapel. However, it did have in the Transept one large bank of pews facing into the church. Without structural changes Rambusch solved this chapel problem by partially screening the Transept, cutting an aisle through the center, and reversing the pews, which remain unfastened to permit their being turned in the opposite direction whenever the maximum seating capacity is desired. A beautiful oak Altar, polychromed, with a lovely Reredos, stands between two richly colored stained glass windows. Rambusch also executed the Celtic Cross and Candlesticks, as well as the decoration of the Chapel. Intimate small detail has been retained thruout in order that the Memorial Chapel might not compete with the Church proper. Have you a difficult problem in the broad field of interior decoration? Rambusch will help you solve it successfully and economically.

RAMBUSCH

Designers, Decorators and Craftsmen

2 West 45th St. ~ New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

stopped at Minneapolis where he confirmed two of his grandchildren last Sunday.

* * *

Western New York is to hold a diocesan meeting this month to present the Lenten offering of the Church Schools. Each district is to have a gathering as well, with social times planned as well as services.

* * *

New memorial organ, given by the former students of St. Mary's School, Faribault, Minnesota, in memory of the former principal, Miss Sarah P. Darlington, was dedicated on April 3rd.

* * *

The new Nevil Memorial Church of St. George in Haverford, Philadelphia, was consecrated by Bishop Taitt on April 4. This beautiful church is a gift to the diocese by the late George Washington Nevil as a memorial to his parents. Bishop Taitt has now announced the appointment of the Rev. Frederick E. Seymour, director of religious education of the diocese, as vicar of this church, and he began his duties on April 10.

* * *

Bishop Davis is returning to the diocese of Western New York next week after being in California for some weeks recovering from his recent illness.

* * *

Much anxiety is felt throughout the diocese of Pittsburgh concerning the serious illness of Mrs. Mann, wife of the bishop. She has been seriously ill for six weeks.

* * *

The men's clubs of the diocese of Pittsburgh held a special service at Trinity Cathedral on April 17th. The preacher was the Rev. Frederick Kempster of St. Mark's.

* * *

Here is a bit from Liberia which may give you some idea of what people over there think of the rest of us.

"Foreign aid is shrivelling up," says The Liberian Churchman to its own readers in Liberia, apropos of reduced appropriations from the United States. "So far from disheartening us, this should offer a fresh challenge to redouble our efforts to do something constructive for ourselves. In return for the former $98,000 appropriation, does anyone know how much we are expected to pay back to our mother Church? We are asked to send only $1,000, a tiny sum indeed.

"Liberia is a rich country. It belongs to none but Negroes. Yet poverty, both real and feigned, shouts from nearly every housetop. The lack of technical skill, the difficulties of the climate, the relatively low prices of African produce, may

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

each have its part in prevailing conditions. Yet, until we shall have grown economically independent, we stand but little chance for any real independence as a people in any other way.

"With propriety we may here echo sentiments expressed by President Barclay in his inaugural address. Beggars and philanthropists must cease. Liberian products and industry must be fostered. Agriculture must progress.

"All honor to the African Christian who possesses sufficient character to wear African cloth and eat African food! He as least has the true philosophy of living within his income, and of trying to build up Liberia for the African people."

* * *

The Rev. W. Russell Bowie, Grace Church, New York, has been elected president of the Churchman's Association, to fill the unexpired term of the Rev. Dudley Stark, now the rector of St. Chrysostom's, Chicago.

* * *

The annual council of the Guild of St. Barnabas is to be held in Philadelphia, May 19 and 20.

* * *

The Rev. Irwin C. Johnson, director of boys' and young men's work in the diocese of Michigan, presided over a conference on Leadership training held in St. Mark's parish house Portland, Oregon. A large number of boys and young men were registered for the various sessions and meetings. Other conferences were held at Eugene and at Corvallis, the two large educational centers of the State, and where active chapters of the Brotherhood are doing a good work among the students.

The conferences were part of a series of such gatherings being held along the Coast, from San Diego to Seattle, and including Pendleton, Oregon, and Spokane, Washington, in the inland. Mr. Walter Macpherson, Western representative of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, arranged for the conferences. Bishops Sumner and Barnwell, the Rev. I. C. Johnson, the Rev. C. H. Collett, of the National Council, and the Hon. J. Hunt Hendrickson, of the Superior Court and a member of Trinity Church, Portland, were the principle speakers at the opening meeting.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK

A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 6.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"MOST VALUABLE AGENCIES"

AT THE meeting of the General Convention in Denver a resolution was adopted stating that "The Church Boarding Preparatory Schools are among the most valuable agencies the Church possesses for executing the teaching mission of the Church and for the development of character." The resolution further states that "because of the failure of our Church people generally to appreciate this fact these schools have received such scant support that almost every year one or more of them either has to be closed or is lost to the Church."

The Convention instructed the department of religious education of the National Council to begin "a sustained campaign of education of our people to the end that proper support may be secured, both in students and in gifts."

The Schools listed here would like to share in this campaign of education by sending you literature which will give you information about what we are able to do for your boy or girl.

Schools for Boys

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK
Headmaster

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG
Rector

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS
Headmaster

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND
President

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB
Rector

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD
Rector

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR
Rector

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
REV. CHARLES L. STREET
Headmaster

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK
President

Schools for Girls

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE
Rector

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS
Principal

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT
Principal

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.
Principal

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.
Principal

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES
Principal

ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR
Principal

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE
MRS. C. A. MCLANE
Principal

ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS
President

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 28, 1932

God Is Not Bankrupt

by

BISHOP INGLEY

SPIRITUAL values remain unimpaired, even though material values have collapsed. Christian people need to be reminded that God is not bankrupt; Christ is still King. When we become disheartened because of the economic conditions which beset us we should remind ourselves that Christians of the Twentieth Century are the heirs and successors of those who in the early days faced peril and persecution without flinching. Let us therefore lift up our hearts to God with Courage, Cheerfulness and Confidence as becometh our Christian heritage. Human need always spells divine opportunity. If ever the ministry had a message for men the time for its utterance is now. God is waiting for our cooperation to prove that spiritual resources are available for every human need.

MESSAGE OF THE WEEK

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS

Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

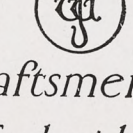
CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

Church Memorial Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. Eighth&Court Sts.
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Write for our Booklet

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.



R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1871

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J. WIPPELL
& COMPANY · LTD

Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 36 APRIL 28, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE FACT THAT the National Council of the Church is not a legislative body apparently needs to be emphasized over and over again. A large part of the criticism that has been made of that body since their February meeting has been based upon the feeling that the Council then defied mandates of General Convention, the only legislative body for the National Church. Yet the current issue of The Spirit of Missions, official mouthpiece of the Council, in announcing the meeting now in session at Garden City, speaks of the Council as being "in a sense the General Convention during all save three weeks of each triennium." If this erroneous idea, under which certain officers are apparently laboring, can be corrected it should do much to restore the sagging morale of the Church. The General Convention is the only legislative body of the National Church. The National Council is the creature of the Convention, obligated to carry out its commands. It is a polity which has the weaknesses of democracy, yet we believe the people of the Church are not yet prepared to scrap it for a bureaucracy even though it might make for greater efficiency.

A SERVICE of more than passing interest is to be held on Friday of this week at historic St. Paul's Chapel, Trinity Church, New York. St. Paul's is New York's oldest public building and it was here that the religious service was held in connection with the inauguration of George Washington on April 30, 1789, conducted by the Rev. Samuel Provoost, rector of the parish and first bishop of New York. At the service this week, in commemoration of that event, there is to be an introductory address by the Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, present rector of Trinity, to be followed by addresses by Bishop Manning and Judge Samuel Seabury.

RECENTLY ONE OR TWO rather elaborate funerals for suicides have been held in churches of our communion. These services have commanded wide attention, and have helped develop the fact that there are many among us who are disposed to regard suicide as either not a sin or else as the act of one of unsound mind, who cannot be held responsible for his act. We are being urged more and more, in the supposed interests of charity, to give Christian burial with the full rites of the Church to those who have taken their own lives. Before we surrender officially to this pressure, it would be well to remember that the plague of suicide belongs to periods of decadence in civilization. Suicide was common enough in the days of the Church's infancy. The determined stand taken by the Christian Church at that time did much to stamp out this sin. No man has the right to take his own life; no Christian man will dare to take it. To destroy life is to assume that one has dominion over it, that it belongs to one absolutely. It is to put one's self in the place of God to assume that one knows better than God what is right; it is to throw into the face of God the gift he has given us. Suicides increase whenever the influence of Christianity is weak. We are living in an age akin to the age of Rome's decline and fall. Paganism is dominant, now as then. Christianity is weak now as then, but today Christians lack courage. Our Church is afflicted with an inferiority complex. She is afraid to speak the truth for fear of hurting someone's feelings, or of being called narrow minded. It is surely time for the Church to take some leadership in this matter even if her teaching be unpopular. The Church can, if she will, help to guide and direct public opinion as to the responsibility to God for life and as to the sin of suicide and the penalties which inevitably follow. No wonder the Church has lost much of her influence. She deserves to whenever she merely reflects the popular opinions and moral standards of the day.

EVERY SMALL COMMUNITY, that is to say every community under a population of ten thousand, should have at least every other year a religious census. Even if the Roman Catholic Church will not officially join in the movement, the Protestant ministers can easily send out enough men and women in teams to find out, by a signature on a card, the religious affiliation of every family and every household. It is not a scheme for persuasion or conversion. It is a means of information. And surprising results are obtained. Families will live in a village for years, and forget to affiliate with any church, even that of the denomination in which they were brought up. They seem to feel that if they did so they would be showing disloyalty to their original pastor. A tactful call, as the result of the census, will alter all that. People will allow their names to remain indefinitely on the roll of one local church while they cheerfully attend another. They must be induced to signify what congregation they really desire to belong to. Others will call themselves Atheists or Freethinkers, when, at the bottom of their hearts, and given a sympathetic listener to expand to, they are really more conservative than Adam and more churchly than St. Paul. The cards are revealing, and very helpful. Also the mere signing of a card to say that the Smith family are all members of Christ Church sometimes reminds the Smith family that Christ Church is still standing at the corner of South and West Streets, and that the door is usually open.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

RUNNING PAST THE SIGNALS

By

GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

WHEN a locomotive engineer runs past the signals without heeding them, he jeopardizes the lives of passengers. He suffers severe penalties, perhaps dismissal. When a responsible group of leaders ignore every signal of caution that appears in the path of their enterprise, they are become untrustworthy stewards of their responsibilities.

On the high road of the Church's program, are countless red signals, signifying danger. One does not need to be the seventh son of a seventh son, or to gaze into the mysteries of a crystal ball, or to consult omens, to see that the Church is entering an area of great peril.

Let us enumerate them. (1) The unprecedented business depression. (2) The tendency in the Church to create liabilities, without corresponding assets. (3) The expansion of our work beyond our sure resources. (4) The increase of "over-head" expenses. (5) The diminishing of the giving capacity of our parishes. (6) The competition of relief agencies for the money of our people. (7) The ambition of dioceses which cannot but affect national work. (8) The quota system which gives the National work an unstable income. (9) The actual reports of 1931 and 1932. (10) The growing criticism of our system. (11) The passing of the generation of people to whom "missions" was the magic word to open purses. (12) The dependence for income upon high-pressure methods which in time lose their potency.

These are the danger signals. The most unsatisfactory time to weigh the consequences of running past the signals is when viewing the wreckage. As I write these words there is before me the statement of Mr. Lewis B. Franklin, treasurer of the National Council, that the payments from dioceses to April 1, 1932, are $137,000 short of the sum the dioceses expected to pay in the first three months of the year. (Danger signal, No. 9.)

It is hazardous to make a prediction on insufficient facts, but if the precedent of 1931 is of any value, this seems to indicate that the dioceses will fail in 1932 to meet their expectations by about $500,000 or twice the deficit of 1931. This possibility is further enhanced by the fact that a vigorous campaign for $400,000. by Whitsunday will inevitably relax the effort of dioceses and parishes. Even if $400,000. is raised by Whitsunday, it is not credited on the quotas of dioceses, and does not affect the veiled menace of this shortage on April first. The people will be bewildered if called upon to save the Church twice within a few months. What 1933 will bring forth is beyond our powers to imagine.

The Church must take some heroic steps. (1) It must give the National Council a stable and guaranteed income. (2) It must determine what fields it intends to occupy within the limits of that income, and must resist every pressure to create further liabilities for work, unless it has increased assured assets. (3) It must reduce overhead expenses to a minimum. (4) It must raise endowments for missionary work. (5) It must invest legacies and so enlarge the work with income. (6) It must create a reserve against unforeseen contingencies. (7) It must re-educate the people by developing the contact between parishes and specific missions.

Encouraged by well-informed Churchmen, I have each year, for seven or eight years, urged that there be a National Christmas offering for missions, of one dollar a communicant. This meant that each parish would endeavor to divert from the flood of Christmas spending, a total sum equivalent in dollars to its numerical strength. This money was to be sent directly to the National Council to be used as a reserve to meet deficits and to provide for emergencies. This plan was very coldly received by the National Council. Their letters about it were polite and cordial, but the Council was not interested. Yet this is exactly what is proposed for Whitsunday, 1932.

I now propose, not a Christmas offering, but a Whitsunday offering each year for missions, to be sent directly to the National Council to be set up as a Reserve. Only I suggest a small objective. If each communicant gave twenty-five cents on Whitsunday for five years, and the money was put out at interest, the Church would have a reserve of more than $1,500,000 for deficits and emergencies. Many people have a desire to give to general missions who fail to do so because they must filter their gifts through a quota. If they give directly to missionaries they spur mission stations to activities which have no promise of continuous support. It is far better to provide a supervised outlet for missionary enthusiasm. By all means let us have the Whitsunday offering for a Reserve. But let us heed the danger signals.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

XI. The XV and XVI Centuries

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THE fifteenth century marked the beginning of a new era in the history of Christendom. The invention of gun powder made it possible to pierce the armor and to demolish the castles in which feudal barons had exercised their tyranny with impunity. There was small consideration for the lot of the peasant in those days when the wealth of Europe was in the hands of those specially privileged in Church and State—and when beggars increased in formidable numbers. Great accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few furthered poverty as it always does.

The age was characterized by a flair for learning which was tremendously accentuated by the invention of printing and the founding of many schools and colleges.

The use of the compass and the urge for discovery resulted in opening up the Americas to European exploitation and in increasing the vision of what had been a very provincial existence.

The decay of morality accompanied by an intense interest in religion was another feature of this epoch. Of the clergy it has been said that "one does not know which was greater, their lack of knowledge or their lack of morality."

The capture of Constantinople by the Mahometans (1452) drove a large number of scholarly exiles from that great city who gave an impetus to the new learning which had its inception in the fifteenth century, and was the beginning of modern science. It is significant that Columbus discovered America in 1492 and Copernicus explained the solar system in 1507. The revolt against feudalism, the rise of learning, the expanding of the universe, the beginnings of science, and the upsetting of established authority in religion were events that marched along together, resulting in what is known as the Reformation, although it might more accurately have been described as the Revolution.

In a society of constant fermentation, the Holy Roman Church appeared to be the one stable edifice founded upon a rock and seemingly indestructible. The Church was hated for its iniquities and yet feared for its power. People believed in purgatory and the power of the Keys. They hated rather than loved the hierarchy. It was Luther who struck the blow which shattered the unity of western Christendom and precipitated the unhappy divisions from which we now are suffering.

There are however certain questions which we may well propound. 1st, was the revolt justifiable? 2nd, was the remedy satisfactory? 3rd, what is the ultimate solution of the problem?

Anyone who reads the story of the iniquities of the papal hierarchy in the fifteenth century must acknowledge that an explosion was not only necessary but imperative. The Church could not go on teaching religion and encouraging criminal practices. When Tetzel, an accredited agent of the Pope could proclaim that "the very instant the piece of money chinks at the bottom of the strong box, the soul is freed from purgatory" the Church had accepted the price promised by Satan as that which must be paid to possess the Kingdoms of this world. It was this greed for temporal power which had perverted the whole moral sense of the Church. Something had to be done and Luther had the courage to do it.

But after you have diagnosed the disease, you must suggest the remedy. If the Papacy is no longer the accredited authority, then what is to take its place? There were three answers given to this question. Luther, Calvin and Zwingle alike substituted the Bible for the Pope as the final and supreme authority. They substituted a book for a man. But who was to interpret the Bible? Luther and Calvin and Zwingle. But, unfortunately they could not agree in their interpretations and the Bible, being merely a book, could not protest against misinterpretation. Instead of the Bible becoming the accepted authority, several hundred different prophets have proclaimed that their interpretation of the Bible is the infallible director of religion. So instead of an unsatisfactory uniformity under Rome, the world received a bewildering diversity under the Reformers. No two of them could agree. In order to attain purity the Reformers sacrificed unity and so lost the purity that they desired.

In England the Reformation pursued a different course. There the opposition to the Papacy was chiefly political and economic. They recognized the moral abuses but they broke with the Papacy over its temporal rather than its religious claims. Consequently the changes were not so drastic. Having rejected the papal claims to both religious and secular supremacy, they proceeded to retain all the essential elements of the faith and worship. The successive changes under Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary and Elizabeth were caused by the struggle between crown and tiara over the wool and the mutton. Neither Pope nor King were animated by lofty motives in the struggle. The result however was a return to the status of the Church in the first three centuries. Because this reformation in England did not originate in theological passion, its results were not determined by great religious prejudices. It left England with the historic Church freed from the domination of the Papal claims.

There was the Counter Reformation of the Roman Church itself. Ranke describes what happened in the latter half of the sixteenth century in these words "The Church of Rome having lost a large part of Europe, not only ceased to lose, but actually regained nearly half of what she had lost." The founding of the Jesuit order, (1540) the calling of the Council of Trent (1545) together with such agencies as the Spanish Inquisition and the Massacre of St. Bartholomew (1572) resulted in a Roman Church which was partially reformed and yet not wholly penitent.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The early half of the sixteenth century was not a happy time in which one could make religious decisions. There was no personal liberty permitted in any European country. Whether in Germany, England, France or the Latin countries, your personal safety depended upon your choice of a religion. In Germany, the Emperor Charles forbade under severe penalties (1529) any further propagation of the Reformed doctrines. The rulers of certain German principalities entered a solemn protest against the imperial mandate, and from this fact the term Protestant became attached to all non-Roman groups. It was a battle between secular forces and the ecclesiastical hierarchy as to whether papal supremacy was or was not the will of God. Things decided by force and passion have no ultimate value. Such decisions have to stand the test of time. And it is quite possible that this perplexing triangle between private judgment, historic Catholicity and Roman supremacy will be solved in these United States, where each position must stand on its own merits without secular intervention and in which the survival of the fit will determine the issue.

What is the ultimate solution of the problem? It is futile to prophesy at this time. The Anglican Church has grown until it covers the earth and now that it is in fraternal relations with the great Eastern Church it has a universality quite equal to that claimed by our Roman brethren. It has ceased to be an English Church under the crown, and has become a great international communion.

It remains for us to divest ourselves from the passions of the Reformation and from the prejudices of our ancestors and to determine for ourselves the nature of the religious authority which we accept; whether there is no authority which we are called upon to accept other than our right to self interpretation and self determination, based upon our own study of the Bible; whether the Holy Roman Father has been and is still the supreme vicar of Christ, with infallible truth in his official decisions; whether the Holy Catholic Church still exists without such papal domination on the one hand or without the disintegration of private interpretation on the other.

The Federation of Protestant Churches is an effort in the right direction but so far as the Anglican and Roman positions are concerned it fails to solve the fundamental question of authority. The Federation of Churches is practical congregationalism which is consistent individualism. If one cannot accept the Congregational position, then the Federation of Churches is merely a larger congregationalism. It must needs be that divisions came—seemingly it could not be avoided. It is therefore the moral obligation of each Christian to decide what is the will of the Master as to the obedience which we should render to Him, in the institution of which we believe that He would approve.

(To be continued)

Early French Glass

By

ELEANOR H. WILSON

THE splendor of stained glass, unsurpassed in art, is not its own, since it depends on light; but in return for the life so given, light is clothed with the radiance of sapphires, rubies, amethysts and emeralds. In France there exists barely a dozen specimens of 12th century glass. The most famous are four windows that the Abbe Sugar placed in the abbey church of St. Denis about 1140. Besides these there are some at Chartres, Bourges, Le Mans, Angers, Rheims and Poitiers. The Crucifixion in Bourges illustrates the fact that the old glazier realized that blue was his most important color, that it was, in fact, his light. Blue, of which there are more varieties in glass than any other color, adds richness and meaning to all other colors and unifies them.

In the clerestory at Rheims where almost all the kings of France were crowned is a procession of the first thirty-six kings of France, each window containing in its lower half the archbishop that consecrated the king above him. All these figures are seated because convention demanded this if the personage represented was dead. Those near the transepts have a deep blue background while those to the west end have behind them a soft rich red.

The Crucifixion at the east end of the Cathedral at Poitiers, the chef d'oeuvre of its time, so ingeniously combines harmony of color that many a visitor has gone away without realizing that the cross is ruby red and the Saviour's hair is blue. The old designers did not hesitate to set the laws of realism aside and make pink camels and green horses. They considered the emotional and visual effect of color rather than the legibility of their picture.

One may see in the Metropolitan Museum a window from Le Mans, the figure of a saint made about 1200. The color is somberly rich, combining in the garments a brownish green with a deep red. The glorious Ascension window at Le Mans, of about this same period, is one of the finest in existence.

"As the pilgrim enters Chartres Cathedral he is penetrating the Holy of Holies of stained glass." The 174 windows represent four centuries of this greatest of decorative arts. In the west front the resplendent rose window showing the Last Judgment with its three lancets that drop like pendants beneath, is of the 12th century. The windows of this century contain slightly larger pieces than those of the 13th, showing that the later artists deliberately used smaller fragments in order to produce a sparkle and sheen that has never been achieved before nor since.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

At Chartres, more than anywhere in France, "the Middle Ages seem to have bequeathed to us the great heartbeat of their middle class." Here are depicted in forty different windows, scenes of the work and life of the guilds that gave them, so proud were they of the crafts which they plied,—goldsmiths, cobblers, vintners, tanners. The Tree of Jesse window is a pictorial geneological tree, a subject whose popularity endured during the entire life of mediaeval stained glass. This window at Chartres is considered by Viollet Le Duc the most complete and perfect example of this art.

It was at Chartres that the king, St. Louis, was baptized and it was thought that the wonderful harmony of these windows came to the babe as a lullaby, the echo growing into the great love for stained glass he later developed, the ultimate expression of which is found in the exquisite Sainte Chapelle in Paris. The beautiful Rose of France window in Chartres was given by St. Louis. It tells the story of the glorification of the Virgin, the window repeating what is shown by the carvings in the porch outside.

Mere words are inadequate to express the glory of Chartres: one must see it to understand, but the most sympathetic interpretation of its spirit is to be found in Henry Adams' "Mont Saint Michel and Chartres." In his preface, Ralph Adams Cram writes: "Seven centuries dissolve and vanish away, and the 13th century lives less for us than we live in it and are a part of its gaiety and light-heartedness, its youthful ardour and abounding action, its childlike simplicity and frankness, its normal and healthy and all embracing devotion."

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

Flowers

SPRING is here, gardens call for attention, and many people are busy planting flowers. We are still near enough to Easter to remember the profusion of them which filled our Churches on that great day.

It is interesting to know that at the time of our Lord's ministry the Jews had little interest in flowers, though Palestine at that time bloomed in the spring with many varieties of very beautiful ones just as it still does today. The Holy Land was surrounded by desert country and that which appealed most to the Jews was the contrast of fertility in the way of food resources in their own land. The Psalmist tells us "the valleys also are covered over with corn; they shout for joy, they also sing," "all the trees of the fields shall clap their hands", sings Isaiah. But flowers were scarcely even differentiated by separate names. A Hebrew word translated "lily" in the English Bible applies to a number of different kinds of flowers with which the Jewish people were familiar. When our Lord said—"consider the lilies of the field" and used them in contrast to the magnificence of the great King Solomon, he must have startled His hearers. Nearly every other saying of Christ was commented upon in the writings of the early Christian teachers, but this particular one was among the last.

Another reason undoubtedly why the early Christians took their time about using flowers in the development of Christian symbolism was because of the pagan custom, common among the Romans, of strewing flowers on the graves of their dead. As paganism gradually declined, the old objections naturally lost force and the lavish wealth of beauty in the blossoming flowers could not help but draw forth expressions of gratitude to the God of all Nature. So we find a fairly early writer saying that in spring-time when the Lord overcame hell, vegetation springs more quickly and the altars are covered with wreaths. Gregory of Tours in the sixth century describes the basilica of Severinus all decorated with lilies; he also says that at Menda, in Spain, three trees were planted before the altar, blossoms from which were carried to the sick. At some places, on Whitsunday, masses of flowers were showered down from an elevated place upon the floors of the Churches as a symbol of the out-pouring of the Holy Spirit.

The word Paradise literally means garden and has been used by Christian people from early times to indicate the abode of departed souls. It was quite natural, therefore, that flowers should be placed on graves and carved on monuments in cemeteries—not merely because of their beauty but because they are such appropriate symbols of the Resurrection. St. Paul, being a Jew, took his symbolism of immortality from the grain of wheat in that splendid fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians but the same thing applies to flowers and has become an accepted tradition in the Church. Therefore when they are placed on the altar in your parish Church every Sunday, they are not merely for purposes of decoration. They complete the story of the Cross. Christ died for us but He also rose for us. The Cross reminds us of the former, the flowers of the latter. Cross and flowers both belong on a Christian altar.

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. Auguste Demant

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

WORK AMONG THE ISOLATED CARRIED ON IN COLORADO

By Mrs. E. T. Boyd

Great mountain ranges, the backbone of the continent, cross Colorado from north to south. At the foot of the mountains lies the irrigated farm region, and farther toward the east, the dry western plains, where ranching and dry farming are carried on. To the west between the high ranges are plateaus, and high mountain valleys, where are the fruit orchards. Deep canons have been formed by the swift mountain streams. Along these canons run the highways and railroads. Over the passes go the historic pioneer roads.

On these farms and ranches, in the mining camps, up in the gulches, on plateaus live our people. Fine, spirited, courageous, carrying on through hardships that would break a less hardy breed, they turn to their Church and crave for their children the religious training that town children have.

The committee to reach the isolated of the diocese aims to get in touch with our people who are too far away from town to attend service except on rare occasions; to contact those who are interested in our Church, though not confirmed; to help strengthen rural centers that we hope may eventually become responsible for a great part of the work. Several of these centers are now doing splendid service. The work is carried on by a committee of five people: the Rev. H. C. Benjamin, Pueblo, the Rev. E. J. Pipes, Golden, Mrs. Freeman C. Rogers, Pueblo, Miss Regina Bouchelle and Mrs. E. T. Boyd, Denver, with the invaluable help of Bishop Ingley, Bishop Johnson and Mrs. J. E. Kinney, president of the diocesan branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The financing of this project is done entirely by the Woman's Auxiliary of this diocese through pledges made each year at the annual meeting.

How did we begin? Bishop Johnson, aided by Auxiliary funds, brought two Church Army men to our diocese for two consecutive summers. They and their "flivers" spent these months in four remote counties of the state, holding services in school houses, halls, ranch homes, open air, anywhere and everywhere. They brought back names of people. Our rural clergy sent us names; county agents and nurses, school teachers, aided in looking out for folks who wanted this contact with the Church.

Each one of our clergy was sent a map of the state, (we used for this purpose just advertising highway maps), and was asked to indicate on his map the area to which he would minister. From these maps was made a blue print of the diocese showing all these areas, together with the names of the parishes or missions responsible for them. A copy of the blue print map was sent to each of the clergy, together with a list of names of the isolated people living in the area he had accepted. The clergy were requested to contact these people. When people move into town their names are sent to the proper clergyman with the request that he immediately get in touch with the family. We want to know when our young folks come into town in order to attend school, or to take business positions, or if they are ill in a town hospital, so that they may be looked after.

At present on our mailing list are nearly five hundred families to whom go: an illustrated sermonette, the Colorado Churchman, prayer cards, special letters and greeting cards at Christmas and at Easter, lending library lists, and when requested, Prayer Books, Hymnals, Bibles, correspondence courses on preparation for baptism and confirmation. This year, through the kindness of Bishop Ingley, each family has a copy of the "Churchman's Calendar of Daily Bible Readings."

Our children are banded together in a correspondence Sunday School, two hundred and eighty-seven of them. They have their quarterly lessons as do any Church School children. The birthday of each is remembered by a special card sent by their devoted teacher, Mrs. Rogers.

The Daughters of the King in Denver attend to the directing of the envelopes and the mailing of the material to our adult list,—no light task. They also have sent out copies of the Gospels of St. John and St. Luke to each family, besides remembering with a special gift at Christmas each child on our Honor List. Eleven of our clergy are giving devoted service to this department, over and above their regular duties.

This year Utica, N. Y., is celebrating the 100th anniversary of its incorporation as a city. In connection with the celebration one of the local papers prepared a Centennial Edition and in it a long account of the story of the Church in Utica was published, covering each of the nine Episcopal Churches with a total membership of nearly 6,000. Note was taken of the fact that four of the local clergy became bishops: Chase, who founded old Trinity over 100 years ago; Neely, rector of Calvary Church; Olmsted, rector of Grace Church; and the present Suffragan Bishop E. H. Coley, formerly rector of Calvary Church.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

The House of Bishops is now in session at Garden City, Long Island. The purpose of the meeting, as stated in the resolution calling them together, is to consider "a grave economic situation not only in the light of immediate emergency, but with a view to the reestablishment of the whole work of the Church upon foundations of greater security". The National Council is holding its second meeting of the year at the same time and at the same place, thus allowing for a number of joint sessions. On Monday there were meetings of the various departments of the National Council. On Tuesday the Council met while the Bishops had a quiet day, led by Bishop Booth of Vermont. Late in the afternoon on Tuesday there was held a joint session, with further meetings on Wednesday and Thursday. Because of the deficit of $400,000 this meeting of the Bishops and the Council is especially important, and we hope to report it adequately in our issue for next week.

* * *

I presume we are all aware of the tendency in some of the other churches toward more liturgical forms of worship. It now finds expression in the report of a committee of the Methodist Church which has been at work for four years. They urge people to kneel in prayer on entering their churches, the Venite and Te Deum have been introduced in place of anthems and set prayers have been introduced, for which the worshippers are asked to kneel instead of merely bow their heads.

* * *

The Rev. Alexander Cummins, editor of the Chronicle, got his name in all the New York papers last week because of an attack he made upon the National Council, which appears in the current issue of his publication. He called upon the officers at the Church Missions House to resign, charging them with insubordination and defiance of the authoritative orders of the General Convention; extravagance and refusal to curtail expense of its overhead system; maintenance of useless and expensive departments; incompetence in management; obsolete methods of accounting and "curious" bookkeeping; favoritism; and illegal pressure upon the executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary to repudiate the "pay-as-you-go" instructions of the General Convention.

"Many other charges besides the seven I have enumerated might be filed against the bureaucrats of National Council at 281 Fourth Ave.," the editorial says. "But if only a part of those I have mentioned hold, there is only one course for those men who have forfeited the confidence of the Church. Let them resign."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

A meeting of one hundred Negro women, leaders in the communities in which they live, was recently held in Savannah to work out plans to make more effective the relief work among the poor and unemployed people of their own race. It is planned to organize fifty neighborhood clubs in different sections of the city to aid in the relief work. The Rev. J. Henry Brown, archdeacon of Negro work in the diocese of Georgia, is a leader in the movement.

* * *

A number of dormant missions in the district of North Dakota have been revived by the new bishop, Fred Bartlett.

* * *

The Rev. F. W. Norris of Long Island, who died last November, left an estate valued at more than $100,000. It is left in trust to his widow and at her death is to be divided equally between the National Council and the Church Charity Foundation of Long Island.

* * *

The organizing secretary of the Anglo-Catholic Congress in England is now in this country in the interest of the centenary of the Oxford Movement which is to be celebrated next year at London and Oxford. He is the Rev. Cecil E. Russell, and was the preacher last week at Trinity Church, New York, at the noonday services. He stated that he was in the United States to help the Church in this country arrange for its own celebration and to enroll large numbers for a pilgrimage to Oxford in July of next year. He said that he expected fully 50,000 to take part in the celebration.

* * *

The Rev. Robert Poet Norwood, preaching last Sunday at St. Bartholomew's on Park Ave., New York, said that the spirit of aliens was to blame for the move to levy additional taxation upon Wall Street interests.

"It seems to me almost an absurdity that Wall Street should be threatened, as it is at this hour, with the imposition of one of the most unjust taxations in the recent history of political economy. Only an alien spirit could do that. The idea that we are to correct the ills of our country by making the wealthy pay our taxes is destructive of the whole spirit of democracy. Remove from their places of opportunity men who have succeeded by their genius, and we shall indeed have a wreck in the heart of the storm, now upon us, which will beggar the description of all our prophets."

BISHOP BOOTH
Leads Bishops in Prayer

Poet Norwood did not state just how he would go about balancing the budget of the federal government; possibly by taxing the ten million unemployed.

He concluded by saying: "Loving this country and believing in it as we do let us buy American products and stand by our native American forces. Spend your money here." Later in the week he announced that he was to leave on May first for his summer vacation, going to his summer home in Canada, where he was born in 1874.

* * *

The First Century Christian Fellowship (Buchmanites) are holding a house party from April 22 to May 2 at Briarcliff, New York. Frank N. Buchman, founder and chief spokesman for the group, arrived in this country last week, accompanied by twenty of his followers, and is the leader of the meetings now in session.

* * *

"Canon law, like all law, deals with the facts of a human society and not with an ideal state," said Dean Grant of Western Seminary, speaking on the new Canon on Marriage before Auxiliary leaders in Chicago. "It is meant to lift life steadily to a higher level. It is the academic theorist who tends to harshness; practical experience modifies this. The Church has to deal not with abstract laws or Utopian ideals, but with the facts of life as seen in the lives of men and women about us. This was our Lord's way. He dealt with men and women in the spirit of compassion and mercy and with a clear eye for the facts in the case."

* * *

Bishop Brown of Harrisburg has recently instituted three rectors: Rev. L. D. Gottschall at St. Paul's, Philipsburg; Rev. W. T. Sherwood at Trinity, Tyrone; Rev. W. J. Reed, former missionary in Liberia, at St. Paul's, Columbia.

* * *

A glowing tribute to Dean Robert K. Massie, late dean of the cathedral in Lexington, Kentucky, has been passed by the vestry of the cathedral parish which he served for fifteen years up to the time of his retirement because of illness in 1928.

* * *

The Rev. Hugh M. MacWhorter, rector of Christ Church, Ottawa, Illinois, has been appointed dean of the southern deanery of the diocese of Chicago by Bishop Stewart. He has been the rector at Ottawa for nine years.

* * *

The Rev. Ernest V. Collins, rector of St. Luke's, Troy, New York, died suddenly on April 12th. He was sixty-six years old.

* * *

The diocese of Albany is at work on the emergency fund. A statement has been prepared setting forth the needs of the National Council and the diocese and parishes have been asked to endeavor to raise their full quotas, seek extra gifts and to have special offerings. Special meetings of the deaneries of Ogdensburg and Troy have recently been held and further meetings are planned.

* * *

The annual convention of the older boys of the diocese of Michigan is to be held at Ann Arbor, May 6 to 8 under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The leaders are to be the Rev. Henry Lewis, rector at Ann Arbor, Bishop Page, Mr. Paul Rusch of Japan and the Rev. H. H. Lumkin of Madison, Wisconsin. On Sunday, following a corporate communion, there is to be a breakfast, with an address by Mr. Courtenay Barber, president of the Brotherhood, with the Rev. Murray Bartlett, president of Hobart College, the preacher at the eleven o'clock service.

* * *

A recent survey shows 35 active branches of the Girls' Friendly Society in the diocese of Central New York, with a total of 1665 members.

* * *

The Rev. Smith Owen Dexter, for twenty-five years the rector of Trinity Church, Concord Massachusetts, and a man who has distinguished himself as a champion of the less fortunate people in American life, has resigned. No statement has been issued as the reason for the resignation but it is thought that the vestry of the parish would not support him in his effort to aid strikers in Massachusetts cities.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

The initial meeting of the Joint Commission on Aided Dioceses and Missionary Districts was convened by Bishop Cook of Delaware in the Parish House of the Church of the Ascension, in St. Louis, on Wednesday, April 13th. Six members of the Commission were present and voted to continue the meeting at one called to assemble at the Church Missions House the afternoon of April 28th, following the Special Meeting of the House of Bishops. The meeting was continued that a larger membership might participate in permanent organization but those present at the initial meeting outlined plans of work to suggest to the larger group and went over the data which has been gathered with some difficulty covering the appropriations and quotas of these Aided Dioceses and Missionary Districts.

* * *

A regional conference for young people in the northern part of the diocese of Michigan was held April 9 and 10. There were representatives there from practically all the parishes in the area, and addresses by Rev. Irwin Johnson, director of boys' work, Mr. Ernest E. Piper, head of the department of religious education of the diocese, the Rev. C. E. Edinger of East Tawas and the Rev. Harold McCausland, rector of Trinity, Bay City, where the conference was held. At the meeting on Saturday evening all the addresses were by young people.

* * *

The men who are using the rest and recreation rooms in Providence, started by the emergency committee of the diocese of Rhode Island, have gone in for minstrel shows. They recently put on a show at a local theatre and crowded it to the doors. So successful were they as entertainers that agencies are now negotiating for engagements in nearby cities.

* * *

The Empire State Symphony orchestra rendered a program of sacred music at the Cathedral of All Saints, Albany, N. Y., on the evening of April 17. Bishop Oldham preached.

* * *

The young people of the diocese of Upper South Carolina had a convention at Spartanburg April 15-17, with a Sunday school convention held at the same time. There were addresses by all sorts of important people, including Bishop Finlay and the Rev. Rankin Barnes, head of the social service department of the National Council.

ROBERT NORWOOD
Urges Greater Nationalism

* * *

A rural conference for the province of Sewanee is to be held at All Saints College, Vicksburg, Mississippi, from June 8th to 17th. Leaders: the Rev. Val H. Sessions of Bolton, Miss.; the Rev. Randolph Blackford of Leesburg, Florida; the Rev. Gardiner Tucker, religious education secretary of the province; Prof. R. J. Colbert of Wisconsin and Bishop Green, who is the chairman.

* * *

Rev. C. A. Ross, diocese of Mississippi, has accepted a call to St. Mary's, El Dorado, Arkansas. Meanwhile the Rev. W. G. Christian of University, Virginia, has accepted a call to St. Paul's, Meridian, Mississippi, where Mr. Ross has been serving as locum tenens.

* * *

Bishop Sumner of Oregon each year makes a visit to the campus of the University of Oregon and also to the state college at Corvallis. His visits this year brought forth a long story in a daily of Portland, setting forth his great accomplishments there, and the fact that this year witnessed his eighteenth annual visit.

* * *

The "fear bug" is responsible for many of society's ailments according to the Rev. John Rathbone Oliver, psychiatrist and priest.

Dr. Oliver traces much of the responsibility for the present situation to the beginning of the mechanical age. "In the beginning of this mechanical age," he said, "the foundations were laid upon pagan rather than Christian ideals. Our modern business structure is pagan rather than Christian. There was a time when men put God and their religion first. That day passed with the advent of the mechanical age in England and conditions have never been righted."

The home unit of the great middle class in the United States, on which he said the future of the nation depends, is breaking down, according to Dr. Oliver. Apartment house life and the unChristian attitude toward marriage is largely responsible for this in Dr. Oliver's opinion. He blames this factor largely for the crowded conditions in jails. Eighty-five per cent of the holdups in Baltimore, he said, are committed by young men from eighteen to twenty-one years of age.

* * *

Thunder and Dawn was the topic upon which Bishop Stewart addressed about 1,000 Chicago business men the other day. He told them that the depression was bringing men face to face with realities, and he advised them to invest their cash (if any) in spiritual values rather than in stocks and bonds which fluctuate.

"We are getting down to realities as a result of the depression," said Bishop Stewart. "The day of ballyhoo and whoopee and selfishness and cynicism is passing. There is being born out of the present situation a new appraisal, a new perspective, a revaluation of the values of life. Faith and hope are born out of tragedy and adversity, not out of ease and plenty."

Speaking of investments which are not subject to market fluctuations, the Bishop mentioned education, travel and the lives of unfortunates who come within the care of church institutions.

"The noble note of character is emerging from the unsettled conditions of the past two years," continued Bishop Stewart. "We are beginning to recognize larger horizons for America. We are realizing that the world is one, that we cannot limit our interests to our own country, that our real loyalties do not begin at the center of our own little sphere and swing outward, but begin at the circumference and swing inward."

* * *

A conference on rural social work is to be held at Manlius School in September, under the auspices of the rural committee of the social service commission of the province of New York and New Jersey. Leaders so far announced are Professor J. M. Williams of Hobart who is to lecture on rural psychology, and the Rev. Henry H. Hadley, rector of St. Paul's, Syracuse, who is to lecture on pastoral care.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

I do not know whether or not it is a distinction to be quoted in the Congressional Record. In any case the article by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, which appeared in THE WITNESS during Lent, was inserted in the Record at the request of Senator Wagner of New York.

* * *

The diocese of Western New York is pushing the plan of birthday offerings, proposed by the Rev. Henry F. Zwicker of Lockport as a means of raising their share of the deficit. The idea, as you may know by this time, is to have every baptised member of the Church present a birthday offering on Whitsunday—a dollar, a quarter, a dime, a cent, or whatever you happen to have, multiplied by the number of years you have been alive. The results of the plan are to be announced at the diocesan convention which is to meet in Buffalo on May 16th. Special envelopes have been printed for this offering and are now in the hands of the parishes for distribution.

* * *

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew of Chicago is to hold a conference at Grace Church, Galena, Illinois, April 30 and May 1. The speakers are to be Bishop Stewart, Mr. Paul Rusch of Tokyo and Archdeacon Ziegler.

* * *

The Church Army is to hold a Jubilee over this coming week-end. It gets under way with a devotional meeting at St. John's, Boston, which is to be led by the Rev. F. W. Fitts. In the evening there are to be street meetings, closing with a service at the church of the Ascension. Sunday there will be services at the Advent and at the cathedral, with an outdoor service on the Common in the afternoon. Monday evening there is to be "evangelistic sharpshooting," whatever that may be, with Bishop Sherrill as one of the shooters. On Sunday thirty churches are to have Church Army speakers.

* * *

Dr. John F. Wood, secretary of the department of missions, reports great activity in Japan. Our schools from kindergartens to university are crowded to the limit; the two hospitals are doing an enormous work. Two churches have recently been consecrated and others are under construction.

* * *

A number of clergymen of New York City met last week under the auspices of the Church League for Industrial Democracy to discuss the advisability of going into the coal regions of Kentucky to get first hand information about the situation there. Recently twenty-one clergymen of the city signed a petition asking the United States Senate to investigate conditions and this meeting grew out of that. Just what was decided at this meeting was not given out but it is thought likely that at least a committee of clergymen will soon go to Kentucky.

* * *

Bishop Creighton as executive secretary of the Department of Domestic Missions has recently made his first visit to some of the Negro churches and schools in six southern dioceses. After a conference with the bishops and a group of colored clergy in the diocese of Virginia he visited three parishes. In Southern Virginia he went to nine parishes and missions, the Bishop Payne Divinity School, and St. Paul's School, Lawrenceville, where there was another conference with colored clergy. Three visits were made in Georgia, four in Upper South Carolina, several in East and North Carolina, including St. Augustine's College and the Bishop Tuttle Training School, Raleigh.

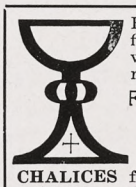
"I came home," Bishop Creighton says, "impressed with the earnestness of our colored clergy and the loyalty and devotion of our colored congregations. Some were a bit discouraged at the lack of interest in their problems and work; but the majority, grateful for the support of bishop and diocesan authorities, are zealously working to hasten the day when the Episcopal Church will be the Church for the colored people.

"Great credit is due our Negro clergy for their accomplishments and fine spirit. Upon them, more than upon anyone else, depends the success of our colored evangelistic work."

* * *

The Rev. Dr. Rosenthal, vicar of St. Agatha's, Birmingham, England, is to be the speaker at the meeting of the Priests' Fellowship of the diocese of Long Island tomorrow.

* * *



The Rev. William M. Tilton has resigned as rector of Holy Trinity, Southbridge, Mass., to become the assistant at Trinity, Hartford, Connecticut.

* * *

The Rev. Ernest Sinfield, Trinity College, Toronto, is to become the assistant at St. George's, Flushing, Long Island, the first of May.

* * *

St. Andrew's, Astoria, Long Island, was crowded to the door, with many unable to get in, on April 12th when Bishop Stires confirmed a class of sixty. It was also the occasion for the burning of the mortgage on the church. Present at the service, in

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—

F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)

CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.

MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

Wilbur H Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St Boston

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —a New Religious Novel

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, a Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel which has the modern "higher criticism" as its background, and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a very dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In The Living Church, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes: "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries." Bishop Francis J. McConnell says: "The author's expert knowledge of the Old Testament is manifest on every page. I found the movement easy and the narrative vivid and refreshing."

The author, whose earlier volume "Sociological Study of the Bible" is a standard work, says: "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature produced in hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from The Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00. —Advt.

The Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

addition to a number of rectors of surrounding parishes, was Rabbi Goldman of the local synagogue.

* * *

A new parish house was dedicated on April 10th at Pampa, Texas, by Bishop Seaman. At the same time a class of twelve was presented for confirmation by the Rev. N. C. Smith. It was announced that it is hoped that a rectory and a church may soon be added to the plant.

* * *

The nurses of the school at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Portland, Oregon, together with the members of the alumnae association, have worked out a plan to aid unemployed nurses. A fund has been raised, to which they have all contributed, to employ nurses for people who are ill who cannot afford such service.

* * *

A better chance exists for a revolution in the United States within the next twenty years than in either England or Germany, Professor Reinhold Niebuhr, of Union Theological Seminary, told eighty-five clergymen at a luncheon in New York the other day.

Eliminating a purely Christian solution of individual love and good will as a possible means of attaining social justice, Professor Niebuhr said the only alternative to revolution was a gradual progress to that goal, such as is possible in England and Germany but almost unattainable in this country because of "the entrenched position of the privileged class." He pointed to the present relief drives as an illustration of America's moral confusion, when activities should also be directed toward rectifying the causes that make relief necessary.

Criticizing the churches for cultivating the view that benevolence "is the last word in church conduct," the speaker said the church way is virtually impossible, because "no matter how good a man is, when he gets into power he rationalizes himself into any belief." Benevolence and kindness to the underprivileged is not sufficient, for these things do not lead to social justice, he said. In the present state of civilization it is not easy to lead an ethical life, "one has to be a saint," he declared.

* * *

At the request of some of his clergy, Bishop Carey of Bloemfontein, South Africa, is planning a kind of "campaign" to be held October 18 to 23, "for the deepening of the spiritual life" of the people in his diocese. The general plan includes a service each night in each parish, dealing with such subjects as living the Christian life, the need of the Holy Spirit, prayer, world peace, reunion of Christendom, the Eucharist and personal life. Besides

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

Washington Cathedral
A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.
Chartered under Act of Congress.
Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.
Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.
Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:
THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

losing hundreds of pounds on exchange the diocese is short several hundred pounds in diocesan finances. The Bishop writes, in his diocesan magazine:

"Well, I may have to reduce all our stipends in proportion; and I may have to reduce staff by two white priests and two native priests —anything may happen. But I propose that as a countermove we may show our contempt of the devil and our utter confidence in Christ and true religion by setting aside October 18 to 23 for a diocesan campaign for the deepening of the spiritual life....

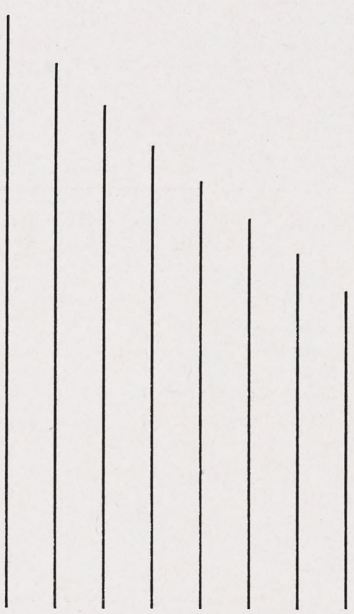
"I need hardly say how much my heart and the hearts of all our clergy go out to those stricken by the depression, especially in places where the mines are so desperately hard hit. Let us pray for them and for those who suffer, for courage for them and fresh work elsewhere; as indeed we pray for all the world, for a change of heart and brotherhood and cooperation.

"Do not let us be downcast. We must preach the things of the Spirit as never before, because they alone are going to count...I have travelled much through the diocese and find the spirit of real religion, the quiet surrender of self to the Holy Spirit of Christ, is deepening and growing."

* * *

There has been formed in the city of Buffalo an organization known as the "Elizabeth Lawrence friendly visitors". There are many people from outside Buffalo who from time to time are patients in the hospitals and the purpose of this society is to bring friendship and cheer to these people of other places while they are in the city. A word sent to Mrs. James H. Dyett, 1 Panhurst Parkway, Buffalo, N. Y., will secure this service for those who desire it.

* * *



There is a chance that America, beset by the realities of the depression, may recapture the spirit which animated it during the war years, when it had unity of thought and action, and yet lead the world into an era of social reconstruction, Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, told an audience in New York.

Whether we will or not is on the lap of the gods, he said, but he saw faint glimmerings on the horizon. "It is to be hoped that the lesson of this depression is not to be lost on the world at the first upward swing of business recovery, and result in a mere restoration of the old order rather than a reconstruction," Dr. Frank said.

"The 'new era' of supposedly continuous economic upswing failed us just when we expected the most of it. Its sudden collapse sobered us. We began to realize that we have passed forever out of the pastoral, individualistic era, in which the laissez faire policy permitted us to muddle through, into a technological civilization in which laissez faire is suicidal. Even the most intransigeant apostles of capitalism and individualism have begun to question this planless, go-as-you-like, catch-as-catch-can policy of laissez faire. They have begun to plead, even, for planned production. We must no longer refuse to take the long view. We must never fall again into the error of the pre-war world that civilization functions in a state of absence of mind, that world politics can be controlled by statesmen

The CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 The Oval London SE11 England
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE
ILLUSTRATED BROCHURE WILL BE FORWARDED UPON APPLICATION

There is
No Depression

. . . for those who enjoy the benefits of an annuity. Annuities are of particular advantage to persons of mature years who wish to be free from the worries occasioned by an irregular income derived from an investment in bonds or stocks.

. . . and for those without dependents, too much cannot be said for this arrangement of their finances.

For full information address

The Church Life Insurance Corporation

20 Exchange Place
New York City

A Subsidiary of The Church Pension Fund

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden
ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

who, so to speak, play by ear, or at best improvise on the spur of the moment."

Reasons for the present plight of the Western world go deeper, the speaker said, than the merely economic and material. He traced them back to the neo-paganism of the pre-war world, a materialism that brought on the war. In turn, this materialism yielded before a new idealism, when men caught a fleeting glimpse of their former spiritual bankruptcy, when they thought a new world would emerge from the war, of a day when there would be lasting peace and industrial as well as social democracy. This put into the war a certain millennial content, Dr. Frank observed, which fostered a singular exaltation of spirit.

A recapture of the idealism of the war and a learning of the lesson that planless laissez-faire policies cannot be permitted for the people, en masse, any more than they can for individual business are essentials for the recovery of the western world, the speaker concluded.

"There is a chance just a chance, that we may recapture in a less emotional way than formerly that mood we had, for a great moment during the war, of civilization building. It may come to America to lead the world out of its present chaos into an era of social creation and social reconstruction."

* * *

Plans are announced for the Sewanee Training School. There is to be a clergy training school from August 2 to 12; adult division, August 2 to 16 and young people's division from August 17 to 31.

The National Council sends Dr. John W. Wood, a world-authority on missions; Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, secretary for social service, Miss Mabel Lee Cooper, expert in religious education, Miss Sallie Phillips, new national secretary for young people, Rev. Brooke Stabler, secretary for college students, and Miss Ruth Osgood, of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Other well-known leaders are: Bishop Mikell, president of the province of Sewanee, Bishop McDowell of Alabama, Bishop Gailor of Tennessee; the three members of the provincial educational staff, Dr. Tucker, Dr. Starr and Miss Stout; Rev. Gordon Reese, Mrs. John B. Loman of Philadelphia, Mrs. J. R. Cain, president of the provincial Woman's Auxiliary, Chaplain Guerry of Sewanee, Dean Nes of New Orleans, Dr. Gus Dyer of Vanderbilt University, Dr. M. B. Stewart of the General Theological Seminary, and a number of other teachers and leaders of ability and standing.

* * *

The diocese of South Florida does a fine job with their young people through their summer camps. The

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

SCHOOLS

Are you looking for a good Church School for your boy or girl? A note to us stating your needs will bring you information.

THE WITNESS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

camp for boys and girls is held this year in Avon Park from June 14 to 28, with the Rev. W. P. S. Lander as the director. Bishop Wing is to be the chaplain and he is to be assisted by a lot of the clergy who are to give lectures. From the 7th to the 14th there is a camp for boys, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. This camp is to be known as Camp Perry in honor of the Presiding Bishop. The other camp is Camp Wing-Mann.

* * *

All of the work of the Church Army is not done in the field as this report from their office indicates. The boys dispatched 25,000 pieces of mail last year; kept a card index record of 2000 friends and subscribers; handled cash and checks amounting to about $30,000, and kept accounts totalling $38,000; kept in use 500 corresponding filing folders; received and recorded 1500 evangelistic reports and financial accounts of field staff; corresponded with 80 candidates, 16 dioceses that used Army men; 62 parishes; 40 captains, sisters and men in training.

* * *

The Presbyterian Church it seems is going in for corn, beets, turnips and cabbages as a way out of the depression, through a revival of the Lord's Acre plan of tithing as practiced in antiquity and later in rural England, enabling the small-income, rural people to support their churches by paying in kind instead of money. Their missionary board indorsed the principle of the plan and said that it was likely to become part of the Church policy of that and other Protestant denominations.

This old method of tithing is of the simplest design. Money being comparatively scarce in the rural sections, the members of a congregation simply pledge the products of an acre of ground, a brood of chickens or a pig, in lieu of money. The one modern feature, and this a distinctly communal one, is the organization by the parishioners of non - profit making, co - operative marketing groups which sell the produce and turn the receipts back to pay the pastors' salaries and support the churches.

The farmer thus pays his tithes with what he has most of, and that is the products of his land. Hundreds of churches of eight Protestant denominations are involved in this return to simplicity, and it is even hoped that the project will be extended to include educational facilities in the regions which have been hard hit by the economic depression.

* * *

Here is a note that appeared recently in the bulletin of All Angels' Church, New York City, that contains a bit of information worth passing on. "It is the custom in all Episcopal Churches for the congregation to remain at their devotions until the server has extinguished the candles on the altar and left the sanctuary. Kindly do not start opening pocketbooks or putting on coats or moving about in any way until after that time."

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 7:30).
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 6.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Answer of Our Members

ON Whitsunday, May 15th, a message will be written to Rowe in Alaska, Graves in China, to Campbell in Africa, and three thousand fellow missionaries throughout the world, and signed by a million and a quarter members of the Episcopal Church in the United States.

The sum of $400,000 is needed if that message is to ring with joy and hope and loyalty and brotherhood. Every member of the Church has been urged to present his individual contribution to the $400,000 Deficiency Fund before Whitsunday or at one of the services on that day.

On April 15th, a month prior to Whitsunday, the Treasurer of the National Council had received individual gifts amounting to $15,731.43. These contributions had come from forty-three dioceses and missionary districts, and one each from England, Canada and China.

"I remember that this is the day for the collection for foreign missions. Please find inclosed my check."

Thomas Jonathan Jackson

("STONEWALL" JACKSON)

Written and sent to his pastor from the battlefield.

"My personal suggestion toward this end would be that every member of the Church in the Diocese place in the offertory plates on Whitsunday a sum equivalent to One Day's Income."—The Bishop of Lexington.

"It has been suggested that it may be of assistance to you to know that some of the clergy of this diocese are undertaking to contribute their 'mite' toward the missionary deficiency, and that, so far, seventeen clergymen have stated they expect to pay $2,565 by December 1, 1932."
—Diocese of Western New York.

"Therefore I am asking you to make your birthday offering on the Birthday of the Church. Put in the inclosed envelope (a coin) for every year God has blessed you with life."—The Bishop of Eastern Oregon.

* * *

WHITSUNDAY OFFERING PRAYER

Authorized by the Presiding Bishop

GRANT, O Lord, that in this hour of difficulty, thy Church may be so aroused to loyalty and sacrifice that in meeting the present crisis we may be led on to larger and worthier service; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL
Church Missions House
281 Fourth Avenue New York, N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 5, 1932

COL. G. F. VERBECK and BISHOP FISKE
Superintendent and President of Manlius School

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESTD·1857

CHURCH FURNITURE
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

Stained Glass Memorials
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet sent on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET N Y
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL & COMPANY·LTD
Craftsmen in
Embroidery
Wood
Stone
Metal
and Stained Glass
EXETER · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · 11 Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32 Victoria St.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 37 MAY 5, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

IN PLEADING for funds with which to care for unemployed members of the Church in New York, George W. Wickersham, noted Churchman, paints a drab picture of conditions. There are thousands of families he says now hovering on the verge of complete break-up and advancing stages of pernicious starvation diseases. "The Church itself", he says, "now carrying a crushing burden, has not been able as yet to give even a little help in scores of cases on its waiting list. What an irony of fate that the institution which has taught them to help others in their better days can now do nothing for them." Then in pleading for support for the fund now being raised by Bishop Gilbert and his committee, he questions the good sense of writing into wills provisions for bequests and memorials for cultural enterprises which will be handed on to a generation weakened in body and character as a result of the suffering they are now forced to endure. "There are a great many people whose incomes could be reduced by the loss of a few more dividends and it would yet be possible for them to spend the rest of their days in comparative comfort. By drawing upon capital now they could enable themselves to make an outright gift at this time of measurable size to a fund for meeting the emergencies of human suffering, rather than bequeathing it to be administered after they are gone. No matter how small or large the contribution these days it represents some portion of actual life given or withheld for some struggling family." Certainly a Christian Church which has spent millions of dollars in the past decade on stone and mortar should be able to find the quarter of a million dollars that is essential to meet this emergency in the lives of these Church families.

WE ARE GLAD to note the revival in preaching and preacher's art. Dr. Hugh Black is addressing the Churchman's Association of New York on the subject; several books have recently appeared stressing both its technique and its opportunity; and the layman is showing his renewed feeling for religion by wandering from church to church in a search for bigger and better preachers. All of which is very encouraging and inspiring, provided the preachers are saying the right thing in the right way. It does not make a great deal of difference what a man's power of expression may be as long as he is possessed by a conviction. A conviction is its own expression. And there has never been a laudable conviction that lacked expression. If the art of preaching is under a cloud to-day it is because the men in our pulpits have never been so vitally seared with the flame of enthusiasm or heroism or romance or love or hate or joy or sorrow that they can never throw off the scar. There was a Master Who implied that, if we ever tried fully to follow Him, we should probably be hurt—for crosses are heavy and angular things. In which He was very wise. For He knew that His disciples had to preach; and He also knew that no man could ever really preach unless he had been hurt.

HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK, probably the most influential of our preachers, is scathing in his denunciation of present economic society.

"This material disaster which we are suffering, involving human consequences, I suspect, more terrific than the Great War itself, did not come from bad luck," Dr. Fosdick asserted recently. "It came from bad management. Never in the world's history were the gifts of nature more bounteous, the supplies of food more plentiful, more technical skill or scientific mastery at man's disposal. This disaster did not come from anything that the insurance companies call an 'Act of God.' Ours is the guilt. Back of our present destitution is a war for which there was no need, debts that can never be paid, tariffs which kill the very trade on which recovery depends, a socially unplanned, individualistic economic life utterly unfitted to the modern world of massed production, and a narrow nationalism such as keeps the United States from going even into the World Court."

He went on to present the two possible extremes, communism and our current economic and industrial anarchy. In one we find co-operative social planning carried to the point where democracy and liberty are crushes. At the other extreme is our own present day choas. In between, as Dr. Fosdick points out, there must be a way of social planning for the good of all, which will still hold to the priceless gains of personal freedom and democracy and at the same time provide us all with an abundance of material things. The discovering of that way is a necessity more urgent than the winning of the world war.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

XIII. The English Reformation

By
BISHOP JOHNSON

THE relations of the English Church to the Holy Roman See is an interesting story. The original population of England was Celtic and there were Celtic Bishops at the Council of Arles in 318 A. D. This early Church in Britain was a part of the Catholic Church before the division between the Eastern and Western Church, and knew no subjection to Rome. In the fifth century the Roman legions were withdrawn from Britain and the Anglo-Saxon invaders drove the Celtic Christians into the mountains of Wales. These Anglo-Saxons were heathen and England was pagan until well into the seventh century. They were converted to the faith by monks sent to England by Pope Gregory and also by monks from the Celtic Christians, each evangelizing a different section. It is significant that there were radical differences between these monks as to matters of discipline and worship. They clashed and the king decided in favor of the Roman cult. From the conversion of the Anglo-Saxons to the advent of William the Conqueror (1066), England followed the customs of the Western Church, but the relation between the Anglo-Saxon Church of the eleventh century and Rome was only slight.

Stigand the last Anglo-Saxon Archbishop of Canterbury was excommunicated by the Pope but did not alter his habits nor did he forfeit his see. William brought in the Norman Church and while he paid Peter's pence to Rome, he refused to give fealty; that is he declined to accept his crown as a fief of the Roman See.

About the year 1200 John had differences with his lords and Magna Carta declared that the English Church was free. The Pope sided with John and John acknowledge fealty to the Pope.

From then on the English Church suffered greatly from this foreign overlordship. The abuses were grievous. Italians were given English livings. Expensive appeals to Rome were common, the Church accumulated great possessions until under Henry IV, England was known on the Continent as the "Milch Cow" of the Pope. This became insufferable when the French Popes used English money to finance the French in her wars with England. The drain of money from England to Rome became a menace economically and the interference of the Pope became an embarrassment politically. More money flowed into the coffers of Rome at one time than came into the hands of the King. Parliament smarted under the imposition and as far back as Edward the First, statutes were passed forbidding the alienation of any more land to the Church, prohibiting appeals to Rome and forbidding foreign appointments to English livings. It was the morals of the Papal hierarchy rather than the doctrines or worship of the Roman Church that aroused the hostility to the Pope in England.

The movement under Luther had very little popular support in England and Henry VIII received from a grateful Pope the title of Defender of the Faith for his crusade against the tenets of Luther. When we come to the break between Henry and the Pope, it was not theological differences. Henry died a firm believer in the Roman practices and refused to have them altered in any material way. There is no question but it was the Tudor lust and the Tudor greed which prompted the separation, but it was the lust and greed of the Papacy of that period which was responsible for Henry's morals. Looking at it from the attitude of Our Father in Heaven, it was necessary that a break should come in order that something better might take its place.

It was the perfidy of John, the most immoral of all the English kings, which surrendered the English Church to Papal misrule; it was the wickedness of Henry which dissolved the bonds. One cannot evaluate the English reformation in terms of the Tudor reign, but rather in terms of that which evolved ultimately from the unholy alliance.

It is not too much to say that the spiritual life of England was being put to death between two thieves, neither of whom deserve much consideration from the cloud of witnesses who surround the episode. That Henry and Archbishop Cranmer were instruments in what took place is perfectly true, but whether their morals are this or that has no bearing upon the ultimate results attained. The situation was an intolerable one and the characters of nearly all concerned were evidences of an undesirable background. What happened was the way out so far as the English Church was concerned.

The vital question is whether in the dissolution of relations between Rome and Canterbury, the Church lost anything which was essential to its continuity or to its witnessing function. Of course those who believe that the Bishop of Rome is the infallible vicar of Christ will claim that such belief is an essential part of the faith. Our reply is that such a doctrine was unknown in the primitive Church and during the period of the Councils; that the English Church never did accept it and that it was imposed upon the English Church by the insistence of the Papacy in the reign of King John. Apart from this, the Anglican Church has kept the faith to such extent that the Greek Church acknowledges the Catholic character of our faith and worship.

Did Henry VIII form a new institution? Did the Church of England remain intact through the struggle between Pope and King for supremacy? Supposing that you had been a young communicant of the Church in some English town during the reign of Henry. Supposing that the vicar was a young priest who originally was subject to the Pope. You both could have lived through the successive changes which took place under the Tudors. Nearly all the village priests continued in the exercise of their office during all this period. It was a battle of ecclesiastics and princes in which the little folk remained mute. If you had been a youngster when Henry broke with the Pope, there would have been no drastic changes in the service. The only feature of the Prayer Book which originated in Henry's reign was the Litany and Henry refused to permit any drastic changes during his entire reign.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The little Edward reigned only a few years, and England was ruled by protectors who caused the first Prayer Book (1549) to be issued. In your village church, you would have been visited by royal commissioners who would have ordered the 1st Prayer Book of Edward VI to be substituted for the Latin Missal. Probably neither you nor your priest would have liked it, but you both would have conformed. Before the 2nd Prayer Book of Edward could have arrived (1552), the King died, and Mary reigned in his stead. She burned all the Prayer Books of Edward's and some of the bishops who refused to obey her and brought back the services to the forms used in Henry's reign. The Church of England again recognized the Pope as the supreme pontiff.

But Mary lived only a few years when Elizabeth reigned in her stead. Elizabeth ordered the 2nd Prayer Book of Edward, somewhat revised, to be used in the churches and forbade the Latin Missal. She was excommunicated by the Pope in 1570, which marks the formal separation from Rome. During all these happenings there were many villages in England which continued to worship under the same vicar, in the same parish church, using the same sacraments and professing the same faith.

It would have been rather absurd to have told them that the old Church of England had been destroyed and a new Church substituted for it. They would have unquestionably answered, when? Was it when Henry broke with the Pope? There were no changes. Was it when the change in service books were ordered under Edward? There was no intention to alter the essentials. Did Mary cause the priests who had served under Edward to be replaced? Did Elizabeth found a Church when she ordered the service book of Edward to be restored?

The Church of England did not lose its continuity because of a change in books, nor was it unfaithful in its witness to the faith.

It is true that Henry claimed to be the supreme head of the Church, but no one in England today believes that the King is head of the Church in any ecclesiastical sense. The whole operation was due to the Pope's claim of temporal power. It was followed by the King's claim of spiritual power; but Elizabeth claimed power over the Church's temporalities only, although she actually dominated it in other ways, being a Tudor.

One may properly object to the union of Church and state as undesirable but this union preceded the Reformation and the seeds of the evils which grew out of this union existed prior to the Reformation.

The Anglican Communion has ceased to look to any earthly monarch as its head and while that portion of it known as the Church of England still suffers from this mediæval alliance, it is no essential part of the faith and worship of the English Church. The vital question is not what happened in 1534 but what exists today as the outgrowth of a very humiliating episode in which neither party displayed any virtues which need be the subject of boasting. Granted that one was as bad as the other, the result has been to liberate a large section of the Catholic Church from the overlordship of King and Pope and to restore to the Anglican Communion the liberty that belongs to the Children of the Kingdom whose service is perfect freedom.

(To be continued)

Preacher, Pulpit and Pew

By

E. P. JOTS

Minister—What becomes of little boys who use bad language while playing marbles?

Bobby—They grow up and become golfers.

* * *

Southern Paper—"The peculiar noises coming from the organ of the Baptist Church last Sunday have been overcome by a healthy dose of rough on rats. The critters having made a nest in the G pipe, when it was played the rats would squeal. That's why the last selection was changed at the last moment, there being less G notes in 'Galilee' than there are in 'Tell Mother I'll Be There.'"

* * *

One night Phillips Brooks' little niece disturbed her aunt by telling her that she did not want to say her prayers.

In the morning her aunt asked her if she had not said them.

"No," she replied. "I did not say my prayers, I just kneeled down and said: 'Dear God, I am too tired to say my prayers.' And He looked down and said: 'Miss Brooks, don't mention it.'"

* * *

After evensong, the good bishop took his ease in the country parson's garden and diverted himself with the company of the parson's little daughter. She asked many questions and finally demanded, as bedtime came: "What makes it get dark?"

"Can't you," said the bishop, "tell me?"

"Oh, yes I can," she answered, nodding a sage head, "God shuts His eyes."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

COMSTOCK HALL

THE MANLIUS SCHOOL

By

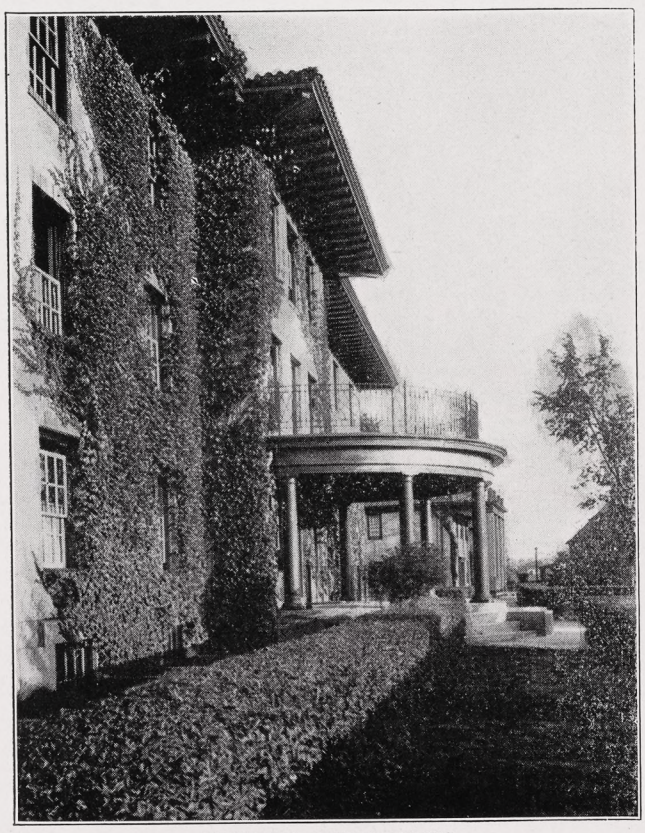
MARK BRADLEY

SITUATED in the hilly country of Central New York on the historic Cherry Valley Turnpike, The Manlius School has thrived for sixty-three years. The Right Reverend Frederic Dan Huntington, first bishop of the diocese of Central New York, together with nine other prominent citizens of Central New York, organized and incorporated Saint John's School, later renamed The Manlius School, as a boys' boarding school, on August 24, 1869. In that year there was a wide-spread demand, occasioned by the reconstruction program in effect throughout the nation, for a more effective and broader secondary education.

Bishop Huntington, elected president of the board of trustees, remained active in this office until his death in 1904. The Hon. George F. Comstock gave generously of his time and money. On the Bishop's initiative with the co-operation of the other members of the board, an extensive property was acquired to the southeast of the village and new school buildings were erected there in 1871. The present school campus, which includes the site of the old school, consists of 120 acres arranged as playgrounds and athletic fields. The fifteen school buildings are separated and arranged in convenient order. In 1881 the school was re-incorporated and military training was established as a part of the regular course of instruction. Seven years later William Verbeck became head of the school.

For forty-two years thereafter the school, under General Verbeck's able management, continued to increase in growth and prestige and to develop its tradition of fine scholarship and service. In 1930 he was succeeded by his son, Colonel Guido F. Verbeck, who prior to that time had been a member of the Manlius faculty for twenty-one years and superintendent for four years.

A WELL-DEFINED purpose is evident in the atmosphere of Manlius. Masters and boys are busily occupied with interesting affairs. It is a refreshing environment and a newcomer is at once interested and pleased. He feels at home. The Manlius plan of instruction arouses the curiosity of the student. There is work to do, interesting work, that occupies the whole mind. There is organized recreation quietly efficient and so well ordered that it is entertaining. There are duties to perform, duties that are clearly expressed as personal responsibilities. The student is not pursued, he is relied upon. Each Manlius student is an interesting person in his own way. Collectively these boys make up the vital body of the school. No effort is made to develop a Manlius type. The masters rather encourage the independence of the boys who may, without affectation, acquire some likeness in manner, thought and action.



The boys are relied upon to observe the requirements of the school from the standpoint of accomplishing a definite end rather than through the observance of stated school regulations. All matters of deportment are handled directly between the school authorities and the individual concerned. The Manlius boy knows that his word is good consequently he values and safeguards the responsibility and confidence reposed in him by his teachers. The boyish impulse of self-preservation gives way to a fearless and honest admission of faults and neglects. This standard of honor built up as a sound tradition of the school is perhaps the most valuable and effective feature of the School's general education, which altogether develops definite traits of character.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Manlius School is a college entrance examination board examining center. All courses prepare for these examinations and all students are expected to seek credits from the board unless they have commenced their secondary school studies in another institution. The college board credits are accepted by every college and university. Some institutions require credits from the board for admission. We advise all students to qualify under this standard and a majority do so. For the benefit of New York State boys, regents' examinations, optional with the student, are given at the school in January and June.

FOR fifty-one years military instruction has been successfully applied as an additional aid to the development of scholarship at Manlius. The perfect democracy of the military organization and the even distribution of responsibilities among the students, each of whom has an established place as a cadet in the Manlius Battalion, has convinced the authorities of the educational value of this department. The military course is progressive during the four years of instruction. It is found that the boys enjoy military training and show responsibility and develop a maturity that inculcates in them qualities of leadership certain to be of value in the future.

MANLIUS DORMITORIES

Military instruction is given during one class period five days a week. In the autumn and spring this instruction ordinarily takes the form of outdoor drills and practical military exercises. During the winter term the military class period is devoted to the study of progressive courses related to the practical work, which includes the theoretical part of military training.

Long before the word intramural came into popular use, a system of athletics for all who wish to participate was established at Manlius. The four dormitories, each housing a company, provide ideal competitive groups. The spirit of rivalry prevailing among the companies compares favorably with that ordinarily displayed among competing schools. Since experience has taught that it is better for a boy to enter games because he wants to play, athletics is not compulsory. The shy boy holds back for a short time, but eventually joins his comrades to do his share for his organization.

Next to playing in games among themselves, perhaps the greatest source of interest to our students is derived from games with other schools. Many parents and other visitors, together with the whole school, gather at Kallet Field on Saturday afternoons in the fall to watch the school football team playing against another school team. As the majority of the boys in the stands have already played in a game during the week, much interest is displayed in watching the individual and team efforts on the field.

Visitors are always welcomed at the school. The fall and spring terms find a large number of people, interested in secondary school education, at Manlius where they are shown the classes at work and are guided through the buildings where the boys live. Although there is no summer session a small group is at hand to meet visitors and enroll boys for the next session.

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

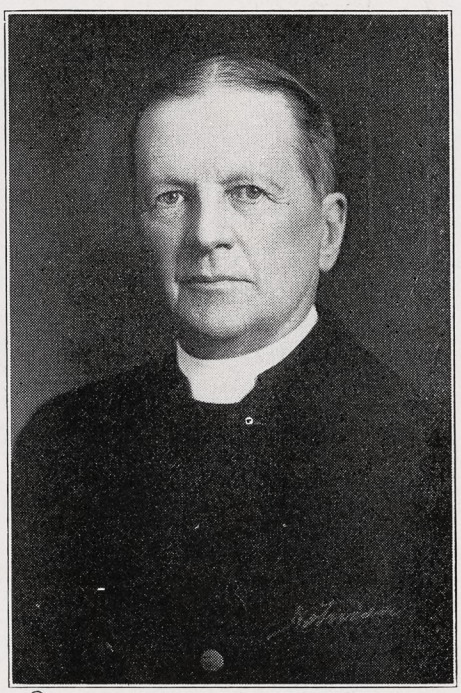
Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE BISHOPS MEET WITH THE COUNCIL AT GARDEN CITY

By W. B. Spofford

Following the opening joint meeting of the House of Bishops and the National Council, which was in session at Garden City, Long Island, last week from Tuesday evening until Thursday noon, one genial wag said that the total result could be expressed in baseball language: "No hits, no runs, no errors". He could hardly have said that at the end of the second day of conferences, and certainly not at the close of the show. For out of it all came a resolution which was passed unanimously. I give you the resolution first, and then will attempt to give you a bit of the discussion that was the background for it.

RESOLVED: That the House of Bishops appreciates the efforts of the National Council to meet conscientiously and courageously the great difficulties of the present financial situation, and calls upon the Church for that loyal support of the Church's Program which will make their leadership effective.



Inasmuch, however, as it seems probable that substantial reductions in appropriations will be necessary in 1933, therefore be it

RESOLVED: That the House of Bishops hereby declares its judgment that if or when reductions in the budget become necessary these shall be made first, in accordance with the recommendations of General Convention; and further reductions in such manner as the National Council may determine from the facts before it.

RESOLVED: That these resolutions be presented to the National Council by the committee of three members of this House to be appointed under the resolution of the Bishop of Tennessee to take up all these matters with the National Council.

The offerings of the Church represent sacrificial giving, and we call upon not only the National Council and the headquarters staff but also upon every Bishop, diocesan or missionary, to realize the necessity of greater efficiency in every sphere of work and all possible care in the use of every dollar given for the Church's work.

This resolution was introduced by Bishop Manning of New York, and was the result of a compromise about which I shall say more a bit later. No sooner was it passed than Bishop McDowell of Alabama introduced a resolution, also passed unanimously, to the effect that the problems and criticisms that had been expressed at the opening session, and contained largely in a report

BISHOP LAWRENCE
Heads Bishops' Committee

presented by Bishop Fiske and signed by Bishop Stearly and Bishop Oldham, should be taken up with the National Council by the three members of the House of Bishops whose appointment is called for by Bishop Manning's resolution. Those appointed to the committee were Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, Bishop Davis of Western New York and Bishop McDowell of Alabama.

The Criticism

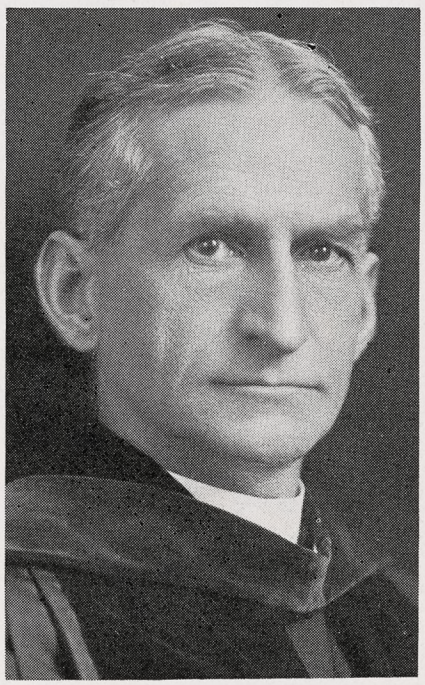
Most of the criticisms of the administration of affairs at the Church Missions House were expressed at the first session on Tuesday evening, and were contained in the report of the Bishops of the Second Province. This report stated first of all that "while the first task must be an appeal to the generosity of the Church in the effort to increase offerings and reach non-givers, sufficiently serious consideration has not as yet been given to the need of a drastic reduction in expenditures." The report went on to state that the present organization at the Church Missions House was set up when we were riding a wave of prosperity, that there were indications that it was over-staffed, and called for "a thorough study of the whole headquarters organization with a view to recommending to the next General Convention, should it be necessary, a decided reduction in administration and departmental activities, and some reorganization looking towards large economies."

The report was emphatically insistent that this was in line with the action taken at the last General Convention. It stated that the departments at the Church Missions House were authorized to spend within a few thousand dollars of what they spent in 1931, in spite of salary cuts, and that the cost of administration has greatly increased over the past ten years. The report stated that the larger and wealthier dioceses are feeling the present financial strain quite as much as are the weaker dioceses and districts; that Church people, themselves suffering heavy financial losses, were being flooded with appeals for community and unemployment relief, and that it was questionable how long they could continue to support the work of the Church on the scale they have in the past.

The department of publicity, the committee on ecclesiastical and racial relations, the rural social service work, and the department of religious education were singled out for criticism, not only in this report but in the debate which followed. Bishop Johnson of Colorado made a plea for retrenchment, and he deplored a partnership in which one partner, the dioceses, did all the raising of money and the other, the National Council, did all the spending. Bishop Manning of New York insisted that the feeling was widespread in the Church that too large a proportion of our funds were expended in departmental work, and this feeling was shared by Bishop Matthews of New Jersey, Bishop Davis of Western New York, and Bishop Oldham of Albany and Bishop Stearly of Newark whose signatures were attached to the report.

The Answers

Criticisms were answered by Bishop Perry and Dr. Lewis B. Franklin, president and vice-president of the Council. Bishop Perry stated that the welfare of mission work was in jeopardy but that if the receipts from dioceses had been what had been promised the year 1931 could have closed without a deficit. He stated that pledges for 1932 did not make it possible for the Council to balance its budget beyond the first six months of the year, but confidence was expressed, both by Bishop Perry and Dr. Franklin, that the appeal for $400,000 would receive such a hearty response that they could carry on for the balance of this year. The important matter he said was not the work this year but the preservation of the missionary work in the years to come. Some, he stated, believe there should be an adjustment made in expenditures to bring it to the level of present giving, but he himself was sure that the job was rather to increase the giving. It was brought out, both by Bishop Perry and Dr. Franklin, that not more than half the members of the



Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church are giving at all, and even those are giving but a few cents a week. "Adequate support for our missionary enterprise, national and diocesan," stated the Presiding Bishop, "is dependent not upon prosperity but upon loyalty to the work of our Lord and Master." He stressed the need for an adequate diocesan organization for the Every Member Canvass; he insisted that many dioceses were not playing the game fairly in the way money raised is distributed, it being the practice in some dioceses to pay their own bills first and then to send to the Church Missions House anything that may be left. He concluded by saying that the morale of the Church was at a low ebb and that it could be restored only by loyally and courageously facing the work committed to them.

RESOLUTIONS

On Wednesday afternoon Bishop Manning brought the entire issue to a head by presenting a strong resolution calling for the curtailment of expenditures on the part of departments at the Church Missions House. A substitute resolution was then introduced by Bishop Barnwell of Idaho the gist of which was that everything was all right at the Church Missions House, that there was no occasion for criticism of staff officers or anyone else, and that if cuts should be necessary they should be equally distributed over the entire work of the Church. Bishop Manning said that if any such resolution was passed they might as well announce to the Church that they had solemnly met and that they had nothing whatever to say, while Bishop Johnson stated it would be a repudiation of General Convention action. Bishop Page of Michigan, supported by Bishop Longley of Iowa, felt that much could be saved by discontinuing static missionary work. Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts then took the floor and pleaded with the Bishops to roll up their sleeves, pitch in and do the job of raising the money necessary to carry on the work. The diocese of Massachusetts, he said, had already raised one-eighth of the $400,000 deficit, and if New York will raise its two-eights and other strong dioceses do their share the job will be done. To which Bishop Manning immediately replied, "I want to state that the diocese of New York will not do it." Bishop Lawrence also said that while the work probably could go on this year it unquestionably would have to be "savagely cut in the years ahead of us."

They then put the Rev. John Suter, head of the department of religious education, on the mat to find out from him just what his department was doing. After cross questioning him for a half hour or so they called for the Rev. Rankin Barnes, head of social service, and put him through the same ordeal.

DEAN WASHBURN
Headliner at Church Congress

They then got back to resolutions, and so many resolutions, substitute resolutions and substitutes to the substitutes were introduced that everything was soon in a hopeless muddle and it was obvious that there would be no united action. Bishop Cross of Spokane therefore proposed that Bishop Manning and Bishop McDowell, both of whom had offered resolutions, be a committee of two to work out a resolution that might be acceptable to all.

CHURCH AT WORK KILLED

Oh, and it should be said here that when the continuing of the publication of The Church at Work was brought up Dr. Franklin arose and announced that the publicity commission had voted the previous day to discontinue it so that that small matter need bother them no longer. Bishop Fiske then asked what new light had come to the Council since the February meeting to prompt such action, and suggested that possibly more light might reveal other places where economies might be made. But he was ruled out of order by a Presiding Bishop who was red in the face as his gavel banged the table.

In the evening the resolution which heads this news story was presented and unanimously adopted. It means, I presume, that in the opinion of the House of Bishops the National Council has done a good job, at the same time reminding them that the General Convention

(Continued on page 15)

CHURCH CONGRESS ATTRACTS MANY TO ITS SESSIONS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

Several hundred Church people gathered in Hartford last week for the annual Church Congress. The program, always snappy, was particularly lively this year, with speakers of real distinction handling each topic. The question as to whether or not the Church should sanction the remarriage of divorced persons was well handled by Bishop McDowell of Alabama, Bishop Page of Michigan and the Rev. John Mockridge, the rector of St. James, Philadelphia. As can be well imagined there was a considerable amount of discussion. Mr. Spencer Miller Jr., the Rev. J. Howard Melish and Miss Mary Van Kleeck discussed the question as to what the attitude of the Church should be to economic change, and they discussed it in a way to give small comfort to any Daughters of the American Revolution who might have been present. To them the Church has a job to do, and the quicker she gets at it the better. It was one of the high spots of the Congress, due primarily to the able speakers and perhaps secondly to these distressing times which have brought economic issues to the front.

The question as to whether or not Jesus taught pacifism was ably handled by Bishop Hobson of Southern Ohio and the Rev. A. L. Kinsolving, the rector of Trinity, Boston. Bishop Hobson, major during the World War, was very much of the opinion that war has no place in the Christian scheme of things and that the less the Church has to do with it the better for the Church and for humanity generally. The old question as to whether the Church should allow the election of bishops from one diocese to another was handled in a scholarly fashion by Professor J. Beale of Harvard and the Rev. J. R. Crosby of Seaford, Delaware, while Professor Easton of the General and Professor Hatch of Cambridge, ably assisted by Dean Nes of New Orleans discussed, without enough agreement to make it monotonous, the question of just what sort of a Christ does emerge from the New Testament after scholars are through with their criticism. Bishop Sam Booth of Vermont spoke on the question "Is religion necessary for a high morality?" and his answer was yes. Finally there was a lively debate as to whether or not the Church should have a court to deal with doctrinal matters, with Dean Washburn of Cambridge, Mr. Origen Seymour of Long Island and Professor Foley of the Philadelphia Divinity School leading discussion.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. Spofford

Mr. Walter "Hitler" Smith, attorney of Bell County, Kentucky, who has taken it upon himself to protect the natives from any ideas that are not acceptable to himself, seems to have bitten off quite a mouthful. He has run out of the state a number of visitors who have gone down there to bring food to starving miners. Among these have been the distinguished people who made up the party headed by Waldo Frank, writer; and a large number of students from eastern colleges who went down in a bus to look things over, but never so much as got into the state. Now there is a campaign on, headed by a student of the divinity school of the University of Chicago, to enlist 5,000 college students to transport truck-loads of food and clothing to destitute miners this summer, and also to do all the investigating they care to do, whether Mr. Smith likes it or not. Incidentally by the time these words are in your hands I shall be down there myself if all goes well. A flock of New York parsons recently petitioned the Senate to investigate the situation in Kentucky. This was given publicity and as a result a telegram was sent to the parsons suggesting that they come down and do their own investigation. So a half dozen or so of us are to be there this week to find out, if possible, what it is all about. More about it later.

* * *

Sixteen preparatory schools in New England were represented by fifty boys and leaders at a conference held at Kent School, Connecticut, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The leaders were Dr. William C. Sturgis, formerly educational secretary of the department of missions and now connected with the College of Preachers in Washington; Rev. C. Leslie Glenn of Christ Church, Cambridge; Rev. Irwin C. Johnson of Detroit; Rev. John Harris of Dartmouth College and the Rev. A. Grant Noble of Yale. The boys themselves took a large part in the conference and worked out a summary of findings. Among other things they decided that God's Will should enter into all their work; that they should ever be on the lookout to aid others, and be prepared to render aid; that they should do everything possible to aid the less fortunate, particularly the unemployed; that there was a need for the development of Christian fellowship in the economic world, and finally that compulsory chapel was all right and that they should all set examples by their actions.

* * *

Bishop Graves of Shanghai has written us a letter protesting against the altering of a cablegram by the officers of the Church Missions House in such a way as to give the impression that missionaries in his district opposed the cut in the appropriation to the district. He states that the cablegram was "considerably altered, while the omission of words changed its sense entirely." He states that they accepted as a matter of course the cut on missionary salaries but that they did protest against the cut in the salaries to the Chinese workers, all of whom have suffered heavily because of the fighting. Officers of the Church Missions House possibly may be forgiven for the error. Cablegrams, of necessity, are meagre affairs which necessitate considerable editing to make sense, and that is a difficult job, with the sender several thousand miles away where he can't be called up and asked what he meant.

* * *

The condition of the world depends upon the average individual's mind and heart, the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Crowder, said last Sunday in his sermon at St. James's, New York.

"Ours is a very sick world," he said, "and the average man and woman feel that they can do little to help the world get well. They think they can look on while Congress, parliaments, presidents, prime ministers and leaders in business and finance do the rehabilitation.

"It is possible to build up the world of our individual selves. In order to do this we need not wait on international agreements or schemes for balancing the budget. The greatest thing in the world is not organization or efficiency but a man. The possession of one's soul is not only the secret of happiness and the corner stone of character, but it is also the chief source of national strength and world progress."

* * *

One of the solutions to present financial problems in Northern Indiana has been to combine adjacent parishes and to attach missions to nearby parishes. The Rev. W. Edward Hoffenbacher has the distinction of being the rector of three parishes: Trinity, Logansport; Trinity, Peru; and St. Mary's, Delphi. Each of these towns is a county seat and they are approximately 25 miles apart.

During the past year commendable work has been done in all three places, but notably in Peru where a boy choir has been introduced, the Church School has doubled in enrollment, and there has been a considerable growth in communicants. At present the entire plant is being redecorated and renovated inside and out.

* * *

The mayor of Cleveland recently issued a challenge to the churches of the city to aid in the effort being made to care for the unemployed. Mrs. William C. Mather, wife of the senior warden of Trinity Cathedral, was at once appointed chairman of the department of churches of the mayor's committee and the churches of the entire city were organized to meet this emergency relief call.

The dividing of the city into districts, and the mobilization of the city churches in these districts with a key church to relay the requests from the community to the individual church, is a new method of working through the churches. The district group meetings will have a permanent value in that problems peculiar to their own neighborhoods can thus be discussed. At present, the common problem is relief—physical and recreational — and the churches will have the privilege of supplying the spiritual background upon which to base action during emergencies, and provide brotherly counsel in normal times.

Each church has been asked to take care entirely of one or more families—feeding, clothing and housing. Many of the churches, notably Trinity Cathedral, have opened their buildings thus providing recreation. At Trinity there are movie shows, entertainments of various

ISOLATED CHURCHMEN

THERE are thousands of Church families whose only contact with the Church is through the printed word. They are on remote farms, in the hills and mountains. We would like to reach these people regularly with The Witness. A layman of the Church has put at our disposal a small fund for this purpose. We now ask other readers to share in this. For each dollar received from readers for this purpose we will draw on this fund for a similar sum and mail the paper each week for a year to some isolated Church family. If you care to send us the name and address of such a family so much the better. If not we will request them for this purpose from diocesan offices. Let's get a Church weekly into the homes of these people. Less than two cents a week from you will do it. It will mean much to these people, and to the Church. Write the editorial office at 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

sorts and lectures which amuse as well as inform. The attendance at the first entertainments at the Cathedral was less than 200 but the number has rapidly increased until now there are from 500 to a solid thousand at each show. Finally the churches are supplying the associated charities with volunteer workers.

* * *

Bishop Creighton, secretary of domestic missions, was the speaker at the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, diocese of Albany, meeting at Schenectady, April 20th and 21st. The attendance at the meeting was around five hundred, a record of some sort, with three hundred of them official delegates.

* * *

Bishop Brown of Harrisburg was honored at a citizens' dinner held at St. John's, Huntingdon, Pa., on April 19th. The mayor, a Roman priest, a judge of the supreme court and the superintendent of the state industrial school were the speakers. All they needed was Babe Ruth or Jimmy Walker to make the party complete.

* * *

Churches and institutions of the church share largely in the estate of the late Mrs. Frances G. Peck of New Haven, Connecticut. St. Thomas Church, New Haven, receives $25,000; parish organizations receive $4,000; missionary district of Alaska receives $3,000; Church hospital in Alaska, $3,000; the National Council $5,000; and the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese receives $3,000.

* * *

Bishop Creighton, who was formerly the rector of St. Andrew's, Albany, N. Y., was honored at a dinner given by that parish on April 21st. Bishop Creighton and Bishop Oldham were the speakers.

* * *

Something over $12,000 has been raised in the diocese of Maryland to be applied to the diocesan budget of $152,000. Pledges for the year amounted to only $113,000 so a special committee, with the Rev. Robert S. Chalmers as chairman, was appointed to see what they could do about it. This brings them up to $125,000, leaving but $27,000 to be raised by the Whitsunday Offering to bring them up to the full amount. The nation-wide quota and the diocese share in this budget on a partnership basis.

* * *

A fine tribute was paid to the Rev. Smith Owen Dexter, resigned rector of Trinity Church, Concord, Massachusetts, in the local paper of the city. In a long front page story it says:

"Dominant in Mr. Dexter's character, more potent than these qualities, are his sincerity and his adherence to his convictions. Like Thoreau and Emerson he has been an apostle of intellectual liberty, following them in the spirit of libertarian tradition. Where his convictions have differed from those of others, he has adhered to his own with temperance, tolerance, and sincerity. This adherence has not, perhaps, always been easy for him. Yet in so doing he has not lost the affection and the reverence of his parishioners."

Incidentally it is by no means certain that we have heard the last of this resignation. Mr. Dexter, because of his adherence to his convictions, placed his resignation in the hands of the vestry. The whole matter has been discussed on the most friendly terms, with the vestry finally accepting the resignation. But apparently the parishioners wished to have something to say on the subject, for a petition, signed by three-fourths of the members of the parish has recently been handed to the vestry urging them to do everything possible to persuade Mr. Dexter to reconsider his action.

* * *

The Rev. Hiram R. Bennett, rector of Christ Church, Williamsport, Pa., has been elected rector of St. John's, South Williamsport; all of which means that he is to run two parishes instead of just one.

* * *

Editors and managers of Church papers met in Washington on April 29 and 30th to discuss their common problems. The Rev. Guy Emery Shipler gave an address on the mission of a Church weekly as the representative of the papers of the Episcopal Church. There was a discussion of such problems as advertising, how to awaken reader interest, what are the weaknesses of the church press, whether or not they should carry world news and what attitude the church papers should take on national issues, particularly the coming presidential election.

* * *

The missionary district of New Mexico and Southwest Texas met in convocation on April 13-15 at Roswell, N. M., with an encouraging report from Bishop Howden in which he stated that the district broke all records for confirmation last year, had more clergy in active service than ever before, and made its full payment of its 1931 missionary quota. There was much talk of economy, both in the diocesan office and at the Church Missions House. They, however, refused to adopt a resolution urging further economy at the Church Missions House though they did vote against making a Whitsunday Deficiency appeal. The Auxiliary, Daughters of the King, Girls' Friendly and Young People's Service League held conventions at the same time. The host of the convocation was the Rev. F. B. Howden Jr. There was no hostess, but there will be one when they meet at Roswell again for young Mr. Howden took himself a bride a week ago.

* * *

Bishop Perry, returning to Providence after an absence of seven weeks in Europe, expressed confidence that the $400,000 needed to balance the budget of the National Church would be in hand within a month.

* * *

Trinity, second oldest church in Chicago, is to celebrate the 90th anniversary of its founding on May 22-29. The celebration will recall many interesting incidents in the history of the parish, including the fact that the services were held for a time in a saloon. Just how they are to celebrate that historic event is not stated. Two former rectors are on the program, the Rev. Frederick C. Grant, now the dean of the Western Seminary and the Rev. Barney Phillips of Washington.

* * *

The Rev. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., was the preacher last Sunday at St. Thomas' Church, New York, the service being the annual alumni service of the school. Church schools he said should not submit to secularization.

Dr. Drury denied that he was recommending that schools be "little greenhouses of sentimentality." A school, he said, should be an "altruistic, selfless institution." According to his theory of education, said Drury, "learning should be loving, teaching should be done through touching the boy's personality and all the boy's progress should be through development of his personality."

Dr. Drury said that boys should be inspired to go out in the world to count and with a desire to minister rather than be administered to. This ideal, he said, could be instilled by raising in the boys a spirit of adventure. Dr. Drury criticised parents for not giving their sons more exciting and adventurous summers.

* * *

It is getting to be a habit for the children of St. John's, Elkhart, Indiana, to win the banner of the diocese for the largest per capita Lenten offering. Children of 19 schools presented a total of $1,100 the other Sunday, with six of them showing an increase over last year.

* * *

A home for the aged poor of the

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

For These Hard Times, —a New Religious Novel

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY of New York issues a Biblical tale from the pen of Louis Wallis, "By the Waters of Babylon, a Story of Ancient Israel." It is the first novel which has the modern "higher criticism" as its background, and is warmly commended for historical and scientific accuracy by theological scholars. The plot is cast in a very dramatic period of Israel's history, when ethical monotheism was evolving out of paganism through a great struggle for social justice. In The Living Church, Dr. John H. Hopkins writes: "This brilliant book is a most helpful addition to our libraries." Bishop Francis J. McConnell says: "The author's expert knowledge of the Old Testament is manifest on every page. I found the movement easy and the narrative vivid and refreshing."

The author, whose earlier volume "Sociological Study of the Bible" is a standard work, says: "The Bible should be re-examined as a literature produced in hard times, which raises the problem of social justice and world peace. The Scriptural conception of one true God entered the human mind as a revelation taking form through the pressure of economic and sociological forces identical in nature with the forces which are now influencing religious thought."

By the Waters of Babylon, by Louis Wallis, can be had from all booksellers, or from The Macmillan Company, New York City, for $2.00. —Advt.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania

Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.

Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

diocese of Rhode Island is the chief cause to be benefited by the will of Mrs. Grace P. Edwards, wife of the Rev. L. B. Edwards, former rector at Edgewood. The bequest, upward of $100,000, is contingent upon the provisions in the will of her husband, but he now intends to work out plans for the institution so that it may be started during his lifetime. One of his tentative ideas is to provide the home with small apartments so that husband and wife may spend their last days together.

* * *

The baseball team of St. Paul's University, Tokyo, sixteen in all, was entertained last week by the Church Club of Chicago. Among those present were: A grand old man of the University of Chicago, Alonzo A. Stagg; his boss, the president of the University, Robert M. Hutchins, and Mr. George Marshall, the director of athletics at St. Paul's. Mr. John D. Allen, president of the Church Club, presided.

* * *

The convention of the diocese of Georgia met April 27 and 28, with the executive council and the departments meeting on the 26th.

* * *

The province of Sewanee leads all others in the number of trained leaders in the department of religious education. The Rev. Gardiner L. Tucker, executive secretary, in speaking recently in Savannah, stated that 161, or 31%, of the total number of teachers in the National Church who hold diplomas for having completed a twelve course special study are in his province.

* * *

The Rev. Eric M. Tasman has accepted the position of General Secretary of the field department of the National Council, to which he was elected at the February meeting of the Council. He starts on his new job on June 15th. At present he is the rector of St. Paul's, Lansing, Michigan. He is a graduate of Kenyon College, attended the Cambridge Theological Seminary and finished his theological training at Bexley Hall, seminary of Kenyon College.

* * *

The summer school of the diocese of Chicago, for the past two years held at St. Albans School, Sycamore, this year is being held again at Taylor Hall, Racine, Wisconsin. It is to open on June 27th and continue for two weeks. The Rev. Gerald G. Moore is the chairman. Bishop Stewart is to be a lecturer for one week and Bishop Johnson, editor, the other.

* * *

One hundred and fifty families in Sewickley, Pa., are receiving bread and milk daily at St. Stephen's

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop

HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.

Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.

Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK

A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS

By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

Washington Cathedral

A Witness for Christ in the Capital of the Nation

THE CHAPTER appeals to Churchmen throughout the country for gifts, large and small, to continue the work of building now proceeding, and to maintain its work, Missionary, Educational, Charitable, for the benefit of the whole Church.

Chartered under Act of Congress.

Administered by a representative Board of Trustees of leading business men, Clergymen and Bishops.

Full information will be given by the Bishop of Washington, or the Dean, Cathedral Offices, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D. C., who will receive and acknowledge all contributions.

Legal Title for Use in Making Wills:

THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL FOUNDATION OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church. The district nurses are co-operating with the women of the parish in this work which has been carried on through the winter months.

* * *

St. Paul's-by-the-Lake, Chicago, celebrated its 50th anniversary with parties that started on April 27th.

* * *

Plans for the Erie-Pittsburgh summer conference, to be held June 26-July 1 at Kiskiminetas Spring School, are completed. The faculty consists of George R. Beddinger, director of the state charities association; Alfred Hamer, choirmaster of Trinity Cathedral, Pittsburgh, who is to give a course on the history of music in the Western Church; Miss Etta Ambler, Richmond, on missionary education; Rev. E. L. Gettier, Baltimore, on young people's work; Rev. Elmore McKee, Buffalo, who is to do the preaching; Miss Ruth Osgood of the Auxiliary; Miss Florence Newbold of the Girls' Friendly; Miss Martha Kimball, Daughters of the King and Leon C. Palmer, Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Bishop Mann of Pittsburgh and Bishop Ward of Erie are to be present during the entire conference.

* * *

If you can believe the Hon. John J. Sonsteby, chief justice of the municipal court of Chicago, there is less crime in that city than there used to be. He presented a lot of figures to the Catholic Club, meeting at the Church of the Advent, to prove it. He told of methods being used to expedite the handling of crime cases and of special efforts being made in connection with social service cases.

* * *

In the quaint Avenida de los Martires (Avenue of the Martyrs) in the inland city of Camagüey, the Bishop of Cuba at the head of a long procession of clergy and choristers, stood knocking at the door of a beautiful new Church. A huge crowd interestedly watched as thus began the consecration of the Iglesia de San Pablo, the gift of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of New York.

A gem of Spanish architecture, lovely but simple with its carvings of native wood and fine wrought-iron-work, this Church triumphantly crowns many discouraging years of effort with almost no equipment. The clergy of the mission field do not need to have interpreted for them the phrase: "making brick without straw".

So it is no wonder that there was a note of enthusiasm in the Archdeaconry Conference which preceded the consecration and which nearly all the clergy of the Island attended. This was heightened when the visitors inspected the beautiful, splendidly equipped new building of the Colegio (School) de San Pablo which is just behind the Church.

* * *

Plans have been accepted for a new rectory for Trinity-Emmanuel Church, Litchfield, Minnesota, the Rev. W. E. Harmann, rector. The old rectory is to be sold and moved away and work on the new rectory will start presently. Mr. Harmann, now serving the parish in his fourteenth year as rector, was born, baptized and confirmed in the parish, which is surely something to put in the papers.

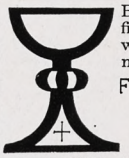
* * *

Bishop Sherrill of Massachusetts, in his address before the diocesan convention — the 147th annual convention incidentally — described the conditions which confront the world as "an indication of approaching chaos or the birth-pangs of a nobler international and social order." In such times, "we must have a higher standard for admission to the ministry. There is no place so small that it can be served by a poorly trained or intellectually lazy clergyman. Every layman also is a missionary by the fact of his baptism. He too is to out-think the pagan of today. The crying need is for more study of the mind of Christ. Knowledge of theology, of the Bible, and of church history is almost entirely lacking on the part of many lay people. Nothing is more harmful to the church than professing Christians who have social standards and morality no better than the average."

* * *

The Rev. Earle G. Lier, formerly on the staff of the Incarnation, New York, was instituted rector of Christ Church, Tarrytown, N. Y., on April 24th. Bishop Manning also confirmed a class of thirty-eight, the second largest class presented during the past hundred years.

* * *



A confirmation class was presented at Trinity Church, Rock Island, Illinois, the other day—twenty-eight of them in all. The youngest was eight and the oldest was eighty, with six in the class over sixty years of age. Three of the class were born in foreign countries. The Rev. Rodney F. Cobb is the rector.

* * *

The service for the presentation of the missionary offerings of the children of the diocese of New York will be held at the cathedral on Saturday, May 21.

* * *

The diocesan council of Texas cut off the appropriation to the diocesan paper in January with the expres-

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—

F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)

CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.

MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

KNIGHTS OF STS. JOHN

Wins young men to the Church. Provides worthwhile things to do. Endorsed by leading Bishops and Clergy. Manual of initiations $1. Rev. F. M. Wetherill, 3012 W. Coulter St., Phila., Pa.

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St. Boston

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

sion of regret over the passing of the useful mouthpiece. But they were hasty with their burial. The editor, the Rev. F. P. Goddard got busy. The Bishop of the diocese, Bishop Quin, financed the February issue out of his discretionary fund. Meanwhile Mr. Goddard got the Church schools and Young People's Fellowship busy with a result that 1300 paid subscriptions have been received, and they have really just started. So the paper goes gaily on.

* * *

The Albany (N. Y.) Cathedral Summer School is to be held in Albany June 20 to 25. Plans are not entirely complete, but among the lecturers are to be the Rev. Niles Carpenter on social problems, the Rev. D. A. McGregor on adult education, Bishop Johnson of Colorado on Church history, and the Rev. S. C. Hughson on preaching.

* * *

The Blue Grass Conference is the name of a joint venture to be conducted by the dioceses of Kentucky and Lexington for six days, beginning June 12th.

* * *

Services for the presentation of the children's Lenten offering in the diocese of Maine is to be held on May 8th at St. Luke's Cathedral, Portland; St. Mark's, Augusta; St. John's, Bangor; St. Saviour's, Bar Harbor and St. Paul's, Fort Fairfield.

* * *

The third session of the Shrine Mont Summer School for clergy is to meet at Shrine Mont, Virginia, June 27 to July 8. The lecturers this year are to be the Rev. C. B. Wilmer of the Sewanee Theological School; the Rev. Stanley Brown-Seaman of Alexandria; the Rev. W. E. Rollins of Alexandria and the Rev. E. Clowes Chorley of Garrison, N. Y.

* * *

What sort of a parishioner are you? The parish paper of St. Paul's, Yonkers, N. Y. divides the sheep from the goats in this way: in class A they place the pillars of the Church who may be depended upon to attend services, to contribute to its support and to cooperate in its activities. They state it as their opinion that these folks comprise about 20% in the average parish. In class B are those who may be depended upon for special things—the annual bazaar and the Christmas and Easter services. Class C are made up of the rest of us. Confirmed once upon a time, the son was in the choir perhaps which brought us to church on occasions to see him perform, and then of course we want the church for marriages and funerals.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE BISHOPS MEET WITH THE COUNCIL

(Continued from page 9)

did make rather definite recommendations which should be considered when cuts are again made, and further asking them to consider the many opinions expressed at the meeting, particularly those contained in the report by the bishops of the Second Province.

Speeches of All Sorts

With that trying bit out of the way the House settled back into their chairs to listen to speeches. First of all there was a bully one by Mr. William R. Castle, under secretary of the state department, and a member of the National Council, in which he praised the work the Church is doing in Japan, where he was stationed for a considerable time. Then the staff at the Church Missions House had their chance to speak. Dr. Franklin pleaded for early planning for the Every Member Canvass this fall, and Dr. Reinheimer, executive secretary of the field department, told of many things. It was all very interesting but rather trying after a hard day. As a result some of the bishops occupied their time reading newspapers, others walked out, not a few took naps while most did none of these things since they were particularly well brought up in childhood.

There were many pleasing features to the conference, as well as some legislative action on the part of the Council which will have to be held over until another week because of lack of space this week. There was much good fellowship; splendid if somewhat bountiful meals, and the usual amount of lobby talk which is in a way the most valuable part of these parties. The diocese of Long Island did a dandy job in entertaining, to which I suppose a large share of the credit should go to Bishop Stires and Dean Sargent. And Bishop Johnson of Colorado and Dr. Percy Silver of New York injected gay notes with frequent wise-cracks, while Bishop Jenkins of Nevada, who as far as I know is not generally known as a wit, will have such a reputation to live down if he is not careful in the future. He talked for a considerable time about Hoover Dam before the members of the National Council could make up their minds whether or not he was delivering a democratic speech, while his speech about "my Nevada women" whom he was trying to protect against any further wage cuts was a gem of unconscious humor.

So all in all it was a pleasant occasion. Everyone went away apparently happy with a feeling that the staff at the Church Missions House and the National Council are doing the best they know how with a difficult job—that while there are things to criticise they will be straightened out in time—and that the immediate task is to pitch in with the Whitsunday offering so that the work for the balance of this year may go on.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

These Church Schools

are recognized as official schools of the Episcopal Church. Among the chief characteristics of these Schools are the following:

1. Founded by Churchmen with a religious purpose they remain loyal to their heritage.

2. They devote themselves to the secondary education of young men and women and in this field maintain standards of recognized excellence.

3. Seeking quality rather than quantity, they limit their student enrollment and apply with success personal methods in instruction.

4. Their students lead a common and wholesome social life under the uplifting influence of the Church's system.

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK
Headmaster

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG
Rector

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS
Headmaster

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB
Rector

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD
Rector

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR
Rector

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
REV. CHARLES L. STREET
Headmaster

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK
President

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND
President

SHATTUCK SCHOOL
FARIBAULT, MINNESOTA
C. W. NEWHALL
Headmaster

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE
Rector

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS
Principal

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.
Principal

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES
Principal

ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR
Principal

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.
Principal

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE.
MRS. C. A. MCLANE
Principal

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT
Principal

ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS
President

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL
DAVENPORT, IOWA
SISTER ESTHER
Principal

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE RECENT CONFERENCE—by Bishop Johnson

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 12, 1932

RECTORY AT HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
One of the Proposed New Buildings

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·& R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
ESTD 1857

Praise God
Church Furniture
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Craftsmen in Stained Glass
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. Eighth & Court Sts.
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET N Y
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND
MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

J·WIPPELL & Co LTD
will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for Embroidery·Wood
Stone·Metal and
Stained Glass
EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · · 11, Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 38 MAY 12, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

THE RECENT CONFERENCE

An Editorial by
BISHOP JOHNSON

THE joint meeting of the House of Bishops and of the National Council, held recently in Garden City through the generous hospitality of Bishop Stires, was an effort to face the problems which confront the Church in view of the present economic conditions. The session emphasized the faith that the Church must not sacrifice its idealism at a time when moral courage is most essential. The Church proclaims in all times of adversity that men ought to lift up their hearts because God is in Heaven and does not permit us to be tried more than we are able to bear. When all other forces fail men seek God's aid as they do not seek it when man's self sufficiency seems adequate for our immediate needs.

It was pointed out that the ten per cent reduction all along the line was more a matter of readjustment of salaries to the increased purchasing power of the dollar than it was a cut. If salaries have been reduced ten per cent the increased purchasing power of the dollar has increased to a similar amount.

It was also indicated that the National Council was at the present time in a solvent condition, although faced with a possible deficit which it is hoped will be met by the Whitsunday offering. Massachusetts and Pennsylvania have already pledged nearly a fourth of that amount so that the expectancy of raising it all is excellent if each communicant will do something to aid in the effort. If this is done the National Council will be able to meet their budget for the current year.

The assembly however was more concerned in preparing for the year 1933. It was agreed that drastic retrenchment might be necessary in view of the problems which we face in feeding the unemployed with reduced incomes.

AT THE outset of the meeting there was a wide divergence of opinion as to whether future cuts should be made, if they become necessary. It was hoped that the increased effort on the part of the Church to add to the number of givers would offset the decreased offerings due to the inability of former donors to give as largely as in previous years. It was also understood that the problem is one which faces the National Council and that the House of Bishops were called in to advise and not to dictate.

The House of Bishops unanimously expressed their confidence in the National Council. They realized the difficulties that confront that body in determining where the largest saving could be made without damage to the work already set up. They also acknowledged that those who were the responsible agents of the Church were better informed as to the places where retrenchment could be made and so refrained from attempting any suggestions of a detailed character.

There was an animated discussion in which the House was about evenly divided as to whether the National Council should retrench in departmental activities of administrative or academic character or whether the cut if necessary should be made along the whole front. In the end it was unanimously decided that the suggested order of retrenchment made in General Convention should be adhered to in which the Foreign field should be reached last in such reduction and certain activities mentioned should suffer first. But there was also a distinct emphasis made upon the care which should be exercised in expenditure of the dollar which represented sacrifice on the part of individual, parish and diocese in their contributions.

That there may have been individuals in the personnel of the Church Missions House activities who have sometimes manifested extravagance of an irritating character is most likely. It would be difficult to gather any group of employees in any organization which spends other people's money who would not be inconsiderate of the same, but it was shown that such petty extravagance aggregated only a small part of the whole amount involved. Unfortunately it is the little things thoughtlessly done, which give the most unpleasant reactions. The Bishops advised a more scrupulous care in the oversight of unnecessary extravagance, even though it involved small sums in the aggregate.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

It was pointed out that the departmental activities (so called) did not involve expenditures which would meet the whole need of retrenchment even if they were radically reduced. It was also pointed out that the work in aided dioceses and domestic districts could be profitably investigated. It too often happens that mission churches in small towns are recipients of a pension which they come to regard as a privilege rather than a missionary grant inciting them to greater effort. A committee is at present engaged in making such evaluation.

IN SHORT it was clearly seen that in a nation wide institution which annually expends about four million dollars and in which there are innumerable precedents of privilege it requires a long time and extreme care in making drastic alterations. It is for this reason that it is necessary to consider so far in advance the policy for the year 1933.

It is hard for the Church to order evictions and to destroy privileges long enjoyed. It can not be done rapidly by a body which meets but four times a year.

As one who is opposed to the set up of departments as now existing, I am obliged to accede to the mandate of General Convention which set them up and while I would favor retrenchment first in those departments other than those of missions, I could see that a large body of bishops regarded these departments so favorably that it would be a questionable policy to reduce them to skeleton formation at this time. In any event the status of these departments is a matter for General Convention and not for the National Council to decide. After all, the vitality of the Church depends upon the loyal support of that body which has been established by General Convention to do the work that they are conscientiously striving to do. It is our duty as Churchmen to give them our individual support, even if we differ from some of their policies.

It was brought out in the meeting that seventy per cent of Church people do not contribute anything to the work of the whole Church. Eliminating non-wage earners from the computation, it is probable that one-half our membership are giving practically nothing, while the other half do not average ten dollars a year. Surely the average contributor should be willing to give something to the organization which makes the diocese and the parish possible. No member of a lodge would dream of evading the sum allocated to the Grand Chapter. There is a duty to support the whole Church which is not primarily to the acceptance of how all the money is spent.

I HAVE no doubt that the widow's mite was spent very foolishly by Annas and Caiaphas, but the Master was looking more at the spirit displayed in a sacrificial gift than by the way in which those responsible for its expenditure used it. They are two different questions involving two separate responsibilities.

A very small fraction of the whole is spent in ways that would not meet the approval of us all. We dare not withhold what we ought to do, because some of it is spent contrary to our desire. The proportion which people give and their attitude toward the giving reminds me of the story of the Irish soldier, who met his Colonel in the city and asked him for the loan of a dime to pay his carfare to the fort. "Didn't you get paid yesterday?" said the Colonel. "Yes, I got $26.50", said Pat. "What did you do with it?" said the Colonel. "Well I spent ten dollars for liquor and lost sixteen dollars in a game of poker." "What about the other fifty cents?" said the Colonel. "Oh, I guess I spent that foolishly" said Pat.

I don't think that our Church members spend their principal sums so recklessly but I am afraid that they regard the sum given to the work of the whole Church in somewhat the same light as Pat looked upon the half dollar that had slipped through his fingers.

A Sunday in New York

By

WILLIAM PORKESS

NOT officiating anywhere, but rather as a worshipper and listener, here and there. And, indeed, it was a luxury and an inspiration. I took my Communion, early, at one of our churches, within walking distance of the hotel at which I was staying. The celebration was held in the chapel and the rector was the celebrant. To me there was a spiritual atmosphere in the way in which he celebrated. When I entered this chapel there was just one person there. Others came before the scheduled time to begin. This person happened to be a bishop, who was a long way from home. For years he has impressed me as one who is tireless in his labors for God, and humble and brilliant to a marked degree. At eleven o'clock it was my privilege to attend St. Bartholomew's Church, when the rector, the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, was announced to preach. That large and beautiful building was filled to the doors. The service, from beginning to end, sustained a high worshipful note. So much so that I shall not easily forget its impetus. The rector, without any strained elocutionary effort, read his own lessons. He made them really sermons in themselves. His message gripped, made clear and desirable a spiritual theme, and above all one felt that God was speaking through the man.

At three-thirty I visited the national broadcasting studio to hear the Rev. Dr. Parkes Cadman's half-hour service. He spoke on "The Simplicities of Life," and said much in little, with convincing effectiveness. The thought of the possibility of an invisible congregation of millions listening to this fearless and strikingly able exponent of the Gospel acted on me as a thrill. In the visible congregation I noticed the Bishop of Utah and he and I, after the service, compared notes, finding ourselves agreed as to the beauty and power of this brief service.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A little after four o'clock I walked across the way to St. Thomas' Church, to attend the annual service for the alumni of St. Paul's School. This great church was well filled. The address was given by the gifted, experienced and much beloved headmaster, the Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Drury. His message I shall long remember. How I wished that all parents, making up the membership of our Church, could have heard him, for all that he said so well, was sound and to the point. His theme was "Education." A definition that he gave several times, but not too often, I had not heard before. "Education," said he, "is learning through loving." Another expression that he used, and which lingers in my memory was, "it is not yours but you we seek." Still once more I went to church. And, again, it was to St. Bartholomew's, the eight o'clock evensong. The church was three quarters full. The service, described as "The Office of Immortals," was used. It was new to me, and because of its content and the way it was rendered, wonderfully helpful. The rector preached again, and how he preached! For fifty minutes—not a moment too long, he literally poured out his soul on "Experiencing Christ." I felt, and unquestionably many others did, that here was a man telling us about the Man of Galilee, that he himself had definitely met —gloriously experienced. So the Sunday in New York, thus described, was to your writer the Lord's Day in the richest possible way.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

XIV. The Anglican Communion

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

"I AM the tree and ye are the branches." "Except you abide in me, ye will bring forth no fruit." In what sense can a person become a vine having branches and fruit? It is only as we appreciate the word made flesh that this parable can have significance. If God took our nature and became man, then He began a new Kingdom on earth. He was in truth, as St. Paul said, "a second Adam." Then the natural man can be grafted into this vine and receive life and nourishment therefrom. Baptism becomes a new birth. The Eucharist becomes our spiritual food. The Church becomes the extension of our Lord's humanity. Religion becomes a biological relationship instead of a philosophical theory. There is real significance to the statement that we so eat the flesh and drink the blood that Christ dwells in us and we in Him. The Church becomes the instrument through which the grace and virtue that dwelt in Him is imparted to those who are both grafted into the vine and produce its fruits. This is not a mechanical system, for not only must we be incorporated in His body, but we must also be responsive to His teaching. The root of the vine is the word made flesh. The trunk of the vine is the Apostolic Church.

The chief emphasis is not upon the authority vested in this or that order of the ministry but upon the power transmitted to the whole body of the faithful, so that whatsoever they bind on earth, will be confirmed in Heaven.

It is the unity and continuity of the whole Church which was the chief concern of the Master who prayed that all of His disciples might be one and that they might persevere in the life which He bestowed upon them.

"There were to be diversity of gifts but one spirit"; there were to be branches growing out of the common trunk; there were to be differences of administration, but a common loyalty.

In this story of the Church we have seen how the Church preserved its unity during the period of the General Councils, and how the Petrine claims of the Papacy were disallowed at the General Council of 451 at Chalcedon. From that date on there was an increasing friction between the bishops of Rome and Constantinople which finally resulted in the cleavage between the Eastern and the Western Church. From the year 800 there were two branches growing out of the common trunk, each bearing witness to the same faith and worship, but each member saying to the other, "I have no need of thee," regardless of the fact that it was not given to one branch to cut off the other. While the Roman hierarchy was unable to bring the Eastern Church under its domination, it did succeed in imposing its claims upon Western Europe and developed a growing autocracy, not only over Churches, but over secular Kingdoms as well. Primacy evolved into supremacy and supremacy eventuated into infallibility.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The Reformation on the Continent was a revolution in which continuity was lost and unity hopelessly destroyed. Not only were Luther, Calvin and Zwingle at outs with Rome; they were equally at outs with one another. They sacrificed the official ministry to self-constituted prophets; they substituted confessions of faith for the historic creeds; they made the altar subordinate to the pulpit and the organ. Out of this revolt has come the chaos of the modern sects.

In England, a different process took place. There it as a struggle for supremacy between Pope and King in which contest the Pope was handicapped by the intolerable abuses which lay at his door. If the Englishman had to be robbed they preferred that the coin remain in England. If the sheep had to be sheered and butchered, they preferred an English to an Italian shambles.

That which took place in England was exactly similar to that which had taken place previously between Greek and Roman. The cleavage was not on the faith and practice of the Church but over a struggle for power and dominion.

Again there was a branch that grew out of the controversy. There was no intention to alter the ministry, the sacraments, or the faith, but rather to deliver the household from an intolerable situation.

It is not a question of the morals of Henry or Cranmer. If they were no better than their opponents, they certainly were no worse. They were products of the Papal System and reflected such credit upon the forces that produced them as they were able to do.

The question which confronts us is not their characters, but that which came out of their action. One can understand the hesitation of Sir Thomas More to substitute a Tudor for the Pope as head of the Church, but in his "Utopia" he seemed to get rid of both; in England at that date he had to choose between them. There was no third choice then.

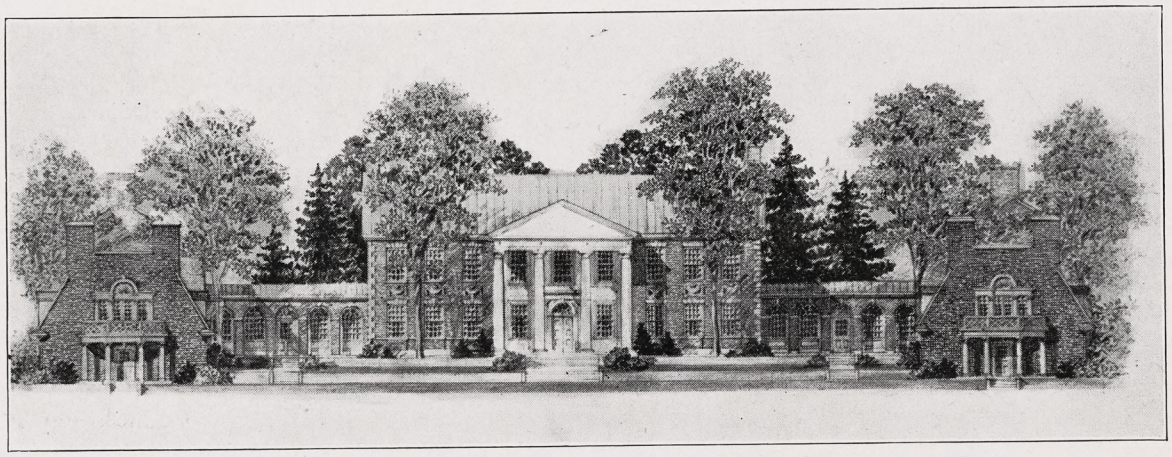
During the reign of the Tudors the Church had merely changed Masters. During that of the Stuarts she tried to unite Rome, Geneva and Canterbury in one household. It proved impossible. During Cromwell's time she was forcibly turned over to sectarian rule. It was chaos. Under the Hanovinians she became the tool for politicians and the symbol of religious respectability. But under the providence of God she was rescued from her enemies, inspired by evangelical fervor, restored to Catholic practice, and freed from political bosses and she arose from her lethargy to begin her career of carrying her witness to the uttermost parts of the earth. In Elizabeth's time the Anglican Church was represented by a score of bishops in the British Isles. Today her light shines on every Continent and she numbers among her children all nations of the earth. She has lost her English connotation, and has taken on an international character; and acquired freedom from secular and hierarchial interference. She represents the primitive Church in her faith and practice. That is her aim and object. It is not the sanctity of individual Roman Catholics that the Anglican Church questions, it is rather the polity of her hierarchy which seems to produce a paralysis of leavening influence in those countries in which she has undisputed sway.

It is not my business to judge the individual in the exercise of his religion, but I am commanded by the Master to judge hierarchies and prophets by their fruits. I have a right to compare Spain and England; the Philippines and Uganda; Mexico and Canada, and to say that the papal system breaks down where it has the most unrestricted opportunity. It fails utterly to leaven the lump as early Christians leavened the Roman Empire.

The Vine has several branches. It is essential for me that I be in the vine and so related to the root. I believe that the sap springing from the root is essential to the life of the branches and to the permanence of its fruitfulness.

The Anglican Church has a cordial relationship today with the Greek communion, for whatever minor differences there may be, we stand on the same platform. We are therefore in the center aisle of that great Cathedral known as the Holy Catholic Church. The side aisles are there but they have walled themselves up. The various denominations have taken the Altar out of their side aisle and have substituted philosophy for worship; intellectual agreement for charity; narrow isolation for an international of love. On the other side aisle is the Roman Altar. They have walled it in by cutting off from communion both the Greek and the Anglican.

I am content to remain in the center between these two religious groups, each of whom are fully persuaded in their own minds that there's is the way of life. In neither of them however do I find that wide catholicity which reflects the candor and charity of the Master.



It may have much or little to do with one's personal salvation. God is just and merciful in His dealings with us sinners. That is His business not ours. But it is our business to take heed whom we hear and to test the prophets who claim authority over us. In such a test, entirely devoid of personal judgments, looking solely to the ideals presented by these systems, it would seem that it is the function of the Anglican Church to preserve all that has been entrusted to it with scrupulous fidelity and at the same time to manifest that love for freedom, which is of the essence of the liberty of the sons of God.

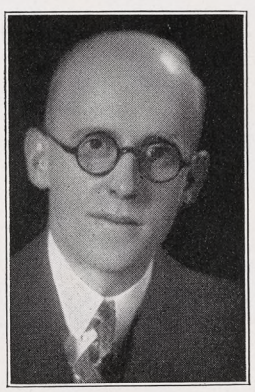
We may be lacking in zeal and we may seem lax in discipline, but wherein the Anglican Church has the opportunity to manifest its mission, supported by those who love its ideals and voluntarily obey its directions, it produces the kind of atmosphere which seems most consistent with the ethics of the Master.

Where you find reverence and sanity and kindliness, there you are not very far from the Kingdom of Heaven.

(To be concluded next week)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

A CAMPUS VIEW



HOLDERNESS SCHOOL

By

JOHN G. WINANT

The Governor of New Hampshire

ALL institutions that have seen over half a century have a past, a present, and a future, but I believe few fall into such distinct stages as Holderness School, where the past is very different from the present, and the present from the future. Holderness has completed an era which can not possibly be continued, — her present stage I hope will never need to be repeated, and she looks forward to an uncertain but very tempting future.

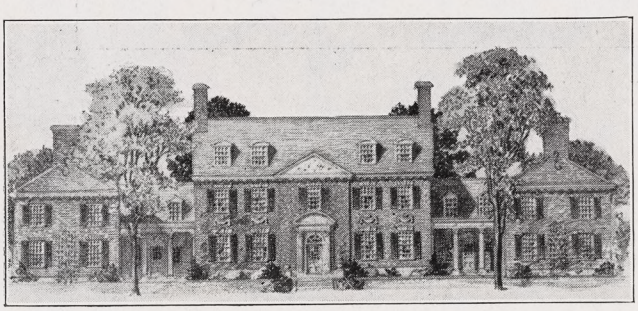
EDRIC A. WELD
Rector of Holderness

From 1883 to 1931 the life of Holderness centered in Knowlton Hall. Within its three story brick walls and under its pointed gables and towers lived from 40 to 80 boys, depending on the times, all the faculty, and the staff. During the morning the boys moved over to the one story wooden school house and in the afternoon they were on the athletic field or in the gym, but to an old Holderness boy the "School" meant Knowlton Hall, in the heart of the New Hampshire hills and woods. They knew every bit of both, from the Livermore Falls Road to the Bishop's Stairs, which led up back of the dining room,—so named because they did not afford sufficient passageway for the large frame of Bishop Niles.

Today Knowlton Hall lives only in the memory of 700 sons. A fire which broke out at two in the morning of October 21st left only the brick walls,—a high wind three days later laid the north wing flat on the ground, and a skillful wrecking crew finished the job and stacked the brick in neat piles for future use. So the past of Holderness is an era that can not be repeated.

When the alarm was sounded the whole north wing was filled with smoke. The sleepers had no time to collect clothes or valuables. Instead they collected each other, the last ones through smoke so thick that a flashlight could not pierce from bed to door. But when roll-call was held everyone was out without an injury. Then to the work of saving the school records and property, and helping the firemen in their fruitless attempt to save the north and east wings.

It was an emergency that everyone rose to, gloriously; and the same spirit has been shown by boys and masters in the temporary winter quarters, a rented hotel building a mile from the campus. Holderness luck was certainly with us, enabling us to continue to use our chapel, gymnasium and athletic field. But a summer hotel is not designed for school purposes, and the conditions of the present year can not be prolonged into the future.



WHAT next? That was the subject of discussion between the rector, the bishop, the trustees, and the architect, Jens Fredrick Larson of Hanover, long a personal friend of Bishop Dallas, who had been called in to contribute his practical knowledge. And not only knowledge but vision: Mr. Larson had just completed the plans for moving Colby College to its new site, and he was ready to look at Holderness in terms of the coming century.

Certain principles emerged. Retaining the best of the past, Holderness must continue as a school that would make a good all-around education available for boys of moderate means, where religion would be a normal part of everyday life, and where numbers would be kept down so that each boy received the necessary individual attention and friendship from the Rector and the faculty. In the past there were also certain handicaps that made the ideal difficult of realization. With a tuition only slightly over half that charged by most of the leading church schools, and with only a small endowment, it was impossible to provide adequate equipment or to pay adequate salaries.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The answer was: (1) build a first class plant of such a design that there will be the smallest amount of upkeep and repairs; (2) increase the amount of "self help" to a point where the boys will take complete care of the buildings; (3) increase the size of the school to one hundred, the most economical working unit, but keep it homelike by building four "houses" instead of one large hall; (4) keep the tuition to the minimum that will be necessary for excellent teachers, wholesome food, and a small staff, $900; (5) secure a scholarship fund for boys who can not meet the tuition.

THE SOCIAL HALL

To complete this program will take more money than can be raised in one year, but it will be a real missionary project:—to give boys from homes where real work is the accepted order of life (the backbone of our country) not merely the education that will help them into college or in business, but will make them reverent far-seeing citizens, with a profound sense of the rights of others, and of their responsibility to lead in making a new world. We also want to give them resources for their leisure time, and the school will encourage each boy to develop some hobby or interest; either some form of craft-work or musical expression such as glee club, choir and orchestra, or dramatics, or the appreciation of painting and drawing. This year we installed a shop for metal work, which has proved a great stimulant, and next year we plan to add a carpenter shop. The school owns two hundred acres of woodland adjoining its campus. This and the northern winters will give us a fine opportunity for the development of winter sports.

THE country is witnessing many valuable experiments in "progressive" education, and we who can not afford to risk so much owe heartfelt thanks to the pioneers. With the College Board exams looming at such close range our own opportunities are circumscribed. But one feature to which we are looking forward is a new class room building with a separate classroom and office for each instructor, containing the working library of his subject and appropriate pictures. Here the boys can go to study or consult during their free periods, and learning will become more informal in oral recitation and translation.

We have found during this past year that a small group can work together with a minimum of formal discipline. Aided by the common experience of the fire, I believe that Holderness has developed a unique spirit of cooperation. The result has been an increasing self-reliance, and growth in responsibility, which is one of the greatest contributions his school can give to a boy. May it always mark the Holderness boy of the future.

Speaking of the future, there we face uncertainty. At least two buildings, costing nearly $200,000, are necessary if the school is not to go backward next year. A General Committee has been formed, with Bishop James DeWolf Perry, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Judge Robert J. Peaslee and other distinguished persons serving on it, and an Alumni Committee, of which Dr. William S. Hubbard '84, of Brooklyn, is President, and J. H. K. Davis '95, of Hartford, is Chairman. So far a quarter of the amount has been pledged, which includes the Rectory, the gift of Mrs. E. P. Sanderson of Waltham, in memory of her husband. Contributions of friends may be sent to the Treasurer of Holderness School, Plymouth, New Hampshire. With the aid of these contributions we hope to be ready to take care of forty-eight boys this fall, in a school that will provide the best of equipment for all-around development, and a homelike sympathetic atmosphere that will call out all their qualities of initiative and loyalty.

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NATIONAL COUNCIL WELCOMES ITS NEW FAMOUS MEMBERS

Two new members of the National Council were present for the first time at the session held at Garden City, April 26-28; the Hon. William R. Castle Jr., under secretary of state, and Colonel William C. Procter of Cincinnati. Somebody said that the "C." in his name stands for "Chipso" but of course we don't know about that. Then there were two old members back, Judge Philip Parker of Boston and Mr. John S. Bryan of Virginia.

* * *

Mr. William F. Severn of Bridgeport, Conn., was elected a member of the department of foreign missions at the recent meeting.

* * *

The Rev. Robert I. Johnson of New Bern, N. C., a Negro priest, has been made a member of the department of domestic missions.

* * *

The rapid development of Boulder City, Nevada, site of Hoover Dam, has precipitated an immediate need for the work of the Church. Bishop Jenkins presented this need before the National Council and asked for $1800 for a priest. There is a church building now under construction, with the United States government doing some of the work and the cash, $5000, coming from the Advanced Work Program. The Council hesitated a long time about giving a grant of money these days but the work did seem most urgent. Finally it made an appropriation from emergency funds already in the reduced budget. The amount is to be diminished as rapidly as contributions toward it may be secured from the people of the congregation.

* * *

The Girls' Friendly Society sent word to the Council that from the Council's appropriation of $10,000 to the Society, $5,000 has been relinquished, in accordance with the Society's desire to cooperate in the present effort to reduce expenditures.

* * *

Ivinson Hall and Sherwood Hall at Laramie, Wyoming, are hostels for Church students attending the state university high school. The financial situation of the hostels is such that the Bishop of Wyoming asked authorization for special appeals for funds amounting to $10,000 a year for the next three years, and said that unless this money were secured he would in all probability have to close the Halls. After long consideration of this matter, the following resolution was adopted by the Council:

RESOLVED: That in view of the present circumstances, if the Bishop of Wyoming and the Board of Managers of Ivinson Hall and Sherwood Hall, Laramie, find it impossible to operate the Halls without incurring debt, the National Council recommends that the Halls be closed.

* * *

Among matters reported by the field department was the fact that funds for Advance Work projects of the last triennium had been received to the amount of $771,229.39. The department has relinquished the sum of $2,000 from its budget appropriation for travel. The cost to date of promoting the 1932 Deficiency Fund appeal for $400,000 has been $3,324.28 and the total cost will almost certainly not exceed $4,000.

* * *

A number of bequests were reported by the treasurer, in amounts varying from $25.00 to $10,000. They were received from the estates of the late Caroline L. Chapin of Tenafly, N. J., Elizabeth T. White of New Haven, Conn., Clara C. Griswold, Evanston, Ill., Helen Geisinger, Baltimore, Md., Elizabeth C. Brown, New York City, Ella V. Dering, Utica, N. Y., Virginia C. Langdon, Plymouth, Mass., Kate J. Drumm, Johnston, N. Y. The total amount is nearly $30,000.

ISOLATED CHURCHMEN

THERE are thousands of Church families whose only contact with the Church is through the printed word. They are on remote farms, in the hills and mountains. We would like to reach these people regularly with THE WITNESS. A layman of the Church has put at our disposal a small fund for this purpose. We now ask other readers to share in this. For each dollar received from readers for this purpose we will draw on this fund for a similar sum and mail the paper each week for a year to some isolated Church family. If you care to send us the name and address of such a family so much the better. If not we will request them for this purpose from diocesan offices. Let's get a Church weekly into the homes of these people. Less than two cents a week from you will do it. It will mean much to these people, and to the Church. Write the editorial office at 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

Bishop Manning tore into corruption in New York political life in his sermon at St. Paul's Chapel, at a service attended by many notables to commemorate the anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington. "Here in the greatest city of our land," he said, "we are faced with a condition of governmental corruption which is a disgrace to our citizenship and a menace to our whole nation, for dishonesty and corruption in our cities will send its poison through all the arteries of our National life." After pointing to the record, revealed by Judge Seabury, who was also a speaker at this memorial service, the Bishop called upon the Governor of the state to support the gallant effort being made to clean up the situation. "It is time for public men of all parties, and for the representatives of all Churches, both Catholic and Protestant, to unite in the demand that this scandalous situation shall end. It will not do to take refuge in the statement that we must not bring politics into the Church." It was a courageous statement, and all honor to Bishop Manning for making it.

* * *

The executive board of the Woman's Auxiliary met in New York on April 22-25, preceding the meeting of the National Council. Every one of the 19 members were present but one, who is abroad. There was a report of the recent experiment which concentrated the efforts of the field and headquarters staff in one locality, and it was decided to continue it until it has had a thorough trial. There were addresses before the board by most of the staff of the Church Missions House. Miss Mary Ladd reported on the work at Windham House and was able to say that it was paying its way, which is a remarkable record in view of the fact that there are but twelve in residence, and they are there for but part of the year. Miss Bertha Richards reported on the work at Tuttle School, Raleigh, N. C., where a fine work is being carried on among Negro women, training them for greater service to the Church.

* * *

A prominent clergyman of the Church, attending the joint meeting of the House of Bishops and the National Council in Garden City, jotted down these observations on a slip of paper and handed them to me. "1. The vital question of restoring the 10% cut in the salaries of missionaries was evaded. 2. They seemed to assume without question that all of our missionary work was worth what was spent on it. 3. Those present for the most part represented only administrative functions of the Church. The producing units of the Church, the parishes, were not represented. The parishes give the money and should be represented in such a conference. 4. They failed to face the possibility that many parishes will be unable this year to balance their own budgets and may be unable to pay their quotas."

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

An interesting event took place at St. Luke's Church, Utica, N. Y. when the Men's Club of that parish, celebrating its 23rd anniversary, held a banquet for all members, the guests of honor being all the past presidents of the club from 1909 to the present time. Out of the 16 men who served in that capacity, all but four responded, two being deceased and two out of the city. Many old time recollections were renewed, the past presidents coming from other parishes and communities for this reunion.

* * *

The Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, social service secretary of the National Council was the speaker at the opening session of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work, held at New Britain May 1-4. On Tuesday there was a meeting of the Connecticut Church Mission of Help in connection with the conference with Professor Fleming James of Berkeley as the speaker.

* * *

The Daughters of the King, diocese of Maryland, had their annual convention at Ten Hills on April 30th. Bishop Helfenstein celebrated and the Rev. Don Frank Fenn gave an address.

* * *

The Fellowship of social workers, diocese of New York, met on May 2nd. The Rev. Donald Aldrich conducted a quiet hour in Calvary Church and this was followed by a dinner when the address was given by Mrs. John M. Glenn.

* * *

A regional conference of the Catholic Congress is being held May 12 at St. James Church, Long Branch, New Jersey. The Rev. William Pitt McCune of New York is presiding and the addresses are by the Rev. Franklin Joiner of Philadelphia, the Rev. A. C. Knowles of Philadelphia and the Rev. George D. Rosenthal of England. A similar regional conference is to be held at Utica on the 19th, with Dean Richardson of Albany presiding, and with addresses by the Rev. Frederick S. Arnold of Auburn, N. Y., and the Rev. Cecil E. Russell of England.

* * *

St. Mark's, Little Creek, Delaware, celebrated its 75th anniversary on April 24th. It is a little old frame church on a dirt road leading out of Laurel. There was a huge crowd there to hear the sermon by Bishop Cook, many of them travelling many miles to get to this service. The Rev. R. Y. Barber, now in charge of the mission, just came on from the Middle West where he did a notable work as a missionary.

* * *

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Sterrett, mother of Bishop Sterrett of Bethlehem, died on April 28th at the See House where she had made her home for the past four years. Bishop Sterrett was called away from the meeting of the House of Bishops in Garden City on account of the sudden illness of his mother.

* * *

The Rev. Walter E. Bentley, missioner, has just completed a number of missions in Florida at Miami and at Pensacola. Now he is in Mississippi holding missions at Greenwood and at Clarksdale. Next summer he plans to go to South Africa for several missions.

* * *

The eighth annual conference for young people of the diocese of New England was held at St. Paul's, Pawtucket, Rhode Island, May 7 and 8. Miss Margaret I. Marston, educational secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, led a group conference on programs for study and discussion; Mrs. Maude Copley, of the Rhode Island department of religious education, led a conference on programs of service activities; Rev. W. M. Bradner, rector at Medford, Mass., held a conference for advisors. Professor Francis B. Sayre of Harvard gave an address, and the Rev. Howard R. Weir of New Haven was the preacher at a service.

* * *

Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, is keeping up with the times by having a conference for consumers. There was a large number of parishioners at the meeting on May 8th when Mr. Peter Hamilton gave a talk on consumers' cooperation, and the Rev. Bradford Young, assistant at the parish, spoke on the work of the Consumers' Research Bureau, an organization headed by Mr. Stuart Chase for the purpose of telling people how to get their money's worth in the retail market.

* * *

The diocese of Bethlehem announced some time ago that they hoped to get $8000 from the children's Lenten offering. With still a few schools to hear from the amount has already passed that mark.

* * *

The convention of the diocese of New York is in session this week at the Synod House. It opened with a service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Tuesday and the convention met through Wednesday.

* * *

The Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, rector, was the preacher at the Ascension Day service at Trinity Church, New York. It marked the anniversary of the dedication of the present structure.

* * *

The Rev. Cecil E. Russell of the English Catholic Congress was a visitor in Baltimore on May first and second. He was the preacher at Mt. Calvary on Sunday morning and at Grace and St. Peter's in the evening. On Monday he addressed a meeting in the parish house of Grace and St. Peter's on the centenary of the Oxford Movement.

* * *

Here is something to think over; Bishop Maxon of Tennessee, in addressing the students at St. Luke's School of Theology, Sewanee, said that on just one day he received eight letters from diocesan executive secretaries asking if he would place priests who had been thrown out of work because of the combining of parishes. Also the dean of one of our theological seminaries told me

CONFERENCE FOR CHURCH WORK
WELLESLEY COLLEGE, WELLESLEY, MASS.
June 27-July 8, 1932
SCHOOL FOR CHURCH WORKERS:
SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS DRAMA:
SCHOOL FOR CHRISTIAN SOCIAL ETHICS:
SCHOOL OF CHURCH MUSIC.
Registrants are eligible for courses in any of the four Schools and may combine them to provide the best equipment for any special field of work.
For information address the Secretary,
MISS MARIAN De C. WARD,
50 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the other day that whereas ordinarily all of his seniors are all set for jobs months before their graduation, this year not one member of the class knows what he is to do after leaving the seminary. All of which seems to indicate that we have an unemployment problem of our own.

* * *

Mr. Spencer Miller Jr., consultant on industry to the department of social service of the National Council, was a speaker the other day at the University of the South.

* * *

The diocese of Maryland has already started with plans for the Fall every-member canvass. They are going to make a special effort this year.

* * *

The Rev. Frederic W. Fitts, Roxbury, Mass., recently called to a parish in New Hampshire, has declined and is to remain at St. John's.

* * *

Calvary, Bayonne, N. J., the Rev. John Quincy Martin Jr., rector, was the host to the convocation of the Archdeaconry of Jersey City on April 26th. The high-light of the party was an address by Mr. T. Lester Swander, officer of the Monclair council of social agencies, and one by the Rev. George W. Dawson, both of whom spoke on social work.

* * *

Mr. J. William Jones, organist of the Cathedral of All Saints, Albany, sailed for England on May first to spend two months studying music. He also plans to attend the Wagnerian festivals in Germany.

* * *

In the mind of the Master of Balliol, Dr. Alexander D. Lindsay, there is absolutely no question about the relation of the Church to economic questions. He believes that the Christian's and the Church's attitude on economic problems today is of paramount importance and let it be known in no uncertain terms in his lectures at the Episcopal Theological School, in Cambridge. In a series of addresses on "Christianity and Economics", he concluded with a lecture upon "The Duty of Christians in regard to economic relations or the Christian attitude towards the economic system".

* * *

Bishop Davies of Western Massachusetts is rapidly recovering from his recent very serious illness and is again assuming his Diocesan Duties.

* * *

Bishop Freeman of Washington, preaching at the synod of the province of the Pacific, meeting at Sacramento, pleaded for renewed loyalty to the Church. He also gave a stirring address at the mass meeting the second evening of the synod, and Bishop Rowe of Alaska, in his quiet way, told the story of his life and work and made a profound impression. At the synod banquet the addresses were given by Mrs. W. P. Remington of Eastern Oregon and Bishop Mitchell of Arizona.

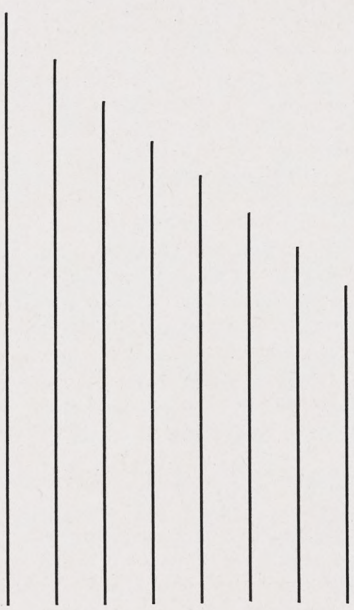
* * *

The old lighthouse at Cape Henry, Virginia, the first erected by the Federal government in 1791, was dedicated on April 26th by the Norfolk branch of the association for the preservation of Virginia antiquities. The religious service was conducted by the Norfolk clericus, the Rev. H. H. Covington in charge.

* * *

One hundred years ago there were 23 Episcopal Churches in New York City (Manhattan, Bronx and Richmond). Today there are 104 in this same area.

* * *



The Rev. George D. Rosenthal, rector of St. Agatha's, Birmingham, England, shared the program with Bishop Perry at the clerical club of Rhode Island on May 2nd.

* * *

Christ Church, Valdosta, Georgia,

There is

No Depression

. . . for those who enjoy the benefits of an annuity. Annuities are of particular advantage to persons of mature years who wish to be free from the worries occasioned by an irregular income derived from an investment in bonds or stocks.

. . . and for those without dependents, too much cannot be said for this arrangement of finances.

For full information address

The
Church Life Insurance
Corporation

20 Exchange Place
New York City

A Subsidiary of The Church Pension Fund

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—
F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)
CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.
MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64. The Oval. London. S.E.11. England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St. Boston

was badly in need of repair and paint. So the Auxiliary and the woman's guild took over the job, fixed up the furnishings and even painted the exterior of the church. The gardening also was taken over by the women and they have put the grounds in tip-top shape.

* * *

The regional conference of the state conference on social work was held recently in Grace Church parish house, Utica. The speaker was Dr. George H. Johnson, state director of public welfare. The Rev. Wilson E. Tanner of Binghampton, N. Y., was the speaker at a later meeting.

* * *

A new $45,000 addition to the Church of the Holy Cross, Utica, N. Y., was dedicated on a recent Sunday by Bishop Coley. The addition, matching the church of course, consists of a rector's study, sacristy and choir rooms.

* * *

The Rev. Thomas A. Sparks, rector of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont, Pa., has accepted appointment as the assistant to the rector of Trinity Church, New York. Before going to Rosemont he was the rector of St. Clement's, New York, and was the candidate of the High Church group for Suffragan Bishop several years ago.

* * *

Mrs. John G. Winant, wife of the governor of New Hampshire, gave a lecture the other evening in the parish hall of St. Mary's Church, New York. She illustrated her lecture, which was about India, with lantern slides of pictures she took there about a year ago.

* * *

Ossining, N. Y., opened its campaign to stamp out unemployment with a religious service on May 10th. All choirs of the town were in the procession and the service was held in the high school auditorium. The service, a community affair, was arranged by the Rev. Walter P. Doty, rector of St. Paul's. The lesson was read by a Baptist clergyman, the sermon was preached by a Roman Catholic priest and the Italian band of the community furnish all the music that was not furnished by the choir.

* * *

A class was recently confirmed at the Epiphany, Chicago, in which twelve nationalities were represented; German, French, Indian, Canadian, Belgian, Swedish, Norwegian, Swiss, Scotch, English, Italian and American. There were thirty-one in the class.

* * *

The Rev. Frederic S. Fleming,

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.
SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania
Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.
Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, New York City, has conducted and is continuing to conduct a series of vicar's evenings on Wednesday which have proven of great value to the education and life of the chapel. Topics of timely interest are presented and discussed and various chapel organizations act as hostesses.

* * *

Bishop Mitchell of Arizona received the degree of doctor of sacred theology at the General Seminary on April 29th. Among his numerous distinctions is that of being in charge of the Democratic side of the United States Senate for six years. He also arbitrated a dispute over wages and hours between the workers and owners of the Charleston Electric Railroad company once upon a time.

* * *

The Rev. Gilbert F. Symonds, archdeacon of Southern Ohio, was the preacher at the Ascension night service at the Church of the Ascension, Pittsburgh; a service at which the massed choirs of Calvary, Trinity Cathedral and the Ascension supplied the music. This service, an annual event, attracted Churchmen from all over the diocese.

* * *

The Rev. William J. Dietrich Jr., Port Washington, Long Island, has been called to be the vicar of Holy Trinity, New York. The church, which is a part of St. James' parish, has nearly 1500 active communicants.

* * *

The 20th anniversary of the rectorship of the Rev. Charles C. Harriman was celebrated on May first at historic St. Peter's, Albany, N. Y. During his rectorship an endowment of over $300,000 has been established, a parish house costing about $65,000 has been built and a guild house, costing $70,000, is nearly completed. Dr. Harriman is the president of the standing committee of the diocese.

* * *

The diocese of Georgia had a fine convention April 26-28 at Augusta. Bishop Reese appealed to the diocese to support the work of the Church, both diocesan and national, and urged that "all have courage and confidence in God, be strong, realize their blessings, be generous, unselfish and without fear, pure in heart and happy." It was announced that so far missionary salaries in the diocese had not had to be cut but it was thought likely that they would have to unless conditions change soon. The Rev. C. C. J. Carpenter, rector of St. John's, Savannah, explained the success that parish had last year in their every member can-

NEW MACMILLAN BOOKS

Liberating the Lay Forces of Christianity

by JOHN R. MOTT

"The most distinguished layman in the Christian Church has in the chapters of this book shared his experience with the world and revealed the secret of his own power."—Presbyterian Advance. $2.00

A Preface to Christian Faith in a New Age

by RUFUS M. JONES

A challenge to the leaders of Christian life and thought in America, a demand that we realize clearly the obstacles and hindrances confronting Christian faith in the world today, an attempt to present a way of life, a constructive faith to our youth. Dr. Jones is the author of "Pathways to the Reality of God." $2.00

JASON LEE

Prophet of the New Oregon

by CORNELIUS J. BROSNAN

Lee was the first missionary to enter the Oregon country and the founder of Oregon's first permanent American settlement. This vivid biography will appeal to all readers of American history, to all who are interested in the story of American missionaries and to every lover of true romance. $3.00

An Ideal Graduation Gift

LYRA MYSTICA

Edited by CHARLES ALBERTSON with an Introduction by DEAN INGE

"May I say how highly I appreciate and treasure Dr. Albertson's 'Lyra Mystica'? It is indeed a revelation of the heart of Mysticism, manifesting in a unique and comprehensive way the Mystic's approach to God. One wonders that such a volume has not been issued before. I am deeply grateful for the book. It should be owned by every preacher."—Dr. S. Parkes Cadman. $3.00

The Religions and Hidden Cults of India

by Lieutenant-General Sir George MacMunn

Clear, simplified and fascinating, this account of India's native religions and their bearing on her social and political life is indispensable for an understanding of India's problems today. Illustrated. $5.00

Christian Education in India

by Sir George Anderson and the Rt. Rev. Henry Whitehead

The former Director of Public Education in the Punjab, the former Bishop of Madras collaborate "to discuss the part that the Christian Church can usefully and legitimately play at the present time in Indian Education." $1.50

An Introduction to Egyptian Religion

by Alan W. Shorter

Stressing the Eighteenth Dynasty, Egypt's most splendid era, this book supplies a picture of the religious life of the country as it is revealed to us by the latest discoveries. It is written both for the general reader and the serious student. The author is Assistant Keeper in the Department of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities, British Museum. Illustrated. $2.50

The Christ of the Classroom

by Norman E. Richardson

A revised edition of this widely popular book.

"An epoch-making book from a mature author who sees religious education steadily and whole. . . . A volume that is likely to close one era of theory and to open another." —Presbyterian Advance. $1.75

At all bookstores

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY, New York

CHICAGO BOSTON ATLANTA DALLAS SAN FRANCISCO

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

vass, and it was arranged to have two days of intensive training in campaign methods at his parish in June, with Miss Edith D. Johnston, who was in charge of St. John's canvass, giving the instruction. The convention next year is to be held at Christ Church, Savannah, when there will be a real celebration of the bicentennial of the founding of the colony of Georgia by General Oglethorpe and also the celebration of the bicentennial of the founding of the parish.

* * *

Confirmations in the diocese of Pittsburgh are running well ahead of records.

* * *

Dean High Moor was the preacher at the service of the Pittsburgh Woman's Auxiliary, held at the Cathedral, when the united thank offering was presented.

* * *

The men's club of Grace and St. Peter's, Baltimore, was the host at a banquet on April 28th in honor of Dr. Henry B. Jacobs and Mr. Charles E. Falconer, distinguished vestrymen and leading citizens. When Grace and St. Peter's were united, under the leadership of the late Bishop Murray, Dr. Jacobs represented one parish and Mr. Falconer the other in the negotiations. The speakers at the banquet were Bishop Helfenstein, the Rev. A. C. Powell, rector emeritus, Judge Henry D. Harlan, vestryman of Emmanuel Church, Mr. William W. Cloud, senior warden of the parish and the Rev. Robert S. Chalmers, present rector.

* * *

The residuary estate of the late Preston Player was left to the diocese of Western Massachusetts to be used to relieve clergymen who may be in need.

* * *

The annual acolytes festival of the diocese of Chicago is to be held in the chapel of the University of Chicago on May 12th. Bishop Stewart is the preacher.

* * *

Bishop Rowe of Alaska and Bishop Stewart of Chicago were the speakers at the annual meeting of the Church Club of Chicago held on May 8th.

* * *

Patriotism is being killed by politicians, while there is a tendency in both Church and state to take patriotism out in pageantry and song instead of action, according to the Rev. Randolph Ray, rector of the Little-Church-Around - the - Corner, New York.

* * *

The missionary district of Salina

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

(Western Kansas) is feeling encouragement from a small increase in its number of clergy and their longer continuance in their fields. "Nothing," the Bishop says, "is more disheartening to the faithful laity and subversive of all things for which a sacramental church stands, than irregularity of clergy supply."

* * *

From Washburn College, Topeka, Kansas, a coeducational school with about 800 students, including only a few Negroes, a young colored man graduated last spring, summa cum laude. He was a member of St. Simon's Mission, Topeka, and is now in the Bishop Payne Divinity School studying for the Church's ministry.

* * *

The summer conference of the diocese of Minnesota is to be held at Carleton College, June 19th to 25th. The faculty is to include two members of the staff at the Church Missions House, Dr. Louis B. Franklin and the Rev. C. Rankin Barnes. Bishop McElwain is to be the chaplain and Bishop Keeler is to have charge of the daily morning devotions and will give a course on personal religion and also conduct a clergy conference. Mrs. E. C. Biller of St. Cloud is to give a course for the women; Miss Margaret Densmore of Red Wing is to give a course on the work of the Church Periodical Club; Rev. V. E. Pinkham, Seabury professor, is to lecture on Church history, and the Rev. Charles V. Scovil, chairman of the faculty, who is student pastor at the University of Minnesota, is to give a course for teachers.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

CALVERT-HERRICK
& RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City

—o—

STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC
AND . CHURCH
DECORATION

—o—

CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS
IN . MARBLE . STONE
WOOD . AND
METAL

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Influence of Church Schools Can Never be Tabulated

THE FULL history of the influence of the Episcopal Church on the educational life of America will never be written. It can never even be fully estimated. The Church, through its many private schools preparing boys and girls for college, has influenced young people of the country during the years that are extremely important.

No matter where boys or girls may go to college—or what they may do in later life — they can never forget the impress of the moral standards set up during secondary school days.

To the hundreds of teachers and principals of such schools the Church may never erect a monument of stone or bronze, but the minds and hearts of pupils and their parents these faithful men and women will ever be held in high esteem.

The secondary schools operating under auspices of the Episcopal Church are listed here.

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
DR. CHARLES L. STREET

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND

SHATTUCK SCHOOL
FARIBAULT, MINNESOTA
C. W. NEWHALL

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES

ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE
MRS. C. A. MCLANE

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT

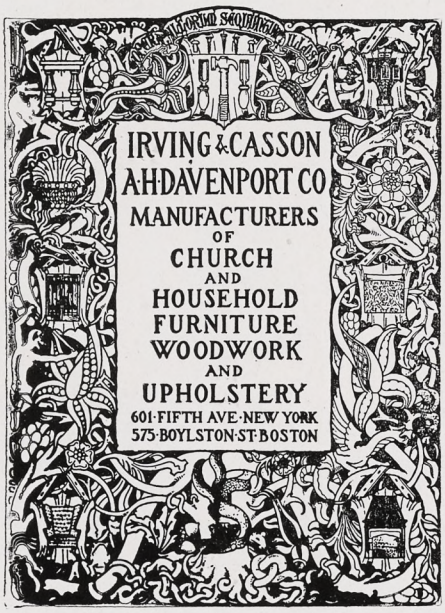
ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL
DAVENPORT, IOWA
SISTER ESTHER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ECONOMY by DR. ATWATER

The WITNESS



CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 19, 1932

THE HISTORIC MASS MOUND
At St. Katharine's School, Davenport

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago. Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CHURCH VESTMENTS

Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes

CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars

Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.

COX SONS & VINING

131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Cassocks

For the Clergy and Choir

VESTMENTS

Altar linens, embroideries materials

Clerical and lay tailoring

J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS

"of enduring worth
and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze

Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request

ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS

The Pride of the Church

Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.

350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.

M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs · The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

The J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS

NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne

Stained Glass Artists

By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.

Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.

Designs and Estimates

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Distinctive Church Windows

J. M. KASE STUDIOS

461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.

Established 1888
Booklet on request

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

J. WIPPELL & CO. LTD

will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for

Embroidery · Wood
Stone · Metal and
Stained Glass

EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · · · 11, Tufton St., S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street.

JAMES POWELL & SONS

(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND

STAINED GLASS

Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

HALL ORGANS

have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.

The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO.
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.

131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

The D'Ascenzo Studios

PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.

Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.

Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City

Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.

Hartford, Conn.

Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS

noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.

Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 39 MAY 19, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

ECONOMY

An Editorial by
GEORGE PARKIN ATWATER

PRESIDENT HOOVER and the National Government are setting the Church a good example in effecting economies in expenditure. In the Church a clear distinction must be made between eliminating essential features of our work, and the practice of economy.

Imagine an agent of a principal on a journey. His journey may be for a necessary purpose. It might be unwise to fail to take it. It is not economy to omit the journey. But if the agent would go to the station in a street car, if possible, ride a few hours in a coach, omit an expensive meal on the train, shave himself instead of having the full program at a barber-shop, stop at a modest hotel, get down to breakfast instead of having it in bed, drink a pint of milk at night instead of ordering mineral water and a club sandwich to be served in his room, etc., etc., that would be economy, and a saving on the bill for expenses.

There cannot be the slightest doubt that what appears to be the incidentals of management have in this elaborate age run up to a great total, in every phase of life. There is a very strong suspicion that in both National Church and in dioceses, the cost incident to elaborate organization are far in excess of the minimum requirements. Such organization in seeking support generally churns around in the same crock of milk that long before has been thoroughly cleared of its butter-fats.

There is a conviction that we are not getting results commensurate with our increased expenditures, and that elaborate organization produces expense; in printing, postage, telephones, secretaries, reports, meetings, lunches, desks and equipment, and countless system devices that tend constantly to increase expense. It must never be forgotten that the vast bulk of the work of the Church is done in parishes. Our very large overhead organization surrounding dioceses and the work of the National Church is but a secondary agency in our real parochial and missionary work.

To verify this conviction I went to some files of the journals of dioceses. Selecting a representative diocese I made a comparison of the work in two journals twenty-five years apart. In twenty-five years the diocese has had a gain of 13,550 communicants. One group of parishes representing 20% of the total number of parishes and missions have in 25 years increased by 12,000 communicants. The total increase of the other 80% has been about 1,550 communicants in twenty-five years. The overhead cost in that diocese twenty-five years ago was $18,500. This included bishops' salaries, convention expenses, and diocesan missions. Twenty-five years later the overhead cost was $116,385 for the same items. Presumably the parishes mentioned above were only very slightly the beneficiaries of the increased diocesan overhead. This sum of $116,385 is about the annual cost for maintaining a work that seems absolutely stationary or even negative in results. It seems likely that the parishes would grow more rapidly without this burden on their shoulders, than the work grows which is nourished by this sum of money.

I realize that this is not a complete presentation of the benefits of the larger budget. We cannot count gain merely by counting communicants. But I do maintain that there is a field for economy and elimination in such a field that would reduce expenses without impairing the progress of the Church.

The same is true of our National expenditures. There was a time in our industrial history when large corporations gave much thought to mass production, but little thought to wasteful operation. Today the trend is in the opposite direction. Corporations want profitable production, even though the volume is smaller, and they are giving much thought to economy of operation and to waste. Up to a certain point it is better to save $100 by wise economy than to earn it by increased volume of production. The latter needs a sustained market, and thus enlarges the area of competition. Economy is a permanent gain.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Our Church needs a thorough appraisal to disclose the possible economies, and also to learn if some of the money extracted from parishes to apply to missions is not hurting the expansion of parishes far more than it is promoting the development of missions.

A disinterested, capable and sympathetic commission to investigate our methods could do us inestimable service and reassure a deeply troubled Church.

THE STORY OF THE CHURCH

XV. The Church in America

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

THE United States is a melting pot in which, freed from entangling alliance with the state, the various interpretations of the Christian religion have an opportunity to demonstrate their value. Here are millions of disciples of Jesus Christ, about equally divided between Roman Catholics and Protestant bodies. In between these large groups are about a million members of the Anglican Communion, having much in common with each of the other groups; but not identical with either. It rejects the claims of the Papacy to infallible supremacy on the one side and also the claims of private interpretation on the other. It believes in the Holy Catholic Church as a divine institution possessing authority in doctrine and worship, but extends a maximum of personal freedom to the members of the household.

In no ecclesiastical body in the United States is there such a diversified constituency. One may find a group whose practices closely resemble those of the Roman Church and we may find another group who are in closest sympathy with the Protestant bodies. In spite of these wide differences there is a lack of contentious strife when the Church is assembled in General Convention. There high and low meet together and manifest the "unity of the spirit in the bond of peace." Such unity is not to be confused with uniformity. An orchestra does not consist of a hundred saxophones each emitting the same sounds, but rather in a diversity of instruments, each striving to keep in tune with the rest. Such an orchestra must have a leader. It is quite a different atmosphere from the rigid uniformity of Rome or the bewildering lack of harmony in the Protestant bodies, where each instrument plays its own tune regardless of the others. It would seem to illustrate the fact that in the Kingdom, there can be diversities of gifts, but the same spirit.

Let us consider the principles for which it stands: First, It believes in the historic continuity of the Church, as the Body of Christ. This does not necessarily involve any particular theory of the Episcopate, but rather emphasizes the fact that though the Episcopate as a means of perpetuation the continuity of the Church has been maintained. Perhaps in primitive days, the office of a bishop was vague and indefinite, but eventually the Church, acting upon its commission to bind and loose unanimously accept the Episcopate as the method of transmitting the faith to succeeding generations.

It is a significant fact that in all branches of the historic Church where bishops have been the witnesses to the faith, that there are today the same creeds, scriptures, sacraments and ministry. In other words regardless of other matters, the Episcopate has kept the faith. So at the Reformation the English Church retained the Episcopate as the continuing instrument of God's grace.

In the Anglican Communion the bishops have very little arbitrary power, apart from their personal qualities. The bishops are not the Church. The Church is composed of all the elements which pertain thereto. The Episcopate is its symbol of unity and continuity.

Second, It believes that there are certain qualifications for citizenship in the Kingdom. It is a fundamental principle in any organization that in order to share in its privileges one must accept its obligations. To say that because a man lives a moral life, therefore he is a Christian, is to commit two errors. In the first place who is a competent judge of his morality? And in the second place how can one be a Christian who refuses to obey his Master's commandments? If you love Me show it by keeping My commandments.

Of course a man may be a bad Christian, if he fails to keep the moral law of Christ, but he is not a Christian at all if he refuses to identify himself with Christ in the way that Christ set forth. One might as well say that a man is a Mason because he observes the ethics of Masonry. The Church does not judge a man because he is not a Christian, but it clearly demands that if he is to be a disciple, he must be baptized and do that which the Lord commanded.

Third, In order to preserve its identity, the Church cannot identify itself with other organizations, unless they have the same basic foundations. "On other foundations can no man build."

The Church exists not only for its contemporaries but for children still unborn. To it is committed a treasure which it is bound to keep. She cannot sacrifice permanent values for temporary results. She has something committed to her trust. It is like a trust fund for widows and orphans. To speculate with such funds in order to gain an immediate return is to jeopardize the whole. This does not mean that the Church shall not be kind and courteous to those without, but in doing so she has no right to abandon the living of those within.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Tolerance does not consist in an absense of convictions. That is shallowness, not tolerance. It consists in holding fast to the sound things in a kindly and considerate fashion. To say that because you have a lovely house, it is your duty to put out a sign, "come in to dinner", is to wreck your lovely home and turn it into a cafeteria. A home must have walls and doors and windows and each has its appropriate function. You see through the windows, the door is for entrance under reasonable restrictions, the walls are to preserve the house rather than intentionally to exclude the public. When you pull down your walls, you have no use for doors and windows. When we have pulled down the walls, we will have nothing to offer the public. Even a Rotary Club has to have some protection in order that it may not be just a restaurant.

Fourth, The Church keeps the altar as the chief symbol of its mission. The fundamental law of Christ is that we should love God and one another. The altar, not the pulpit, is the symbol of our love for God and our affection for one another. It is both Eucharist and Holy Communion. The seats in the Church should be free to all; the communion rail is free to those who are willing to be identified with Christ. There is a sort of parlor socialism which would open the Communion rail to all and reserve the seats for the elect. That is putting the cart before the horse. To sit in church involves no obligation; to receive the sacrament of the altar without the sacrament of the door is no kindness to the irresponsible who prefer to climb up some other way. To demand baptism before Communion is to do things decently and in order and it excludes no one but those who refuse to put on the wedding garment.

In short the Church is a brotherhood with its formal rules of admission and obligation. It is a household with its rules of housekeeping. It is the Body of Christ with a sanctity which is all its own. In this medley of voices, the Anglican Communion has its mission. It conserves reverence; it maintains sanity; it manifests kindly courtesy; it includes every legitimate expression of religious faith and excludes none except those who refuse to come. We have no right to demand admission to the Lord's House on our own conditions.

(Concluding the series)

JUSTICE TO MINERS

By

GARDINER M. DAY

Rector of St. John's Church, Williamstown, Massachusetts

SHORTLY after Easter I took a two weeks' motor trip through the soft coal regions of West Virginia and Kentucky. I found that the conditions described by Mr. Spofford last year in THE WITNESS have been going from bad to worse. Soon after Mr. Spofford was in Charleston, West Virginia, the miners in that region, realizing that their situation was intolerable, went out on strike for an enforcement of the eight hour day and for the right to appoint their check-weighmen. In spite of the social legislation of the country and state in this regard, the various companies have been working the men ten and twelve hours a day. If a worker complained to his boss, the usual answer would be: "Well you need not return tomorrow. There are plenty of men glad to get your job." There is a state law requiring that when ten or more men work in a mine, they have the right to choose their check-weighman, who weighs the coal as it goes over the tipple and gives the miner his check indicating the amount of coal he has brought in. This law seems to have been pretty generally disregarded and in most of the mines the company appoints the check-weighman who often finds it to their advantage to speed up the tipple thus cheating the miners out of thousands of dollars every year.

When the strike was called the operators took action. The leaders were evicted from their miserable homes and blacklisted so that it is practically impossible for them to find work with any other coal operator in that whole section of the country. One can see colonies of these men living with their families in tents on whatever land they can find and only surviving through the relief afforded them by various organizations. In the places I visited the relief was being given by county organizations, by the Socialists and others through the Emergency Relief Committee, through The Friends Service Committee, and through the Church Emergency Committee. We were told of the Red Cross aid in other places. In the tent colony at Ward, W. Va., some 200 people have spent the winter, at times on the verge of starvation, because they tried to demand their right to live decently as human beings and to cease their intolerable existence as slaves.

ACTUAL living conditions are probably no worse in the Kentucky mines than in many others, but the representatives of the local government seem to be at one with the operators in preventing any vital organization of the workers. I happened to arrive in Harlan, Kentucky, on April 11th, the morning after

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

President Koch of Commonwealth College, a labor college located in Mena, Arkansas, along with an instructor and three students suffered a severe beating. The group had come for the purpose of making a peaceful investigation of the conditions of the miners and brought with them provisions and money for relief. Approaching Pineville early Sunday morning they were met by the mayor and chief of police who escorted them to the center of town. Finding it impossible to persuade them to discontinue their investigation, these authorities looked the other way while a few men commandeered their car and took the investigators to a lonely place in the mountains. There the Commonwealth College group were compelled to strip to the waist and were beaten with birch rods. While they were being beaten, they were sworn at, called names, asked questions about their personal beliefs and had their clothes ransacked and their correspondence read. Finally, they were told not to return to Bell County on pain of death with a few revolver shots adding weight to these words. The group later identified Deputy Sheriff Lee Fleenor as the leader of the gang, but Fleenor claimed that he was in Tennessee on that day.

On the same day Mr. James Price, a representative of the General Defense Committee of Chicago, which is endeavoring to help the miners now awaiting trial in Kentucky, was taken for a similar "ride" and handled even more severely. As I listened to the story of these episodes from eye-witnesses it was veritably impossible to believe that I was still in a part of the United States and in this supposedly enlightened era of civilization.

THESE episodes give some idea of the wave of hysteria which is passing over these counties. For the explanation, one must go back to an incident now known as "The Battle of Evarts" which took place in the village of Evarts, two miles from Harlan on May 5, 1931. The story seems to be that The Black Mountain Coal Corporation, an Insull-Peabody concern, determined to break the strike by taking a truck load of workers from another town to fill the places of the striking miners in Evarts. The strikers, learning of it, decided to stop the truck and compel it to turn back. Arming themselves, they lay in wait for it at a point in the road near a bridge. The company officials, warned of this, notified the sheriff, who jumped into an automobile with a few deputies and a machine gun, and set out with the truck. They reached the point where the miners were waiting, some words were said, and before anyone realized what was happening some shots were fired and two deputies, a miner and a commissary clerk were slain. Other skirmishes took place, resulting in twelve dead, four of whom were deputy sheriffs. As a result forty-four coal miners were arrested, held for many months in jail without recourse to bail, and indicted on charges of first degree murder. Later, five witnesses in their favor were indicted. An example of the justice of these indictments is that of William Turnblazer, president of district 19 of the United Mine Worker's Union, who, it is alleged, has not been in Evarts since 1917, but who said in a letter to W. B. Jones, secretary of the Evarts local of the United Mine Worker's Union that "it is better to die fighting than to die starving." For this he was indicted for murder. The story of the trials is a travesty on justice.

Meanwhile all those who show any interest in the condition of the miners, or any interest in seeing that those in jail are properly defended, are branded as "Communists" by many of the local representatives of government, such as Walter B. Smith, Bell County Attorney.

The hope now is that the pressure of public opinion may be so forcefully exerted that this hysteria and Ku Klux "birch rod" spirit may be sufficiently restrained for the jailed miners to get a fair trial and for all the miners to be insured the right to organize for their own self-protection and betterment. Following that, perhaps a federal investigation might result in a complete reorganization of the unfortunate soft coal industry.

Early Spanish Glass

By

ELEANOR H. WILSON

THE words of the Psalmist—"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my strength," are singularly appropriate for the cathedrals that rise on lofty heights in Spain,—Toledo, Segovia, Tarragona, Avila.

In Spain there are but few examples of the 12th and 13th century epochs of stained glass, displayed at Chartres, Bourges and Angers. There is much more of the 15th than the 14th century and arriving at the 16th we find a rich store. Spanish glass is deep, rich and strong in color, to offset the searching sunlight. Large circular embrasures yielding one ample round space for a single glass picture are often found called "ojo de buey" or bull's eye. Those in the north and south transepts at Seville are the best of these. Rose windows of all types, called rosetons are frequent. In the west window at Avila the columns swerve slightly giving a curious effect of revolving motion. The illumination of certain Spanish cathedrals is enhanced by the color of their stone, as at Avila, the pinkish brown walls so admirably reflect the window's glowing panes.

It is fitting that a window portraying Emperor Charles V, the greatest patron of stained glass in any country, should adorn the north portal of the Cathedral of Seville, particularly rich in ancient glass of superlative quality. Here also we have the pageantry of the Entrance into Jerusalem and dramatic episodes such as the raising of Lazarus and Magdalen washing the Saviour's feet. Nor are there picture windows alone,—here is found one of the most beautiful pattern windows in the world, the date, 1789, indicating it is later than any other fine window of ancient make.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In the south transept is the sarcophagus containing the remains of Christopher Columbus, borne aloft by heroic figures in bronze, representing the Kingdoms of Castile, Aragon, Leon and Navarre.

"Leon is a colorful epic out of Spain's past." It is one of the great sights of Europe. Of all the churches glazed in color, Leon surpasses every one. One of the most interesting windows is unique in that it portrays a series of episodes taken from secular and civil life, instead of following the custom of showing religious subjects. The scenes unfold one above another, and represent a cross section of sports as known and practiced during the Middle Ages.

Toledo has certain features unique in glazing notably its fashion of introducing large circles of contrasting color as frames. These circular frames done in narrow lines of green, blue, and mauve enclose Biblical scenes and swing across two lancets. The western window is the Spanish rose at the height of its blossoming. Within the central ojo of the roseton instead of the customary figure, is the red hat and tasseled fringe of the Cathedral's prelate. Surrounding it seven circuits of differently shaped panes give an effect of rich color.

The site of Burgos is unlike that of any other cathedral in the world for it is tucked in against a hill and extends up the hillside. While Leon's peculiar glory is that of glass, Burgos' is exquisite beauty of architecture, French Gothic in style, for its ancient glass was almost entirely destroyed by a powder explosion in 1813. Almost the only exception is the fine rose window in the south transept, elaborate, rich, glowing, one of the finest rosetons in Spain.

Old Flanders, modern Holland and Belgium, was for 150 years during the blossoming period of stained glass a province of the Holy Roman Empire ruled by Charles V and Philip II of Spain, and this accounts for the interchange of influence between these countries. Flemish glass was frequently of grisaille. At Tournai in Belgium we have an interesting example of grisaille combined with color—the two angels after the manner of Isenbrandt, their long robes of colorless glass which introduces the silver quality of grisaille, and the wings in brilliant red and yellow.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

Martyrs

"JESUS CHRIST Who is the faithful witness"—so writes St. John in the first chapter of the Revelation. The Greek word for "witness" is the word "martyr". On Calvary our Lord bore supreme witness to His office and His ministry. Therefore it was natural that those of His disciples who gave their lives in loyalty to their faith should also have been called witnesses or martyrs.

The first three hundred years of Christian history mark the period of martyrdom for the Church. It was not one continual horror of persecution and death but the threat was always hanging over the Christians and at intervals it broke into activity. In the early Apostolic Age there was not much distinction in the minds of Roman officials between Jews and Christians—that came later. The first persecution which the Church was called upon to endure came from unfriendly Jews. At first the Romans actually defended the Christians. It was Saul, the Pharisee, before his conversion who went from house to house hunting down Christians and consigning them to prison. St. Stephen, the first martyr, was killed by a Jewish mob. St. James met a similar fate at the same hands and St. Peter was imprisoned by them. Imprisonment, beating, and occasional death were the punishments meted out.

Then the converted St. Paul began to carry the Gospel far afield and converts from the Roman population began to enter the fold. Christians drew out of gatherings where sacrifices were offered to the pagan gods and refused to attend patriotic ceremonies where sacrifices were made to the Emperor. The officials were always watchful of possible revolutionary movements and they grew suspicious of the Christians because of their aloofness. It was Nero who seized upon this increasing unpopularity to launch the first Roman persecution. It was local to the city of Rome but more ferocious than the earlier rioting. Christians were burned, crucified, worried by savage dogs. St. Peter and St. Paul gave their lives in Nero's persecution. St. Clement of Alexandria relates that St. Peter saw his own wife led away to death before he suffered the same fate himself. He "rejoiced because she had been called and was going home".

After that there were many persecutions at various times and of a local character, such as those under Domitian, Trajan, and Valerian. There were only three general persecutions designed to wipe Christianity out of existence—those under Marcus Aurelius, Decius, and Diocletian. There were times when, for many years, the Church seems to have been left in comparative peace, building churches, organizing its work, and making many converts. For fifty years before the reign of Decius they were left undisturbed. Then they had two terrible years until the emperor died in battle.

It is impossible to estimate how many Christians lost their lives during those three centuries. Of course there was a tendency for the survivors to magnify the fortitude of their martyred brethren and to add glory to the Church by legendary exaggerations. Nevertheless there is no question that the slaughter was plenty, especially in the last great effort of Diocletian to annihilate the Gospel and all of its followers. Their constancy has become classic. They were indeed "martyrs"—witness-bearers, ready to prove the value they placed upon the Gospel by accepting the ultimate cost for themselves.

What is Christ costing you?

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE GARDEN OF ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL

By

SISTER ETHEL MARY, C.S.M., CLASS OF 1904

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL, Davenport, Iowa, is a diocesan school for girls under the charge of the Sisters of St. Mary. It is situated on a bluff overlooking the Mississippi and the ten-acre campus is considered one of the most beautiful spots in Davenport. The two excellent old mansions that form the main portion of the school have been practically and artistically adapted to present conditions, and have been added to, from time to time, as need has arisen. St. Katharine's has never been "built"—it has merely grown. It originated in the first attempt of the Church to extend Christian teaching to the rapidly increasing population of the middle west, and has carried on this work since its foundation in 1883. It is the only moderately priced college preparatory Church school for girls in this section of the country. Many of the pupils come from long distances but train service is good. Davenport is four and one-half hours from Chicago. Girls who change there are met by an appointed chaperon and safely conducted to their proper trains and stations.

The academic standards of the school meet the highest requirements of modern educational demands and rarely a graduating class goes to college or university without some one or more members of that class receiving honors, or immediate promotion, or exemption from subjects previously studied at St. Katharine's. In addition to the college preparatory work, a general course is offered for girls not planning to attend college. Private instruction in French, art, music, dancing and dramatics is available for pupils desiring special work in those subjects.

The athletic department is well conducted, and every girl is required to have some form of athletic exercise unless exempt by medical authority. Regular instruction in golf, riding and swimming may be arranged for at the nearby country club.

THE social and cultural life at St. Katharine's has always been one of the important factors in determining the choice of parents who select this school for the education of their daughters. The limited number of pupils gives a personal contact with the faculty that would not be possible in a larger group. The social activities of the school are simple and attractive, and thoroughly enjoyed by the girls. The Tri-cities have always been a cultural center, and students are encouraged to attend the excellent symphony concerts, lectures and plays that are often available. Moderation in expenditure is inculcated, and simplicity in dress is required. This is accomplished by the adoption of school uniforms.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

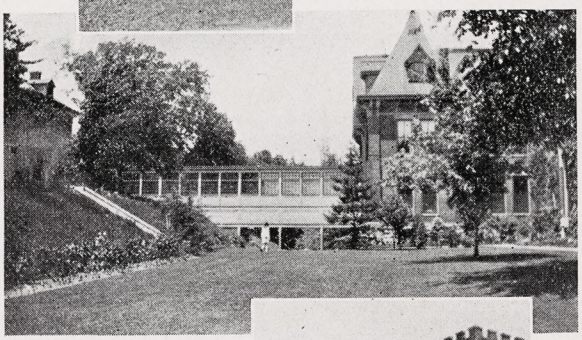
The religious life at St. Katharine's is spontaneous, and the chapel, situated near the study hall and always open, is the heart of the school. Daily choral services are held, and two choirs receive training in Church music. These choirs include the entire student body, from the eighth form to the senior class. A course in religious instruction is given which meets the requirement of the department of religious education and which entitles the student to the teaching diploma admitting them to the National Accredited Teachers' Association. This course is made up of Bible and Church History, history of missions, principles of teaching, liturgical worship, the Prayer Book, and Church music.

ST. KATHARINE'S graduates of yesterday are among the leaders of social and Church life of today. Many a parish priest writes gratefully of loyal support and valuable aid given by young women who have received a Christian education at St. Katharine's.



History, romance, and religion, plus the response to them of glowing young hearts and minds, go to make up a spiritual something, which for want of a better term is usually described as an "atmosphere." There is the (not authorized) legend of a fierce duel for the hand of a beautiful lady. There is the bronze tablet to Marian Crandell, former St. Katharine's teacher, the first American woman to give her life in the World War. Also there is the historic Mass Mound marked by an altar of cement, named by the Indians and early missionaries who used to assemble there for worship.

In addition to the college preparatory course St. Katharine's has a complete lower school, beginning with the kindergarten and carrying through all the succeeding forms. The younger children have their own quarters entirely separate from the upper school. Much attention is given to this important department, and they have the best of care and instruction. An excellent nurse is in charge of the infirmary department, and the health record of the school is far above the average.

The test of the worth of a school is the graduates it sends out, and St. Katharine's has an alumnae association of which it can be justly proud. It may perhaps be described as unique among the annals of secondary schools. The association has active local units in the Tri-cities, Des Moines, Cedar Rapids and Chicago. Units are being planned in other centers where the number of former St. Katharine's students warrants it. These branches of the association claim among their numbers leading members of the social, educational and Church life of their several communities. St. Katharine's gives much to its students, and in return receives much from its loyal and devoted alumnae. "The tree is known by its fruit."

The Senior House and Steps to the Historic Mass Mound

Terrace and Cloister

Commencement Day Procession at St. Katharine's

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

CLERGYMEN URGE INVESTIGATION OF THE COAL FIELDS

A committee of clergymen, representing the twenty-one New York pastors who recently appealed to the United States Senate to investigate the grave charges of lawlessness in the coal regions of southeastern Kentucky, returned to New York on May 7th from a visit in Pineville, Kentucky. The committee consisted of the Rev. Rankin Barnes, executive secretary of the department of Christian social service of the Episcopal Church, the Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor at Union Seminary, the Rev. Cameron Hall, pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church and the Rev. William B. Spofford, who went as the secretary of the Church League for Industrial Democracy.

Upon their return they issued the following statement: "After a visit to Bell County, Kentucky, as a committee of the twenty-one clergymen who memoralized the United States Senate to conduct an investigation of conditions in the southeastern Kentucky coal areas, we are still of the opinion that such an investigation should be made. We interviewed county and municipal officials, clergymen, leading citizens, coal operators, merchants, labor leaders, attorneys and miners. As a result we are convinced that there have been widespread violations of civil liberties and that no adequate steps have been taken to bring the perpetrators thereof to justice. By their own admission county officials withhold all rights from anyone who engages in 'red' activities; and according to the testimony of a considerable number of citizens we interviewed no sharp distinction is made in the definition of subversive opinions and activities. Thirty cases involving the charge of 'criminal syndicalism' await trial in the county. Half a dozen different citizens gave us the names of the men who perpetrated the outrage upon Attorney James Price, engaged in the miners' defense, though officials profess to be in complete ignorance of their identity. Similarly the public officials, on their own admission, have made little if any effort to apprehend those guilty of acts of violence against the Waldo Frank group and the Arkansas students.

"It is our conviction that a very considerable number of citizens are thoroughly out of sympathy with the terrorism which has been practised in recent months. Both they and the group which tolerates the acts of violence deplore the unfavorable publicity which the county has received. It is possible that pressure from one group and a change of heart in the other will combine to prevent further acts of violence. This is however by no means certain. The miners seem to be pretty generally convinced that any real effort to organize them and to make their organization effective in their struggle for better conditions, and any real show of sympathy for their cause, will prompt further violence.

"In justice to the community it should be said that it has been more interested in the relief of the destitute miners than recent publicity has implied. The county has undoubtedly raised more for the relief of the miners than have the agencies which combine propaganda with relief. The county welfare work is augmented by aid from the American Red Cross and the American Friends Service Committee. Nevertheless the unemployed miners are in a state of great destitution and the employed miners rarely draw more than $5 a week pay.

"Our party is to submit a detailed report to the twenty-one clergymen for whom we were acting. Though we do not wish to anticipate their action our committee is convinced that the Costigan-Cutting resolution providing for a Senatorial investigation of the southeastern Kentucky coal areas should be passed and that such a Senatorial investigation would render an immeasurable service in restoring civil rights and preventing the abuse of official power."

On Thursday of last week, at the request of the committee of manufacturers of the Senate, the clergymen presented a detailed report of their findings at a Senate hearing in Washington.

The Rev. Professor Burton S. Easton, who is the chairman of the School for Church Workers at the Wellesley Conference, has announced the courses for this year—sixteen in all. There are to be three on the Bible, one by Dr. Easton, one by Professor Montgomery of Philadelphia and one by Professor Simpson of General. Other courses are on personal and comparative religions, church history and missions, teaching and administrative methods for church schools. Among the leaders are the Rev. B. M. Washburn of Boston, the Rev. R. K. Yerkes of Philadelphia. Dean Washburn of Cambridge, the Rev. John Irwin of New York, Miss Mabel Lee Cooper of New York, Miss Marjorie Martin of Brooklyn, Miss Laura F. Boyer of New York, the Rev. Lawrence F. Piper of New Hampshire and the Rev. John Crocker.

SOCIAL WORKERS OF THE CHURCH HAVE CONFERENCE

Social workers of the Church gathered in Philadelphia from May 13 to the 17th to consider such subjects as "Preparation for Marriage", "The Place of the Church in Industry", "The Girl in the Machine Age" and the "Part the Church Can Play in the Solution of Present Day Problems". The conference met, as usual, as an associate group of the National Council of Social Work.

The first session was on Friday when Miss Annie Ramsey Swan, representative of the Woman's Auxiliary from Pittsburgh, spoke on the relationship of Auxiliary work to diocesan social service programs. She pleaded for social service work and outlined the scope of activities being carried on in Pittsburgh by the Auxiliary. The conference dinner was held Saturday night when addresses were given by the Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, the Rev. Floyd Van Keuren, head of social service in the diocese of New York, and Rev. A. R. Pepper, secretary of social service in the diocese of Ohio. Mr. Van Keuren pleaded with the Church to keep out of "highly controversial matters". "A social service department", he said, "is a menace if it becomes a department of anti-social service by turning itself into a propaganda-bureau for class antagonisms of any kind." Mr. Pepper outlined the work done in the diocese of Ohio and Mr. Barnes presented the principles which underlie all social service activities carried on by the Church.

On Sunday the clergical members of the conference preached in Philadelphia churches. In the afternoon Mary Van Kleeck, head of the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation, spoke on "The Girl in the Machine Age" at a meeting sponsored by the Girls' Friendly Society.

On Monday there was a lively session on marriage and family life, with the Ven. Joseph T. Ware of Southern Ohio and Mary S. Brisley of the Church Mission of Help reading papers. Mr. Ware's paper dealt with the various problems which are encountered in the everyday life of a parish priest and the necessity for him to be equipped to advise in the many problems which are laid before him daily. Miss Brisley told of the great work being done by the organization of which she is the executive head.

An informal dinner was held Monday evening when Dr. William H. Jefferys of Philadelphia spoke on the

(Continued on page 15)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS

By W. B. SPOFFORD

The Rev. Benjamin M. Washburn, rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston, was elected Bishop Coadjutor of the diocese of Newark on Tuesday, May 10, on the second ballot. The Rev. William A. Lawrence of Providence, who was deadlocked with the Rev. Charles L. Gomph of Newark in the election last March, received a large number of votes on the first ballot, but Mr. Washburn was so far ahead that it was apparent that he would be elected. The Rev. Theodore R. Ludlow of South Orange, N. J., also received a number of votes on the first ballot but withdrew his name thus assuring the election of Mr. Washburn on the second ballot. Mr. Washburn was born in 1887, is a graduate of Dartmouth, was an assistant at Grace Church, New York for a number of years, and was the rector of St. Paul's, Kansas City from 1918 to 1929.

* * *

The diocese of New York met in convention last week and had quite a time. It seems that Mr. George Wickersham brought in a resolution expressing the "hearty approval" of the convention of President Hoover's recent plea for non-partisan action in Congress on the nation's economic needs. To Mr. Monell Sayre this was injecting politics into the affairs of the Church and he disapproved of the resolution in no uncertain terms, and, to my way of thinking, made out a good case if the Church is to maintain the time-worn custom of keeping politics out of Church affairs. However the trend of events in recent months seems to be the other way, with Bishops preaching sermons on political subjects and urging their clergy to do so. In any case Mr. Wickersham's resolution was passed finally by a vote of 240 to 129. It rather looks to me as though it is all right to inject politics into the Church providing it is the right kind of politics, if you know what I mean. But sauce for the gander isn't always applesauce for the goose and it is quite possible that some of the dignitaries will regret having smashed the precedent before we are through with this business.

The Rev. Eliot White, crusader of lost causes, who ran into a jam some months ago with Bishop Manning over Judge Ben Lindley, took the platform during the sessions and everyone expected fireworks. Instead Mr. White turned the other cheek by reading a laudatory resolution supporting Bishop Manning for his recent attacks on Tammany Hall and corruption in New York political life.

RANKIN BARNES
Urges Senate Investigation

The Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Parish, was elected to the standing committee, defeating the Rev. Robert Norwood. Another high light was the hanging of a portrait of Bishop Lloyd, beloved Suffragan Bishop.

Bishop Manning urged the diocese to unite in raising $250,000 for unemployed Church families in the diocese, and set May 22 for a collection. Bishop Manning stated that the National Council should cut down overhead expenses in order to maintain the work in the mission fields. His thoughts on the subject were later embodied in a resolution offered by the Rev. Alexander Cummins, and was passed after some debate. A resolution urging President Hoover and Congress to furnish work for the unemployed was referred to a committee by Bishop Manning. I know little about parliamentary affairs but people who do informed me that it would doubtless die there. Bishop Manning also pleaded for funds to help complete the Cathedral.

* * *

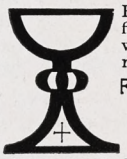
Bishop Matthews of New Jersey, at the convention of the diocese meeting at Trenton, asked for a suffragan bishop and the convention voted to grant his request. Being 65 years of age Bishop Matthews pointed out that he did not feel equal to the tasks heaped upon him, and Coadjutor Bishop Knight, being 73 years of age, should not be asked to take on additional work. He said that he would give up his salary of $7,500 in order to make it possible to have a suffragan without expense to the diocese.

* * *

The Golden Jubilee of the Girls' Friendly, diocese of Western New York and of Rochester, was held at Rochester on May 7 and 8.

* * *

The convention of the diocese of Central New York met at Grace Church, Utica, on May 10th. In his address Bishop Fiske urged everyone to "play the game" in supporting the entire work of the Church. "No work," he said, "is perfectly done. No organization is wise beyond mistakes. Complaint could be made over some work in parish and diocese. I hope I shall always be willing to listen to counsel and I hope the clergy will never show themselves scornful of advice. Our effort in the present discussion of the Church's work has been to bring the National Council to the point where its attitude will be the same as to the acceptance of criticism. As a result of the meeting of the House of Bishops in Garden City last month a special committee of three bishops will soon start a work of evaluation in cooperation with the officers of the National Council." He then urged the diocese to start planning now for the fall every member canvass, stressing that early planning was essential if a complete canvass was to be made. He further urged a campaign of education "until people come to feel that Christianity means so much to them that they cannot be content without passing it on to others."



* * *

Sunday, May 8th, was mother's day. So the Rev. Joseph H. Titus, the rector of Grace Church, Jamaica, N. Y., preached on "Voluntary Parenthood; a religious question."

* * *

The Long Island Clerical League devoted their last meeting of this season to a discussion of the more equitable distribution of the salaries of the clergy. The Rev. Charles Webber of the Union Seminary outlined four plans that are being considered by the Methodists. Other aspects of the matter were presented by Dr. John W. Wood, secretary of foreign missions, the Rev. Benjamin Mottram and the Rev. George Parkin Atwater. Just what positions these various people took is not revealed by our correspondent, but the session was sufficiently lively to prompt the appointment of a committee of five, headed by Dr. Atwater, to study

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—

F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)

CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.

MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St. Boston

the matter further and report back in the fall.

* * *

Bishop Moreland has been a patient in St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn. Nothing serious I take it, since he has been preaching all about. Just a matter of being checked up.

* * *

The founding of St. George's, Utica, N. Y., is being observed today by a meeting of the regional conference of the Catholic Congress.

* * *

Bishop Moulton of Utah was in the diocese of Southern Virginia the first week in May giving addresses in various places under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary.

* * *

The Rev. Walter C. Middleton was instituted rector of Trinity Church, Watertown, N. Y., on May 5th by Bishop Coley. The sermon was preached by the Rev. H. G. Coddington of Syracuse.

* * *

The annual council of the diocese of Northern Indiana was held at South Bend, May 4th, with the Auxiliary meeting at the same time. Bishop Gray in his address spoke of the need of courage and good cheer in these days; the Rev. D. A. McGregor, professor at the Western Seminary, spoke on the changing conceptions of religious education.

* * *

St. James, New York Mills, a suburb of Utica, has been merged with St. Luke's, Utica.

* * *

The Rev. George D. Rosenthal, Britisher, is to be in Chicago this week-end. He is to preach at the Ascension on Sunday and the following day is to speak at the meeting of the clergy's round table in the morning and at a meeting of the Catholic club in the evening.

* * *

The Rev. William G. Christian has accepted a call to be the rector of St. Paul's, Meridian, Mississippi.

* * *

Rev. T. Jerome Hayden Jr., assistant at the Epiphany, Providence, R. I., is to become the assistant at St. Augustine's Chapel, New York, on June first.

* * *

A service was held in the Cathedral of St. John, Providence, on May 16th in preparation for the diocesan convention which was held the following day. All of the diocesan organizations were represented in the great procession of several hundred people. Bishop Perry read his annual address at this service.

* * *

Educational and leadership con-

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.
SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania
Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.
Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ferences are being held in the diocese of Michigan under the auspices of the department of religious education, the division of boys' work of the diocese, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Girls' Friendly Society. A fine conference for older girls was held in the Holiday House at Pine Lake April 29th and 30th. Then May 6-8 the annual older boys' conference was held at St. Andrew's, Ann Arbor, with fully 200 boys attending, with forty of them from outside the diocese. On the 14th the annual conference of boys interested in the ministry was held at the Pine Lake Holiday House, with Bishop Page as the leader.

* * *

St. James, Woonsocket, R. I., has just celebrated its 100th anniversary.

* * *

Women are coming into their rights in the diocese of Rhode Island. For the first time a young woman has been elected president of the Young People's Fellowship—Barbara Chase of Edgewood.

* * *

The Rev. Wallace J. Gardner, rector of St. Paul's, Flatbush, Brooklyn, was at the College of Preachers, Washington, the week of May 9th as an assistant to Bishop Rhinelander.

* * *

A rather unusual class was confirmed by Bishop Mann at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Pittsburgh, the other evening. There were 34 in the class yet only nine of them were raised in the Church. There were Presbyterians, Roman Catholics, Lutherans, Baptists. Also eight new families were brought into the Church. The Rev. W. H. Moore is the rector.

* * *

Mr. Courtenay Barber of Chicago, who has been the boss of the Lenten noonday services in that city for a considerable time—twenty-five years as a matter of record—has retired from that job, and was handed a present by the directors of the Church Club the other day in recognition of his services. Mr. Barber, being a particularly able man, was able to take care of all the details of this large undertaking. Now that he has retired the responsibilities have been split up among a number of the members of the Church Club.

* * *

At a meeting of sixty clergy and laymen of the diocese of Chicago, held at Galena, Illinois, plans were made to carry the church into every village and town in the northern deanery. A definite program of extension was adopted which provides for the licensing of layreaders in every parish. They will go out in pairs to visit Churchmen in isolated communities; distribute Church literature; hold services in homes; organize Sunday Schools and ultimately to start new missions. Bishop Stewart was at the meeting and urged the laity to be fishers of men. The program outlined is the result of the inspiration these fishermen received from his sermon. Powerful preacher is Bishop Stewart.

* * *

Four churches in Brooklyn are celebrating 85th anniversaries this year. Two of them are well-known —Grace Church, where the Rev. George Parkin Atwater is the present rector, and Plymouth Church, made famous by Henry Ward Beecher. The other two are St. Michael's, High Street, and St. John's, a Lutheran Church in East New York. Grace Church celebrated the anniversary in proper style with special services, a reception and a dinner. St. Michael's, in early days was a chapel of Grace Church.

* * *

John P. Aaron, native East Indian student at the Western Seminary, was ordained deacon at St. Mark's, Evanston, by Bishop McElwain. He was presented by the Rev. A. E. Knickerbocker, rector of St. Paul's, Minneapolis; the rector of St. Mark's, Harold L. Bowen, preached. Mr. Aaron is the son of a missionary who gave his life to the Church in India and it is his aim to take his father's place there.

* * *

St. Paul's, San Diego, California, has just been re-roofed, re-painted and re-carpeted without even the vestry knowing the source of the needed funds. The donor gave the cash to the rector, the Rev. Charles L. Barnes, and it is a secret between them.

* * *

The Rev. John W. Suter Jr., and Miss Anita J. Faatz, state welfare worker, were the speakers at a banquet held in connection with the convention of the diocese of Easton. Bishop Davenport presided. The convention met at St. Paul's, Centreville, Maryland.

* * *

The chapel at West Point, being on government property, is not attached to any diocese so the chaplain exercises the right to invite any bishop he cares to have for confirmation. This year he had Bishop Stires of Long Island who was there on a recent Sunday and confirmed a class of twenty-four cadets.

* * *

A white marble reredos was dedicated on May first at St. Paul's, Augusta, Georgia, by Bishop Reese. It is a memorial to the Rev. C. C. Williams, for 28 years the rector of the parish.

* * *

Bishop Rogers was the preacher at a memorial service held at St. Mark's, Toledo, Ohio, to do honor to the memory of the Rev. E. S. Pearce, rector of the parish from 1924 to 1932. The clergy of the region and the ministers of Toledo churches took part in the service.

* * *

David C. Watson was ordained deacon by Bishop Helfenstein of Maryland on May 5th. The sermon was preached by the Rev. William Brown-Seaman, professor at Alexandria where Mr. Watson graduates next month.

* * *

Convention of the diocese of Albany was held at the Cathedral of All Saints on May 3rd and 4th. Bishop Gailor of Tennessee was the preacher

PEACE STAMPS
Help to keep the issue of DISARMAMENT
Before the public.
Use them on all your mail
50 stamps for 50c
World Peace Posters, Inc.
31 Union Square,
New York City.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

KNIGHTS OF STS. JOHN

Wins young men to the Church. Provides worthwhile things to do. Endorsed by leading Bishops and Clergy. Manual of initiations $1. Rev. F. M. Wetherill, 3012 W. Coulter St., Phila., Pa.

"Sweet is the fragrance of Remembrance"

Beautiful Memorials that Abide for Ever

OLD English and Irish Crosses in Silvery Grey Cornish, Dark Grey Scottish or Warm Red Devon Granite.

VIth Century St. Martin's Cross
3 ft. 6 in. $87.00
4 ft. 6 in. $97.00
Packed in case for shipment
Approximate freight to New York $19.50
Illustd. Booklet Mailed Free

Maile & Son, Ltd
— Founded 1785 —
Sculptors and Church Art Craftsmen
367 Euston Road, London, N.W.1, Eng.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

at a service marking the centenary of the birth of the Rt. Rev. W. C. Doane, first bishop of the diocese. At the opening session of the convention the Rev. W. C. Prout was elected secretary for the 54th time. Bishop Oldham, in his address, spoke of financial matters and expressed disapproval of the suggestion that the clergy contribute 10% of their salaries to make up deficits. "We must adjust ourselves", he said, "in diocese, parish and home to a slower tempo, a lesser rate of spending and a simpler style of living probably for many years to come, and it is important that the Church should recognize this and endeavor to discover and reveal the spiritual values and possibilities in such readjustment." He also pleaded for a Christian internationalism for "in the proclamation of that gospel lies the world's only hope."

* * *

Commencement at Seabury Divinity School was held Monday and Tuesday of this week. The preacher at the graduation service was Dean Benjamin Dagwell of Denver.

* * *

The House party of the First Century Christian Fellowship (Buchmanites) closed on Sunday, May 1st, at Briarcliff, N. Y., with fully 600 persons there on the closing day. There were instructions by the leaders on how to carry on after leaving the "God-guided" atmosphere of the meetings. Members were told to go home and announce to family and friends that they were "changed", having completely surrendered to God's guidance. They were then told to convert others, create a group in their own localities, and then carry on with the "guidance", "sharing" and "surrendering" which they had experienced during the days at Briarcliff. The feature the closing day was the service conducted by the Rev. Frank Buchman, high priest of the cult, at which a parade of speakers explained that such varied problems as communism, poverty, international difficulties, war and peace, and farm relief would be quickly solved if we all became Buchmanites. I wish some of them would be guided to tackle the coal industry and see what they could do with that. Maybe they would be led to find food for several hundred starving families.

* * *

Few parishes in the American Church have the unique record of Trinity Church, Rensselaerville, N. Y. The Parish was organized in 1811, by the Rev. Samuel Fuller, who had founded, and carried on brilliantly for sixteen years the Presbyterian Church in this Village. His conversion to the Episcopal Church

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean
REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

was very thorough, and he had the courage, after his ordination to the Priesthood, and in face of every sort of opposition, to organize Trinity Parish. Three years later the beautiful colonial church edifice was erected, paid for and consecrated by Bishop Hobart. During the 121 years of practically uninterrupted service, the Parish has had but five Rectors, three of whom served their respective predecessors as curates. The present and fifth Rector, can only claim two of the 121 Years, the four previous Rectors filling out a span of 119 years.

In the same period, two senior wardens completed their half century each, of service, and the present Senior Warden is rounding out his fifty years as an officer of Trinity Parish. Trinity was one of the first Parishes to organize the Woman's Auxiliary, when that movement was started, way back in the "Seventies", and three of its original members are still with it.

Under the present Rector, the Rev. William Garner, the two church organizations founded by his first predecessor, have been combined in what is styled Trinity Episcopal Community Church, and a very interesting and promising development is under way, in which the Rector becomes the "Village Parson", and carries on a varied pastoral and social work.

* * *

The Church in Idaho loses as many people by removal from the state, each year, as are confirmed or received, and the loss is chiefly among young people, who are constantly migrating to fields where industrial opportunities are greater.

SOCIAL WORKERS HAVE CONFERENCE

(Continued from page 10)

work of chaplains of institutions. He said that the job required men of intelligence and education, with special training for the job. Given these it was his opinion that a chaplain would fill an important place in any institution.

"For my own part, as a physician, I think that the right chaplain can often do more for the patient than a physician can. I do not mean by this that he can do miracles in the sense in which that word is ordinarily interpreted; but that practically every miracle that we know anything about in the matter of healing can be repeated these days according to the law. I will go so far as to say that the miracles of Christ were not miracles in His own eyes. He allowed the word to stand; but He was doing perfectly understood work in the full consciousness that He was keeping the law of mind and body and soul."

The final session of the conference was held on Tuesday with the Federal Council of Churches, the subject of industry and its relation to the Church was discussed, with Spencer Miller Jr. and Professor S. H. Slichter of Harvard reading papers.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Send for a Catalog

WHEN your girl or boy is ten or eleven years old the time has arrived for study of possible boarding schools. A boarding school of the type maintained by the Episcopal Church offers pupils a wide variety of education in addition to preparation for college, important as that is.

Ask for catalogs. Study them carefully. Visit a school near you when there is opportunity. Talk with the head of the school and learn the advantages of a good private school over the schools which may be available in your home town.

Many parents send their children to boarding schools long before they are ready even for the first work of the secondary school. They count this a wise investment.

Investigate for yourself. Take plenty of time. See what courses are offered. Learn the advantages of boarding school life with its lessons in responsibility and participation in the small world represented in the school.

Any of the Episcopal Schools listed here will be glad to send catalog and other literature. The heads of the schools will also be more than glad to talk with parents on education problems.

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
DR. CHARLES L. STREET

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND

SHATTUCK SCHOOL
FARIBAULT, MINNESOTA
C. W. NEWHALL

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES

ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE
MRS. C. A. MCLANE

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT

ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL
DAVENPORT, IOWA
SISTER ESTHER

These schools, together with those whose notices appear on page fourteen of this paper, are recognized schools of the Episcopal Church. Information about these schools may be secured from the School Bureau, The Witness, 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

GOD'S KENTUCKY by W. B. SPOFFORD

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., MAY 26, 1932

THE CHAPEL
Of St. Mary's Hall: Burlington

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

The J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
No. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
A·D 1857

Church Furniture
Pews, Pulpits, Chancel Furniture
Sunday School Seating
American Seating Company
General Offices: Grand Rapids, Michigan
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Church Memorial Windows
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. Eighth&Court Sts.
New York, N. Y. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Write for our Booklet

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST. 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J·WIPPELL & CO LTD
will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for
Embroidery · Wood
Stone · Metal and
Stained Glass
EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · · · 11, Tufton St., S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown, Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 40 MAY 26, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

OUR CHURCH SCHOOLS

An Editorial by
CHARLES HERBERT YOUNG

IT IS good news that the Church is coming to appreciate the great value of work done with the boys and girls who attend her secondary schools and colleges. These schools are deserving of the confidence of parents. In selecting a school for his son or for his daughter a father wishes to be sure that the academic work will be done thoroughly, that the boy will learn how to study, how to think, and how to form appreciations for what is finest and of real value. The records made by our outstanding Church secondary schools give assurance of the quality of their work. The success of our graduates in college and university bears witness to the carefulness with which they are prepared.

A most important part of a child's training for life is the result of his companionships. In the hours the boy spends outside of his class room, where does he go, who are his associates, about what do they talk, what are his vital interests, how does he develop them? All of these have a determining influence in the shaping of his character.

The wholesome comradeship, the straightforward methods of meeting the problems of life, the simple democratic spirit which with all absence of snobbery accepts a boy for what he is, builds unselfishness and sincerity of purpose that are of inestimable value in fitting a boy for the serious purposes of life.

Every parent who loves our Lord and who appreciates the blessings that come to us through the privileges of the Church, wants his boys and girls to know about and to use and value these spiritual opportunities. And then when the time comes for them to go away to school these same devoted parents sometimes select a school supposed to have social standing and other similar attractions, but without a chapel or an altar, with little or no spiritual opportunities, with almost no contact with sacramental grace. The child's spiritual life dies of starvation. And when he comes home for vacation, he has lost all interest in and sense of need for services of the Church. But where does the trouble lie? Who made the choice?

Many priests have told me of the joy they have found in the strong loyal devotion of the boys from some of our Church secondary schools. It is easy to understand why this is true. The Church, her hymns and prayers and her sacramental life have been woven so naturally and helpfully into their daily routine that they are as natural and as customary as food and play. They are simply a part of one's every day life. In our careful Church schools religion is not something brought out from under cover and paraded once a week. It is a natural, wholesome atmosphere in which one lives each day.

I wish our Church people, clergy and laity, knew what a treasure we have in our Church schools. I wish they would come and visit them and learn from personal contact what great work they are doing. This is an attractive time of the year to drive. I am sure a hearty welcome will be found at each and every school.

Especially do I wish our parents would carefully investigate our Church schools and colleges before deciding to send their children to a secular school. The child's whole future may be changed and his Church life ruined by a wrong decision. I would not say this if I were not so positive of my ground. I know a group of Church schools in the middle west, and others in the east, where our boys and girls can receive the highest type of preparation for college and for life. Why, then, jeopardize their future?

Many of our Church people are possessed of enough wealth to make a will necessary for disposing of their property. A great many are most generous. I sometimes wish they knew more about the splendid, unselfish work of our schools, and how greatly their efficiency would be increased if they had better buildings and endowments. I know of few purposes to which money can be given where it will do such vital and lasting good as when given to build or to endow our

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church schools. What nobler monument can be erected to a man's or woman's memory than to provide an endowment to continue to train for life our boys and girls? There are a good many schools for boys and for girls that are the property of the Church (not held for private gain) that offer the finest sort of opportunity to generous people for making permanent the spiritual and intellectual training of youth.

GOD'S KENTUCKY

By

WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

YOU know a good bit about the Kentucky coal fields I presume. Most everybody does. First a cry of misery from starving miners and their families. Later we were told of the bitter struggle between the operators and the miners' unions, with injunctions, riots, innumerable killings, and more recently the driving out of the state of groups who went there to find out for themselves what it was all about. Gradually starvation was crowded into the background and civil liberties became the issue. These charges of violations of law, particularly the kidnaping and beating of visitors, prompted a group of New York clergymen to appeal to the United States Senate to investigate "in order to throw light upon a confused situation."

A few days after this appeal appeared in the papers a telegram was received by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, chairman of the clergymen's group, inviting the parsons to come to Kentucky to do their own investigating. It was signed by Mr. Walter B. Smith, county attorney in Bell County and Mr. Cleon Calvert, chairman of the citizen's committee in Pineville. It was of course impossible for the entire group to go. So a committee was organized consisting of the Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, social service secretary of our Church, Rev. Cameron Hall, pastor of the Christ Presbyterian Church, Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor at Union Seminary, and myself. Before setting out we made it clear—at least we did everything possible to do so—that we had neither the time nor the training to conduct anything that might be dignified by the word "investigation;" that we could merely "visit," hoping in the short time at our disposal to get something of a slant on the situation. I think we did.

UPON our arrival in Pineville we called upon our host, Mr. Walter B. Smith. He welcomed us in his office very cordially and then ushered in a flock of county officials for the customary handshaking and conversational clap-trap. We were then informed that a committee of clergymen had been organized to welcome us and that we were to go to the Baptist Church for a little conference. The Rev. S. E. Tull, pastor of the First Baptist Church in the neighboring town of Middlesboro was the chairman. Preacher Tull was most cordial with his welcome—rather too cordial I thought. He extended to us "the right hand of brotherhood and fellowship; the same hand I gave my beloved wife in marriage; the same hand with which I defend my sacred hearth; the same hand with which I salute our glorious flag." So far so good. But Brother Tull went on to give us his life history; where he was born, where he was educated, who his ancestors were, what churches he had served. Then he called upon the other pastors present to do the same. It was preliminary of course to asking us to do likewise. So one by one we told of our ancestry, our schooling, our church connections. No particular fault could be found with any of us on that score. They were a bit disappointed I think. Maybe not. But I have an idea they would have been delighted to have been told that one of us was born in Russia or Turkey or some place. No; one hundred per cent without exception.

But the inquisition did not end there. Preacher Tull assured us that he had no connections outside the Baptist Church, South. That wasn't hard to believe.

Then he turned on Dr. Niebuhr. "You, I believe, are one of the editors of The Christian Century." And when he got an affirmative answer he let out a grunt of approval for having unearthed such a damaging bit of evidence. "And of the World Tomorrow, which I am told teaches pacism?" ("Pacism" was his word for "pacifism" all the afternoon.) And when he got a yes to this he was quite satisfied that he had completely discredited Niebuhr. And as far as that particular audience was concerned I think he had.

My turn was next. "Do you belong to the American Civil Liberties Union?" The answer was yes. "Who is the chairman of that organization?" The answer: "The Rev. Harry F. Ward, professor at Union Seminary." "Where is Dr. Ward now?" Answer: "He is taking a trip through Russia." "I thought so," which was said with a finality which closed that particular matter as far as Preacher Tull was concerned. But we did labor with him for a good half hour about the American Civil Liberties Union, trying to make him, and the flock of others present, understand that it was a thoroughly American organization, organized for the sole purpose of upholding and battling for the rights guaranteed American citizens by the constitution. But we were wasting our time; the chairman of the Union was in Russia; the Union fought for the right of free speech for miners who were attempting to organize a labor union. It was perfectly clear to Preacher Tull that it was a communist organization.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Then I was asked if I believed in "production for use instead of for profit" and when I allowed that I did it was merely jotted down as another piece of damaging evidence against me and nothing further was said about it. I was rather sorry about that, for things being as they are in Kentucky it might have been possible to convince at least some of them that production for use was better than no production at all, which is quite clearly their present state, arrived at by a strict loyalty to the doctrine of rugged individualism.

IF YOUR imagination is as good as it ought to be you can readily understand that by this time we were not looked upon with entire favor by the dozen or so who sat in on this inquisition. But Brother Tull had yet to play his trump card. Suddenly he shot out with: "Do you believe in the inerrancy of the Holy Scripture as the absolute word of God?"

Dr. Niebuhr, being a particularly honest man, replied: "You mean, am I a fundamentalist? The answer is no. But what has that got to do with conditions among the miners?"

"Well," said Brother Tull, "down here we are fundamentalists in religion, economics and politics. And nobody can understand us or our situation who is not also a fundamentalist."

It was my turn next. I tried hard to be both dignified and outraged. "It is not your business to examine into my theological views. I have been examined by the authorities of my own Church and ordained. That ought to be enough to satisfy you."

However, it wasn't so I took another line. I suggested to Preacher Tull that he get in touch with the Rt. Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, Episcopal bishop of Lexington "whom you no doubt know and he will tell you anything you wish to know about me." But that didn't go so well either. Brother Tull said that he had heard the good bishop preach once and didn't think so much of him. So eventually I had to come clean and admit that I was not a fundamentalist.

Rankin Barnes, better trained as a theologian, handled the situation much more skilfully. He delivered a discourse on theology which was so good that nobody could possibly understand it. As a result he was accepted by the Southern brethren as one of their own and was so announced to the world, by the newspaper men present, as a fundamentalist. I doubt if he ever gets over it. Cameron Hall was equally skilful. He is a very quiet and level-headed fellow who takes such business calmly. He merely said that he thought he agreed pretty much with everything Mr. Barnes had said. Thus he got under the wire without so much as snapping out of his relaxation.

I have given you too much of this. The point is that we were condemned before we even started to look around. We were not fundamentalists. He had associated with such people as Harry Emerson Fosdick, Bishop McConnell, Russell Bowie, S. Parkes Cadman and others who do not believe in the inerrancy of Holy Scripture as the absolute word of God. That meant, to them, as they told us, that we could not believe in the incarnation. That lead inevitably to a denial of God. And that meant, like as not, that we were advocates of "pacism," communism, and that we were in Kentucky as emissaries of Moscow, "to tear down our sacred flag and institutions." And the interesting thing about it all was that no amount of reasoning on our part could convince these good Christian people that we were anything else.

WE DID find out a good deal about the mining industry and the condition of the miners in the short time we were there. But others have given you that story so that I can be very brief with it. Here is one mine—said to be the best in the country. The average wage of the miners, according to the operator himself, is just a few cents over $32 a month. Of this $20 is taken back for rent for their company house, for the doctor's fee, for the hospital fee, electric lights, etc. Thus the miner is left with $12 to feed and clothe his family. He gets this $12 in scrip which means that he must make all his purchases in the company store, where the operator is able to charge any prices that he likes. We were given figures to indicate that these prices were out of line with those of the merchants in town. One miner told us of his neighbor being fired. He went in to the company store and had on a pair of new shoes. He was asked where he got them and when he said, "Sears-Roebuck," he was told to go to Sears-Roebuck and get a job. He was fired and evicted from his company house with his family.

One of the operators told us that they did not expect the miners to live on what they earn. "We give them credit." This is undoubtedly true, but this of course creates a condition of essential peonage. And at that we received plenty of evidence that no miner's family is allowed more than $5 a week, including both wages and credit.

The condition of the thousands who are unemployed is even worse. They get some relief. The community is trying hard, and their effort is supplemented by the Red Cross and the Friends, but the total amount of relief is so meagre that one wonders how they can keep body and soul together.

There is a great deal of talk, and fear, about the "reds." But I doubt if there is a real "red" among all the miners in the region. One old miner said to us: "If you are hungry you are a red, and if you tell your neighbor you are hungry you are guilty of criminal syndicalism." It is nearly that bad. Scores of the miners have been indicted for criminal syndicalism who have been guilty of little more. They did try for a time to organize the United Mine Workers, an organization of the American Federation of Labor. The effort was not a particularly serious one, on the admission of the leaders of that union. Then the National Miners Union came into the field. The National has communist affiliations. But the miners joined without any idea that they were joining a communist organization. It was simply that the National was on the job, had courage in coming to the aid of the miners and promised them relief, which incidentally they were unable to deliver. This started the cry of "The Reds," with the warfare which followed. The simple fact is that any real effort to organize these miners is opposed by the operators, aided by county and municipal officials, and the cry of "Reds" is their excuse for the terrorist methods they are using in crushing out all efforts to establish collective bargaining in the region.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The miners at the moment are a lot of God-fearing, fundamental religious folks who are anxious to put in a hard day's work for just enough cash to keep their families alive. How long they will continue to be worshippers of Kentucky's god I am not prepared to say. But I have an idea that if they are allowed to continue for long in their present plight that all this powerful preaching on the subject of getting their reward in heaven is not going to keep them from demanding at least a bit of it here upon earth. After all we ought not to bank too heavily on the stupidity, even of miners.

English Stained Glass

By

ELEANOR H. WILSON

THE advantage which stained glass windows have over paintings on canvas is that while the latter have only color, the former have color and light. The styles of French and Spanish windows may be designated by their century numbers, but English windows, changing at irregular dates, are best described by the style of architecture to which they conformed,—Early English, Decorative, Perpendicular and Renaissance. It is impossible within the brief compass of these articles to give a comprehensive survey of the stained glass of each country, so the reader will forgive me if I fail to mention a favorite window.

French glaziers in the early days were frequently called to England to execute commissions and for that reason English glass owes its origin to France, but once the art was introduced, it developed along wholly original lines. The 14th and 15th centuries when France was harried by wars, was the time of its greatest flowering in England. The infrequency of the rose window, found only in its full beauty at Lincoln, is compensated for by the great east window of many English churches, notably York and Gloucester. The French architect built the eastern end of his churches round, but in England they were square, thereby permitting a large sheet of glazing at the east end.

In England light-admitting grisaille had been freely used in early glass, as at Salisbury, and the tendency in the 14th century was for deeper tones, while during the Perpendicular period they again became lighter. The Tree of Jesse at Salisbury contains considerable of what is known as "yellow stain." This was an important discovery of the 14th century; it was found that chloride of silver melted and dropped on glass would color the surface golden, and this was employed to depict hair, to decorate costumes, etc., but most important was the effect it had upon the development of the canopy window, for it was no longer necessary to laboriously lead in bits of glass where needed.

York Minster is a veritable treasury of glass, covering an area double that in any other English cathedral. The soft greenish grisaille windows, the Five Sisters, are of Early English origin. The great west window of the Decorated period retains almost intact its original glazing. The Bell Founders' window ornamented by numerous bells, is the finest of its type in this country.

Thomas a Becket in exile, chanced to be in Sens when William of Sens was finishing his first attempt in pointed Gothic, so that when Canterbury Cathedral was destroyed by fire, they sent for William to rebuild it; this accounts for the decided French Gothic style. The best of the 13th century medallion glass in England is to be found at Canterbury. The glorious beauty of the reds and blues mingled with the scent of many lilies, enriched the opening service of the last Lambeth conference, held in this wonderful cathedral.

At Lincoln the splendid northern rose has been called for six hundred years, "The Dean's Eye" and its companion to the south, "The Bishop's Eye." The Dean's Eye looks to the north to guard against any attempt on the part of the Evil One to invade the sanctuary; the Bishop's Eye is turned toward the south, "The region of the Holy Spirit whose sweet influence can overcome the wiles of the wicked one."

Very perpendicular in its lines and coloring is the huge window at Gloucester, occupying the entire eastern wall, a thank-offering for the great English victory at the battle of Crécy. The chapel of King's College, Cambridge, contains the best examples of the Renaissance period; the artist here gave fully as much attention to color values as he did to design, rather unusual in the sixteenth century.

Thus does a poet interpret the beauty expressed by the window:

"Folks say, a wizard to a northern king
At Christmastide such wondrous things did show,
That through one window men beheld the spring,
And through another saw the summer glow,
And through a third the fruited vines a-row,
While still, unheard, but in its wonted way,
Piped the drear wind of that December day."

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By

V. AUGUSTE DEMANT

Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.

$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS

931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. MARY'S HALL: BURLINGTON

By

ETHEL M. SPURR

THE visitor to St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., is immediately struck by the admirable combination of old and new which it represents, and, too, by the happy and hospitable atmosphere which pervades its every building and hall. Here are to be found revered tradition and historic quaintness hand in hand with progressive methods and modern equipment.

St. Mary's was founded in 1837 by Bishop George Washington Doane who by that time was creating a decided place for himself in the work of the Diocese of New Jersey. It was founded to become a "nursery of Christian religion undefiled" for it was to be a school for the girls who were to be the mothers of the generations to come. Bishop Doane had ever been devoted to his mother, and all his work at the school and for it shows her influence on his life and thought.

On May the first of the year 1837, the school consisted of one building facing the Delaware River, and the program a curriculum of language, art and literature. Bishop Doane lived in the See House, Riverside, next the school, and personally inspected and directed all the work and play of the students. Many tales are told of the rigors of life in those days—study with sperm oil lamps, rising bell at 5:30 A. M., dormitory sleeping arrangements, etc., which read like fiction, but as class after class went out, they swelled the number of devout and interested Churchwomen throughout the country. The English Ecclesiologist of 1854 says, "St. Mary's Hall is a school of peculiar importance, being the virtual Cathedral of the Diocese," and her daughters are called by contemporary writers the "jewels in the Church's crown." Bishop Doane says as his work progressed, "And now there is scarce a village or a hamlet in which the name of St. Mary's Hall is not a 'household word' while each successive year the living stream of women has flowed out to beautify and fertilize the land."

SUCCEEDING bishops lent their kindly interest and inspiration to the growth of the school and now under the direction of the Right Reverend Paul Matthews, Bishop of New Jersey, the school is running with great success and efficiency. The number of buildings has increased to six, and the grounds extend over nearly 14 acres. There are five halls of residence, in which every girl has a single room, attractively furnished. The senior class is housed in a separate building under certain honor regulations, and thus learns self-dependence and responsibility. Every care is taken to protect the health and strength of the students, who number about one hundred day and boarding, from the kindergarten through the senior year in high school. A capable dietitian plans the well-balanced meals, and a resident nurse watches over the physical condition of the students. A medical examination is given to every girl as she enters, and corrective diet or exercises are planned as necessary.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

OUT FOR A RIDE

The academic work at St. Mary's Hall is of high standard, fulfilling the requirements for entrance into the major colleges and technical schools. The graduates of the Hall numbering over 1300, of whom over seven hundred are still living, have taken their places successfully in any line of activity they have undertaken. Courses are also offered in art, in music, and in secretarial work.

The sports program is extensive, covering all branches of athletics open to women. Formal gymnastics including drill and exercises, are, of course, offered, and in addition, hockey, basket-ball, tennis, riding, swimming, golf, dancing, and track draw out the various talents of the individual girl. Inter-scholastic competitions in basket-ball and hockey add much to the impetus of these games. As much as possible of this work is carried on out of doors and each girl thus is kept out at least two hours a day except in very inclement weather.

IN 1926, St. Mary's Hall absorbed Ruth Hall, an elementary school in Asbury Park, New Jersey, and has build upon that nucleus a thriving progressive Lower School. The girls of this department who are resident are under the care of a housemother and have an entirely separate organization of faculty and directors. A kindergarten was opened this year and boys have been admitted to the first three grades of the day department.

It has been increasingly possible throughout the entire school to offer very definite individual attention to the capabilities and problems of each child, and yet afford the group the necessary incentive and competition which class work gives. The classes are alive and enthusiastic and the faculty a group of experienced college-trained women.

The school exists on the theory that no education is complete without a very definite religious training, and the lovely old Chapel of the Holy Innocents is at once the center and heart of the school both physically and spiritually. Through its doors every morning the procession of singing girls winds its way to the chancel and in the very service links the old St. Mary's Hall with the new, for that service has been a part of the school since its founding. Every Sunday afternoon at five a choral evensong is celebrated, a service which draws visitors and friends from far and near, and as the words of the vesper hymn, "Softly Now the Light of Day" issue from a hundred throats it seems as if truly the spirit of the founder, George Washington Doane, hovered overhead, symbolized by the hymn he wrote in that very spot, and that through him the grace of our Lord were assured to the work he started.

St. Mary's Hall will celebrate its hundredth anniversary in four years, with a record to be proud of, the second oldest school of its type in America, the mother of many fine daughter-schools—one even as far distant as China,—and still striving to work out the purpose of the Founder:

"That her daughters may be as the polished corners of the Temple."

A Great Ministry

By

GARDINER M. DAY

HAD not Dr. Rainsford written his autobiography so recently under the title, "The Story of a Varied Life," we would certainly suggest it as the most descriptive title for this delightful and fascinating autobiography of Dr. Elwood Worcester, "Life's Adventure," which has just been published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Dr. Worcester is well known throughout the Church for his quarter of a century of work as Rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston and as founder of The Emmanuel Movement, but only his close friends have had any knowledge of the very wide diversity of his interests. Teacher, minister, author, lecturer, and even sportsman sounds fairly commonplace, but beneath the surface one discovers that life's adventure for Elwood Worcester has been one long struggle. In early youth came the struggle for education and ordination after the collapse of the family fortune. With a degree from The General Theological Seminary and a Ph.D. from the University of Leipsig, one might have thought that the rest of Dr. Worcester's life would have been smooth sailing, but on the contrary he was engaged in one battle after another for unpopular causes beginning with his pioneer work in Biblical Criticism forty years ago and concluding with the pioneer work in the field of Psychic Research, which he is carrying on today.

Few men have a greater gift for story telling than has Dr. Worcester, as all who have heard him speak well know. When he is dealing with past episodes this ability is greatly enhanced by the very remarkable verbal memory which enables him to repeat long poems, pieces of prose and conversations, which he has not heard for many years, verbatim. Consequently, pictures of his life as a Professor in the University of Lehigh, as Rector of St. Stephens Church, Philadelphia, and in his hunting expeditions in the northern part of the continent are made doubly vivid by his ability to recall bits of repartee or singular actions characteristic of some well known citizen of Philadelphia of the past generation like Weir Mitchell or of some typical Newfoundland guide.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

This volume is more than an ordinary autobiography in that several of the chapters are really essays which deserve attention quite apart from any autobiographical interest. The two chapters which are outstanding in this respect are those on "Health Work" and "Psychic Research." The former tells of the growth, method and work of The Emmanuel Movement, while the latter is a careful argument for the case in favor of Psychic Research. The reviewer commends this latter chapter to all priests and laymen who are inclined to throw all psychic research out of the purview of their minds as "spooky spiritualism."

Finally as the reader puts the book down he realizes that he has been given glimpses into the truly deep ministry of more than a teacher and more than a Rector, of a mighty spiritual soul. He knows why, at the beginning of The Emmanuel Movement in response to a notice that Dr. Worcester would be in the Parish House on a certain day to advise the nervously sick, 128 people appeared. They recognized in him one who had learned how to draw from the well of living water.

News Notes of the Church

Edited by

W. B. SPOFFORD

AT THE Cathedral in Garden City, Long Island, they issue a "Junior Message" which is the work of the boys and girls in the Church School. A recent number of this publication contains reports of the recent meeting of the House of Bishops which for terseness, not to say brilliance, surpasses any of the reports in the Church weeklies. Bobby Geer for instance writes: "The House of Bishops met at the Garden City Hotel. First the camera men took pictures of the bishops. Then Bishop Perry of Rhode Island began the meeting with a prayer. The roll was called and many bishops from all over the land answered. Two new members were added. Then Bishop Stires made a short address of welcome, saying that there has never been so many bishops on Long Island. Discussion concerning balancing the budget followed." Lyman Collins is equally brief. He writes: "The presiding bishop was Bishop Perry of Rhode Island. He acted as chairman. It was a very hard job because there were about a hundred bishops and in order to have the meeting go along quickly the presiding officer must recognize each one immediately." And that the remarks by the Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., were adequately reported can be gathered from the following by Creighton Phillips: "Mr. Suter, head of the department of religious education, had compiled a lot of statistics and he gave the expenditures of the department down to the cent. He stated that religious education should not be cut as it was one of the most important divisions of the Church." Finally Arnold Behrer writes of the report of the Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, head of the department of social service as follows: "Mr. Barnes said that he had four men working full time and one half time. Now he has two men full time and one half time. He does not have enough men to do the work. If this bureau was stopped it would cripple one of the great works of the Church."

I must not spoil this by adding any superfluous comments, but I would like to say that if the bishops ever meet at Garden City again I would like to engage these gentlemen to cover the meetings for this paper.

Central New York Convention

Church problems arising from the depression were major considerations at the convention of the diocese of Central New York, May 10th and 11th. The convention was most harmonious and lined up solidly behind Bishop Fiske in all his policies. The standing committee of the diocese, in presenting the year's budget, praised the economies put in force and urged upon the National Council a more serious effort to effect like economies. This was put in the following resolution:

"Economic conditions throughout the world place a responsibility upon government, business, and the family for thoughtful planning and conscientious administration of funds. The same responsibility rests upon the Church. Your Standing Committee is deeply solicitous over the inadequate income available for missionary work. It is also deeply solicitous over the heavy burden already resting on the Christian giver. Therefore, we call upon the officials of the National Church to make the most exacting study of all its expenditures and also of its methods of obtaining income." The warmest discussion arose out of the proposed resolution citing facts about the depression and calling upon the clergy to study social problems and discuss them in their preaching. This resolution sprang out of an address by Mr. Spencer Miller. Vigorous objection was made to its preamble declaring that a more serious condition is to be faced now than during the war, etc., and both clerical and lay critics objected to vague calls for leadership and eloquent language about "crises" and "challenges" and declared that it was impossible to get from those who presented such calls, any definite proposals for Christianizing the social order. In the end, the resolutions were withdrawn.

The feature of the convention was the dinner at which the Hon. John B. Harris, mayor of Watertown, outlined methods of parochial canvassing; Mr. Curtis Alliume, former director of public safety in Utica spoke on "Men and the Church," and Mr. J. L. Gregory of Binghampton gave an address on the opportunities for men in the Church's service. The dinner was followed by a community service in Grace Church when addresses were delivered by

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Mr. Courtenay Barber, president of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, and Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., consultant on industry of the National Council.

Montana Convention

The convention of Montana was held at Butte, May 8-10. The convention passed a resolution supporting the National Council and accepting the responsibility of raising the thousand dollars apportioned to the diocese toward the deficiency fund.

Bethlehem Convention

The convention of the diocese of Bethlehem was held at Christ Church, Reading, Pa. Prior to the convention there was a mass meeting, with the Rev. W. Crosby Bell of the Virginia Seminary and the Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., head of the department of religious education of the National Council, as speakers. One of the features of the convention was the presence of Mr. Rodney E. Mercur, a venerable gentleman who has been present at fifty-two of the sixty-one conventions of the diocese.

Cause of Discontent

At the convention of the diocese of Ohio last year a resolution was passed calling upon the social service department and the diocesan council "to study the cause of the present wide-spread social discontent and the relation of the Church thereto, and to report on the same at the next diocesan convention." The findings of this committee (the Rev. Andrew S. Gill of Cleveland, and the Rev. Walter F. Tucks of Akron), was presented to the convention on May 10th. The report points out that the General Convention has dealt with the problem in the meanwhile and it urges a careful study of the Pastoral Letter of the House of Bishops and the report of the General Convention on "National and World Problems." It then goes on to list the following as causes for the depression: the world war; the prohibition amendment; the inability of the industrial order to absorb specialized workers released annually by colleges; machine-age developments whereby possible production and actual consumption are forced permanently out of balance; irritating and excessive taxation representing waste in government, corruption in politics; wide-spread prevalence of crime and the failure of our constituted machinery of justice to deal with it adequately. The report then goes on to say that, important as these are, they do not strike at the root of the problem. "The principles of Christian brotherhood and co-operation have been narrowly interpreted and rendered inapplicable in such cases as interfered with the private gains, ambitions and desires of the individual. . . . Thus, while there are many contributory causes, each having its bearing on the wide-spread social discontent, we believe that in the final analysis they all may be traced to the one great failure of mankind to agree with the wisdom of God and co-ordinate action with the known and established moral principles of Christ. We have tried to live without God." The report concludes by taking the Church to task for her willingness to compromise these principles for the sake of institutional advantage.

The report was received enthusiastically by the convention.

BISHOP SHERRILL
At General Commencement

Strange Congregation

A confirmation service was held recently at Christ Church, Savannah, which was attended by a Jewish rabbi and fifteen members of his congregation and also a large group from one of the Methodist churches in the city.

Thriving Parish

Few parishes have shown faster or healthier growth than St. George's, Maplewood, New Jersey. During the past few years the number of communicants has increased from 150 to over 600, and the total membership is now approximately 1050. During this period the Sunday School offerings have been so large as to place St. George's second in a diocese with 190 schools. Close to a quarter of a million dollars has been contributed to the parish during this time and the missionary offering during the past ten years has been also generous. The Rev. Francis H. Richey is the rector.

Someone Yelled Fire

Just as Church school was about to begin at our church in Jefferson City, Missouri, someone yelled through the church door: "The rectory is on fire." But, believe it or not, the service went on as usual. At least our correspondent says so, though he does not state positively that all the children were in their accustomed places. Quite a fire, too, with the roof burned off the rectory and a lot of other damage done. The building was fully covered by insurance.

Young People Meet

A conference of the young people of the province of Washington was held at St. John's, York, Pa., May 6-8. It was largely attended.

New Archbishop

The Rev. Erling Eidem, professor at the University of Lund, was consecrated primate of Sweden in Uppsala Cathedral on May 22nd. He is the 62nd archbishop, and also the youngest of all present bishops in the country.

Bishop's Son Ordained

Bishop Casady of Oklahoma ordained his son, P. M. Casady, to the diaconate on April 30th. The service was held in the private chapel in the home of the Rev. Howard C. Robbins. Young Mr. Casady is to serve widely scattered missions in Oklahoma.

Young People Meet

The young people of the diocese of Springfield held their annual meeting at St. Paul's, Springfield, Illinois. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting.

Receives Cash

Christ Church, Norwich, Connecticut, has received $10,000 by the will of the late Harwood Byrnes.

Banks Is Married

The Rev. John Gayner Banks, formerly the director of the Society of the Nazarene, was married on May first to Miss Ethel E. Tulloch of San Diego, California. They leave this week for a short visit to Scotland and England, after which they are to make their home in California.

Berkeley Commencement

The commencement of the Berkeley Divinity School is to be held in New Haven June 8th and 9th. The preacher at the alumni service is to be the Rev. Samuel S. Drury, rector of St. Paul's School, and the address at the graduation is to be by the Rev. W. T. Brown, acting chaplain of Yale.

Sherrill at General

The commencement at the General Seminary was held in New York May 23-25. The sermon on Monday was preached by Bishop Sherrill of Massachusetts. The alumni essay was by the Rev. John Henry Hopkins, while the address at the commencement exercises was by Dr. Chauncey B. Tinker, professor at Yale.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Nurses Have Service

Bishop Moore of Dallas preached the sermon at the annual service in memory of Florence Nightingale, held at St. Matthew's Cathedral, Dallas last Sunday evening. There were about seven hundred nurses, in their uniforms, in the procession. Twelve members were admitted to St. Barnabas Guild for Nurses by Dean Wood, the chaplain of the guild.

Memorials Dedicated

Many memorials were dedicated at St. James Church, Schuylkill Haven, Pa., at a service on May 12th. The church, now in charge of the Rev. J. R. Ramsey, is over one hundred years old, and will some day undoubtedly become an important center in the diocese since a school for clergymen's daughters will eventually be opened there. At least the sum of $400,000 was left for such a purpose by Mrs. Elizabeth Bryant.

New Hampshire Convention

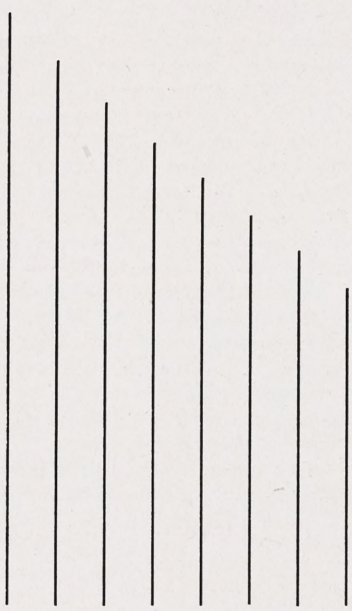
The convention of the diocese of New Hampshire met at Sanbornville on May 10th. The night before the convention there was a mass meeting at which the speaker was Bishop Hulse of Cuba. Another interesting address was given by the Rev. Edric A. Weld, rector of Holderness School, who described the plans for the new buildings which they hope to start constructing this summer. Also an intimate historical address on the life of the late Bishop W. W. Niles, who was born 100 years ago on May 24th, was given by the bishop's son, the Rev. William Porter Niles, rector at Nashua.

Dean Williamson Elected

The convention of the diocese of Arkansas was held at Newport, with the suffragan, Bishop Saphore, presiding. Following the regular business balloting was begun for the election of a bishop to succeed Bishop Winchester, resigned, and it continued until late in the evening. On the eleventh ballot the lay vote was 34 for the Very Rev. John Williamson, dean of the cathedral at Little Rock, 13 for the Rev. W. P. Witsell of Little Rock, and 5 for Bishop Saphore. The clerical vote was 11 for Dean Williamson, 6 for Dr. Witsell, 1 for Bishop Saphore and 1 for the Rev. W. S. Claiborne of Sewanee, Tennessee. This means, I take it, that the next bishop of Arkansas is to be the Very Rev. John Williamson.

Teachers Meet

The Teachers' Fellowship of the diocese of Long Island, an organization which was started in 1925 and now has an enrollment of 400 Church school teachers, is to hold its anniversary at Rockville Center on June 5th. Bishop Larned is to be the speaker.



Stires Attacks Corruption

Bishop Stires of Long Island, in his convention address on Tuesday last, attacked crime, corruption and government inefficiency and exhorted the Church to do its share in emphasizing the dependence of morality upon religion.

"The clergy should accept responsibility for creating and maintaining a wholesome public opinion. If we fail to do this we are illogical in emphasizing the dependence of morality upon religion.

"This gives no excuse for partisan politics in the pulpit. On the other hand, it gives no excuse for avoiding in the pulpit discussion of the grave moral problems of the city and the nation. And we must beware of mere discussion. We must be ready to arouse our communities,

There is
No Depression

. . . for those who enjoy the benefits of an annuity. Annuities are of particular advantage to persons of mature years who wish to be free from the worries occasioned by an irregular income derived from an investment in bonds or stocks.

. . . and for those without dependents, too much cannot be said for this arrangement of finances.

For full information address

The
Church Life Insurance
Corporation

20 Exchange Place
New York City

A Subsidiary of The Church Pension Fund

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—
F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)
CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.
MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 2[illegible]

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St Boston

to urge organization for better government and to plead for the nomination and election of honest men, wise men, patriotic and unselfish men who will serve the best interests of the people and not devote themselves to filling their own pockets or buying their re-election by the passage of laws which would give away billions of the people's money without the slightest justification.

"It is not a question of politics; it is a question of plain honesty. On such a subject the Church cannot be silent. Our clergy and laity must speak and act, and I offer my full cooperation wherever such efforts are made."

Bishop Stires said that the activities of the diocese were not seriously hindered by the trying financial conditions of the moment.

A resolution was introduced asking the federal government to provide cheap credit for the purpose of building houses for the workers which could be rented at a low figure. This was referred to a committee. Another resolution was introduced calling for a committee to study the question of proper compensation for the clergy. This also went to a committee.

Children Rally

The church schools of the diocese of Long Island held their annual rally at the Cathedral at Garden City on May 21st. It is a great event always and this year was no exception.

Fellowship Meeting

A meeting of the provincial young people's fellowship was held at St. Andrew's, Albany, N. Y., on May 15th with representatives of six of the eight dioceses present.

Masonic Service

A national Masonic service in commemoration of George Washington's life as a Mason is to be held in Washington Cathedral this coming Sunday, with the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton of Philadelphia as the preacher.

Marquis Causes Stir

The Rev. Samuel S. Marquis, rector of Christ Church, Cranbrook, Detroit, caused a considerable stir at the meeting of the Pastors' Union the other day by declaring that Christianity must be wiped out in order that the religion of Jesus may live.

"Christianity as it exists today still has in it some slight traces of the religion of Jesus—for Christianity is not the religion of Jesus," Dr. Marquis declared.

Religions, like everything else, have a way of coming and going out of existence after their purpose is served, Dr. Marquis maintained, mentioning as disappearing or already gone such features as images,

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.
SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania
Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.
Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

polytheism, tribal and national deities, sacrifices of animals and men, deified ancestors and rulers.

Sketching in, without any "feeling of certainty," his outline of the religion of the future, Dr. Marquis voiced the belief that it would be chiefly concerned with improvement of conditions here and now.

"Christianity is the religion of Jesus crusted over and stifled by the accretions of centuries. The next step is to strip it of these and then give it an honest trial.

"A new gospel is in the making —the social gospel of Jesus — the setting up of the kingdom of God on earth in place of the economic slavery and political corruption that is making a hell out of life.

"The early missionary went out to save the souls of the heathen. The modern missionary is chiefly concerned with saving the heathen from the hell in which he lives—about the bodies he has cured and the minds he has enlightened with knowledge that makes for a happier life on earth."

Eternal punishment for sin, necessity of baptism for gaining heaven, obeying tradition, infallibility of church authorities are beliefs to be eliminated, Dr. Marquis said.

"It seems altogether likely that the facts recently discovered by penologists and psychologists were known to God quite a while ago.

"The old religion rested one foot on infallibility—and the other on tradition. The new religion faces the future, not the past.

"The new religion is not interested in ecclesiastical units and uniformity of belief. Church unity along the lines sought by the fragments of the old divided church is a futile quest.

"The new religion will find unity in co-operative action in the service of men; in improving the conditions under which the under-privileged of the world live; in laying new foundations and setting thereon new standards of living for the individual, the family and the state."

As the 100 ministers present were giving Dr. Marquis a rising vote of appreciation, one said, "Apparently Tom Paine would be welcome in this gathering."

Others attacked the paper, terming it "Hellish," and saying that more of its kind would mean the destruction of the pastors' union.

Alabama Clergy Meet

A conference for the clergy of Alabama was held at Grand View, May 10-13. Bishop McDowell gave a talk on the subject of "Taking Stock". Other subjects discussed were the Devotional Life, Instruction for Marriage, The Church's Part in Relief Work, How to Improve our Preaching and Preparing for Next Fall. In addition to this serious business there was quoits, dominoes, chess, tramping and a lot of sleeping.

Vermont Convention

The centennial celebration of the diocese of Vermont was celebrated at Burlington May 10th and 11th. A progressive step was taken by the convention in passing new canons providing for the establishment of an executive council to assist the bishop in a more effective management of the affairs of the diocese. Governor Wilson of Vermont addressed the convention as did also the famous Dr. Wilfred Grenfell of Labrador. The Rev. Bernard Iddings Bell of St. Stephen's College preached the convention sermon.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

FOR some time we have felt that there should be something in The Witness for boys and girls. We are now very glad to be able to announce a series of stories, written especially for them by Eveleen Harrison, formerly the executive secretary of the department of religious education of the diocese of Long Island. May we take this occasion to call these to the attention of parents and all who have boys and girls in their households. We will also appreciate a word from you, after a number of weeks, as to whether these stories are enjoyed by your young folks. If so, in spite of the fact that we have to be economical with space, we most certainly will make them a regular feature of the paper. The first story will appear in the issue of next week.

GUNSTON HALL

School for girls in National Capital. General academic and college preparatory work. Small classes. Special courses in Art, Music, Expression, Home Economics, Commercial. Estab. 1892. Catalog on request. Mary L. Gildersleeve, Mary B. Kerr, M. A., Principals. Richard N. Mason, Business Manager, 1934 Florida Ave., Washington, D. C.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA

Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

"My Father's Rupture Appliance Was Kept by 3,000,000 People AFTER 10 Days Free Trial"—Harold Brooks

C. E. Brooks invented his remarkable "Air-Cushion" Appliance 31 years ago. It brought him safety, comfort and the results he had long desired. Today more than 3 million men, women and children have purchased a Brooks after first trying it at home for 10 days. The trial cost them nothing and the same 10-day Free Trial is yours for the asking. You owe it to yourself to Write Now for Free Trial details, also Free Brochure, both sent in plain, sealed envelope. Act Now!

C. E. Brooks, Inventor BROOKS APPLIANCE CO. 346-A State Street, Marshall, Mich.

Conference for Church Work
WELLESLEY COLLEGE, WELLESLEY, MASS.
June 27 - July 8, 1932

Offers twenty-five courses under well known instructors, on Bible study, Personal religion, Church history, Missions, Religious education, Social ethics, Church music and Religious drama.

For information address the Secretary,

Miss Marian De C. Ward,
50 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City

—o—

STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION

—o—

CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

Western New York Convention

A diocesan dinner, at which Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr. spoke on the task of the Church today, was the feature of the convention of Western New York, held at Trinity, Buffalo, May 16th and 17th. A resolution was passed endorsing the work of the National Council and also recommending that the recommendations of the Bishops of the Second Province calling for strict economy be carried out as fully as possible. Bishop Cameron Davis reported that the diocese has sent to the Council $13,000 as its contribution to the deficiency fund.

Summer School at Tacoma

Bishop Huston is to give a course at the summer conference of Olympia, held at Tacoma, on the subject of Christian Economics. Others to give courses are the Rev. David Covell, field secretary of the National Council; Rev. Franklin R. Hart; Miss Frances Arnold; Rev. George A. Wieland; Mrs. Margaret Peppers and Miss Ruth Loaring-Clark. Last year the attendance at this conference was close to three hundred.

Rector Dies

The Rev. Leland G. Chase, rector of Trinity, Claremont, New Hampshire, died on May 2nd following an operation. He belonged to the Chase family of which Bishops Philander and Carlton Chase were members.

G. T. S. Alumni Meet

Thirty-one alumni of the General Seminary had an annual dinner in Utica on May 10th. The Rev. H. C. Whedon of Oxford presided, and the speakers were the Rev. H. G. Coddington of Syracuse and Bishop Fiske.

He Works Hard

Bishop Manning of New York celebrated his 66th birthday on May 12th. Says the New York Times: "The bishop is known to work eighteen hours out of every twenty-four, and in spite of the added burdens of his office due to depression, he is in good health and is an optimist."

Acolytes' Festival

Fully 3,000 persons attended the annual acolytes' festival of the diocese of Chicago, held at the chapel of the University of Chicago on Thursday last. There were 900 vested acolytes and 200 choristers.

Many Are Confirmed

Bishop Campbell of Liberia confirmed 114 persons in 1931; the suffragan, Bishop Gardiner, confirmed 130.

Church Club Meets

Bishop Rowe of Alaska predicted a great future for that country in an address before the Church Club of Chicago at the annual dinner held

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

at Hotel Sherman. Bishop Stewart, in his address, made two proposals: one, that the churches in outlying districts serve as assembly stations during the summer in gathering food for the unemployed; second, that a diocesan-wide mission be held next fall in the interests of the spiritual vitality of the diocese. He also proposed that farmers be permitted to pay their pledges to the Church in farm products to be used at the Cathedral Shelter and similar institutions. Bishop Sumner of Oregon was also a speaker at the dinner, pleading for civic righteousness. Mr. John Allen was re-elected president of the club.

Memorial Window

The Church of the Advent, Chicago, dedicated a stained glass window recently as a memorial to Jane E. Kirkley, well known public school teacher for many years.

Called to New Berlin

The Rev. Henry H. Hadley, Jr., son of the rector of St. Paul's, Syracuse, has accepted a call to the rectorship of St. Andrew's, New Berlin, N. Y. He graduates from Cambridge Seminary next month.

Acolytes' Festival

The annual acolytes' festival of the diocese of Western Michigan was held at Kalamazoo on May 13th. Bishop McCormick took part in the service and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Alfred Newbery, rector of the Atonement, Chicago.

Long Service

Henry H. Field was re-elected secretary of the Churchmen's Club of Rhode Island last week for the 31st consecutive year. Bishop Perry addressed the churchmen on our European churches.

Bishop as Chaplain

The summer school of the diocese of Western Michigan is to be held from June 19 to 25. The Rev. Lewis B. Whittemore is the director and Bishop McCormick the chaplain.

North Carolina Convention

The convention of the diocese of North Carolina met at Durham, May 10 and 11th. The financial committee presented the budget for 1933, and the convention promptly increased this budget by refusing to allow the contributions of the Woman's Auxiliary to apply on budget quotas. A resolution was also adopted placing a Negro associate member in each department of the executive council, and providing for a standing committee of Negro clergy and laymen, to be appointed by the bishop, to help direct the affairs of the Negro churches.

THE MUNDS HOME

78 Midland Ave., Montclair, N. J.

Elderly persons, invalids and convalescents will receive every comfort of Church home and under care of registered nurses. Moderate rates. References by permission to Rev. F. J. Clark, Secretary National Council.

RETREAT

Adelynrood, South Byfield, Mass.

A retreat for women will be held by the Society of the Companions of the Holy Cross on June 25th to 27th. Conductor, the Rev. Charles Townsend. Applications should be made to Mrs. R. T. Hakes, 149 Chestnut St., Montclair, New Jersey.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.
Daily: 12:20.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner

Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11.
Vespers and Benediction: 8 P. M.
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 and 9:30.

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 11, 8.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursday: 11 (additional).

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Keeping Jack in School

"OUR meals do not cost as much as they did and I am having Bertha only one day a week. I think I can save $100 from my housekeeping money toward Jack's tuition."

Thus spoke the mother of one private school pupil.

"Jack is doing good work, and is certainly getting training that he would not receive in the local school. We must keep him in school."

Parents in all parts of the country are straining themselves in every way possible to keep their children in boarding school.

The secondary schools operated under the direction of the Episcopal Church appreciate the support given them, just as the parents appreciate the high grade instruction in scholastic subjects and in life conduct which pupils receive.

These are times that try men's souls, but the younger generation must move on, and they can progress only as they are well educated. The Episcopal schools are eager to serve you.

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
DR. CHARLES L. STREET

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND

SHATTUCK SCHOOL
FARIBAULT, MINNESOTA
C. W. NEWHALL

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES

ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE
MRS. C. A. MCLANE

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT

ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL
DAVENPORT, IOWA
SISTER ESTHER

These schools, together with those whose notices appear on page fourteen of this paper, are recognized schools of the Episcopal Church. Information about these schools may be secured from the School Bureau, The Witness, 931 Tribune Building, New York City.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JUNE 2, 1932.

AN ILLUMINATED BULLETIN
At the Holy Comforter, Richmond, Virginia

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J·&·R·LAMB STUDIOS
NO·325 SIXTH·AVENUE·NEW·YORK
STAINED GLASS·MURALS
MOSAIC·MARBLE·STONE
CARVED·WOOD·METAL
SED 1857

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Stained Glass Memorials
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
Booklet sent on request

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

R. GEISSLER, INC.,
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE·BRASS·SILVER FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1837

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

J·WIPPELL & CO LTD
will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for
Embroidery·Wood
Stone·Metal and
Stained Glass
EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · · 11, Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 41 JUNE 2, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

MISSIONARIES are to be envied. The Rev. Francis Jarvis, missionary of the Church of England recently visiting in New York, relates his experiences on Cat Islands in the Bahamas. He is just ending a four year period of service and during all that time he never heard a radio, saw an automobile or ate a dish of ice cream. There are many of us who would like his job after he retires. Civilization has reached the islands, however. A native woman not long ago got her hands on a mail order catalogue and from the pictures the women got ideas as to what the well-dressed woman should wear. She and her friends copied these styles so that now the ladies strut their stuff in the latest Park Avenue manner. Aside from that Cat Islands, as described by the missionary, sounds like a delightful place.

EARLY reports on the Whitsunday offering are encouraging. There is every indication that considerably more than $400,000 has been given by the people of the Church in response to the deficiency appeal. Whether the entire sum will reach the treasurer of the National Council remains to be seen. Dioceses too have deficiencies and there is a tendency in some dioceses to take care of their own budgets first and then send anything that may be left to the National Council. However it can be said definitely that the Council has received $100,000 in cash; another $100,000 in pledges that are so good that they could be at once discounted at the bank if immediate funds were necessary; while encouraging informal reports are being received from most dioceses who have not yet stated definitely how much they will give. The diocese of Massachusetts has given the largest sum, its gift to the Council for this emergency fund being well over $50,000.

BISHOP BENNETT of Duluth is to take up residence at Providence, Rhode Island, in order to assist Presiding Bishop Perry in the administration of his diocese during his term of office as the head of the national affairs of the Church. It is a happy arrangement. It is obviously impossible for one man to head up the work of the Church nationally without neglecting his diocesan affairs. Bishop Bennett assisted Bishop Perry in the diocese during the latter's recent trip abroad and so endeared himself to the people of Rhode Island that the announcement made at the diocesan convention that he was to serve them permanently was greeted with great enthusiasm.

METHODISTS, meeting in quadrennial general convention at Atlantic City, have had sharp things to say about the paganism of modern industry. One of the highlights of the convention was a speech by Bishop Anderson of Boston in which he said: "Industry has as a rule given labor a grudging, insufficient wage, keeping it down by child exploitation, by suppression of legitimate organizations, and by other expedients, while at the same time huge fortunes have been amassed for the favored owners of the resources of production. Today the burden is without conscience shifted to the worker, who after giving his labor for miserable financial results, is turned off to starve or beg. Thus the machine, which might have been used to lift the load of poverty from the backs of all people, has been used selfishly for the benefit of the few." The Rev. Halford E. Luccock, professor at Yale Divinity School, was equally vigorous in his denunciation of industrialism. "The kind of a pagan world we live in," he said, "is clearly pictured in the movement of the stock exchange quotation. The headlines tell the brutal and inhuman story, 'Steel pay cut again; stocks rise rapidly.' That is what we call a Christian civilization, a civilization which imagines that prosperity can be increased as human misery increases; a civilization in which, when 200,000 workers had a pay cut of 15 per cent and men, women and children are pushed closer to the dizzy edge of starvation, investors send up three cheers and press forward to profit on human misery. God save us from perpetuating such an indecent and irrational order of life." The words were strong and yet, according to newspaper reports, they were received with acclaim by the several thousand delegates. If this sort of thing keeps up the observation of Karl Marx that religion is the opium of the people will have to be revised.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE SURPRISE PARTY

A Story for Boys and Girls

By

EVELEEN HARRISON

THE boys of the little town of Capernaum had a new interest in life. Swimming, fishing, boating on the lake were not to be compared to the thrilling experience of watching a lame boy throw away his crutches and walk; a blind man open his eyes and look into their faces for the first time; a little girl friend, raised from the dead, tell her experience of coming back from Heaven. All at the touch of the great Rabbi Doctor Who had come to make His home in their town on the Lake of Galilee.

Every day tales of the great Rabbi were repeated from mouth to mouth. The boys followed Him closely through the streets, gathered around Him on the seashore, listened eagerly to His wonderful stories, and searched the town for more people to be made well by His God given power.

One day a group of boys waited for Him outside the door of Simon Peter's house. Impossible for even a small boy to squeeze in, for a crowd of people filled the place inside and out; windows and doors packed with eager listeners who could not see the Rabbi, but could hear the clear, vibrating tones of His wonderful voice.

"Wish we could get in and see what He is doing, I'm tired waiting out here," grumbled little Joseph.

"Look, look! see what's coming down the street!" called Matthew, pointing up the road. Such a curious sight; four men, each holding the end of a big rug or mat, used for a bed, carrying something very heavy in the middle.

The boys turned eagerly to this new object of interest. "What are they carrying?" asked John.

Samuel, a little taller than the others, answered, "There's a sick man inside the rug,—they must be bringing him to the Rabbi Doctor."

Nearer and nearer came the little procession; the men had broken step so that the sick friend should not be shaken up too much. Eagerly the boys crowded around as they reached the door and laid their heavy burden down, wiping the sweat from their foreheads; the day was hot, and they had carried the sick man a long way.

"Why, that's my father's old friend, Simeon; he has been sick ever since I was born," whispered Reuben, one of the group of boys.

"How can we get him in to the Rabbi Doctor?" questioned the friends. "It would only hurt him to try to break through that crowd."

The people at the doorway turned to look as they discussed the problem. "No use trying," called one of the crowd, "there is not room for a child to squeeze through, let alone a sick man; better take him home again."

But the four faithful friends would not be discouraged; they had promised to bring their comrade to the Great Healer, and had no intention of breaking their word. The Rabbi had said, "Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden." Was not their friend weary of lying in bed for years, and heavy laden with the suffering of mind and body? for he looked upon his sickness as a punishment from God for past sins.

"Why not take him up the stairs, and let him down through the roof, with cords into the room?" suggested the boy Samuel.

Eastern houses have a short flight of steps on the outside, leading from the ground to the roof, for the people loved to sit or lie on the tops of their houses in the hot summer; and the roof made only from rafters, covered with short sticks, brushwood, mortar or earth, was easy to break up, by scraping away the earth or mortar, and pushing aside the rafters.

"That's the best way," agreed the men. "Get us some rope, boys; a piece for each end of the rug."

Some of the group ran to borrow the rope, and the rest helped the four friends to get their heavy burden up the narrow ladder-like stairway as gently as possible. Inside the house the crowd were listening earnestly to the great Rabbi. Visitors from all over Galilee, scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem, country people hungry for help and guidance to meet the hard problems of daily living.

Suddenly one man put his hand on his head, and looked up to the ceiling; something had hit him on the forehead. Another, and still another followed his example. What could be the matter? Scraps of earth, brush, mortar, were falling on their heads. Soon the whole crowd were looking up at the ceiling instead of into the face of the great Teacher.

Quick to sense what was happening, He stopped speaking, and waited.

"The roof is falling in," said one. "No, someone is making a hole in it," cried another. "Look, I see a hand, and a face!"

In silence every eye turned up to see what this great surprise might be. A hole was widening gradually in the center; hands, voices, could be seen and heard; then the faces of the four friends appeared, one at each corner of the hole; their hands busy tying strong knots in the ropes. The hole was darkened with a big bundle. "Why, they are letting something down on top of us. Get back, or it will land on our heads!" cried the man directly in front of the Rabbi Jesus.

In spite of the crowded room, they pushed back towards the wall, for the bundle was surely coming down.

"It is a poor sick man," exclaimed Peter, one of the disciples of the Rabbi, as he stretched out his hand to help guide him gently to the ground. Quickly the crowd again pressed forward. Faint, exhausted with the adventure of his journey, the man sick with the palsy lay at the feet of the Healer of souls and bodies; he could not speak, but his eyes told his whole story. Tenderly, with a face of compassion, He stooped, took hold of the thin worn hand.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"Son, thy sins are forgiven; arise, take up thy bed and go unto thine house."

Walk! Take up his bed! Years since he had had the use of hands or feet! Could it be possible? But see, a warm wave of color slowly flooded his face, as strength poured once more through his veins; a look of surprise came into his eyes; little by little he lifted himself, sat up, stood on his feet; then, sank on his knees and bent to kiss the hands of Healing, tears of thankfulness running down his face. Rolling up the rug, he threw it over his shoulder, and with eyes still fixed in adoration on the great Rabbi, made his way backwards through the awe-stricken crowd to the street.

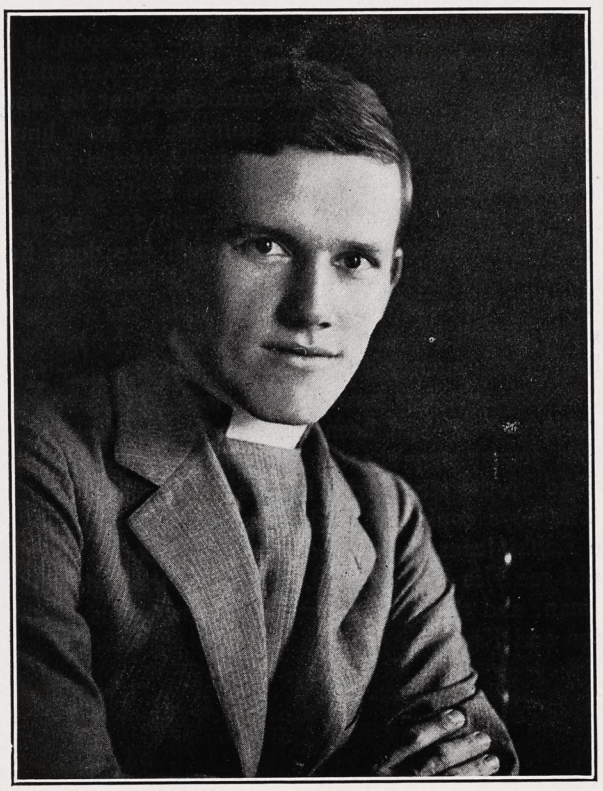
But what had become of the boys? As soon as the sick man lay at the feet of the Rabbi Doctor, and the four friends,—with sublime confidence that he would be made well,—ran down the staircase to meet him at the door, a row of young eager faces circled the hole in the roof. Not a movement of the thrilling surprise escaped them. Then followed a rush for the stairway, a race to see who would reach the door first. Somewhat in fear they looked at the man who had been sick, but now was well, as he stood for a moment on the threshold, a light from Heaven in his eyes. Then he was encircled with the arms of his four faithful friends. It was through their love, friendship, and service that he had been brought to the feet of the Rabbi Jesus; they shared joyfully in his healing, and walked up the street with him rejoicing.

The boys could not understand the great power of the Rabbi Jesus to heal both soul and body, but they could see His love to God, expressed through service to man, and they went forth to follow Jesus as their Hero and King.

LENOX SCHOOL

By
WALTER H. CLARK

LENOX School, in the diocese of Western Massachusetts, was founded in 1926 by the late Rev. Latta Griswold of Lenox and the Rev. William G. Thayer, then headmaster of St. Mark's School, Southborough, Massachusetts, who has been, since the founding of Lenox, the president of the board of trustees. The headmaster of the school, the Rev. G. Gardner Monks, is a St. Mark's graduate, but despite these close connections with St. Mark's, Lenox is not an outgrowth of the older school. Lenox was not founded to provide for the overflow from any institution but rather was designed to provide a first class secondary school education at a price much below that charged by the general run of private schools. Thus it was designed especially to serve the needs of doctors, teachers, and clergymen, whose sons form a large proportion of the seventy-five boys now attending the school. Underlying these concrete aims was the desire to provide a broad and deep basis for Christian living, both in respect of cultivating habits of worship and practical Christian character. All of the distinctive features of the school outlined in the succeeding paragraphs can be traced to one or more aspects of this threefold aim, of supplying an education that will be economical, thorough, and Christian.

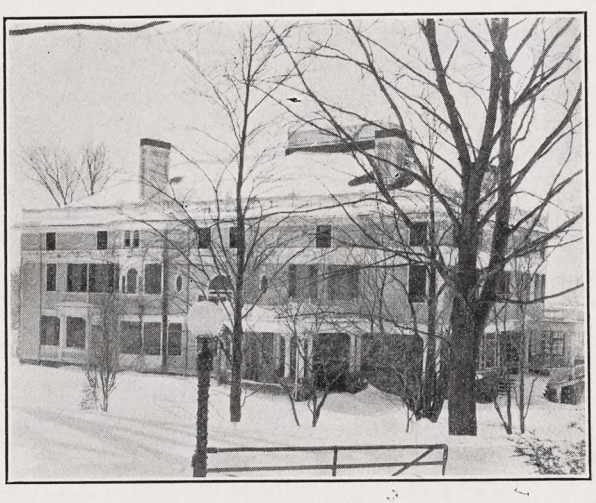


Both as a matter of necessity in order to keep the tuition low and as an educational measure calculated to train boys in habits of self-dependence and simplicity of living, the school adopted the "self-help" system. This means that the boys not only make their own beds and sweep their own rooms, but wait on the tables, wash the dishes and help in keeping the grounds in order. Probably this feature of the school is partly responsible for the fact that there exists among the boys very little feeling, so common at preparatory schools, that wealth can bring the worthwhile things in life and is the true criterion of a successful career. In place of this there is a truer emphasis on the ideals of democracy in the sense that those individuals are respected whose service to the school and value to the community have marked them as responsible members of the group.

THE school was founded but six years ago; yet its numbers have steadily grown from thirty-seven to

CLIPSTON GRANGE
One of the Lenox Buildings

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.



REV. GARDNER MONKS
Rector of Lenox School

seventy-five and its scholarship has long since passed out of the trial stage. The program is college preparatory and therefore the school aims to admit only those qualified for college work. Of the first graduating class of eleven in 1930, all were admitted to college from Lenox and all are now still in college and in good standing with the exception of one alumnus who is deceased. This year the school has representatives at Harvard, Yale, Williams, Trinity, Bowdoin, and M. I. T. This success has been mainly due to the quality of the faculty. In the six years that the school has been running, three members of the staff have been Rhodes Scholars, and over half have had graduate degrees, while each summer at least half of the staff have attended summer graduate schools in order to improve the quality of their teaching. This testifies sufficiently to the solidity of the scholarship; yet the educational climate is progressive as well. One advantage of the school's youth is that there are no hide-bound and iron-ribbed traditions that prevent reasonable experimentation, and the headmaster is always willing to try any experiment that gives promise of solving those educational problems of which every school has many. For instance, the problem of guiding the young student in his study hours so that he will learn the proper methods of study is one that the school has attacked. It has been very satisfactorily solved by including in the schedule study hours designated for each different subject with the master teaching that subject supervising the study.

The discipline of the school is one of its interesting features and is an example of the direct influence of Christian principles on the policies of the school. Last year the experiment was tried of abolishing all punishments for minor offenses, major offenses being dealt with exclusively by the headmaster and punishment being inflicted only as a last resort. Instead of punishments, a record is kept of conduct and each boy has a member of the faculty as an advisor who keeps track of the boy's progress and uses moral suasion and pride rather than coercion to guide the boy toward proper conduct and effort. This has led not only to a progressive improvement in conduct but a relation between master and boy much more conducive to mature character formation. Discipline is removed from the negative atmosphere of punishment and approaches much more nearly the Christian ideal of redemption.

THERE is no need to mention the daily chapel services in the school chapel, as on the matter of worship Lenox places the same stress as do all Church schools. There is also close connection with the village Church which the school attends on Sunday. The central feature of the religious life at Lenox is the aim to realize the ideal of every true Christian school—namely, to make the ideals of Jesus pervade every phase of the school life. The practical implications of the Gospel are not allowed to rest with the instruction in sacred studies, but Christian activity, from helping to serve at the Church and teaching Sunday School to helping a classmate and volunteering to tidy up the grounds, is held up as a necessary part of the full Christian life. That Lenox has been successful in carrying this spirit into the realm of athletics as well is evidenced by the fact that she already has an enviable reputation for good sportsmanship with many other schools.

Thus it is evident that the school is one in which the scholarship is high, habits of living simple, and where the ideal of conduct is that of the Christian family. Not that there are no frictions or failures within the family, for what family is without its frictions and failures? Nevertheless Lenox is a school in which any parent could feel confident in entrusting his boy, and it is also a school which is making distinct progress in contributing, in America, to Christian education.

A VIEW OF LENOX

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

STABLE FOUNDATIONS

By

BISHOP JOHNSON

RELIGION is suffering from bewilderment at present. In that it is like the stock market. People lose their faith in all stocks because of their experience with some stocks. No one really believes that one stock is as good as another, but so many believe that one religion is as good as another, that if a person tries one religion and it fails to impress him, he discards all religion. Now, of course, if there were no clearing houses or stock exchanges, the whole financial world would be in a far worse muddle than it is, for all confidence would be gone, since the individual investor would have no way of knowing the value of his holdings. In the religious world however all one has to do is to say, "This is religion" to put it on a par with all other religions. Thus everyone judges religion as a whole by the way that this or that religion performs in or near his back yard.

The whole thing is evaluated in terms of the local pastor and his flock. Whereas the term religion covers a multitude of sins. For example there are religions based upon the satisfying of one's intellectual curiosity; and other religions which seem to gravitate chiefly around the alimentary canal of the invalid; while still others have a very direct relation to the gate receipts.

It makes no difference. If the prophet has engaging manners and can perform unusual exhibitions of rhetorical skill and can have considerable success with certain forms of diseases, then such a religion ranks high in the stock market.

We have ignored the fact that the Master cautioned us to beware of false prophets; to take heed whom we hear and to remember that the devil may clothe himself in the garb of the saint so as to deceive the very elect.

A good instance of charlantanism is that of Rasputin, the holy devil of Russia, who combined the sensuality of a beast, the shrewdness of a politician and the tactics of a Saint in a single personality. His power over the sick; his kindness to the poor; his courage in attacking the ungodly in high places was remarkable; but his personal habits of self indulgence were detestible. His power over the royal family was absolute and he did not hesitate to use this power for his own personal vanity and aggrandizement. He was such a mixture of good and evil that he baffles analysis. Yet his influence in Russia was very bad and he was largely responsible for the chaos in which the Czar's regime ended.

WHAT the individual needs is some standard of righteousness and of worship which is commensurate with the vital importance of the investment which he makes in religion. He must demand that worship be a dignified and reverent devotion to the King of Kings, in which he himself is permitted to participate. The kind of worship which conserves the majesty of God, such as we catch glimpses of in the Book of Revelation, is quite foreign to those congregations in which they delegate such functions to a leader who sometimes prays to God and sometimes informs omnipotence of what is going on; and sometimes informs the congregation of its needs.

To sacrifice the impressiveness of worship to the easy informality of a very casual acquaintance with God is to do irreparable damage to any sense of reverence for His Holiness.

There is no trace of familiarity in the prayers which the Master offered to God. Indeed he warns His disciples of those who loved to pray in the synagogues in order to impress the congregation.

Probably the lack of reverence for sacred things in America today is largely due to the absence of reverence in such public worship, where familiarity with God in prayer has promoted an absence of reverence in life.

The seeker after truth must demand kindliness and courtesy as the standards of dealing with sinners and outcasts. So many reformers have that kind of cheap courage which thunders at the sins of those without to the great self satisfaction of those within. It was not the Master's way. He always preached to the congregation in front of him, particularly if they were in danger of self righteousness. Christ dealt with heretics and sinners alike in a firm not kindly manner. He told the Samaritans that they worshipped they knew not what, but at the same time He was most considerate of the individual Samaritan. He told drunkards and harlots that they could not enter the Kingdom of Heaven, but He never hurled epithets at them. In his anxiety to reform the world, He never became impatient with sinners, and yet He was always severe with sin. He was sometimes indignant with his own disciples and was occasionally drastic with religious people. Somehow the modern Gospel is quite the reverse. It is an anaesthetic for the comfortably pious and an irritant to the outsider. The common people on the outside heard Him gladly; those on the inside were not so eager to assimilate His sermons. It was of the prickly preachers that our Lord said, "Do men gather figs of thistles?"

The disciple of Christ must expect that the Gospel is something that lays obligations upon the hearer. If we are Christians He expects us to do something besides rationalize about religion.

IT IS all right to have our doubts resolved and our difficulties met and our diseases cured, but what are we willing to do because of this? "You follow me for the loaves and fishes." "Except ye see signs and wonders ye will not believe." He refused His grace to those who were merely profiteers or curiosity seekers. His parables against those who refused to use their talents, to voice their gratitude or to forgive their offenders were very searching. He didn't come to patch up those who were temporarily ill for a few more years of earthly comfort, but He did cure the sick in order that they might glorify God and give a good account of their stewardship.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The temporal benefits of the Christian religion are considerable. Young men who are brought up in the Church are much more apt to be prosperous than those reared in the gutter, but woe unto them if they think that Christ came to make them comfortable. Sick people who cultivate faith and love are much more apt to get well than those who nourish bitterness and resentment. But it is sad for them if they think that their own personal health is all there is to it. Religious people are far more apt to be thrifty than are the worldly, but they have missed the mark if they imagine that Christ is impressed with the size of their bank account.

After all there are certain fundamental principles which lie at the foundation of religion and which if we ignore, our labor is but lost in building.

These foundation walls are: Reverent worship of God. Kindly courtesy to all. A sense of obligation to Christ and a willingness to serve Him.

We cannot replace these foundations with: Intellectual curiosity about God. Censorious condemnation of others. An exploitation of religion for what there is in it. And a refusal to give to others as we ourselves have received.

The Heavens are still the Lord's, the earth hath He given to the children of men with the hope that we may find out how to use it.

Let's Know

By
BISHOP WILSON

PRAYER BOOK PSALMS

COMES a question from one of our readers as follows: "In the Bible, King James' translation of the Psalms is used. In the English Prayer Book, Coverdale's. Where does translation in the American Prayer Book come from? Has this translation always been in the American Book?"

A note in the Preface of the English Prayer Book gives specific answer to this question. It reads thus: "Note, That the Psalter followeth the Division of the Hebrews, and the translation of the Great English Bible, set forth and used in the time of King Henry the Eighth and Edward the Sixth." This great Bible was not strictly Coverdale's translation though it was based upon it and was first produced in 1539 for authorized use in the churches in England. When, therefore, the First Prayer Book was compiled ten years later, in 1549, the Great Bible version was naturally introduced. By the time the King James version of the Bible came out in 1611, the people had become so accustomed to the older form in their public worship that it was retained. The same Great Bible version was taken over in our American Prayer Book and we still use it today with a few verbal emendations brought in under the last revision of 1928.

The Septuagint version (in Greek) was the one used by the first Christians. But so many people in western Europe spoke Latin that it was inevitable that a Latin version should also be produced. No one knows just when this was done but it must have been very early. Quotations from a Latin form of the Holy Scriptures appear in the writings of the early Church Fathers long before St. Jerome made his official Vulgate translation at the end of the fourth century. Indeed St. Jerome himself refers to a Latin translation which is usually called the "old Italic" from which the Psalms were taken for public worship for a long time after him. Gradually his newer Latin translation came into Western use, was introduced into Gaul, and so finally found its way into England. This, I believe, is still used in the Roman Catholic Church today.

During the Middle Ages various translations of these Latin Psalms were made into English and published in a number of editions of the Prymer which was a devotional book for the people. There were other translations before the Reformation, including the Wiclif Bible. All of these form a background for the Great Bible which corrected them by comparison with the Greek and Hebrew originals. The only change of any particular moment which has been made in the Prayer Book version since 1539 is in the numbering of the verses of the English Book in 1620.

In the Jewish Church, of course, the Psalms were used in the Hebrew tongue. So, as Dr. Blunt points out in his "Annotated Book of Common Prayer," our present Prayer Book version of the Psalter is a kind of condensation of the three ecclesiastical languages in which the Psalms have been used for worship, Hebrew, Greek, and Latin—these also being the three languages in which the inscription on the Cross was written, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." It is one more illustration of the manner in which our Book of Common Prayer has gathered up the finest fruits of devotional experience of the last twenty centuries. No wonder we value it so highly.

THIS UNEMPLOYMENT

By
V. AUGUSTE DEMANT
Director of the Christian Social Council of England

Essential for the understanding of the present situation.
$1.25 a copy

WITNESS BOOKS
931 Tribune Bldg. New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

REREDOS OF CHRIST CHURCH CHAPEL, BROOKLYN

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH

Edited by
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

IT IS time you are getting your bag packed for the Church summer conference. They get under way, most of them, this month and there is every indication that the attendance records will be again broken this year. Somehow or other this depression business seems to work out that way as far as attendance at summer conferences is concerned. There are any number of them of course, with the programs of most of them already having appeared in these columns. Several of them are national conferences, drawing people from all over the United States. Outstanding among these are Wellesley and Sewanee. Just which one of these can lay claim to being the mother of Church conferences I don't know—I have seen partisans of each one prepare to do battle over that question. In any case they are both top-notch affairs, with large enrollments and outstanding teachers. Then there is Gambier which is pretty much of a general conference and also Blue Mountain which has come to the front rapidly during recent years until now it is unquestionably one of our great conferences. In North Carolina they have the fine Church property at Kanuga Lake where conferences are held pretty much all summer, with their adult conference being this year from July 18th to July 29th. At Concord, N. H., there is the conference for the youth of the Church—a provincial conference but I believe that this too has become so popular in recent years that those outside the province have demanded admission. It is held at St. Paul's School, which is one of the beauty spots of that summer state.

In addition there are any number of conferences sponsored by dioceses; in a number of instances neighboring dioceses combining, as Erie, Harrisburg and Pittsburgh do for the Erie-Pittsburgh Conference which meets this year at Saltsburg, Penna., June 26th to July first. And of course I should have mentioned Evergreen as one of the national conferences, and an exceedingly important one too I am told. Evergreen is a Church property located in the Rockies of Colorado, so you may well imagine what a delightful place that is to spend a few days or longer, with a group of likeminded people under the capable leadership that they have there each year.

Then I would like just to mention (I caught that split infinitive barely in time; who made that rule anyhow? Silly business it seems to me. What difference can it possibly make, professor, whether I write "like to just mention" or "like just to mention"). The person I would like to mention is Dr. A. J. Muste who is giving a course this year at Wellesley. I don't suppose he is particularly well known in the Episcopal Church. Yet I am prepared to say that there is no single person in this country who knows more about present social and economic conditions than does this Congregational minister, now the head of Brookwood Labor College, who is known affectionately to thousands of workers as "A. J." It may be that you are not interested in his particular subject but if you are, and if you are to be around Wellesley, here is an opportunity to hear a man who knows what it is all about.

* * *

The Bankers Are Slipping

According to Dean William P. Ladd of the Berkeley Divinity School, preacher last Sunday at the chapel of Columbia University, the faith of people in bankers is not as strong as it once was.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"A short time ago," he said, "it would have been accounted almost lese majesty, certainly very provincial, to impugn the intelligence of our great bankers, merchants and industrialists. Now they wear faded crowns and few are left who reverence these erstwhile wizards. Half the world has too much and half too little, yet our leading minds are impotent to right this cruel injustice, this egregious folly."

Never has the world needed a savior more than today, Mr. Ladd said, deploring the "disheartening lack of intelligent and courageous leadership" in business, politics, education and religion.

"We differ in our political affiliations," he continued, "but we all seem to agree that the politicians in Washington are not doing much to lead us out of the wilderness. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, our biggest cities, hardly can pride themselves on the way their public affairs are being administered. Abroad the political horizon presents no better promise. The accepted program, 'Every nation for itself,' is not bringing satisfaction or prosperity to any."

Dr. Ladd doubted if present methods of education were doing anything to prepare the next generation for the leadership.

Jesus, he said, lived in just such a "befuddled, disillusioned world as ours," and viewed it realistically, seeing its shams, despising petty prejudices, understanding the deceitfulness of riches and teaching that the hope of the world was always in the coming generation.

"He taught that the great things of life were not the generally recognized prizes for which men were so prone to fight," Dr. Ladd said, "but sincerity, faith, courage, clear thinking and universal good will."

* * *

Nurses Sing Spirituals

At the Florence Nightingale service held at Christ Church, Savannah, Georgia, which was attended by uniformed nurses, a group of Negro nurses rendered several spirituals.

* * *

Guild Meets in Philadelphia

St. Barnabas Guild of Nurses held their annual council at the Church of the Saviour, Philadelphia, May 19th and 20th.

* * *

Young People Discuss Peace

The eighth annual young people's fellowship of the province of Washington was held recently at York, Penna. Mr. Thomas Q. Harrison of the National Council for the prevention of war spoke on international peace and the Rev. A. Vincent Bennett of Fitchburg, Mass., on "moral and economic problems of today." One of the features of the conference was a pageant on the subject of war and peace.

* * *

Venerable Clergyman Dies

The Rev. William H. Bulkley, oldest clergyman in the diocese of Michigan, died at his home at Points aux Pine, Bois Blanc Island, on May 6th, in his 83rd year.

* * *

Nurses Service in Lexington

A Florence Nightingale service was held at the cathedral, Lexington, Kentucky, May 12, under the auspices of the Guild of St. Barnabas. There were 100 uniformed nurses present and nine new members were admitted to the guild. The sermon was preached by Dean Sparling, chaplain of the guild. On Whitsunday Bishop Abbott confirmed a class of forty at the cathedral, the largest class he has confirmed since coming to the diocese three years ago.

* * *

All Saints' Anniversary

A service commemorating the 108th anniversary of All Saints', Henry Street, New York, was held last Sunday evening. The sermon was preached by Dr. Stetson, rector of Trinity. The Rev. Harrison Rockwell is the rector of the parish.

* * *

Breaks Handshaking Record

Bishop Helfenstein, carrying out an old Maryland custom, went around to each table at the dinner of the Maryland Churchman's Club the other evening and shook hands with everyone present. There were 240 present and if you don't think it is hard to shake hands with that many people try it sometime. The handshaking isn't so tough but the smile comes hard after the first hundred I am told. The speaker was Sir Wilmot Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times, but the headline surely belongs to the handshaking bishop.

* * *

Minnesota Recalls History

The convention of the diocese of Minnesota was held at St. John the Evangelist, St. Paul, May 24-25. Bishop Burleson was guest of honor and spoke at a service commemorating the holding of the first diocesan council in the same city in 1858. And he preached on the text: "Cast the net upon the right side of the ship and ye shall find . . .", which was the text of the sermon preached at the first convention by the Rev. A. B. Paterson, at that time the rector of St. Paul's Church, St. Paul. There was a reception at the new residence of Bishop and Mrs. McElwain and also a convention dinner, sponsored by the Church Club, at the Summit Club. Well just that you may know that progress has been made in this country since that first convention was held in 1858 I might tell you that Bishop Kemper was then in charge of all the territory that has since been chopped up into the states of Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. When he was consecrated there was not one mile of railroad west of the Alleghenies; Chicago was a frontier post and Milwaukee was a village. And just to prevent you from swelling up with pride over the progress we have made it might be wise for me to remind you that railroad bonds are now selling for 20c on the dollar; Chicago is big but broke and Milwaukee is solvent, clean and Socialist. But to get back to Bishop Kemper; for eleven years he had no home but travelled about constantly on horseback, on foot, by river and lumber wagon. His first visit to Minnesota was in 1843 when he arrived at St. Peter, having come up the Mississippi River by steamer. It was not until 1859 that Minnesota had her own bishop—Bishop Henry

THE PICTURES

THERE is pictured on the cover an electric church bulletin recently installed at the Church of the Holy Comforter, Richmond, Virginia. Bulletins have been so long in use that they are no longer an experiment. However, there are factors not always considered in selecting a bulletin; its dignity and beauty; its attractiveness and ready legibility; its weather-proof construction and durability, and the ease with which the messages may be changed. All of these factors are met in this bulletin pictured on the cover, made by the H. E. Winters Company of Davenport, Iowa. Over the News Notes is an illustration of the new reredos for Christ Church Chapel, Brooklyn. The central panel done in oil on canvas is of Christ with outstretched arms; on each side of the central figure are six panels each bearing the symbol of one of the apostles. Work was done in specially selected oak and all figures and patterns are in polychrome. The reredos was designed and executed by the Anderson Craftsmen of New York.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

B. Whipple of sacred memory. Now the state is divided into two dioceses, Minnesota and Duluth, with two bishops over each.

* * *

Secretaries Address Maine Convention

The Rev. B. H. Reinheimer, speech-maker par excellence of the National Council, told the convention of the diocese of Maine that the Church may well be reassured in the present emergency but that there is real need of education in Christian stewardship. The Rev. G. R. Fenner, rural expert at 281, was the preacher at the missionary service. The diocesan magazine, The North East, said to be the oldest diocesan magazine in the country, was changed by the convention from a monthly to a quarterly. And while the men were having their show the Auxiliary was holding group conferences, discussing such subjects as "financing the Church", "the united thank offering" and "building a parochial program of education."

* * *

Unusual Union Service

Calvary, Bayonne, N. J., is perhaps the first church to have a union service of Anglican, Orthodox and Old Catholic parishes in the United States. I say perhaps because I haven't the slightest idea whether it is first or not, but they make the claim so I am all for giving it to them. They had the service on Whitsunday evening, with the rectors of our churches, the Russian Orthodox Church and the Polish National Church assisting in the service. The church was crowded to the door. The sermon was preached by the rector of the parish, the Rev. J. Q. Martin, Jr., who spoke on the real progress that had been made in Church unity under the leadership of the Lambeth Conference.

* * *

Work Progresses in Brazil

Work has been steadily progressing in the building of churches, schools, chapels in the missionary district of Brazil, according to Bishop Thomas in summarizing the progress of the work in 1931. Advance Work and the Woman's Auxiliary supplied the cash in most instances. It is hoped that a school for girls may soon be opened, the Auxiliary already having made an appropriation for the purpose from the United Thank Offering.

* * *

Springfield Convention

The synod of the diocese of Springfield met at Jacksonville, Illinois, on May 18th with the Church club dinner the evening before, with over two hundred men and women from all parts of the diocese attending. The speakers were Dr. Charles E. Beury, layman of Philadelphia who is also the president of Temple University, and the Rev. Dr. Walkley, the rector of Grace Church, Orange, New Jersey.

* * *

Heads Nashotah Alumni

The Rev. Frederick G. Deis, archdeacon of Chicago, was elected the head of the alumni of Nashotah at the commencement last week. This year's commencement was the ninetieth. The alumni are out to raise $25,000 as an endowment for the Howard St. George professorship.

* * *

Connecticut Convention

The Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, rector of the Epiphany, Washington, chaplain of the United States Senate and president of the House of Deputies of the General Convention, was the speaker at the dinner held in connection with the convention of the diocese of Connecticut. The business of the convention was largely routine.

* * *

Alfred Newbery Honored

The Rev. Alfred Newbery, rector of the Atonement, Chicago, was elected president of the clergy's round table, succeeding the Rev. Howard Brinker who has been president of the club for the past five years. The speaker at this final meeting of the club for the year was the Rev. George D. Rosenthal, Britisher, who told of the plan for the centennial celebration of the Oxford Movement. Among other things planned is a great outdoor service in London which will be attended by 100,000 persons. Responding to the address Bishop Stewart expressed sympathy with the plans as outlined and assured Dr.

BLUE MOUNTAIN CONFERENCE

Hood College, Frederick, Md.

June 27th to July 8th, 1932

For all those interested in the Church's life and work.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE: THE SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS DRAMA: THE SCHOOL OF CHURCH MUSIC: THE CHILDREN'S CONFERENCE: THE CLERGY MID-WEEK CONFERENCE: THE LAYMEN'S WEEK-END CONFERENCE.

For general information write to the President,

The REV. N. B. GROTON
Whitemarsh, Pa.

THE ERIE-PITTSBURGH SUMMER CONFERENCE

June 26th—July 1st, 1932

Courses and Conferences for
The Clergy
Church School Leaders
Organists and Choir Directors
Young People
Woman's Auxiliary
Girls' Friendly Society
Daughters of the King
Brotherhood of St. Andrew

Meets at Kiskiminetas Springs School, Saltsburg, Penn.

For registration and information apply to
THE REV. THOMAS J. BIGHAM
325 Oliver Avenue Pittsburgh, Penn.

CONFERENCE FOR CHURCH WORK

KENYON COLLEGE
Gambier, Ohio

June 27—July 8

School of the DRAMA, School of Religion, School of Christian Social Ethics, School of General Church Programs.

For information:
THE REGISTRAR
2241 Prospect Ave. Cleveland

Lake Kanuga Conference

Center of the Episcopal Church, Situated Six Miles from Hendersonville, N. C.
1932 Schedule:

Young Peoples Conference, June 18-July 1, cost $21.00.
Junior Conference (11-14 years), July 2-15, cost $16.00.
Adult Conference, July 16-30, cost $23.00.
Clergy Conference, July 18-30, cost $20.00.
Property operated on Guest basis Aug. 1-Sept. 12. Rates very moderate.
Boys Camp, Aug. 1-29, cost $60.00.

For information, write
RT. REV. K. G. FINLEY, D.D.
Columbia, S. C.

CHURCH CONFERENCE OF THE PROVINCE OF NEW ENGLAND

A Conference for Youth

St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.
June 27—July 6

Instruction - Recreation Inspiration

For Programs and Information address
Mr. Lewis D. Learned, Secretary
32 Westminster St. Providence, R. I.

SEWANEE SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL FOR WORKERS

Clergy School—Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell, Director—August 2-12.
Adult Division—Rt. Rev. W. G. McDowell, Director—August 2-16.
Young People's Division—Rev. Gordon M. Reese, Director—August 17-31.

Executive Secretary,
Miss Alma S. Hammond
2919 St. Charles Avenue
New Orleans, La.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—
F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)
CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.
MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St. Boston

Rosenthal of the cooperation of the diocese.

* * *

Students are Godless

According to Professor Chauncey Tinker, professor at Yale, there is no religion in American colleges. At lease he so stated in his address at the convention of the diocese of Western Massachusetts, which met at Christ Church, Fitchburg, on May 17 and 18. He said that the modern undergraduate is as materialistic as he was twenty-five years ago and that he has not yet discovered that "science has gone mysterious." He concluded his talk with a plea for the revival of Anglo-Catholicism. Bishop Booth of Vermont preached the convention sermon and pleaded for a revival of the retreat movement.

The two addresses which marked the high point of the convention were those by Bishop Davies and Chancellor Gaskill. The latter in a beautifully simple talk urged the clergy to refrain from debating such theological points in the religion about Jesus as the virgin birth and endeavor to meet the present difficult situation by practicing more thoroughly the religion of Jesus.

Bishop Davies pointed out that man has managed to play havoc with the social order he has established. He said "There is plenty of work needing to be done and millions cannot find employment. There is plenty of food for all, and multitudes suffer from hunger. The man, who has toiled and saved to amass a competence to support his family, care for his old age, and do what good he may, cannot find a safe way of keeping what he has gained. Such acute and appalling problems confront the world as no individual effort can solve. There must be collective and united action. The task is so colossal that a vast body of people must undertake it, if there is to be any hope of success. These people must be bound together by a strong tie. For any hope of ultimate solution, they must build a social order in accord with the laws of that vast universe in which we live. The central principle of that Universe I hold to be Almighty Love."

* * *

Women Need Better Chance

Dr. Irene G. Woodcock, member of a committee that is studying opportunities for women's work in the Church, in a report submitted the other day insisted that women rise from "the underlying position which their sex occupies in most affairs of the Church." As a result of studies made she reported that women engaging in Church work professionally were suffering from three things:

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.
SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania
Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.
Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

inadequate salaries and unregulated conditions of work; inadequate standards of training and the need of a central bureau to act as a clearing house for positions. The committee was appointed by General Convention.

* * *

Chicago Raises Half

The diocese of Chicago, seeking $34,000 for the deficiency fund, has to date raised $19,000 of the sum.

* * *

Southwestern Virginia Convention

Bishop Darst of East Carolina was the clean-up man (hope you don't mind if I swing into baseball lingo occasionally) at the convention of the diocese of Southwestern Virginia, held at Roanoke May 17-18. Another high spot at the convention was the presentation of the Whitsunday offering. They had hoped to raise $600 in the diocese. Instead the offering amounted to $1,300, with still more to come. Then there was a laymen's mass meeeting with Circuit Court Judge Don P. Halsey telling the boys about George Washington.

* * *

Missionary Service in Pittsburgh

A diocesan missionary service was held on the evening of Whitsunday at Trinity Cathedral, Pittsburgh, for the purpose of presenting the Whitsunday offering for the National Council. Bishop Mann, after his address, called from the altar steps the name of each parish and mission and as he did so each one sent forth its chosen representative to place the offering in the alms basin. The total offering was $6,840.

* * *

Their First Job

A rather nice custom was established long ago by Bishop Potter of New York which is still being carried on. On Trinity Sunday there is a service of ordination at the Cathedral. Then in the afternoon the newly ordained men go with the bishop to Welfare Island for the annual visitation of the bishop. Thus their first act of ministration is to the unfortunate people who are inmates there. Bishop Manning was there on Trinity Sunday, with a number of newly ordained men, and confirmed a class of eighty presented by Chaplain S. N. Ussher, the city mission society's chaplain at the Island.

* * *

Prominent Layman Dies

Churchmen generally will regret to hear of the death recently of Mr. George L. Bahl, leading churchman of Detroit. He was best known as a churchman outside his own diocese as the chairman of the committee that had charge of the entertaining at the General Convention of 1919.

* * *

Trinity Commencement

The commencement of Trinity College is to be held June 17 to 20th. The beautiful new chapel will be consecrated; there will be a baseball game between the college and Harvard, and don't stay away from that thinking that it will be a walkover for dear old Harvard for the Trinity nine is a real ball team. I saw them play the other day against Massachusetts Aggies and they made three fast double plays, were clouting the ball to all corners of the lot, and had a pitcher in there who was cutting the corners. Needless to say they won: 11-3. The baccalaureate sermon is to be preached by Bishop Bartlett of North Dakota, who graduated from Trinity in 1904.

* * *

Urges Laymen to Give

Mr. Blaire B. Coles, chancellor of the diocese of Oregon, addressing a laymen's dinner in Portland the other evening, said that the burden of financing the Church at the present time was being borne largely by the clergy and he made a strong plea that the laity assume their share of the responsibility. He also stated that "there must be less talk of money and more about spiritual realities and values."

* * *

Denounces Competition

Bishop Cameron Davis of Western New York, preaching at St. Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo, declared that "for the past thirteen years the leading nations of the world have been waging a war more destructive of humane morale than the conflict which ended in 1918. This war of tariffs and competition uses as its chief weapon the treaty of Versailles. Never before has the world been more divided or dissention more widespread. The message of Christianity —of a universal brotherhood knowing no bounds of race or nation— can save civilization today as it has preserved it through the ages."

* * *

Over $13,000 from W. New York

The diocese of Western New York is rejoicing over the fact that the Whitsunday offering has passed the $13,000 mark. Of this sum nearly $3,000 was given by the clergy of the diocese.

* * *

Prize Won by Japanese

When forty-two young women graduated from the nurses training school of the Good Samaritan Hospital, Portland, Oregon, on May 17th, the award for the nurse representing the best ideals and qualities a nurse

The Anderson Craftsmen Inc.
ECCLESIASTICAL WOODWORK
WOOD CARVERS
CABINET MAKERS
FINE CHURCH FURNITURE
231 W. 18th St. New York City

A Winters' Illuminated Church Bulletin gives your Church Continual Publicity without Continual Expense
Send for Free Illustrated Catalogue
H. E. WINTERS SPECIALTY CO.
W. 308½ E. 4th St. Davenport, Iowa

Saint Agnes
Excellent College Preparatory Record. New fire proof buildings ideally situated in 33 acres of the best residential section outside the City. Moderate price. Sports of all kinds.
Miss Blanche Pittman, M. A., 58 Elk Street Albany N. Y.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

THE MUNDS HOME
78 Midland Ave., Montclair, N. J.
Elderly persons, invalids and convalescents will receive every comfort of Church home and under care of registered nurses. Moderate rates. References by permission to Rev. F. J. Clark, Secretary National Council.

RETREAT
Adelynrood, South Byfield, Mass.
A retreat for women will be held by the Society of the Companions of the Holy Cross on June 25th to 27th. Conductor, the Rev. Charles Townsend. Applications should be made to Mrs. R. T. Hakes, 149 Chestnut St., Montclair, New Jersey.

THE CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64. The Oval. London. S.E.11, England
Specialists in
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE

"Love's Last Gift, Remembrance"
Beautiful Memorials that Abide for Ever
OLD English and Irish Crosses in silvery grey cornish, dark grey Scottish or warm red Devon granite.
VIIIth St. Minver Cross
4 ft. high $83.00
Packed in case for shipment
Approximate freight to New York $19.50
Illustd. Booklet Mailed Free
Maile & Son, Ltd.
— Founded 1785 —
Sculptors and Church Art Craftsmen
367 Euston Road, London, N.W.1, Eng.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

should possess was won by Shigeko C. Niguma, a young Japanese woman. She was voted the honor by her classmates, which seems to indicate that there is no particular racial feeling in that Church institution.

* * *

The Experts Meet

The social service experts of the second province met at the retreat house at Bernardsville, N. J., May 23rd to 25th, with Bishop Gilbert of New York presiding. There was a discussion of family relations institutes led by the Rev. C. Rankin Barnes; the Rev. Leslie Chard and the Rev. I. G. Rouillard led a discussion on social service programs for young people; the Rev. Dr. Van Keusen of New York and the Rev. George W. Dawson of New York discussed cooperation in social service between the two dioceses; the Rev. Spear Knebel led in a discussion of whether or not we can educate people for peace and the Rev. H. P. Kaulfuss led a discussion on the social service program of the synod.

* * *

Dance for Cathedral

About 1,500 church people of Chicago attended the Cathedral Ball sponsored annually by the young people of the diocese, the proceeds of which go to a fund which they are accumulating to help in the construction of a cathedral.

* * *

Nebraska Council

The Rev. Percy Houghton preached the sermon at the opening of the council of the diocese of Nebraska and urged greater loyalty and sacrifice on the part of church people. Fine reports of social service and community work was reported and it was also reported that the gross income of the diocese had increased over the preceding year.

* * *

Rock Island Festival

An acolytes' festival was held at Trinity, Rock Island, Illinois, the evening of Ascension Day, with ten clergymen present and fifty-five acolytes from three dioceses: Chicago, Quincy and Iowa. The preacher was the Rev. Walter S. Pond of Chicago.

* * *

Many Sing

More than 600 choristers took part in a choir festival held at St. Bartholomew's, Chicago, on May 22nd. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard of Winnetka was the preacher.

* * *

Teachers Meet

A religious education conference for the western parishes of the diocese of Kentucky was held at Hopkinsville, May 16-18, under the leadership of the Rev. Gardiner L.

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Tucker. The Town and Rural Commission is to meet at the same time.

* * *

Captain Mountford Back

Captain Mountford of the Church Army, recently back from England, told of the Jubilee Conference of the Church Army held recently in London, at a meeting held in the parish house of Trinity Chapel, New York, on May 18th.

* * *

Long Island Conference

The Long Island Summer Conference for young people is to be held at Stony Brook School from July 5th to 9th. A particularly strong faculty has been organized, headed by the Rev. Joseph H. Titus, dean.

* * *

Girls' Friendly Meets

The Rev. Nathanael B. Groton of Whitemarsh, Pa., was the speaker at the annual banquet of the Girls' Friendly Society of the diocese of Bethlehem, which met in convention in Pottsville, May 5-7. A large number of girls were present from all the parishes and missions of the diocese.

* * *

A Crowded Service

More than one hundred children were baptized in one day recently, by the Rev. Julio Garrett at the little Chapel of the Transfiguration up on the mountain at Quinta Tranquila, Porto Rico. There were about 500 people in the congregation, and the church holds only 150.

* * *

Lots of Visitors

People from every part of the earth meet at Trinity Church, New York City. On a single page of their visitors' register the other day there were signatures of visitors from the Canary Islands, the Gold Coast and Melbourne. Another page included Berlin, New Zealand, Newfoundland and the Argentine. On another page, a visitor from Edinburgh was followed by one from Bombay.

* * *

Started in New York

At one of the remote little missions in Nevada far off from the railroad, one of the faithful communicants who rides in to services from miles out in the country is a woman who was confirmed a few years ago in Trinity Church, New York.

* * *

They Came Without Coats

St. Paul's University, Tokyo, has a baseball team touring the United States. It seems that they won a championship of some sort in their own country and this trip was the reward for their prowess. And from the record they are making here it is apparent that baseball is taken seriously in Japan. They have trimmed a number of our best teams, including Yale, which at the moment is leading the league of eastern universities. They trimmed Yale by the handsome score of eight to one, when Lefty Kikutani, who is said to possess the skill of a Lefty Grove, let them down with but five hits, two of which were scratch. Meanwhile the Japanese students

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9, 9 (French); Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer or Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days. 10:15); Morning Prayer, 10 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M. (Choral).

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams. S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 9, 11 (High Mass).
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 (Thurs., 7, 8, 9:30).

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursdays and Holy Days: 11.

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

were busting New Haven fences at the expense of the best Yale had to offer in the way of pitchers.

The St. Paul's team did not fare as well against St. Stephen's. It seems that they came over here without overcoats. Besides they had just trimmed Yale. So when they woke up on a chilly spring morning, after an evening among the best Broadway has to offer, they decided that there was little sense in journeying to Annandale-on-the-Hudson in the cold, to play a little college like St. Stephen's. So they just stayed in bed and slept themselves out. When the umpire yelled "Play Ball" that afternoon there was no St. Paul's team to be found. The umpire therefore forfeited the game to St. Stephen's by the score of nine to nothing. Since, according to the newspapers, the Japanese students did not go to the trouble of notifying the authorities at St. Stephen's that they were not coming I do hope that they will be sports enough to chalk up this 9-0 defeat in the record book when they return home. Church authorities in this country probably have nothing to say about the courses of study offered at St. Paul's. Should they have it might not be out of order to suggest a course in Christian sportsmanship.

* * *

Fair Enough

A new missionary bishop in the west, feeling his way about, asked a hardened old rancher what they thought of bishops out that way. "Wal," was the reply, "ef they be all right tutherwise, we don't hold it agin 'em." To which Bishop Stewart of Chicago, in relating the story, added: "That seems fair, and even generous."

* * *

New Orleans Negro Work

Organized colored work in the Diocese of Louisiana includes St. Luke's Mission, the newly organized St. Cyprian's Mission, and the Gaudet Normal and Industrial School, all of New Orleans.

There are about 120,000 Negroes in the city of New Orleans alone. St. Luke's has for many years ministered under the handicap of being badly located and near to a small proportion of the Negro population, which is scattered over a very large area. In order to take advantage of the presence of a considerable group of West Indian Church people several miles away from St. Luke's, St. Cyprian's Mission in the French Quarter has recently been organized, in charge of the Rev. A. M. Roberts, who is also serving as locum tenens at St. Luke's Church. St. Luke's has 134 confirmed persons, and 30 pupils in the Church School.

At the Gaudet Normal and Industrial School a daily service is conducted by the principal, with a weekly service and address by the Rev. Frank L. Levy, chaplain of the school.

Bishop Morris writes that he is conscious only a beginning has been made, for the opportunities are well nigh boundless; but he is happy that the work at St. Luke's is showing a steady improvement, evidenced by large congregations and the earnest interest and devotion of the people. Offerings have only slightly increased, and the grave unemployment situation is a cause of much concern.

The Bishop is greatly interested in the development of the work among the West Indians, who have come to New Orleans in large numbers, and hopes that St. Cyprian's will be the nucleus of a strong mission.

A. J. MUSTE

SCHOOL FOR CHRISTIAN SOCIAL ETHICS

A Department of the

WELLESLEY CONFERENCE

Wellesley, Massachusetts, June 27-July 8

The Social Teaching of the Old Testament

by

Rev. Fleming James

Professor at the Berkeley Divinity School

Christian Internationalism

by

Rev. Daniel A. McGregor

Professor at the Western Seminary

Modern Problems in the Light of Christianity

With Lectures by

Dr. A. J. Muste

Director of Brookwood Labor College, and Chairman of the Conference for Progressive Labor Action

Dr. Vida D. Scudder

Professor Emeritus of Wellesley College

Rev. William B. Spofford

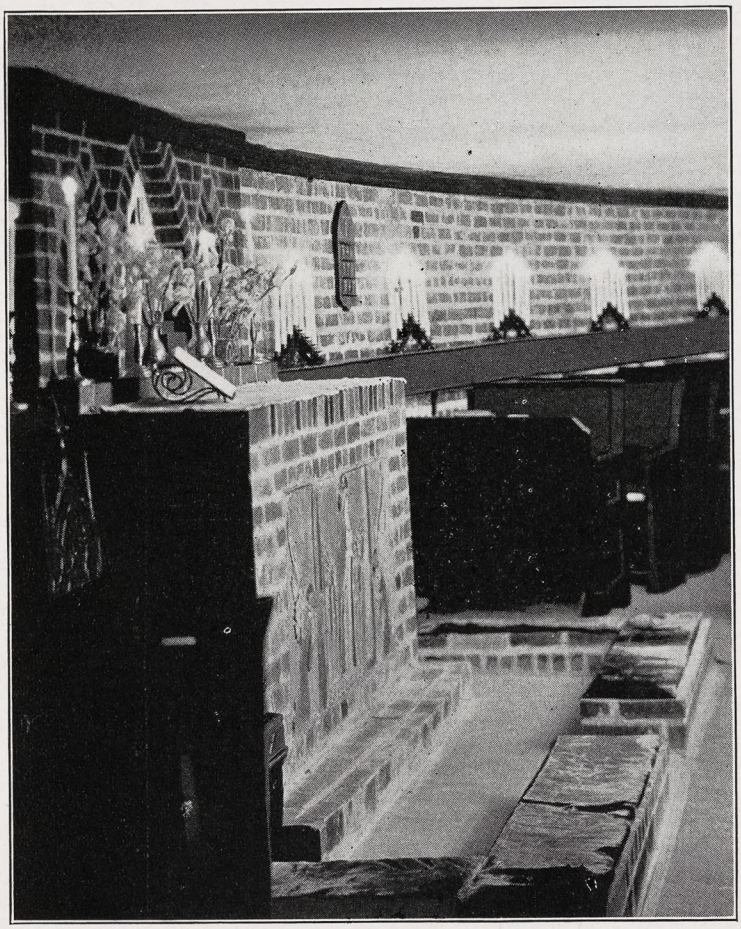
Secretary of the Church League for Industrial Democracy

Dr. Henry R. Mussey

Professor at Wellesley College

For Information Address the Secretary

Miss Marian DeC. Ward



50 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

STORY FOR CHILDREN by EVELEEN HARRISON

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JUNE 9, 1932

BISHOP BROWN MEMORIAL CHAPEL
At St. Catherine's School, Richmond, Virginia

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

The J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

Craftsmen in Stained Glass
J. M. KASE STUDIOS
461 Eighth Ave. New York, N. Y.
Eighth & Court Sts. Reading, Pa.
Established 1888
BOOKLET SENT ON REQUEST

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

J · WIPPELL & Co LTD
will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for
Embroidery · Wood
Stone · Metal and
Stained Glass
EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard
LONDON · · 11, Tufton St. S.W.1
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street

The CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 The Oval London SE11 England
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE
ILLUSTRATED BROCHURE WILL BE FORWARDED UPON APPLICATION

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY.
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI. No. 42 JUNE 9, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

IT IS REFRESHING to find clergymen getting away from generalities, usually meaningless windjamming, and instead spiritually interpreting current events. Thus Bishop Manning, Bishop Stires, Dr. Bowie, Dr. Stetson and others have dealt fearlessly with the rottenness of New York political life, insisting that the pulpit must uphold the hands of those who are attempting to purge the city of its vileness. The youthful rector of Trinity, Boston, the Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, preaching at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, likewise made himself understood. He denounced the federal government for its "fabulous" expenditures and called the tariff "the grossest composite of selfishness yet on record." He said that as a nation, we have degenerated into a lot of super-salesmen who have sunk to such a plane that we do not hesitate to rig up stocks and bonds with a lot of "window-dressing" and then go into the sticks to sell it to country yokels. He might have added, but didn't, that city yokels also had bought a good deal of it. The bankruptcy of our cities he attributed solely to the "inadequate character in public officials" and concluded by stating that we are shot to pieces financially because we are bankrupt morally and ethically.

WE DOUBT NOT that stalwart worshippers left the Cathedral that morning grinding their teeth and muttering, "He had no right to say such things from the pulpit. It is not the place for political speeches." For after all one can understand the emotions of the old-time Republican, brought up since boyhood to believe in a high tariff as the solution for economic ills, as he listened to the boyish preacher speak of it as "the grossest composite of selfishness." To him that was, of course, using the pulpit as a political platform, and what was worse and more to be regretted, using it on the wrong side. But hurt as he might be, once cooled down, we believe he would agree that it was a better sermon than the sort of thing one often is compelled to listen to at a preaching service. Thus the report comes to us of a sermon preached by an officer of the National Council, many miles from his home base, before a large group of Churchmen. "There never was an age when Jesus was as badly needed as today," he said. "It is a universal need of the teachings of Jesus and the application of them to our present day problems. The Church is facing a great opportunity. We are to make history, and we shall make it by bringing happiness into the hearts and lives of the world. No one need fear about the future status of the Episcopal Church, but we need to do the thing that hurts. Sacrifice is necessary." The Church is facing a great opportunity and it is possible for us to make history. But we will not get on with it very fast with such piffling generalities.

METHODISTS, meeting in general convention, have not hesitated to retrench. Salaries were cut, services curtailed, agencies discontinued. Competent observers stated that at least five new bishops were needed to supervise the work properly, yet in the interest of economy but two were elected. Important centers in the States were discontinued, the Paris center was abandoned, and work in foreign fields was curtailed. The salary of the bishops was reduced from $7,200 to $6,000, and their retiring pensions were reduced from $3,000 annually to $1,200. Three of the weekly publications of the Methodist Church were discontinued, though each of them has had a long and conspicuous record of service to the church, and the peace commission, which has done notable work during the past four years, at a cost of $15,000 annually, has been virtually wiped out. If it is true that misery loves company, officers of our Church struggling to balance budgets will be comforted by this paragraph.

A DELEGATION of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, undoubtedly the most effective peace organization in the country, called upon politicians in Washington recently, demanding that peace planks be placed in party platforms. Dorothy Detzer, spokesman for the group, declared that the pacifist forces of the country are determined to make a major political issue out of the question of disarmament. The women advocated the recognition of Russia, a lower tariff, cancellation of debts and reparations, decreased expenditures for military and naval purposes, entrance into the world court and control of traffic in arms.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

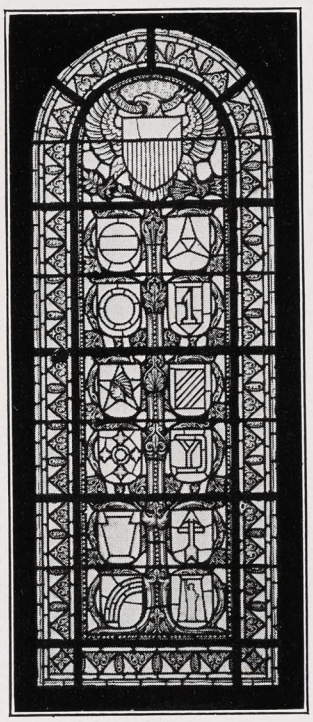
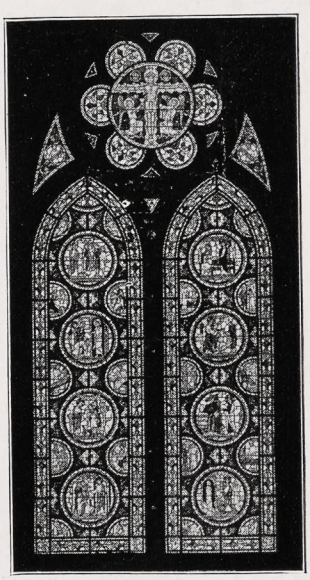
A NEWSPAPER MAN, who is also a churchman and a diocesan editor, was writing a notice early in May about Whitsunday and Pentecost, when, he says, one of the city rectors came in, looked over his shoulder and remarked, "Oh, is next Sunday Whitsunday?" Informed that it was, the rector continued, "And is that the same as Pentecost, or does it come a week later?" Enlightened again by the newspaper man, the rector said, "Then Whitsunday comes on Sunday this year?" And being, like Kipling's hero, a man-of-infinite-resource-and-sagacity, he went home to change the topic of his sermon. We do not mean to imply that he was incompetent as a pastor. Probably quite the reverse. There are some clergymen who can give one little besides the dates of feasts and fasts, major and minor. But after all one can know a bit about a few days, like Easter, Christmas and Whitsunday, without running much risk of being called a gnat-strainer.



The Art of Stained Glass

By
ELEANOR H. WILSON

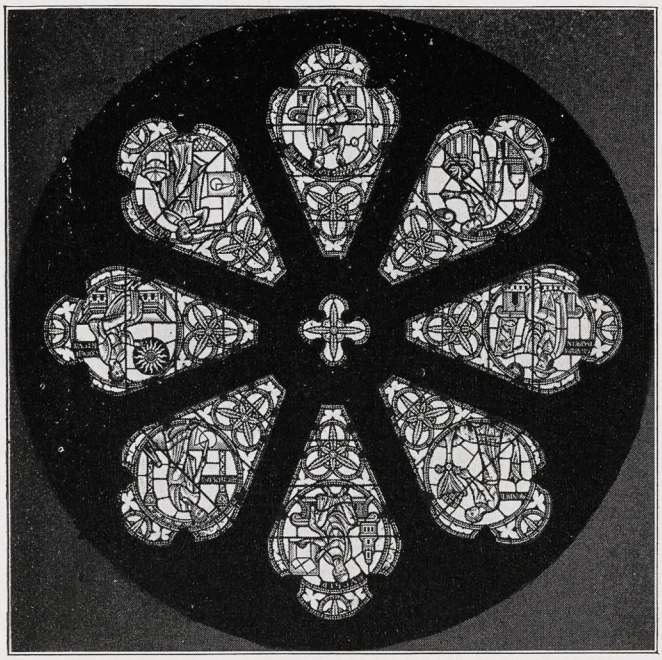
AFTER lying dormant for three centuries the craft of stained glass was revived with Gothic architecture in England and on the continent in the closing years of the last century, and for the last thirty years in America windows are being made worthy to carry forward the traditions of mediæval glass. I shall strive to share with you the inspiration gained from these artists and craftsmen who are recreating for us in spirit and in substance this most fascinating and beautiful of all the arts of the Middle Ages. Would that we might reproduce the windows in all their glory of color, for black and white reproductions can give the design only and even this is modified by the actual color scheme. My hope is that you will visit our beautiful churches and study for yourselves these glorious windows, for, in the words of one of the leaders in the craft,—"One must learn to look at windows just as one must learn to listen to music."



In America as in England today the best work is produced by craftsmen working in small groups, for it is essential that there be close and intelligent cooperation between the designer, the glass painter and the glazier. In Boston, three men, Joseph G. Reynolds, Jr., designer, William M. Francis, glass painter and J. Henry Rohnstock, glazier, are associated in this manner, and are producing windows representing the finest development of the glass workers' art. Mr. Reynolds, since his graduation from the Rhode Island School of Design in 1907, has devoted himself to this art, spending considerable time in France and England in study and opened this studio in 1921.

Very unusual is the transept window, one of two, for the American Memorial Cemetery at Belleau Wood, France, displaying a decorative tree in branches of which are placed insignia and coats of arms of the American divisions engaged at Belleau Wood during the World War, surmounted by the great seal of the United States. The chapel is a national shrine built by the battle monuments commission headed by General Pershing, on land bought from France by the United States. Each of the three apse windows contain the figure of patron saints of France and the United States,—in the center St. Michael with the vanquished dragon stands for our country while on either side are St. Louis and St. Denis.

MEMORIAL
Window for the American Memorial Chapel, Belleau Wood, France, showing insignia of American Divisions.



The rose window of Colorado College Chapel represents in mediæval symbolism the great teachers of the Sciences, in one "petal" Euclid, "father of geometry" holds a panel on which is drawn the 47th problem, with the symbol of the Mathematical school at Alexandria which he founded. Symbolism plays an important part in windows of today just as it did in mediæval times. "Symbolical representation is the noblest means of expressing ideas in decorative art" says Mr. Reynolds, "symbols are precious because they convey a wealth of meaning in compact form." We must not think of a stained glass window as a picture but as a "design of colored light," a separate and individual means of expressing ideas in translucent color. One artist describes the window as "an architectural unit functioning in a balanced pattern of color in changing light 'singing' a message of symbols—not in pictures."

HEALING
Window for the Medical Bay in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The Medical window was designed for one of the bays in the nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York,—the theme "Healing". These bays have been built by special groups of contributors and are symbolical

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

THE ROSE WINDOW
In the Chapel of Colorado College of the groups represented. The eight large central medallions show Christ's miracles of healing, the smaller ones symbolize the development of the arts of medicine and surgery from ancient Egyptian, through mediæval to modern times. The rose in the tracery depicts the triumphant Christ on the Cross. The use of the medallion is suggestive of the beautiful windows of the Sainte Chapelle in Paris.

These men have demonstrated that while they have learned much from the study of early glass, they have developed a distinguished style of their own, mediaeval in source but modern in spirit. Among other windows to their credit are: the great transept windows in Princeton Chapel, the Durant Memorial given by alumnae in memory of the founders, Wellesley College Chapel, ten aisle windows in the Riverside Drive Church, conceived in the spirit of the aisle windows of Chartres Cathedral, and many others combining cardinal qualities of strength, delicacy, distinction.

Let's Know

By

BISHOP WILSON

Deacons

HERE comes another question—"The Apostles appointed seven men 'to serve' while they preached. If then these seven men were the first Deacons, they were appointed to look after finances. How then are they forerunners of the present Deacons whose duties are to assist the Priest in Divine Service and to obey the Bishop? Incidentally they seldom do obey the Bishop. It is no answer to say that at least two afterwards preached—there is no way of knowing what time had elapsed and they may have been promoted."

Yes—the function of Deacons was to serve. They were assistants to the higher ranks of the clergy. As the Church grew, the duties of all of the clergy were changed, expanded, modified. The assistance required of the Deacons was not always of the same description but the office itself continued constant in the official ministry of the Church. It is quite reasonable to say that the original seven were the forerunners of the modern Diaconate.

The Quartermaster in the army was and still is the one who is responsible for providing equipment, food, and transportation for the troops. But the things to be supplied by the Quartermaster today are far different from what they were a century ago. Yet he still serves the same function and qualifies for the same title. A gardener is still a gardener whether he raises pansies or seventeen varieties of orchids.

The duties of Deacons have varied according to the needs of the Church. In the third and fourth centuries one of their chief duties was to keep order during public worship. That need passed but the Deacon did not cease to be an assistant in other respects. In the early centuries he assisted the priest in the administration of the sacraments, he read the Gospel, carried the cross, rendered certain parts of the services, made the public announcements, distributed alms. Always he has been under the immediate direction of his Bishop.

Under our present canons the Deacon is still responsible to his Bishop or to one delegated by the Bishop for that purpose. He may not be rector of a parish but is under the Bishop's appointment. He may assist at the administration of the Holy Communion but may not celebrate. He may baptize in the absence of a priest. He may conduct other services except to pronounce the absolution or the benediction. He may preach sermons if licensed thereto by his Bishop. He must be at least twenty-one years of age, must have passed the required canonical examinations, must have been recommended by the rector and vestry of his own parish, and must have been ordained by a bishop, at which time he is presented with the Book of the Gospels and invested with a stole worn only over the left shoulder. The stole is the symbol of the yoke of Christ taken upon oneself in the Christian ministry. The Priest wears it over both shoulders but the Deacon only over one shoulder as a sign of partial ministry. For the Deacon the stole crosses the left shoulder in order to leave the right arm entirely free as a sign of readiness for any service which may be required of him.

Some day the duties of a Deacon may be still different from those which he is called upon to perform today. In fact they differ now in various branches of the historic Church. But the essential character of assisting ministers remains the same as from the beginning. Whether they actually obey their bishops is a matter of discipline rather than of Order. There are Deacons—and Deacons.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ELLETT HALL: ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL

By

GERTRUDE M. LEWIS

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL, located in a charming suburb of Richmond, Virginia, has grown from the inspired work of Miss Virginia Randolph Ellett and the dream of Bishop William Cabell Brown. It has reached its present strength and position under the leadership of Miss Louisa deBernière Bacot. In 1890 Miss Ellett began her day school for girls in Richmond. In 1905, realizing the need for broader education for women, she succeeded in preparing her first students to enter Bryn Mawr College. Two years later her graduates entered Vassar. Through her influence Richmond was the eighth center in the world where the Bryn Mawr entrance examinations were given, the other cities being New York, London, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco. At a time when few schools south of Washington were sending any students to the larger colleges, enough of Miss Ellett's pupils had graduated from Bryn Mawr to put her school on its recommended list. As long as Vassar accepted students on certificate Miss Ellett's girls went in without examination. Some years ago Miss M. Carey Thomas, president emeritus of Bryn Mawr, wrote of Miss Ellett: "When she began to prepare girls for Bryn Mawr College the Bryn Mawr School in Baltimore, of which I was one of the founders in 1885, was, as far as I know, the only school south of Baltimore that was able to prepare successfully. It was an act of extreme daring, and when she told me of her plans I trembled for her success because of the bitter fight the Bryn Mawr School was then waging in Baltimore, and that school had behind it all the financial backing it needed, whereas Miss Ellett was trying to do the same thing, relying on her own slender resources." That she could so dare is explained in the words of Dr. William Allan Neilson, president of Smith College, who said of Miss Ellett, "She has the greatest passion for education of any one I have ever known."

IN 1917, realizing the need of further development which her "slender resources" could not supply, Miss Ellett gave over her school to a board of alumnae and patrons to be incorporated under the name of the Virginia Randolph Ellett School. With their financial help land was bought four miles outside of Richmond, near the Country Club, overlooking the beautiful Janes River valley, the first buildings were erected, and "Miss Ellett's" became a country day school with space, quiet and freedom for out-of-door development.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

In 1920 the school was taken over by the diocese of Virginia, as one of the system of church schools to be established by Bishop Brown. It was part of his plan to have St. Catherine's, as the school then became, capable of training leaders in its community, and, through the resident department which was added the following year in many communities. That the Church should lead and guide the thought of our day by a broad interest in education was his ideal. With this aim in view the Church in Virginia acquired and planned to carry out the development of five schools in different sections of the state; in the tide-water region, St. Margaret's and Christ Church; in Richmond, St. Catherine's and St. Christopher's; and in the Piedmont at Charlottesville, St. Anne's. These schools range in price for tuition from $450 to $900 a year. At St. Catherine's for less than $1,000 in a desirable out-of-door climate, a student can obtain her preparation for any college in the country. Only if she takes extras, such as music, art, or riding, will the complete expense exceed $1,000.

In 1924 Miss Louisa Bacot came as its head to enrich the life of St. Catherine's, and to carry out in the school many new lines of development. Miss Bacot had had the experience in the south and in the north in public and in private schools, having taught in Charleston at the Memminger High and Normal School and at Ashley Hall; near Boston, at Miss Seabury's School, and in New York for five years at the Brearley. Through her skill and influence the resident department has grown from seventeen students to seventy. A number of new buildings have been added in the simple Georgian style adopted by the Church immediately on its purchase of the school. One of these is the Music building, where there is a charming room for recitals with practice rooms above.

In 1926 Miss Bacot added an art department under the direction of Miss Antoinette Hollister, a former pupil of Rodin. Two years later, when the beautiful crypt chapel was completed and dedicated to the memory of Bishop William Cabell Brown, the reliefs on its altar were designed and modelled by students in the school. In this chapel, lighted entirely by candles, in an almost mediæval setting, the girls at times hold their own services and from it there radiates a strong influence in the life of the school.

ST. CATHERINE'S has steadily kept up its standard of preparation for college, sending up regularly each year a number of candidates for the examinations set by the college entrance board. The choice of colleges is no longer limited to those within easy reach of the south. At present there are graduates of St. Catherine's at Bryn Mawr, Barnard, Goucher, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar, Wellesley, and Mount Holyoke. Others have gone to the college which admit by certificate. Among these in Virginia are Hollins, Randolph-Macon, and Sweet Briar.

For those not desiring to enter college a separate course has been planned on which the school's diploma is given. Students electing this course have afterwards entered such institutions for technical training as the School of Fine and Applied Arts in New York and the Peabody Institute for Music in Baltimore. In all classes religious education is given under able instructors.

St. Catherine's is, perhaps, most charming to look at in the spring. On one side of its grounds are grouped the buildings, for the most part under old trees; on the other stretches the wide athletic field with room for tennis courts, archery, hockey, and a ring with jumps for riding. Fortunately a hunt club is within easy reach and those interested in horseback can make use of trails cut for miles across the country side, riding under the guidance of expert instructors.

To state the aim of St. Catherine's is to speak of space and freedom and inspiration for the physical, intellectual, and spiritual development of the individual.

The Queen Who Dared to Do Right

A STORY FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

By

EVELEEN HARRISON

IN THE palace of Shushan, in the land of the Medes and Persians, there lived a little queen whom every one loved; from the King on his throne, to the slave in the kitchen; all the palace loved her because she had a smile and a kind word for each person she met.

But one morning the little queen was very sad, and to the surprise of her seven maids in waiting, her eyes were full of tears.

Sitting in her beautiful gold and purple chamber, with its pillars of white marble, the queen looked out of the window, while tears that filled her eyes overflowed and ran down her cheeks. Yes, Queen Esther was very sad, and worse still, down in her heart she was afraid.

For a whole month she had not seen the King, and well she knew the law he had made, that anyone—man or woman—entering his presence, without permission, was doomed to death, unless his Majesty held out to them the royal sceptre; and yet this brave little maiden had just promised to take this awful risk.

News had come that very morning that the powerful Prime Minister Haman had made the King sign a paper, and seal it with the royal ring, ordering a general massacre of the Jews all over his kingdom. Of course that included the Queen's uncle, who had brought her up, her cousins, and many friends: her own people, for, though no one in the palace knew the secret, Queen Esther was a Jewess, one of the despised race.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"If you do not ask the King to save our people, then you will be responsible for their deaths." So ran the message received that morning from her Uncle Mordecai, the Jew. "Who knoweth but that thou art come to the kingdom for just this thing?"

No wonder the little Queen shivered, and grew pale. If she refused to go into the King's presence, her people would be killed; but if she went, she might die herself.

"Go," said her uncle. "Go," cried her people. "Be brave and true to the highest," her heart told her; so the little Queen went.

"Put on my most beautiful robes," she called to her maidens, "my jewels, my crown, for I must be acceptable in the eyes of my Lord the King."

The maids in waiting, faces white with fear, attended their royal mistress to the inner court of the palace: too well they knew the awful risk she ran, and they loved their brave little lady.

Even the grand Chamberlain tried to hold her back, but Queen Esther dared to do right, even if it led to death, so, at her command, the door swung open, and she stood on the threshold.

Such a wonderful throne room, flashing with gorgeous colors; on the throne of pure white ivory sat the great King in his robes of scarlet and gold. The little Queen trembled as the grand Chamberlain called forth: "Queen Esther desires an audience with the King"; but with firm step she crossed the great marble court, knelt before the throne, and touched the ivory step with her forehead. Almost her heart seemed to stand still. Was it to be life, or death? Slowly she raised her head, a breathless moment; then, like a flash of light, the golden sceptre was held out before her.

The color came back to her lips as she kissed the sceptre, and listened to the King's voice.

"What may I do for my little Queen? Ask and thou shalt have it, even to the half of my kingdom."

Of course the wise Queen had planned out her course, so she answered with a smile, "Only that my Lord and King and the Prime Minister Haman will condescend to attend a dinner party I have made ready for this evening."

With joyful steps and happy face the girl Queen hurried back to her maidens.

"Haste ye, get ready quickly the very best feast for tonight," she cried.

Such hurry and bustle, such running of willing feet all day, and never was there so happy a dinner party, or a Queen so radiant and entertaining. Again the King asked after dinner, "What may I do for my little Queen? Ask and thou shalt have it."

To his surprise she answered, "That my Lord the King and his Prime Minister will dine with me one more evening, then shall I make my request."

That night the King could not sleep (perhaps he had eaten too much at the dinner party); he turned and twisted in bed, then sat up, and called his secretary to read the news of the past month.

So the secretary read the news of the kingdom, until he came to the story of one night, when two men, doorkeepers of the palace, had made a plot to kill the King, and surely would have done it, but that a wise Jew named Mordecai found out the plot, and told the captain of the guard, in time to save the King's life.

"And what reward was given to that brave Jew for saving my life?" demanded the King.

"Nothing at all, your Majesty," replied the secretary.

"Send me the Prime Minister Haman at once," ordered the King.

When Haman bowed low before him, the King asked, "What would you think the highest reward the King could give to a man he delights to honor?"

The crafty Haman hugged himself with joy. Was not the Queen inviting him to delicious dinner parties? and now the King was going to show him high honor. "For, of course," he said to himself, "I am the man the King means." So he chose the honor he had always coveted.

"The highest reward for any man would be to wear the King's robes and his crown, and to ride the King's horse all over the city, while a royal prince held the bridle, and declared to all the people: 'This is the man whom the King delights to honor.'"

"Splendid idea," exclaimed the King, and I will appoint you to carry it out. Go, get my robes of state, my crown of gold, my war horse; take old Mordecai the Jew, dress him up, mount him on my horse, and lead him up and down the city; for he is the man I delight to honor."

Mordecai; the hated Jew! it certainly was a blow to Haman's pride to carry out the King's orders, and when he reached home after walking the streets, and showing off Mordecai, as the man the King delighted to honor, he was so mad he covered his head and cried like a baby.

But the Queen's ambassador arrived to say the second dinner party was ready, so Haman had to wash his face and go to the palace.

"And now what is thy request, Queen Esther, and what may I do for thee, and what is thy petition, and it shall be granted, even to the half of my kingdom?"

The great King was in a very good humor after the jolly dinner; for, of course, the wise Queen had ordered all the dishes he liked best, and now he was curious to know what she wanted. Perhaps it might be more jewels, or embroidered dresses? . . . Imagine his amazement when the brave little Queen dropped on her knees and exclaimed: "My life, O King, and the life of my people—that is my request; for we have been sold by a wicked man who has arranged that on a certain day every man, woman and child of my race is to be killed!"

The King sprang to his feet in anger. "Who is the man that dares presume in his heart to do this terrible deed?" he cried.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

With trembling finger Queen Esther pointed to the Prime Minister Haman. "The man is this wicked Haman," she answered.

In fear Haman, seeing what a great mistake he had made, threw himself down at the Queen's feet to beg for his life, but at a call from the King in came the soldiers, covered his face and led him away, to meet the fate he had prepared for the Jewish people.

The Queen's Uncle Mordecai was given the King's ring, and made second only to the King throughout the whole country, in place of the wicked Haman.

And instead of a terrible massacre of the Jews, there was a feast of rejoicing. Even to this day the Jewish people keep their "Purim," or two days of thanksgiving, to God for the brave deed of the little Queen Esther, who was unselfish enough to risk her life to be of service to her people.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH

Edited by
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

I AM well aware that I am about a month late in presenting you with this report of an address delivered by Mary Van Kleeck at the Girls' Friendly Society meeting held in connection with the conference of social work in Philadelphia. But it was a very good speech, so late or not, I want to pass on to you an abstract of it. Mary Van Kleeck, as I presume most of you know, is the director of the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation. This is the gist of what she said as sent to me by a capable reporter:

The growing use of machinery has been of enormous benefit in many respects, but it has also, for the past forty years, gradually thrown more and more workers out of employment. The question is, does the harm come from the machine, or from the manner in which the machine is used? Obviously, the latter.

Back of the machine is something bigger. It is the power behind the machine, power-driven industry, which is causing a tremendous new organization of life, profoundly changing the nature and scope of individual responsibility, and laying the technical basis for a larger and cooperative scheme of things.

Back of the technical problems before us there is a spiritual need which calls for spiritual capacity. The question is on the control of power, and that in turn rests back upon the ownership of property. The Christian attitude toward property calls for great changes in our economic organization which has grown out of private ownership, and calls for a surrender of power, a modification of the privileges of ownership, that will make resources available for the good of all.

The teachings of Jesus have nothing in common with the possessive attitude that wields power regardless of the effect on the community. Entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven depends on the individual's capacity to live socially.

Church groups have a profound responsibility to prepare themselves for entering into a new order. There is great need of constructive, inventive attitudes, for research and study wholly unchecked by prejudice or desire for power.

* * *

First Century Christians Hold Forth in Detroit

A conference of the First Century Christian Fellowship was held in a hotel of Detroit, Michigan, from May 31 through June 2nd. On the 29th a number of members spoke in Detroit churches. Bishop Page gave the address of welcome at the opening meeting on Tuesday. The leaders included about the same ones who led the recent house party at Briarcliffe, N. Y., including the Rev. Frank N. D. Buchman and the Rev. Sam Shoemaker.

* * *

Big Times at Valley City, N. D.

Fifty years may not mean much to eastern parishes but out where the tall wheat grows that is an indication of years of service fit for a gala occasion. They had just that at All Saints', Valley City, North Dakota, May 22 and 23, with services on Sunday and a big dinner party on Monday. Bishop Bartlett was there as a preacher and as an after-dinner speaker, doing well, so reports have it, in both roles.

* * *

Dr. Bowie Wants War Objectors Honored

In dedicating a tablet on Memorial Day at Grace Church, New York, in memory of members of the congregation who died in the world war, the rector, the Rev. W. Russell Bowie, said that he looked forward to the day when the names of conscientious objectors to war will be honored in the same way.

Dr. Bowie said that the Church never must countenance war again, but rather must ally itself with every agency working to end war and aid in bringing the pressure of public opinion to bear upon governments to this end.

"What we need is not a glorification of war, but a new dedication of ourselves to the moral struggle which shall put an end to war," he said. "With grateful hearts we memorialize the men who in their day followed what seemed to them and to all of us then the light of conscience. But we must recognize that there is another and more creative standard around which, for their sakes, our conscience must rally now—the struggle to end war.

"It may be that after another war the church of Christ would be inscribing upon its tablet the names of those who have gone to Leavenworth as conscientious objectors to war, doing it then with an even larger vision and with the same spirit with which she now inscribes the names of her soldier dead, because they followed what for them was the way of duty to the end."

* * *

Convention of South Florida at Lakeland

The tenth annual convention of the diocese of South Florida met at Lakeland, with Bishop Burleson of the National Council present as the guest of honor. The opening service was a memorial to Bishop Cameron Mann. Bishop Wing in his address stressed the need for missionary education.

* * *

Operate Upon John Henry Hopkins

Rev. and Mrs. John Henry Hopkins are still confined to a hospital in Orlando, Florida, placed there by an automobile accident. Dr. Hopkins escaped serious injury and left the hospital two weeks after the accident but had to return for a gland operation which became necessary as a result of the shock. Mrs. Hopkins, more seriously injured, is making progress slowly.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Trees Planted as Memorials to Washington and Lee

On June 12 at the Cathedral Shrine of the Transfiguration, Shrine Mont, Orkney Springs, Virginia, two stalwart young white oak trees are to be dedicated to the memory of George Washington and Robert E. Lee, Virginia's most noted Churchmen. The trees have been planted on either side of the chancel of unhewn stone. These oaks are successors, perhaps by actual descent, of a magnificent specimen of the white oak which, prior to its recent untimely death, had attained an age of several centuries and a girth of nearly twenty feet at the base. On the day following the dedication will begin the conference period at Shrine Mont, with five conferences running to the middle of July.

* * *

Empire Day Observed At Detroit Cathedral

The traditional commemoration of Empire Day was observed in St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit, on May 29th, when the Rt. Rev. Charles A. Seager, formerly bishop of Ontario and recently elected to succeed the late Bishop David Williams as bishop of the diocese of Huron, preached at both the morning and evening services. It was a great occasion with the Scottish regiment of Windsor, Ontario, in full regalia and accompanied by their band, together with the Canadian Legion of Detroit, attending the service in the morning.

* * *

Dr. Wilford E. Mann Goes to Oakmont, Penna.

The Rev. Wilford E. Mann, rector of the Holy Comforter, Richmond, Virginia, has accepted a call to be the rector of St. Thomas' Church, Oakmont. Penna.

* * *

Clergy to Have Own Conference at Sewanee

The parsons are to have their own little show at the Sewanee Conference, August 2-12. The leaders, conveniently split into bishops, clergy and laymen on the program are: Bishops Mikell, McDowell and Kemerer; clergy: C. Rankin Barnes, Malcolm S. Taylor, W. H. Nes, H. W. Starr, R. Bland Mitchell; Laymen: Gustavus W. Dyer and John W. Wood. The headliners apparently are Dean Nes on "Christian Reunion", Bishop Kemerer on "The Administration of a Parish", Professor Dyer of Vanderbilt University on "The Gospel and the Industrial Order" and Rankin Barnes on "Family Relations" which deals with the factors involved in marriage and how to keep marriage sacramental. Sounds like a very nice party.

* * *

Church Society Closes a Dance Marathon

The dance marathon had been going on for two weeks in a dance hall outside the city limits. It looked just as Frederick Allen says in "Only Yesterday": "The dancers staggered about in an agony of weariness."

Two girls under the care of the Church Mission of Help had joined the dance. Through a state worker who was interested in one of these girls, the Church Mission of Help learned that a section of the penal law in that state, covering bicycle races, forbids any contest of skill, endurance, etc., where human beings participate for more than twelve hours out of the twenty-four. One of the C. M. H. workers called this clause to the attention of the county district attorney, explaining the society's interest in its own charges. Whereupon the district attorney on his own initiative at once sent plain-clothes men to get evidence of the hours danced by the contestants, and closed the performance.

* * *

Detroit Has Council on Adult Education

Mrs. H. H. Sanger, communicant of Christ Church, was elected president and Mr. E. E. Piper, superintendent of religious education for the diocese of Michigan, was elected secretary of the newly organized Detroit Council of Adult Education. It is an interdenominational affair organized for the purpose of holding confabs over common problems, eliminating duplications of work and promoting this important job of educating those already supposed to be educated.

* * *

Worship Is Free And Is Getting Freer

Some weeks ago, in reporting the fact that pew rents had been eliminated in a large eastern parish, I stated that I had no idea how many churches still maintain the rented pew system. Now I know for the secretary of the Free and Open Church Association, having seen my little paragraph, was good enough to send me a large body of facts which I pass on to you. In the first place 95.7 per cent of all Episcopal churches in the United States, including Alaska, are now free churches. In but 321 of the total of 7,434 churches is the pew rent system still in operation. In 42 of the dioceses there is not a church which rents its pews and in the 16 missionary districts there is but one church where pews are rented. The most startling information that the gentleman sends to me is that the association had replies from eighty of the eighty-nine dioceses and missionary districts to whom a questionnaire was sent. Anyone able to get replies from such a large percentage must either know how to make out a good questionnaire or be exceedingly persistent.

* * *

One Loses While the Other Gains

Miss Laura Shannon of New York left behind her a queer sort of last will and testament. She had left close to a million dollars to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. But there was added this strange provision: "If the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, present bishop of the diocese of New York, shall survive me, I delete the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in each and every case where it appears and substitute for it in each case St. Luke's Hospital." Apparently the dear lady wasn't too keen about the bishop. Anyhow St. John's loss was St. Luke's gain. Miss Shannon also left a trust fund of $350,000, a tidy sum, to the Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, now a professor at the General but for many years the dean of the Cathedral. The Church of the Heavenly Rest received a grant of $25,000 and the Rev. Henry Darlington, rector, was given $1,000. The Cathedral in Paris received $20,000 and the Cathedral in Washington, $10,000.

* * *

Charity Foundation Holds its Spring Festival

The spring festival of the Church

Conference for Church Work

Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.

June 27-July 8, 1932

Our greatest Conference, your greatest opportunity, opens in less than three weeks! Have you registered yet? To gain greater skill for your work, to enrich and deepen your spiritual resources, decide today to come to Wellesley.

To register or obtain full information, address

MRS. V. K. DAVIS, Registrar

1352 Beacon Street, Brookline, Mass.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Charity Foundation of the diocese of Long Island was held on May 26th in Brooklyn. This annual event is one of the many ways the churches of the diocese express their interest in this diocesan institution that is carrying on such a large work.

* * *

Reaching the Unchurched in Arizona

Bishop Mitchell of Arizona, after making a survey of religious resources in parts of Arizona, found a group of thirteen little towns where there were no religious services of any kind. Only two of these towns had church buildings and both were closed.

Over one area of about five thousand square miles in the Harqua Hala Valley the ranchers were visited with a view to finding whether they would approve if the Episcopal Church started work among them. One rancher said, "I ain't aidin' nor abettin' no preacher," but he has since become a good friend of the Church. There were five little towns in this area. The Episcopal Church had scarcely five communicants among them, but the need of religious care was evident.

Into this field went the Rev. and Mrs. Edmund T. Simpson, about four years ago. Shortly after they had undertaken the care of the five little towns the Government opened a great tract of 285,000 acres as homesteads for war veterans. This at once created a need even greater than existed in the more or less static little towns.

The settlers, many of them in none too good health, brought their wives and children who had been accustomed to living in civilized communities with all the comforts which that implies. They began living in little board shacks, heated by wood fires, lighted by kerosene lamps, the nearest water supply a well five to fifteen miles away. No church, no hospital, no doctor, no store, and this not a temporary camp but a permanent home.

The Church has built a guild hall in each of three centers. Each one is a small room but it is the largest in the community, and has become the center of community life. They are also used as schools. There are five schools in this region now. Altogether there are some two thousand people, and the Episcopal Church is doing the only religious work that is done among them.

* * *

A Lay Reader Shows That it Can Be Done

For forty years or so Mr. William S. Charles of Hornell, N. Y. has been the lay reader at St. John's mission, Canisteo. Under his leadership a fine new church has been built, a congregation built up and all financial obligations met. He is not the only one on the job. This year Mrs. Kirby Jones, communicant, prepared a class of nine for confirmation and presented it to Bishop Ferris.

* * *

There Is a Need For Religious Education

A test given 1,800 high school graduates in a normal college showed that 288 did not know where Christ was born, nor the name of his mother; 1,260 did not know what was the Sermon on the Mount; 1,170 never heard of the Golden Rule; 216 could not give the first clause of the Lord's Prayer; 1,080 did not know what Christ said about loving your neighbor; 216 said Pilate wrote the Bible; 162 thought Samaria was an author; 216 said that Peter was a king; 540 thought that Gethsemane was a city in Egypt.

* * *

Religious Education As a Cure For Lawlessness

Addressing the spring meeting of the Archdeaconry of Harrisburg, meeting at Carlisle, Pa., the Hon. F. S. Reese, presiding judge of the Cumberland County Courts, spoke on the growing amount of lawlessness among young people, and urged the

Why Not Pay Off Your Church Mortgage

by arranging for it to be liquidated or reduced considerably within a maximum period of fifteen years?

Such financial obligations, even now when all expenses must be lowered, need not be a burden to the supporters of the Parish or to the individual church. A fund to which a payment as low as fifty cents a month means a contribution of $100.00, can be provided. A small annual payment, the amount determined on a percentage basis, will take care of a subscriber's entire pledge and create a surplus emergency fund as well.

The Church Life Insurance Corporation helps you manage the plan in expert fashion and places its facilities at the disposal of your Parish.

The fund, when it is established, is administered by the Vestry or by a special committee, and guarantees liquidation or reduction of the indebtedness at the end of a definite period.

Full information about this convenient method of settling a debt on church property will be sent upon request.

THE CHURCH LIFE INSURANCE CORPORATION

20 Exchange Place New York City

(A Subsidiary of the Church Pension Fund)

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—
F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)
CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.
MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St. Boston

clergy to assist in solving the problem through religious education and by doing everything possible to see that there is proper home training. The Rev. Don Frank Fenn of Baltimore also spoke on "The Church of the Future."

* * *

Service For Families on Parish's Birthday

Trinity, Waterbury, Conn., is fifty-five years old. So on June 12th it is to have a Family Sunday when father and mother and all the little ones are to attend the service as a group. There is to be a birthday party on the 22nd.

* * *

College of Preachers Has Summer Conference

The summer conference of the College of Preachers is to get under way on June 13. The Rev. Frank Gavin, professor at the General Seminary, is to give a course on "Some Aspects of the Anglican Tradition"; the Rev. Leicester Lewis of Philadelphia on "Recent Developments in European Theology" and Dean Willard Sperry of Harvard Divinity School on "The Technique of Preaching".

* * *

Missionary From China Addresses the Auxiliary

The annual out-of-town meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Long Island met at East Hampton when an address was given by the Rev. Ernest H. Forster of Yangchow, China. There was a large birthday cake at the luncheon—a surprise party it seems for Bishop Stires who was sixty-six years old that day but had apparently forgotten all about it until he saw the huge cake. The speaker in the afternoon was Dr. Lewis B. Franklin, vice-president of the National Council.

* * *

A Few Baseball Players Go to Church

My Yankees, headed I really believe for the pennant, went to Cumberland, Maryland, for an exhibition game the other day. There is Emmanuel Church, built on the site of old Fort Cumberland. So a few of the boys explored the tunnels underneath the church where Colonel Washington kept his powder and ammunition in the French and Indian wars. All of which moved one of the wisecrackers to remark that Washington made a great comeback after being "farmed out to the Blue Ridge."

* * *

Bishop Reese of Georgia Has An Anniversary

It isn't everyone who can be the guest of honor at a dinner in his own home. A lot of people, including most of the clergy of the diocese of Georgia, with their wives, knocked at the door of Bishop Reese's house the

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson-New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.
SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania
Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.
Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

other day and announced that he was to be their guests for dinner in honor of the twenty-fourth anniversary of his consecration. There were of course speeches, flowers and all the rest of it.

* * *

Wellesley Conference Plans For Young People

Wellesley is supposed to be a conference for adults but there are courses this year that have an unusual appeal for the many young people who always attend. One, open only to them, is to be given by the Rev. John Crocker of Princeton University and the Rev. Leslie Glenn of Christ Church, Cambridge. This course will consider Christian convictions with special reference to the problems faced by youth today. Somehow or other youth is considered to have different problems than the rest of us—maybe so. Then there are three fine courses on the Bible; a course on personal religion; one on the Prayer Book and any number for those who teach. Besides all this serious business hikes, tournaments, ball games and picnics are being planned so that the young people will have a gay time as well. Incidentally the registrations are running well ahead of last year at this time.

* * *

Church School Gives Intelligently to Missions

The boys and girls of the Church School at St. James' Church, New York, have voted a total of $1,025 to missionary and social service fields which the pupils, divided into groups for the purpose, have been studying during the past winter. The money has been raised by the School from their weekly donations and from the proceeds of their annual fair held recently. The pupils voted sums to the Stuck Memorial Hospital in Alaska; the work of the Rev. J. H. Townsend, Archdeacon of Camaguey, Cuba; the Church at Alab, Philippines; the work of the Rev. E. A. Anson, St. Paul's Church, Frederiksted, Virgin Islands; part cost of a piano at the new kindergarten, Imaichi, Japan; the Diocese of Montana; to Christ Church, Arden, N. C., for a half scholarship for a boy for one year; St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Shanghai, five beds for children; Church Army work of Capt. Mallett; the Home for Children and St. Mary's Church, Silver City, Panama; St. Catherine's School, San Juan, and the Rest House, Tranquilla, Porto Rico.

* * *

Missionary Addresses Auxiliary of Harrisburg

The Rev. Hooper R. Shaw of Toyama, Japan, was the speaker at the spring meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Archdeaconry of Harrisburg, meeting at St. John's, Lancaster, Pa. Representatives from sixteen parishes and missions were present.

* * *

Spear Knebel Is Ordained

The Rev. Spear Knebel, secretary of social service for the diocese of Long Island, was ordained priest on Trinity Sunday at St. Thomas', Brooklyn. John Milton Coleman was ordained deacon at the same service.

* * *

Robert P. Kreitler Honored by the General

The Rev. Robert P. Kreitler, hustling rector of St. Luke's, Scranton, Penna., was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of sacred theology at the commencement of the General Seminary.

* * *

Halley Comet Is Confirmed by Bishop McCormick

Bishop McCormick of Western Michigan visited the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia on May 29th and confirmed a class of fifteen inmates, presented by Chaplain E. G. White, who is the rector at Ionia. Among those confirmed was a man who said his name was Halley Comet, given him by the doctor at his birth. He was baptized Harold however by the chaplain on the previous Sunday which, it seems to me, was rather too bad.

* * *

Training Children To Sing In New Orleans

The churches of New Orleans are uniting in a plan to train the children of the Church Schools to be choristers. On Trinity Sunday the children's choirs from seven parishes united at the Cathedral for a festival.

* * *

North Dakota Holds Convention

Mr. W. D. Swain, executive secretary of the district of South Dakota, and the Rev. Percy Haughton, general secretary of the National Council, were speakers at the convention of North Dakota, held at Fargo, May 15-17. Mr. Swain presided over a conference attended by about one hundred laymen. Bishop Bartlett delivered his first convention address as bishop, paid tribute to his predecessors, said he was carefully studying the problems of the district and would have definite recommendations to make at the next convention. Mrs. W. Blair Robert, South Dakota, was the headliner at the meeting of the Auxiliary.

* * *

Chieftain's Daughter Among Graduates of Mission School

Among the nineteen girls graduated this year from St. Luke's

The Anderson Craftsmen Inc.
Ecclesiastical Woodwork
WOOD CARVERS
CABINET MAKERS
FINE CHURCH FURNITURE
231 W. 18th St. New York City

A Winters' Illuminated Church Bulletin gives your Church
Continual Publicity
without Continual Expense
Send for Free Illustrated Catalogue
H. E. WINTERS SPECIALTY CO.
W. 308½ E. 4th St. Davenport, Iowa

Saint Agnes
Excellent College Preparatory Record. New fire proof buildings ideally situated in 33 acres of the best residential section outside the City. Moderate price. Sports of all kinds.
Miss Blanche Pittman, M. A., 58 Elk Street Albany N. Y.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

THE MUNDS HOME
78 Midland Ave., Montclair, N. J.
Elderly persons, invalids and convalescents will receive every comfort of Church home and under care of registered nurses. Moderate rates. References by permission to Rev. F. J. Clark, Secretary National Council.

RETREAT
Adelynrood, South Byfield, Mass.
A retreat for women will be held by the Society of the Companions of the Holy Cross on June 25th to 27th. Conductor, the Rev. Charles Townsend. Applications should be made to Mrs. R. T. Hakes, 149 Chestnut St., Montclair, New Jersey.

CALVERT-HERRICK & RIEDINGER
2 & 4 East . 23rd . Street
New . York . City
—o—
STAINED GLASS . MOSAIC AND . CHURCH DECORATION
—o—
CHURCH . APPOINTMENTS IN . MARBLE . STONE WOOD . AND METAL

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital. High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

Hospital Training School, Manila, was an Igorot girl from Easter School, Baguio; she took a prize for surgical technique. Another girl was a Tirurai from Upi, daughter of the chieftain of the whole Tirurai tribe who first met Bishop Mosher in 1920 and asked him to send the Church to his people. The daughter returns to help in the missoin at Upi. Another graduate came from Siam.

* * *

Supply the Cash

It is rather interesting to look into the question as to where a large part of the money that supports the missionary work of the Church comes from. A good slice of it comes from the diocese of New York. There are over one hundred parishes and missions in New York City alone, and yet 55% of the total amount received for missions comes from just ten parishes; Calvary, Grace, Heavenly Rest, Incarnation, St. Bartholomew's, St. George's, St. James, St. Michael's, St. Thomas and Trinity. During the past six years Trinity parish has paid $356,369; St. Thomas is next with $256,467 and St. Bartholomew's is third with $227,313. The total payment of these ten parishes is 99% of their assigned quotas.

* * *

One Last Wish

And here is a new depression story, also related by Bishop Stewart.

A man said to his friend on New Year's Eve, "Are you going to stay up tonight?"

"Sure", was the reply, "I am going to sit up and usher in the New Year."

"Well", said the other, "I think you are foolish. You are tired and you ought to go to bed and get a good sleep."

"Go to bed. Not me. I want to hear those factory whistles blow once more before I die."

* * *

Has Snappy Name

St. George's-in-the-Smoke-Hole is the snappy name of a mission in West Virginia. Bishop Gravatt was there recently and confirmed a class of five, the first ever confirmed in the county. Bishop Strider was also there and the two bishops dedicated the mission church. The property consists of twenty acres of land, a stone dwelling and an old school house which is used for various Church activities. Captain and Mrs. Edward Hodgkinson of the Church Army are in charge and are doing a grand bit of work among the typical mountain people who live in what is known far and wide as "Smoke Hole". Pendleton is the most

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School

New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON

THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando. Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

remote county in West Virginia and has not, until now, had within its borders a mission of our Church.

* * *

Blue Mountain

The Blue Mountain Conference this year is offering a brief intensive course for the clergy, and that you may know that those who planned it have provided for at least two points of view I hasten to tell you that the courses are to be given by the Rev. Frank Gavin of the General, and the Rev. James Addison of Cambridge. There is a Laymen's week-end conference also, with the Rev. Malcolm S. Taylor of Greenville, South Carolina, as the leader.

* * *

Trinity Chapel

The meeting in Hartford of the Church Congress gave the members of the Congress an opportunity to see the new chapel at Trinity College. It is not entirely completed but, with the date of the consecration set for June 18th, the work is sufficiently far along to allow for some services. On Wednesday morning, April 27th, there was held the first preaching service for undergraduates in the new chapel. Bishop Dallas of New Hampshire, who had come on to give the sermon at the opening of the Church Congress, was the preacher. It was a notable occasion and the singing of the college body with the new organ gave rich promise of what is in store for the future.

On Thursday, the college invited all the delegates to the Church Congress to luncheon at the college and afterwards they attended the regular workmen's service in the chapel. It was the anniversary of the death of Gordon Reeves, master mason, who had devoted himself to the construction of the chapel from the very first until illness compelled him to give up his work over a year ago. On the occasion of this anniversary service the workmen presented to the chapel a picture of Reeves in a frame made by one of their number from the wood being used in the ceiling of the chapel. The delegates to the Congress were naturally much impressed by the service and also by the beauty of the chapel, even in its unfinished state.

* * *

Airplane Saves Time For Bishop Roots

Low water delayed the boat on which Bishop Roots was recently traveling up river for visitations at Ichang and Shasi. The trip took five days going, and he returned by airplane in one hour and twenty minutes!

He spent a week at Ichang and six days at Shasi, and in spite of surrounding difficulties and suffering, opium traffic, banditry, and other evils, found the Church's work a bright spot in each place.

CAMP

Will share my Adirondack Lodge with 2 to 4 congenial people during August. In wildest section of State. Pioneer but comfortable simplicity. References exchanged.

A. L. BYRON-CURTISS
Atwell, Herkimer Co., N. Y.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9; Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer and Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M (Saints' Days, 10); Morning Prayer, 9:30 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 5 P. M.

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.; 4 P. M.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams. S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 9, 11 (High Mass).
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 (Thurs., 7, 8, 9:30).

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursdays and Holy Days: 11.

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed.. Thurs., and Holy Days.

Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland
Sundays: 8, 11 and 4.
Daily: 10:30.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Young People's Mass, 9 A. M.; Church School, 9:30 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Solemn High Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

"MOST VALUABLE AGENCIES"

AT THE meeting of the General Convention in Denver a resolution was adopted stating that "The Church Boarding Preparatory Schools are among the most valuable agencies the Church possesses for executing the teaching mission of the Church and for the development of character." The resolution further states that "because of the failure of our Church people generally to appreciate this fact these schools have received such scant support that almost every year one or more of them either has to be closed or is lost to the Church."

The Convention instructed the department of religious education of the National Council to begin "a sustained campaign of education of our people to the end that proper support may be secured, both in students and in gifts."

The Schools listed here would like to share in this campaign of education by sending you literature which will give you information about what we are able to do for your boy or girl.

Information about these schools, and the others, all recognized Church Schools, whose notices appear elsewhere in this paper, may be secured from The Witness, 931 Tribune Building, New York.

Schools for Boys

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
DR. CHARLES L. STREET

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK

SHATTUCK SCHOOL
FARIBAULT, MINNESOTA
C. W. NEWHALL

Schools for Girls

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES

ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE
MRS. C. A. MCLANE

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT

ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS

ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL
DAVENPORT, IOWA
SISTER ESTHER

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JUNE 16, 1932

WINNING HIS RACE
In a Track Meet at Howe School

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

THE J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

JAMES POWELL & SONS
(Whitefriars) Ltd. Est. 1680
LONDON, ENGLAND
STAINED GLASS
Distributor:
ADRIAN A. BUCK
665 Fifth Ave., New York City

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late
KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary St. John's, Wilmington.

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10th ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

J. WIPPELL & CO LTD
will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for
Embroidery · Wood
Stone · Metal and
Stained Glass
EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · · 11, Tufton St. S.W.1.
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street.

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M. P. MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown Maryland

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI No. 43 | JUNE 16, 1932 | Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

ONE OF THE HIGHLIGHTS of the Denver General Convention was the report of the Committee of Twenty-One, dealing with social, industrial and international questions. It was a particularly able committee that treated their assignment seriously and brought in a report which was both timely and courageous. The House of Bishops received it with enthusiasm and wished to send it forth as expressing the mind of the Church on these matters. The Deputies, more cautious, after some discussion sent it forth as being worthy of consideration and urged the people of the Church to study it with care. Now, thanks to Bishop McElwain, at least one diocese is to do just that. As a result of his convention address it was voted to organize group conferences throughout the diocese to discuss the General Convention report. More, they are to urge other dioceses and missionary districts to do likewise with an idea of having delegates to the next General Convention instructed to report the mind of their dioceses on these important matters. It is a wholesome move. The really vital issues before the world today are economic. Yet the Church has been content to issue pronouncements which are buried in the archives almost immediately. The diocese of Minnesota has taken action which will keep the report of the Committee of Twenty-One alive as an excellent text for study groups. We hope that the Church generally will act upon the suggestion that comes from Minnesota.

ACCORDING to an announcement of the National Council, over $325,000 has come in, either in cash or pledges, for the Deficiency Fund, collections for which were made in most dioceses on Whitsunday. The people of the Church doubtless gave upward of a half million dollars on that day, but of course part of the sum is retained by dioceses to finance local work. In view of general conditions certainly everyone has every reason to be encouraged over this fine showing. The treasurer of the National Council, Dr. Franklin, also announces that collections on quotas to June first were more than the amount due on "expectations," so that he is able to start his message for the month with "we have our heads above water at last" and close it with the cheery sentence, "Thanks to your efforts we owe the bank at this time only $50,000."

IT IS RATHER too bad that their friends will not allow Bishop Manning and the Rev. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, to live in peace. A feud which existed between them for a number of years was patched up not many months ago so that the Bishop resumed his ecclesiastical visitations to this historic church. Since then however newspapers, eager for colorful stories which Dr. Guthrie can supply so ably, have done their best to create another row. The last flare-up was at a meeting held at a New York club to sing the praises of the Body and Soul Clinic which is run for St. Mark's by Edward S. Cowles, a gentleman who is also the proprietor of a private sanitarium. One of the speakers at the meeting was Dudley Field Malone, buddy of the mayor of New York, James Walker. One would hardly expect Mr. Malone to be especially pleased when Bishop Manning had the courage to support Judge Seabury in his efforts to clean up corruption in New York politics. Neither would one expect Mr. Malone to miss the opportunity to hit back if the opportunity presented itself. So at this tribute meeting he accused Bishop Manning of "plotting to take this beautful Body and Soul Clinic out of St. Mark's. Maybe he is too busy with New York City politics to visit St. Mark's and understand the beautiful work of the clinic." The remarks were grasped by newspaper men and played up for all they were worth. Efforts were made to get Dr. Guthrie to substantiate Mr. Malone's charges, and Bishop Manning was dragged out of bed by phone calls in the middle of the night with the hope that he might say something that would make a story—that is, a scrap. Both of them are old hands at the game so that nothing came of this latest effort, but it does serve to illustrate what constitutes religious news with the ordinary reporter of a secular newspaper.

THE DIOCESE OF CHICAGO proposes to do what it can to make it unnecessary for people to live by salvaging from garbage wagons. It is reported reliably that when wagons arrive at the city dumps from their trips through the city's alleys that men and boys paw over the slimy, smelly mess hoping to find bits of food to take home to keep themselves and their families alive. Their answer, so says The Christian Century, to the prayer, "Give us this day our daily bread." It is more than a gruesome picture; it is an absurd one. With store houses bursting with food human beings are compelled to eat garbage unfit for dogs. The diocese of Chicago, led by Bishop Stewart, is at least attempting to do something about it and has devised a plan which might well be adopted in other centers. The churches in the rural parts of the diocese are to be made the assembly points for vegetables and foodstuffs during the summer and fall. Farmers and residents of rural communities are being urged to pay their pledges in farm products at their local churches. This will then be trucked to Chicago and there distributed through the social service agencies to the needy. Bishop Stewart in outlining the plan points out that the basic problem of the present emergency is one of distribution; getting foodstuffs, which rich America can grow so abundantly, from the farms to the hungry. The plan he has devised will not solve this basic problem but it should, if taken seriously, do much to diminish the misery of another winter which will undoubtedly be worse than anything we have yet seen. If the Church throughout the country would really push some such plan as Bishop Stewart has proposed it would be impossible to measure the accomplishment. Food for the starving millions if you cannot give cash for the Church's Program might well be a slogan for our fall work. And if the National Council pushed such a plan we believe such a practical piece of social service work would create so much enthusiasm among Church people that they would get not only the food but the cash as well.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Our Church Schools

By

REV. CHARLES L. STREET
Headmaster, St. Alban's School, Sycamore

ONE of the most serious problems the Episcopal Church has to face at the present time is the problem of its secondard schools.

Historically, the Church has been the backbone of education in this country—speaking now not simply of the Episcopal Church but including other Christian bodies. The first colleges in this country were on religious foundations. The earliest secondary schools were the old academies. The first of these was founded by Benjamin Franklin in Philadelphia in 1751.

The first Church school was the Flushing Institute, founded by the Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg in 1827 in Flushing, New York. This was followed in 1856 by St. Paul's, Concord, and by Shattuck in 1860. Other schools followed in rapid succession.

About this same time the public school movement got under way, and as the years have gone on there has been an ever increasing interest in public education. More and more money has been spent on teacher training and on equipment. State education has been the philosophy of our country and the religion of our leaders. In state education has seemed to be the hope for the future and the promise of the building of a new race. The result has been that the United States has today the best system of public education in the world.

But there is today a growing feeling that there is something wrong with our American educational system—that somehow in the testing time of the last fifteen years it has not made good the promises that were made in its name in the early years of the century. The public school system, with all its benefits has one defect—a defect which is radical and devastating. The public school cannot teach religion. They can teach anything else, but they cannot teach the one thing that is most important of all. Our public school leaders are among the first to realize this—they are trying to meet the problem in many ways. But the difficulties in the way of a solution of this problem within the public school system are great.

The churches have stepped in with their contributions and have tried various schemes for supplementing the public schools—such as the "Sunday School" and various plans of weekday religious education. These plans are make-shift at best however, because religious training should be part and parcel of the whole of a child's training, not something tacked on after school hours. The ideal solution is for the church to operate its own schools, where religious training can take its proper place and be integrated with the whole educational program.

Our Roman Catholic brethren and our Lutheran brethren found this out a long time ago, and have been quietly going ahead building up an educational system, while the Episcopal Church has been standing by and watching its schools die. The Episcopal Church cannot reorganize the whole educational program of the country, but it owes it not only to itself but to the country to support and foster and build up its secondary school system so that its schools can make the contribution they should make.

If our church schools as a whole are ever to grow and prosper and be able to take a proper and dignified place in our national educational system, two things must be done.

First, the National Council must lend a hand in the direction of coordination, improvement in the religious education part of the program, and in publicity. The Church has never had any policy in the matter of secondary education. The schools that have succeeded have succeeded on their own. The Church as an organization has never showed any interest in them, and they have not shown any interest in the general problem of Church boarding schools. A start in the right direction has recently been made, however, with the appointment of a sub-committee of the department of religious education.

In the second place, our Church people must be brought to a realization of the importance of our

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Church boarding schools, and must support them not only with their means but with their patronage. There are enough boys and girls of Church families going to boarding schools which are not Church schools, when there are Church schools just as good within a hundred miles, to make our whole secondary educational program independent and self-supporting.

The middle west and the west is where the battle must be fought. In the east the Church schools have fared fairly well, partly because they got an earlier start, partly because the private school tradition is stronger in the east and the public school tradition not so strong. The schools in the middle west and the west have been having the hard end of the struggle. It is at this point that the supporting forces of the Church—both in its corporate capacity and through individuals—must be brought to bear if the Church schools are to go on, and if the Church is to make its best contribution to our nation's ideals and achievement in secondary education.

Witnesses

An Editorial by

BISHOP JOHNSON

THE method of spreading His Gospel, throughout the world and for all times, which our Lord commanded was unique. He lived a life which drew men to Him so that they loved Him much. He is the greatest beloved of all time. He then bade His disciples to go forth and to be witnesses unto Him. This was His final message to His disciples. What does it signify? What is it to be a witness? How can we comply with this personal request of Christ, for after all, He depended upon the individual to follow Him and to spread His gospel?

In the last analysis it is the ordinary man in the pew who preaches the gospel to the world. The preacher is limited in his audience to those who hear him, but the layman in the pew goes out into the world and impresses his companions with his sincerity or the lack of it. It is the ordinary man doing the thing expected of him which constitutes the leaven which is inserted into three measures of meal to leaven the whole lump.

It is comparatively easy to preach. I have known eloquent preachers whose lives are anything but sacrificial in character. But it is extremely difficult to practice what is preached. It is easy to have a philosophy which is merely a kind of mental gymnastics. It is hard to have a religion which involves not only thought but also conduct and devotion.

What are the three measures of meal which constitute civilized society? It seems to me that they are business, education and social contacts. Into this compound comes the Christ with His ingredient of love.

Society is like a laboratory. The chemist inserts a chemical into the compound and it changes its color, or becomes a deadly poison or a high explosive or a benevolent remedy. So these three measures of meal are the compound into which Christ asks us to insert the leavening principle.

The life of an individual seems so little and its influence so negligible and yet I have known people that were bedridden whose lives were more potent for good than those of strong men who possessed millions.

I would set it down as an axiom that social decency is in direct proportion to the number of sincere people striving to live up to Christ's ideals in society. The power of a truly godly life is tremendous, even though it seems to be unimportant in its details. And I believe that the greatest impediment to this influence in society is the large number of anaemic Christians who treat their baptismal vows casually. The emphasis that Protestant religion has put upon conduct is rather the negation of vice than the positive character of righteousness. It is not enough that you do not steal. This leaves the world cold. But if instead of stealing, you give that which demands sacrifice, then you have exerted a positive reaction on society. It is not enough that you do not lie. That is negative. Do you bear witnesses to the truth when such testimony is difficult?

In short Christ expects a positive note in Christian character which involves self-sacrifice and courage. It is precisely these notes that are lacking today in the solution of the economic and industrial problems that confront us. I think it is too much to say that our financial and political leaders deliberately lied during the orgy of greed which enveloped us, but outside of one or two none of them displayed any sacrificial courage in telling the truth.

THE parable of the talents teaches us that we are individually responsible for the talents we possess. The incident of the widow's mite teaches us that it is the quality rather than the quantity that is important in God's sight. The measure of our obligation as Christians is determined rather by the quality of the leaven than by the amount. In another parable our Lord teaches the same truth under a different analogy, "Ye are the salt of the earth, but if the salt has lost its savor wherewith shall it be salted. It is good for nothing." I wonder what proportion of our so-called Church membership is good for nothing if tested by the amount of positive influence for righteousness exerted by those who have enlisted under His standard?

What can we do to bear witness?

First—We can hear Him: There is an obligation upon us to acquaint ourselves with His life and teaching through prayer and sacrament and the reading of His holy word. Unless we do that we are incapable of bearing witness to Him. "Take heed whom ye hear;" "Beware of false prophets." "Do men gather grapes of thorns?" It is a curious fact that many inquirers after truth are interested in reading attacks upon Christ and His teaching, who seldom, if ever, devote much time in their maturer years to studying the gospel as a positive plan for making men righteous. The tragedy of it is that those who attack have nothing to offer in a constructive way for leavening the meal. A moron can break windows that an artist has spent a life time to construct and can find his pleasure in the ruin that he has created. It is futile to destroy that which we have no ability to replace. We do not discharge our own moral obligations by successfully pointing out the weaknessess of our fellow men. Christ expects His disciples to practice righteousness regardless of hypocrisy which surrounds them. This is what makes Christian life a thing of sacrificial courage. If we are unwilling to hear Him, then we have no right to judge His system. It is not enough to form our judgments upon the failure of His disciples adequately to represent Him. One may not properly criticize the drama because the actors are poor. The only ones who have the right to judge Christ are those who have sought to follow His directions.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

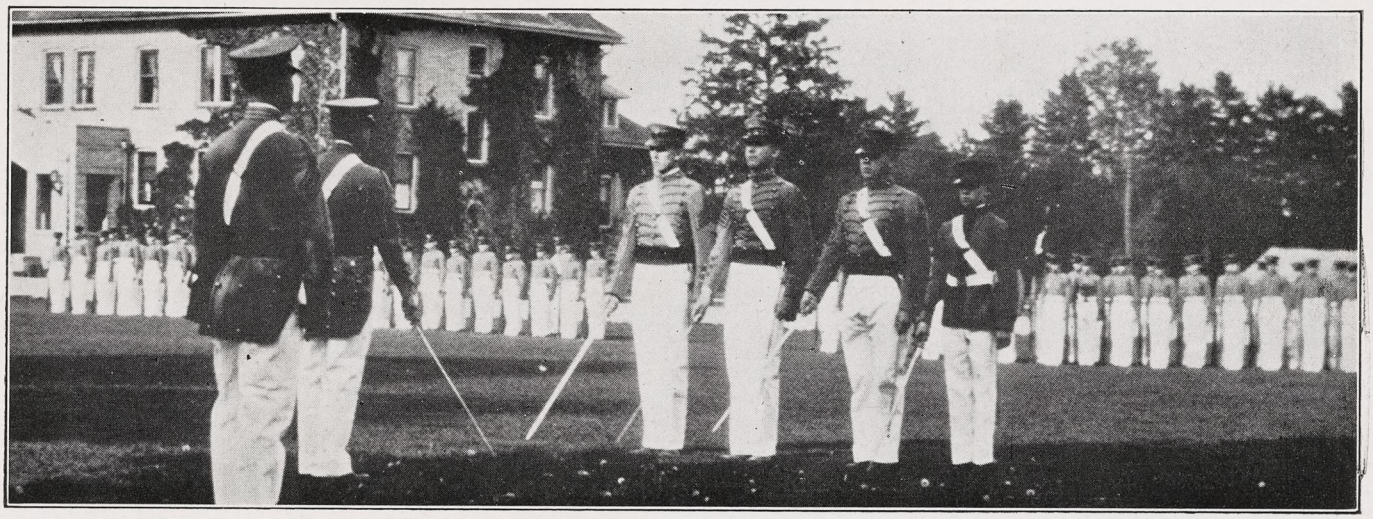
SECOND—We can heed Him: "If you love Me keep My commandments." "Do the things I have told you to do." That is a reasonable request of anyone who assumes leadership in any field of endeavor. The one whom you accept as your master in art, music or science has the right to ask you to proceed in accordance with his directions. If you do this and fail you have a right to question the wisdom of the master, but if you refuse to do this and fail, you have no grievance with him.

What are His commandments? "Repent and be baptized." "Do this in remembrance of Me." "Go ye into all the world." "Be ye witnesses unto Me." None of those things are impossible to do, yet all of them have an intimate relation to your discipleship. Identify yourself with Me in the act of baptism. Do not expect to receive privileges unless you are willing to assume responsibilities. Make frequent contact with Me in the way that I request in the sacrament that I have ordained. It is the Eucharist that has received the fellowship of Christians in Him. Render some act of service in extending My kingdom. Refuse to be a parasite, seeking much and giving little. Feel the responsibility of making My gospel winsome by your conduct in society as a disciple of Mine.

How can we get away from these obligations without losing our self-respect?

THIRD—We can help Him: Too much emphasis has been put upon our being saved; too little on Christ being justified. If God wills to help us, we have a duty to help Him. If we could not help Him, He could not have created us. The idea that God is a machine who has predestined us all to an inexorable fate is a horrid conception of deity. It would seem that God was as helpless in making men good by the law of mechanics as is an earthly father in bringing up his children. He seems to be dependent upon our cooperation to accomplish His will. He has permitted us to reject Him as men rejected Christ or to accept Him as the author and finisher of our faith. We may have preconceptions of God's omniscience and omnipotence that leave no place for Him to fail and yet such a theory is contrary to the facts that surround us in every hand. "God willeth not the death of a sinner" and yet men die in the depths of sin. Evidently that which He wills can be and is thwarted. He made us to be partners and children and in doing so He left us the freedom of partners and children. Undoubtedly we would have made the human race otherwise. If God was mistaken and we are not, then man is fearfully and wonderfully made. Personally I prefer a world in which I have the privilege of enjoying the freedom of the sons of God, even if the sacrifice of that freedom should give me all the material comforts that the Russian Soviet promises. I thank God every day that He has not given me things at the price of my personal freedom. After all it is a reasonable way that Christ bids me travel.



Hear what I have to say. Heed what I have directed you to do. Help Me in building My kingdom and ye shall become the children of God, because you have acquired the Godlike qualities which things can never produce. "Be ye witnesses unto Me" is a command that each of us may or may not perform, but in the performance thereof we make the supreme test of our faith.

"Yes, But"

Reviewed by
GARDINER M. DAY

THIS modernistic title used by Dean Willard L. Sperry of the Harvard Theological School for his latest volume of essays on religion would surely give a shock to many of his pious predecessors. Yes, But (Harpers $2) symbolizes in the dean's mind the bankruptcy of modern Christian apologetics, and so in a series of delightful essays in his inimitable style he shows how the modern humanist house is built upon the sand and that inevitably the hope for the future lies in a truly revitalized religion. This modern generation must above all learn to say God "clearly and unequivocally". Dean Sperry finds hope in the fact that "it is now fifty thousand years since man crawled out of his caves to begin his ascent, and the Christian religion has been dealing with him for only a fraction of that time. Mandell Creighton was right in saying that after we have got rid of the ape and the tiger we shall have to get rid of the donkey, a much more intractable animal". Dr. Sperry believes that he sees signs of a fresh flood of religious interest in the more spiritual account of the universe which has been given us by scientists of late. "This movement", he writes, "is taking place well beneath the surface of all creeds and churches". Indeed he notes that the drift of organized religion still is in the opposite direction. The volume is the Harvard dean's reply to critics of the type of Walter Lippmann, who is hit by several of the dean's verbal shafts. For example, speaking of Lippmann's great principle of disinterestedness he writes: "It is true that men may achieve an increasingly disinterested service of one another, but they cannot make a spiritual living by taking in each other's wash of disinterestedness".

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

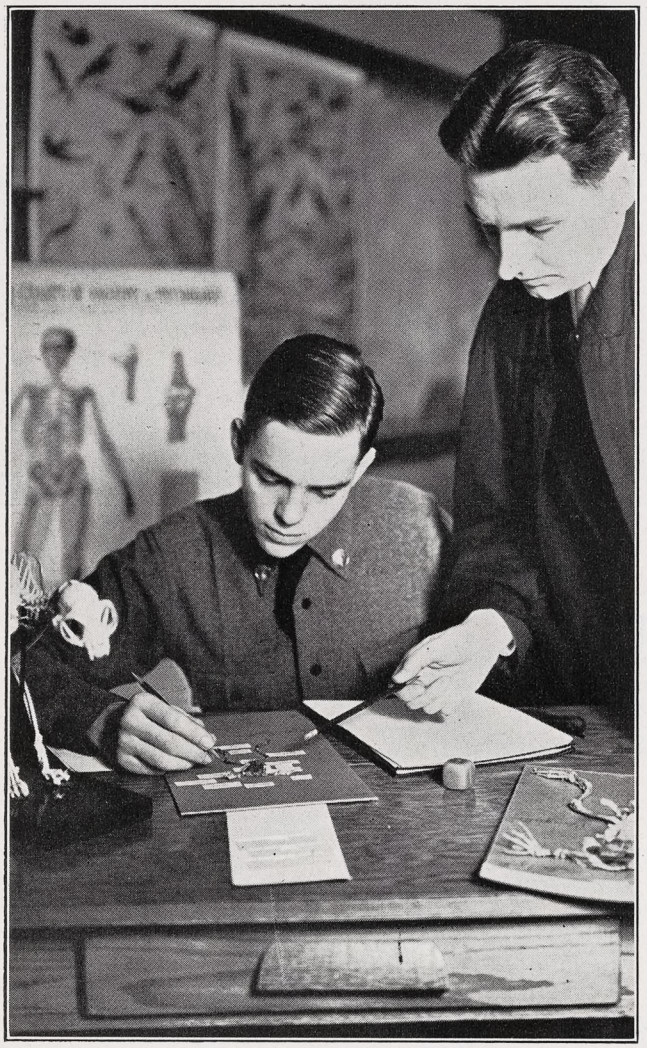
DRESS PARADE

HOWE SCHOOL

By

CHARLES LEMUEL DIBBLE

A MILITARY school faces two dangers. It may easily become a mere training camp, in which students are turned into highly specialized soldiers with a smattering of book learning. Or it may excel in scholarship, but develop students that resemble soldiers only in respect to the clothes they wear. Howe School successfully avoids both extremes. It prepares its boys for college so thoroughly that those whom it recommends do not fail to rank well in the colleges to which they go out. This in itself is an achievement, for the public high schools of the Middle West are failing more and more lamentably in preparing their graduates for meeting the present exacting entrance requirements of the Eastern colleges, and many do not even pretend to do so. Beside doing this, however, the character of Howe's military training is such that the school is given the highest grade upon the records of the war department.



The school is situated at a little town in northern Indiana, midway between Chicago and Detroit. The buildings include three dormitories, mess hall, and study hall, all comfortable but severely simple, a large and well-equipped gymnasium built last year, an administration building and the chapel. Above all the chapel.

Plain living, such as the Howe boys experience, befits the military life and undoubtedly contributes to the democratic spirit, which is the dominant note of the school. The maintenance of this spirit is due to the co-operation of two outstanding educators, the rector, the Rev. Charles Herbert Young, and the commandant, Major David H. Edwards, of the United States army. Every boy, no matter what his antecedents, is on an equal footing with every other. Uniform weekly allowances of spending money are made by the school, and no money nor luxuries may be smuggled in by indulgent parents. Every boy tidies up his own room; and in the mess hall the sons of men of high places in Church and State are found serving tables. The students are of all religious faiths, or of none. And while they are all Caucasians, with few exceptions, the captain of last year's football team and cadet captain was an Armenian and a few years ago the winner of the coveted medal for "Christian manliness" was a boy of Greek extraction.

IF MOST of the buildings are rather Spartan, not so the chapel. Into this has been built all the art and beauty that the devotion of the benefactors of the school could supply. Here we are transported into the atmosphere of one of the great public schools of England. In true scholastic style the pews are built lengthwise of the nave and the walls are lined with canopied stalls of carved oak for the faculty and the cadet officers. A gallery at the west is for visitors. The climax is the chancel, resplendent in light and color, with marble altar surmounted by a beautiful triptych depicting the Ascension. Here every day for Evensong and on Sunday for the Holy Eucharist is gathered the entire student body. For the services for Holy Communion and other sacraments, which are provided for students of our own faith and attendance upon which is of course optional, there are a beautiful mothers' chapel and crypt chapel.

With this for its center the community presents to the student the very great privilege of living and working in a place where Catholic worship and Catholic life, as received in the Anglican Church, are practiced, not only on Sunday, but seven days in the week. There is nothing of the pietistic about this. The Catholic religion is accepted as normal and taken for granted and allowed to develop quietly and wholesomely.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION
Is Given All Howe School Boys

SPORTS there are, of course. Howe's football, baseball, basketball, tennis, and track teams give good accounts of themselves in interscholastic encounters. A nearby lake affords swimming and skating. Student parties are frequently made up to visit neighboring cities and witness the theatre or attend an intercollegiate football game, or for other diversions.

At home the school dramatic club, orchestra, and debating clubs, with an occasional outside lecturer or sleight-of-hand man, furnish interest and diversion upon Sunday evenings. It is surprising what a charming young lady the captain of a football or basketball team may become, when cast in one of the school plays. He is quite convincing, until he starts to talk. If he could only conquer that impulse to cross his knees when he sits down! Several times a year the students entertain their feminine friends at dances in the gymnasium, invitations to which are said to be regarded as a social achievement.

Last but not least come the youngsters. For Howe catches them young; and it is not uncommon for a boy to spend nine or ten years in residence. The lower school has its own dormitory, its own playing field, and its own company in the battalion. What a soldierly company it is! To be sure, the guns look a bit heavy, the stride is colossal, and the officers must watch out not to trip over their swords. But for soldierly bearing, snap, and precision, give me the youngsters.

If I were sending my boy to school to reform him, I should not send him to Howe. It is not hard-boiled enough, and does not want to be. It puts up the bars against the "problem boy". If I wanted a school to give him social prestige, I should look elsewhere. But if I wanted to further him in Christian manliness and to provide for him a thoroughly adequate education for life, I could find no better place.

Just Souls

By
C. RUSSELL MOODEY

TRYING times! This is just one of many phrases used to perpetuate the depression. People looking through smoked glasses seek to project their dark pictures upon their neighbors and friends. It gives them a lot of satisfaction just to reel off the wretched state of affairs and how things are going to the dogs. I wonder sometimes if the folks of yesteryear are listening in to our "knocktimistic" dirges and bitter murmurings? I wonder too if we realize that the things we lack today, and much that the depression has obliterated, our forefathers never heard of. And they seemed to be able to carry on. In the days of prosperity we discovered how foolish we could be with the "with." Now is our chance to make good in the hands of the "without." I always did say that most of our successful men would have failed had they had the "with." Because they had to get out and fight for their religion, their schooling, their daily bread, they developed spiritual, mental and physical sinews which served later on to put them at the top. They moved up by mastering the "without."

Trying times! These are trying times—there never was a day like this. Man can, by trying, forge to the front. I remember that old saying "if at first you do not succeed then try, try again." This may sound a little old-fashioned to some of our modern proteges but it still holds good. Religion too has something to say about mastery. He who follows the Christ has a lot to live up to in this respect. The Christ ideals are and always will be just a little higher than we anticipated. He preached perfection so that you and I might keep trying! He really didn't expect us to reach perfection. He simply set it up so that we might lift ourselves to new heights of attainment. Strange too how the Master knew about the "without." He even sent His disciples away WITHOUT purse, wallet or shoes, to build the Kingdom of God! They had a right to feel the depression, but they didn't. Away they went —to change a pagan world; and by a courageous spirit they laid a sure foundation. The Christ Kingdom is here today. Truly, these are TRYING TIMES. So keep on TRYING.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

NEWS NOTES OF THE CHURCH

Edited by
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

FOR the past year they have been having what they call The Teaching Mission on the Great Commission in the province of Sewanee. Missions have been held in thirteen of the fifteen dioceses of the province so leaders got together the other day at Atlanta, under the chairmanship of Bishop Penick, to figure out if possible whether it was all worth the energy expended. It was a notable undertaking carried out over a wide area. You will therefore be glad I hope to have at least a part of the report of the secretary of the mission, the Rev. David R. Cavell. So from this point until you come to another heading it is David Cavell talking to you.

The first steps in the effort of the province of Sewanee to reach all of its approximately 100,000 communicants with the Church's message of Our Lord's great commission are nearing completion. In the parishes and missions of thirteen of the fifteen dioceses the teaching mission has been conducted, or rather inducted, by clergymen especially trained to be missionaries. Painstaking preparation is now being made by Louisiana, where the mission will be held next October and it is expected that the diocese of Lexington will also complete the movement next fall.

The teaching mission seeks to avoid assemblying a crowd and then basing all hope of good results on expressions of idealism and emotional fervor. The daily meditations are held in the Church but the teaching missions are conducted in the parish hall. The objective is to give a vision of the Kingdom of God, to deepen the individual spiritual life, and to present channels of expression through the Program of the Church. The average preaching mission seems to fail in providing channels of service expression. Where the parish or mission failed to make the careful preparation outlined and insisted upon, making this a preaching instead of a teaching mission, there is evidence that the whole movement will be a failure in those spots. Where the preparation was adequately made and the proper idea of the teaching mission grasped, there is already ample evidence of new vision and deeper consecration and determination to do something practical about it, not only on the part of the laity but of the clergy as well.

In January, 1931, the provincial field department began preparing for the teaching mission. The following May in three regional training schools one hundred picked clergy from all the dioceses were given intensive training by a carefully chosen faculty. Last summer's vacations were surrendered while original literature was created: A manual for missioners, a leaflet on how to prepare a parish for the mission, a descriptive folder for distribution to the laity, a statement of how the Woman's Auxiliary can help, and a booklet of principles and practical suggestions on following-up and following through the teaching mission to the last baptized member.

Right after General Convention, one-day and two-day conferences were held in the various dioceses where trained men presented an epitome of the teaching mission and held discussions with diocesan leaders. After that, trained forerunners were sent to advise with the parochial committees and "talk" to them the material in the preparation pamphlet. About three weeks after that the missioners met in conference with the bishop of the diocese and then scattered to conduct the teaching mission.

Hard working diocesan committees, usually the diocesan field departments, were the liaison bodies between the provincial field department and the parochial groups. An executive committee of three was formed by the provincial field department from its membership of thirteen and ordered to take full authority to do the task as thoroughly as possible. The president of the province wrote a pastoral letter which was signed by all the bishops and circulated through the dioceses. Through capable sub-committees the publicity and speakers bureau and other essential elements were handled.

As the follow-up leaflet, "Onward" points out, the preparation and the actual missions conducted for three days were merely to light the torch. Whether the teaching mission is to be an activity flowering into life service as well as part-time and volunteer service for Christ and His Church into a larger vision of God, into a deepened spiritual consecration, into a practice of full and honest stewardship, depends upon what the rector and his leaders do in continuing the movement. The year and a half already spent have dealt with the smaller part of the movement, now that the missioner has delivered his message and local congregation has the most important and the larger part of the teaching mission to do.

With others, missioners, parish clergy, laity, God has become more real, the self has been converted, pledges of personal service have been made. Parish after parish has said the teaching mission was the greatest experience ever to reach them. The every-member canvass is one of the elements of the immediate follow-up. Despite the economic depression some parishes have had the best every-member canvass in their history and this means in spiritual as well as in financial gains. Parish clergy have realized that they have been starving their people with reference to the great commission in terms of the Church's Program and have expressed repentance and determination to reverse the situation. Missioners have said they are new and better priests of God and the Church because of the work, experience and revelation that have come to them through the teaching mission on the great commission.

* * *

Church Army
Sends Forth Its Hikers

The Church Army Happy Hikers are on the road again. After a week of evangelism in Boston they were sent off from the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral on Decoration Day, and they are now zig-zagging through the dioceses of Massachusetts, Western Massachusetts and Connecticut. Their route takes in 77 parishes over a distance of 700 miles. There are eight men in the group and their method is to gather crowds on public squares, street corners and sea beaches and by song and preaching bear witness to the Gospel. They also hold services in churches, jails and institutions.

The life lived on this trek is a simple one and a direct challenge to the luxury and softness prevalent today. The men wear a quiet grey uniform, and each man of the team has three blankets and a rubber ground sheet and a small bag of personal effects. They haul their baggage on a two wheeled trek cart specially built for them in Boston. One man marches at the head of the group carrying a wooden shield banner with the message "God is Love". One man walks in the cart shafts and five or six haul the cart by means of two ropes. Another man rides ahead on a bicycle as advance agent preparing their way. They sing as they march, reminding one of the Franciscan friars who did so much to restore joy and gladness and simplicity in the Mediaeval Church.

In each town the Hikers are the guests of the Episcopal Church. Meals are provided by the parishioners, though sometimes the men cook their own meals. At night they sleep on the parish house floors, not using beds or mattresses. Their Christianity is intensely real, yet full of joy and gladness.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

* * *

Japanese In Seattle To Have Their Own Church

After worshipping for twenty-five years in old houses hired for the purpose the Japanese church people of Seattle saw the first steps taken the other day toward the erection of a worthy center of work and worship. Bishop Huston cut the first sod on what is to be the site of a parish hall, with sanctuary, class rooms and kitchen. It is the first unit of what it is hoped will eventually be a complete plant, including church and rectory.

* * *

Closing Churches in Summer is a Blunder

According to the Rt. Rev. S. E. Keeler, bishop coadjutor of Minnesota, it is a fatal blunder to close churches in the summer. Addressing the convention of the diocese he called for year-round worship and service; for renewed and vital consecration of the laity to personal evangelism and for greater interest in missions on the part of every parish. He also set forth a plan for ten sectional conferences for laymen to take place this fall to deal with the Church Program.

* * *

Bishop McElwain Pleads For Social Christianity

Bishop McElwain of Minnesota in his convention address pleaded for a daily application of Christian principles to social, business and political life. He called the attention of the convention to the report of the General Convention dealing with these matters and urged that it be carefully studied and applied. As a result of his address the convention passed a resolution summoning the Church people of the diocese to group conferences to discuss the General Convention report. They went further than that; they are to urge other dioceses to do the same, with the suggestion that delegates to the next General Convention carry with them the instruction of the diocese on these vital matters.

* * *

Missionaries Honored By the Western Seminary

The Rev. Montgomery H. Throop, for twenty-five years a professor at St. John's, Shanghai, and the Rev. John Roberts of Wind River, Wyoming, are to be honored with doctor's degrees at the commencement of the Western Seminary, to be held on Friday of this week. Bishop Page of Michigan is to deliver the commencement address.

* * *

Convincing Talker Is Wanted by the Police

Here is a communication from the Rev. John Quincy Martin Jr. of Bayonne, New Jersey:

Clergymen of the Church are warned to be on the lookout for one Robert Gaines, about 40 years of age, who claiming connection with the Church and Kenyon College, uses his knowledge of both to obtain undeserved financial and material aid. He is well traveled and converses with a surprising intelligence on almost any subject. He is a very convincing talker and has many scars which he claims to have received in the war and uses them to solicit sympathy; whereas, according to the best information obtainable he was not in combat service or even overseas. He is wanted by the police of Bayonne, New Jersey and anyone contacting him should notify them or the Rev. John Quincy Martin Jr., Calvary Church, in that city.

* * *

Bishop Stewart Sends Message to Congressmen

Bishop George Craig Stewart of Chicago, in the name of Churchmen in his diocese, dispatched a fiery message to Illinois senators and congressmen last week. He demands drastic reductions in the expenditures of the national government, "All of us", he states, "are viewing with increasing disgust the substitution of political expediency for patriotism on the part of our representatives in Washington. The crisis is upon us. We must have action at once—clear, decisive, patriotic, reducing expenditures, raising taxes by a general, well distributed plan and providing credit relief to the states so that the suffering unemployed may have at least a medium of relief."

* * *

Providence Church Gives Pennies for the Hungry

Over 70,000 pennies came to Grace Church, Providence, R. I., as a result of its plan of a penny-a-meal, placed in a mite box when grace was said in the homes of its communicants. The results so astonished them that the parish is requesting families to continue the practice through the summer.

* * *

Conference of Missionaries is Held

The usual conference of out-going missionaries was held by the department of foreign missions on June 7 under the leadership of Dr. John W. Wood and Rev. Artley Parson, secretaries. On the following day many of them went to Hartford to attend the School of Missions which was in session there all last week. There were missionaries present from Liberia, Brazil, Alaska, China, Japan, Hawaii and the Philippines.

* * *

Dr. Arthur M. Aucock Resigns Providence Parish

After 42 years of service in one parish, All Saints', Providence, the Rev. Arthur M. Aucock has resigned owing to illness. All Saints was his only parish, coming to it immediately after graduation from the Cambridge Seminary. He has been a member of the Standing Committee of the diocese of Rhode Island since 1902 and has been a delegate to nine General Conventions.

* * *

Dedicate New Building at Manlius

Knox Hall, a new auditorium, was dedicated on May 28th at Manlius School, the diocesan school for boys of Central New York. The building was given by Mr. Henry D. Knox, churchman of East Aurora, N. Y.

* * *

Berkeley Holds School for the Clergy

The Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, is holding a school for the clergy from June 13 through the 17th. In addition to the Berkeley faculty courses are to be given by Professors Luccock, Urban and Neibuhr of Yale, Professor Easton of

CHURCH SCHOOLS

THE General Convention of the Church, meeting in Denver, stated that "the Church boarding preparatory schools are among the most valuable agencies the Church possesses for executing the teaching mission of the Church and for the development of character." Because this is so THE WITNESS is devoting a considerable amount of space in summer issues in setting forth the claims of some of our leading schools. We believe that Church people, were they familiar with the service being performed by these schools, would make every sacrifice necessary to send their boys and girls to these schools. A postal card to THE WITNESS, 931 Tribune Building, New York City, will bring to you information about these institutions. We can serve you better if you also state whether you are interested for a boy or a girl, the price you feel able to pay and your preference as to location.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

the General, and the Rev. J. W. Suter.

* * *

Saint Agnes School
Girl Wins Two Prizes

Young boys and girls throughout the country were offered prizes for writing an essay on the danger of mosquitoes. The prize in the state of New York was won by Harriet M. Jones, a student at St. Agnes School, Albany. The state winners then had their essays presented to a national committee and this young lady's paper was judged the best of the lot again. So this time she won the national prize, which was $500, and besides got $200 for a trip to Washington where she was handed the $500 by President Hoover. St. Agnes School is naturally proud. So is Howe School, since Miss Jones is a niece of the Rev. Charles Herbert Young, rector of Howe.

* * *

Resigns From CMH
To Take Secular Job

Miss Elise K. Walther has resigned as executive secretary of the Church Mission of Help in Chicago, where she has done a dandy job ever since she started at it six or seven years ago, in order to accept a position with the joint emergency relief commission of Chicago.

* * *

Large Class
At All Saints, Worcester

The largest class in the history of All Saints, Worcester, Mass., was confirmed by Bishop Hulse, acting for Bishop Davies, on a recent Sunday. It consisted of 116 persons, presented by the rector, the Rev. John H. Lever.

* * *

Called To St.
Paul's, Albany

The Rev. George A. Taylor, Easthampton, Mass., has been called to the rectorship of St. Paul's, Albany, N. Y. He has been particularly active in the diocese of Western Massachusetts in young people's work.

* * *

Dedicate St. Martin's
In New York

The Church of the Holy Trinity, New York, burnt down. The fire made a pretty thorough job of it, but the walls were left standing and some of the interior. So it was purchased by the City Mission Society and reconstructed into a really beautiful church by the Negro congregation of St. Martin's parish. The work was largely done by members of the parish, and I am told that Dean Gates of the Cathedral in New York had a great deal to do with making it the beautiful place that it is. It was consecrated as St. Martin's last Sunday and Bishop Manning, in his sermon, cited the enterprise as a striking example of the lessons of simplicity and resourcefulness which our depression period is teaching us.

* * *

Florida Raises
$2600 In Whitsunday Offering

The diocese of Florida announces that something over $2600 was raised in the Whitsunday offering. It is to be evenly divided between the National Council and the diocese for missionary work within her own borders.

* * *

Southwestern Virginia
Raises about $1400 Whitsunday

The diocese of Southwestern Virginia raised about $1400 in the Whitsunday offering. Other gifts will enable the diocese, it is confidently expected, to pay in full the $2300 representing the difference between its quota of $16,300 and the $14,000 which the executive board pledged at the beginning of the year.

* * *

Red Wing Rector
To Lead Houghteling Forum

The Rev. E. B. Jewell, rector at Red Wing, Minnesota, is to be the leader this year of the annual Houghteling Forum, established four years ago by Mr. William F. Pelham of Chicago. The forum is an intensive period of training for a selected group of laymen. It meets this year at St. Alban's School from June 24 to 26.

* * *

Florida Concludes
Its Teaching Mission

The diocese of Florida has completed its teaching mission on the great commission which has been held in dioceses throughout the south. The mission was conducted almost entirely by the clergy of the diocese and was in this respect unlike others since they had outsiders for the most part as missioners. A clergy school was conducted at Tallahassee last January with Bishop Penick as the leader to prepare the clergy for their tasks. Fifteen of them qualified as missioners and this May went into all the parishes in the diocese and conducted intensive missions. The Rev. Oliver J. Hart of Chattanooga, a member of the provincial field department, held missions at Palatka and Federal Point and the Rev. Willis G. Clark came down from Charlotte, N. C. and conducted the mission at the Good Shepherd, Jacksonville, but aside from that it was purely a diocesan affair.

* * *

Southwest Virginia Endorses
Church Fire Insurance

The executive board of the diocese of Southwestern Virginia at a recent meeting passed a resolution recommending that the diocese and parishes place the fire insurance upon their properties with the Church Fire Insurance Corporation. The recommendation was made after a report had been submitted by the finance department of the diocese which was asked some time ago to give careful study to the subject. The Church Fire Insurance Corporation, as of course you know, is closely allied with the Church Pension Fund and the Church Life Insurance Corporation. That is they are all under the same capable management.

* * *

Dean Richardson
Resigns from Cathedral

The Very Rev. George L. Richardson, dean of the Cathedral of All Saints, Albany, N. Y., has resigned, effective August first. He relinquishes his work feeling that it requires the services of a more vigorous man. He has accepted the rectorship of All Saints Church, Peterborough, New Hampshire.

* * *

Young People
of Midwest Meet

Young people of the province of the midwest met at Brent House, Chicago, June 10-12. The speakers were Bishop Gray of Northern Indiana, Bishop Sturtevant of Fond du Lac, the Rev. Alden Kelly, student chaplain of the University of Wisconsin, the Rev. Charles Scovil, student chaplain at Minnesota, the

The Anderson Craftsmen Inc.
Ecclesiastical Woodwork
WOOD CARVERS
CABINET MAKERS
FINE CHURCH FURNITURE
231 W. 18th St. New York City

Saint Agnes
Excellent College Preparatory Record. New fire proof buildings ideally situated in 33 acres of the best residential section outside the City. Moderate price. Sports of all kinds.
Miss Blanche Pittman, M. A., 58 Elk Street Albany N. Y.

HOUSE OF THE NAZARENE
SAINT AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA
Guests received. Moderate charges. Convenient, comfortable, cheerful. Good meals, attractive grounds, sunshine and quiet. If you are looking for rest or renewed strength, come and see. Open year round. Daily Chapel services next door, open to guests if desired. For further particulars address Sister-in-Charge, 30-34 Rohde Avenue.

CAMP
Will share my Adirondack Lodge with 2 to 4 congenial people during August. In wildest section of State. Pioneer but comfortable simplicity. References exchanged.
A. L. BYRON-CURTISS
Atwell, Herkimer Co., N. Y.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Buy at low English prices the finest Church Silver & Metal work direct from the actual makers:—

F. OSBORNE & CO., Ltd.
27 Eastcastle St., London, W. I., Eng.
(Cables: Oscraft, London)

CHALICES from £3., & all Church Silver & Metal work. Send for Book 26.

MEMORIAL TABLETS in Brass, Bronze, Enamel, etc. Send for Book 27.

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS & ROHNSTOCK
Designers and workers in
STAINED GLASS
One Washington Street
Boston, Massachusetts

Murals and Decorative Painting
Oliver Smith Studios
Designers and Craftsmen in Stained and Leaded Glass.
BRYN ATHYN, PENNA.
Gothic Wood Carving

CHURCH EAR-PHONES
Make your church a place of real worship for the DEAF of the community you serve.
Install the Globe Church Earphone Service and your hard of hearing people will enjoy to the full your services and the music of the church. Globe earphones are a needed service in your church.
Ask for folder and details of our four Sunday free trial plan.
Globe Phone Mfg. Corp.
Reading, Mass.

MARY FAWCETT CO. NEW LINENS AT LOW PRICES. Famous 1800 for surplices or Albs in 46" at $1.35, also Brown Linen for Covers, etc., 54" at $1.05. Special discounts continue. Send for full set samples free. New Complete Altar Guild Handbook by L. V. Mackrille $.50. 812 Berkeley Avenue, Trenton, N. J.

Wilbur H. Burnham
Designer and Craftsman
Stained Glass
Studios · 1126 Boylston St. Boston

Rev. Henry Roth, rector of St. Luke's, Racine, Miss Sallie Phillips, secretary of young people's work of the national department of religious education and Mr. John Hanstein, president of the young people's association of the province.

* * *

Chicago Clergy to Meet With Bishop

The clergy of the diocese of Chicago have been invited to meet with Bishop Stewart at Libertyville, June 17 and 18, for the purpose of considering common problems. The 18th is the anniversary of Bishop Stewart's consecration.

* * *

Record Confirmation Class in Southern Virginia

A confirmation class of one hundred and twenty was presented to the bishop of Southern Virginia at St. John's Church, Hampton, by the Rev. A. A. Pruden. It was one of the largest classes ever presented in the diocese.

* * *

Negro Church Workers Hold Their Conference

The annual St. Augustine's Conference for Negro Church workers was held at St. Augustine's College, Raleigh, N. C., May 30th to June 3. Bishop Peneck welcomed the group. Classes were led by the Rev. G. L. Tucker, Miss Mabel Lee Cooper, the Rev. Alfred S. Lawrence, the Rev. John W. Herritage, Miss Esther Brown and others. It was a most successful conference in every way.

* * *

Bishop's Wife Has Party for Wives of Clergy

Mrs. G. Ashton Oldham again entertained the wives of the clergy of the diocese of Albany. Several years ago she organized the Clergy Wives Club, figuring that if the parsons considered it necessary to have their clubs it was equally necessary that the wives have a pow-wow occasionally. So the other day sixty of them went to Lake George for a house party which ran for three days. An occasion of friendship, rest and delightful entertainment is the way the affair is described by our correspondent.

* * *

Couple of Busy Chaplains in New Jersey

The diocese of New Jersey has two full time institutional chaplains working for the social service department. That they really work may be judged from the fact that they hold regular services in seventy-two institutions within the diocese.

* * *

Bristol Rector Wants Food Instead of Tobacco

Many months ago the Rev. Anthony R. Parshley, rector of St.

ERNEST W. LAKEMAN
Designer and Worker in Stained Glass
36-38 WEST TWENTY-FIFTH STREET
Opposite Trinity Chapel
NEW YORK, N. Y.

The Payne Studios Inc
Stained-Glass
Memorials
Paterson·New Jersey

CATHEDRAL STUDIO, WASHINGTON, D. C. and London, England. Church embroideries, Altar and pulpit hangings, surplices. Exquisite Altar Linens. Stoles with crosses $6.50 up. Burse and Veil $10 up. Silk damask cope, $80 up. Silk chasuble, $30 up. Silk Low Mass sets, $60 up. New Handbook for Altar Guilds, 52c. L. V. Mackrille, 11 W. Kirke St., Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. Tel. Wisconsin 2752.

For 72 years Shattuck has been a leader among church college preparatory schools in the West. Not operated for profit. Aims to develop
HIGH SCHOLARSHIP,
MANLY CHARACTER,
CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.
Military system trains for service and patriotism. Boys may be entered at mid-year or fall.
Address the Rector, Shattuck School, Faribault, Minn.

SHATTUCK
» » SCHOOL « «

CATHEDRAL CHOIR SCHOOL - NEW YORK
A boarding school for the forty boys of the Choir of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine. The boys receive careful musical training and sing daily at the services in the Cathedral. The classes in the School are small with the result that boys have individual attention, and very high standards are maintained. The School has its own building and playgrounds in the Close. Fee—$250.00 per annum. Boys admitted 9 to 11. Voice test and scholastic examination. For Catalogue and information address The Precentor, Cathedral Choir School, Cathedral Heights, New York City.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS
By Bishop Johnson. Formerly 50c a copy. While present edition lasts, 20c a copy. Witness Books, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago.

CHURCH TRAINING SCHOOL
(Church Training & Deaconess House)
Diocese of Pennsylvania
Prepares women for work in mission fields, religious education, Church social service, parish work, and for the order of deaconess.
Miss Ethel M. Springer, Dean.
708 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Edwin S. Gorham, Inc.
Publishers and Distributors of Church Literature
18 West 45th Street, New York

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Michael's Church, Bristol, Rhode Island, and a member of the diocesan council, who had been selected to head the emergency relief committee of the town, vigorously attacked the system of supplying food to the poor by orders upon grocery stores. It was his argument that much money was wasted this way and that the groceries were providing cigarettes and candy instead of the necessities of life. From the merchants and many of the politicians came vigorous opposition but after months of discussion and large expenditures the town finally came to Mr. Parshley's point of view and now a central commissary has been established. There a dietitian sees to it that every order that is filled is well balanced and nothing unnecessary provided. Supplies are bought at wholesale.

The State is taking a deep interest in the experiment but as yet no other municipality seems courageous enough to adopt it.

* * *

Thank Offering Presented in Chicago

About five hundred churchwomen gathered at Grace Church, Oak Park, Illinois, for the presentation of the United Thank Offering. It amounted to considerably over four thousand dollars, an entirely satisfactory amount considering the fact that it is the first presentation of the new triennium. The Rev. H. L. Bowen of St. Mark's, Evanston, preached. Bishop Stewart spoke at an afternoon service as did also Deaconess Harriet Bedell who told of her fifteen years in the mission fields of Alaska.

* * *

Lifers at Auburn Prison are Communicants

A majority of the women in Auburn Prison, New York, are communicants of the Episcopal Church. But this is not due to the failure of the Church before they were sentenced but to the effective personal contacts afterwards of Dr. Grace Davis, who has been working with them in the prison. Dr. Davis is a professor of sociology at Wells College, Aurora, a communicant of St. Paul's Church there and is an active member of the social service department of the diocese of Central New York.

* * *

Massachusetts Clergy Meet at Swansea House

Clergymen of the southern part of the diocese of Massachusetts met for several days last week at the Swansea Rest House to plan for their work on the Church Program this fall. The leader was the Rev. Charles Collett, general secretary of the National Council. Mr. Collett also addressed a missionary service at Bristol, R. I., on June 5th in which several parishes united.

* * *

Englishmen Appeal for Debt Cancellation

Fifty leading churchmen of England, acting under the auspices of the British Council of Christian Ministers, have appealed for the remission of reparation payments and international war debts. The appeal was released in this country through the Federal Council of Churches. Among the Anglicans to sign the appeal were the bishops of Lichfield, Liverpool, Birmingham, Chichester, St. Albans, Portsmouth, Hereford and Worcester.

After asserting that the reparations imposed on Germany have proved to be both "impracticable

A. J. MUSTE

SCHOOL FOR CHRISTIAN SOCIAL ETHICS

A Department of the

WELLESLEY CONFERENCE

Wellesley, Massachusetts, June 27-July 8

The Social Teaching of the Old Testament

by

Rev. Fleming James

Professor at the Berkeley Divinity School

Christian Internationalism

by

Rev. Daniel A. McGregor

Professor at the Western Seminary

Modern Problems in the Light of Christianity

With Lectures by

Dr. A. J. Muste

Director of Brookwood Labor College, and Chairman of the Conference for Progressive Labor Action

Dr. Vida D. Scudder

Professor Emeritus of Wellesley College

Rev. William B. Spofford

Secretary of the Church League for Industrial Democracy

Dr. Henry R. Mussey

Professor at Wellesley College

For Information Address the Secretary

Miss Marian DeC. Ward

50 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE
(Columbia University)

A College of Arts, Letters and Sciences definitely and officially of the Episcopal Church but with no ecclesiastical restrictions in the selection of its student body; incorporated into the educational system of Columbia University and conferring the University degree.

It combines the advantages of University education with small college simplicity and inexpensiveness.

The College founded in 1860, is equipped to teach men who, after graduation, are going into business or into post-graduate schools of medicine, law, journalism or theology, or into classical, scientific, social or literary research.

The fees are: For tuition, $360 a year; for furnished room, $150 a year; for board in hall, $300 a year. There are some competitive scholarships and a few bursaries for men contemplating Holy Orders.

Address: Bernard Iddings Bell, Litt.D., Warden

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.
(R. R. Station: Barrytown)

TRINITY COLLEGE
Hartford, Conn.

Offers a general cultural education, with special emphasis on the Classics, Modern Languages, English, Economics, History, Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics, Biology and Pre-Medical, or Pre-Engineering. For information apply, The Dean.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

in New York, Sisters of St. Mary (Episcopal), 405 W. 34th Street. Accredited School of Nursing, two years and eight months. Major subject children. Adult and maternity nursing in affiliated hospitals. Single rooms. Full maintenance and allowance. Write for booklet.

KEMPER HALL
KENOSHA, WISCONSIN

Under the care of the Sisters of Saint Mary. All Episcopal school for girls on North Shore of Lake Michigan, one hour from Chicago. College Preparatory and general courses. Music, Art, Domestic Science. Outdoor and Indoor Sports. Address, The Sister Superior.

Virginia Episcopal School
Lynchburg, Virginia

Prepares boys for college and university. Splendid environment and excellent corps of teachers. High standard in scholarship and athletics. Healthy and beautiful location in the mountains of Virginia. Charges exceptionally low. For catalogue apply to Rev. Oscar deWolf Randolph, Rector.

HARVARD SCHOOL
Los Angeles, California

A school for boys under the auspices of the Episcopal Church. Fully accredited. R. O. T. C. Outdoor sports in a fine climate. For all information, address the Rev. Harold H. Kelley, Headmaster.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
MOUNT ST. GABRIEL
Peekskill-on-Hudson
BOARDING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Under the care of the Sisters of St. Mary. College preparatory and general courses. New modern fireproof buildings. Extensive recreation grounds. Separate attention given to young children. For catalog address THE SISTER SUPERIOR.

SCHOOL OF NURSING
HOSPITAL OF ST. BARNABAS
NEWARK, N. J.

Fully accredited School and Hospital.
High School Graduates Accepted.
WRITE FOR BOOKLET

and unjust," the signatories of this English document declare:

"Nations as well as individuals must learn to forgive. As we look back on the horrors of the Great War, and contemplate its disastrous consequences, we are persuaded that the nations are called to a great and comprehensive act of reconciliation. We must abandon the spirit of recrimination and the dark war-spirit of suspicion and hatred. It may be that the abandonment of reparations will become compulsory through the collapse of Germany. Our appeal is that, while there is yet time for an act of grace, those who believe in Christ should make their voices heard in the demand for a cancellation by forgiveness of all reparations and international war debts, in the name of Jesus, the Prince of Peace."

* * *

The Entire Family Joins in the Service

At a recent baptism at St. Stephen's, Peoria, Illinois, a two year old boy was baptized together with his mother, father, aunt and grandmother, and his great grandmother acted as his sponsor.

* * *

Brooklyn Rector Resigns Due to Illness

The Rev. Charles P. Holbrook of the Church of the Nativity, Brooklyn, has resigned because of illness. The Rev. Thomas L. Settle of the diocese of Lexington has been placed temporarily in charge.

* * *

Trinity Church, Chicago Celebrates an Anniversary

Several of the old-timers at Trinity, Chicago, were present at the celebration of the ninetieth anniversary of the parish, recently held. Mrs. John Jay Borland, whose family provided the funds for the parish house, was present. Mr. John Sargent, present junior warden, is a member of a family that has maintained a pew for sixty years. Captain W. P. Wright, civil war veteran, has been a vestryman for fifty years, and Mr. Charles H. Requa, senior warden, has long been connected with the parish. The speakers at the various services and receptions were the Very Rev. Frederick Grant, dean of Western Seminary, former rector; the Rev. Ze-Barney Phillips, rector of the Epiphany, Washington, former rector; Mr. Charles E. Field, long the clerk of the vestry. Much praise was given the present rector, the Rev. J. R. Pickells, for the progress which has been made recently in the development of a social service program. Because of existing conditions in the neighborhood the future of the parish undoubtedly lies

The General Theological Seminary

Three-year undergraduate course of prescribed and elective study.

Fourth-year course for graduates, offering larger opportunity for specialization.

Provision for more advanced work, leading to degrees of S.T.M. and S.T.D.

ADDRESS
THE DEAN
4 Chelsea Square New York City
For Catalogue Address the Dean

Episcopal Theological School
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS

Affiliation with Harvard University offers unusual opportunities in allied fields, such as philosophy, psychology, history, sociology, etc.

For Catalogue Address the Dean

Berkeley Divinity School
New Haven, Connecticut
Affiliated with Yale University
Address DEAN W. P. LADD
86 Sachem Street

DIVINITY SCHOOL IN PHILADELPHIA

Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
Privileges at University of Pennsylvania
Address:
DEAN BARTLETT, 42nd and Locust Streets

SEABURY-CARLETON
THEOLOGY LIBERAL ARTS
Best Training — Minimum Cost
For information and catalogue write
RT. REV. STEPHEN S. KEELER, D.D.
Acting Dean
Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn.

The Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Virginia

For catalogue and other information address the Dean

REV. WALLACE E. ROLLINS, D.D.
Theological Seminary Alexandria, Va.

SAINT MARY'S
RALEIGH, NORTH CAROLINA

Episcopal for Girls. High School and two years College. Academic Courses Fully Accredited Southern Association. Departments: Art, Business, Expression, Home Economics, Music.

Catalogue and View Book upon Request

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS
Orlando, Florida

A fully accredited Church boarding school situated in the lovely lake region of central Florida. Established by Bishop Gray in 1900. Outdoor classes and sports. Supervised athletics. Primary through college preparatory. Music and art. An altogether glorious place for a girl to spend the winter. Moderate rates. The Rt. Rev. John D. Wing, D.D., LL.D., President.

Mrs. Alice Bartlett Stoddard, Principal
Box 33, Orlando, Fla.

WILLIAM SMITH COLLEGE
FOR WOMEN
Geneva, New York

Co-ordinate with Hobart College. Four year Liberal Arts Course leading to the degrees of A.B. and B.S.

For catalogue and information address
Faye Huntington Klyver, Ph.D., Dean

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

in that direction and plans are under way for an even more extended program.

* * *

Texas to Carry on Actively During the Summer

The diocese of Texas, under the leadership of Bishop Quin, is going to make the work of the Church known to every communicant during the summer months instead of merely resting on their oars until the fall. The diocese has been divided into nine districts and a layman has been appointed chairman of each district. He in turn is to have assistants in every parish and mission. It will be their job to inform the whole membership of the work of the Church, not only in the parish and the diocese but throughout the world. Sounds like a fine idea.

* * *

Religious Drama Added to Gambier Conference

A course on the drama and pageantry has been added to the well-rounded course of study offered at the Gambier Conference which meets this year from the 27th to July 8th. It is to be given by Dr. Stites, professor at Antioch College, an authority on the subject.

* * *

Auxiliary of Central New York Meets

The Auxiliary of Central New York met at Trinity, Watertown, May 26 with over 200 members present. The speakers were Bishop Fiske and John H. Roblin who is in charge of the high school that is connected with the mission of St. Mary the Virgin at Sagada, P. I.

* * *

Bank Failures Hit Church in West Texas

Without exception every city and town where we have a parish or mission in the diocese of West Texas has had a disastrous bank failure during the past year. And after all missionaries cannot be paid with rubber checks.

* * *

Depression is Taking a Real Slap at Marriage

"To me the most pathetic figures of the depression are those of the marriage bureau. I can follow the downward course of stock market prices with a cold eye. I find it hard to remember that widows became poor when the New York Central passed its dividend. I have hardened myself to read monthly employment reports and records of mortgage foreclosures. Can you visualize, though, the unhappiness of 3,000 marriages that have not been made? Depressions do not kill the desire of two young people for each other, but they do make it impossible to realize that desire." This was the statement made by Prof. A. Ford Hindrichs, well known professor of economics at Brown University, at St. Luke's Church, East Greenwich, R. I. in a union meeting of Episcopalians, Baptists and Methodists. Prof. Hindrichs also suggested that the Lindbergh kidnapping might be considered less a crime than discharging 1,000 men during the depression.

Services of Leading Churches

Cathedral of St. John the Divine
New York City
Amsterdam Avenue and 112th St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8, 9; Children's Service, 9:30 A. M.; Morning Prayer and Litany, 10 A. M.; Morning Prayer, Holy Communion and Sermon, 11 A. M.; Evening Prayer, 4 P. M.
Weekdays: Holy Communion, 7:30 A.M. (Saints' Days, 10); Morning Prayer, 9:30 A. M.; Evening Prayer. 5 P. M.

The Incarnation
Madison Avenue and 35th Street
Rector
Rev. H. Percy Silver, S.T.D., LL.D.
Sundays: 8, 10, 11 A. M.

Trinity Church, New York
Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, S.T.D.
Broadway and Wall St.
Sundays: 8, 9, 11, and 3:30.
Daily: 7:15, 12 and 3.

The Heavenly Rest and Beloved Disciple, New York
Rev. Henry Darlington, D.D.
Fifth Ave. and Ninetieth St.
Sundays: Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m., Church School 9:30 a. m., Morning Service and Sermon 11:00 a. m., Vespers 4:00 p. m., Evening Prayer 8:00 p. m.
Saints' Days and Holy Days: Holy Communion 10:00 a. m.

Little Church Around the Corner
Transfiguration
1 East 29th Street
Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D., Rector
Communions, 8 and 9 (Daily 8.)
11—Missa Cantata—Sermon; 4—Vespers.

Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights
Rev. George P. Atwater, D.D.
Hicks St., near Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sundays: 8 A. M., 11 A. M., 4:30 P. M.
Church School: 9:45 A. M.

Grace Church, New York
Rev. W. Russell Bowie, D.D.
Broadway at 10th St.
Sundays: 8, 11, 4 and 8.
Daily: 12:30, except Saturday.
Holy Days and Thursday: Holy Communion, 11:45.

Church of St. Mary the Virgin
New York
46th St., between 6th and 7th Aves.
Rev. Granville M. Williams, S.S.J.E.
Sunday Masses: 7, 9, 11 (High Mass).
Week-day Masses: 7, 8 (Thurs., 7, 8, 9:30).

St. Paul's Cathedral
Buffalo, New York
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11.
Weekdays: 8, 12:05.
Thursdays and Holy Days: 11.

Calvary Church, New York
Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, Jr., Rector
Rev. J. Herbert Smith, Associate Rector
21st Street and Fourth Ave.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 8.
Thursdays at 8 P. M. Meeting for Personal Witness in Calvary Hall.

Gethsemane, Minneapolis
Rev. Austin Pardue
4th Ave. South at 9th St.
Sundays: 8, 9:30, 11 and 7:45.
Wed., Thurs., and Holy Days.

St. Bartholomew's Church
Park Ave. and 51st St., New York
Robert Norwood, Rector
8 A. M., Holy Communion.
11 A. M., Morning Prayer and Sermon.

Grace Church, Chicago
(St. Luke's Hospital Chapel)
Rev. Wm. Turton Travis
1450 Indiana Ave.
Sundays: 8, 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: 6:40 A. M. except Monday.
Holy Days: 10:30.

St. Peter's Church
3rd and Pine Sts., Philadelphia
Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, E.T.D., Rector.
Sundays: 7:30 A. M. Holy Communion.
11 A. M. Morning Service, Sermon and Holy Communion.
8 P. M. Evening Service and Address.

Christ Church Cathedral
Hartford, Conn.
Cor. Main and Church Streets.
The Very Rev. S. R. Colladay, D.D.
Sundays: 8:00, 10:05, 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.
Daily: 7:00, 12:10; 5:00.
Holy Days and Wednesdays, 11:00 a. m. Holy Communion.

Christ Church, Cincinnati
Rev. Frank H. Nelson
Rev. Bernard W. Hummel
Sundays: 8:45, 11 A. M. and 5 P. M.
Holy Days: Holy Communion, 10 A. M.

Church of the Advent, Boston
Mt. Vernon and Brimmer Sts.
Rev. Julian D. Hamlin
Sundays: Holy Communion, 7:30 and 8:15 A. M.; Matins, 10 A. M.; Sung Mass and Sermon, 10:30 A. M.; Solemn Evensong and Sermon, 7:30 P. M.
Week Days: Matins 7:15 A. M.; Mass 7:30. Evensong 5 P. M.; additional Mass Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M.

Church of St. John the Evangelist
Boston
Bowdoin Street, Beacon Hill
The Cowley Fathers
Sundays: Masses, 7:30, 9:30 and 11 A. M. Benediction, 7:30 P. M.
Weekdays: Masses, 7 and 8 A. M. Thursdays and Holy Days, 9:30 A. M., also.
Confessions: Saturdays, 3-5 and 7-9 P. M.

St. Mark's, Berkeley, California
Bancroft Way and Ellsworth Street
Near the University of California
Sundays: 7:30, 11 A. M.; 7:45 P. M.
Tuesdays: 10 A. M.

Grace and St. Peter's Church Baltimore, Md.
(Park Avenue and Monument Street)
The Rev. Robert S. Chalmers
The Rev. Harold F. Hohly
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11 A. M.; 8 P. M.
Week Days: 8 A. M.

St. Mark's, Milwaukee
Rev. E. Reginald Williams
Hackett Ave. and Belleview Place
Sundays: 8, 9:30 and 11.
Gamma Kappa Delta: 6 P. M.
Holy Days: 10 A. M.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

These Church Schools

are recognized as official schools of the Episcopal Church. Among the chief characteristics of these Schools are the following:

1. Founded by Churchmen with a religious purpose they remain loyal to their heritage.

2. They devote themselves to the secondary education of young men and women and in this field maintain standards of recognized excellence.

3. Seeking quality rather than quantity, they limit their student enrollment and apply with success personal methods in instruction.

4. Their students lead a common and wholesome social life under the uplifting influence of the Church's system.

ST. JAMES SCHOOL
WASHINGTON CO., MD.
DR. A. H. ONDERDONK

HOWE SCHOOL
HOWE, INDIANA
REV. CHARLES H. YOUNG

LENOX SCHOOL
LENOX, MASSACHUSETTS
REV. G. GARDNER MONKS

HOOSAC SCHOOL
HOOSICK, NEW YORK
REV. JAMES L. WHITCOMB

HOLDERNESS SCHOOL
PLYMOUTH, NEW HAMPSHIRE
REV. EDRIC A. WELD

SOMERSET HILLS SCHOOL
FAR HILLS, NEW JERSEY
REV. J. D. S. FAIR

SAINT ALBAN'S SCHOOL
SYCAMORE, ILLINOIS
DR. CHARLES L. STREET

MANLIUS SCHOOL
MANLIUS, NEW YORK
COL. G. F. VERBECK

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY
DELAFIELD, WISCONSIN
LT. COL. ROY F. FARRAND

SHATTUCK SCHOOL
FARIBAULT, MINNESOTA
C. W. NEWHALL

CHATHAM HALL
CHATHAM, VIRGINIA
REV. EDMUND J. LEE

STUART HALL
STAUNTON, VIRGINIA
MRS. H. N. HILLS

ST. JOHN BAPTIST SCHOOL
MENDHAM, NEW JERSEY
SISTER ELIZA MONICA, C.S.J.B.

ROWLAND HALL
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
CALLIE B. GAINES

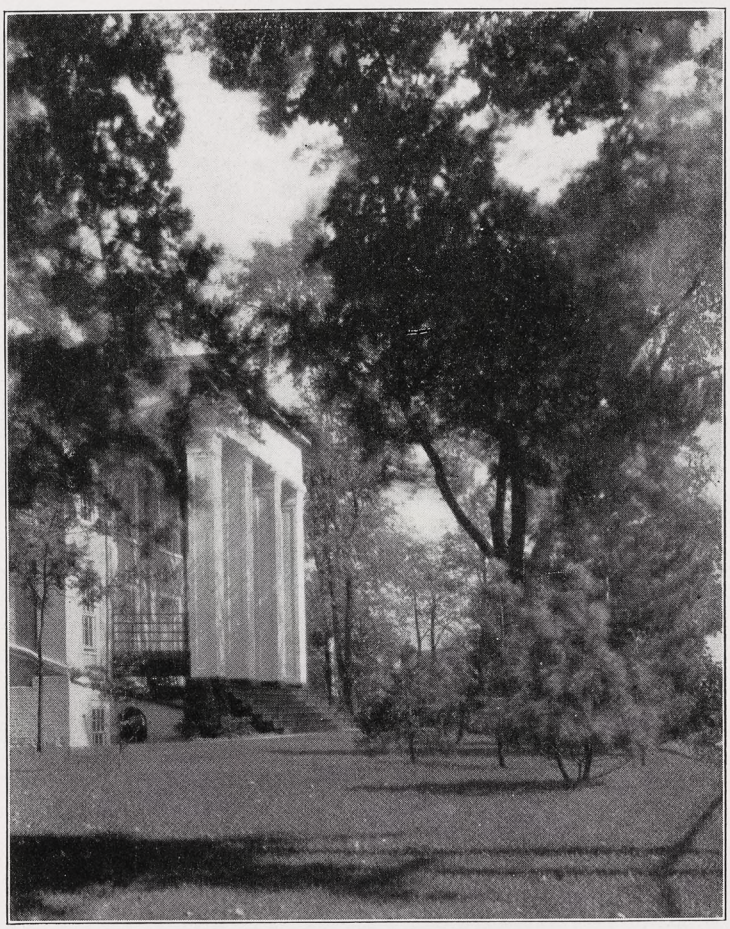
ST. MARY'S HALL
BURLINGTON, NEW JERSEY
MISS ETHEL M. SPURR

MARGARET HALL SCHOOL
VERSAILLES, KENTUCKY
MOTHER LOUISE, O.S.A.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL
CONCORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE
MRS. C. A. MCLANE

ST. CATHERINE'S SCHOOL
WESTHAMPTON, RICHMOND, VA.
LOUISA DEBERNIERE BACOT

ALL SAINTS SCHOOL
SIOUX FALLS, SOUTH DAKOTA
RT. REV. W. BLAIR ROBERTS



ST. KATHARINE'S SCHOOL
DAVENPORT, IOWA
SISTER ESTHER

Information about these schools, and the others, all recognized Church Schools, whose notices appear elsewhere in this paper, may be secured from The Witness, 931 Tribune Building, New York.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

The WITNESS

CHICAGO, ILL., JUNE 23, 1932

STUART HALL

A View of the Campus

Circulation Office: 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago Editorial and Advertising Office: 931 Tribune Building, New York City

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

IRVING & CASSON
A·H·DAVENPORT CO
MANUFACTURERS
OF
CHURCH
AND
HOUSEHOLD
FURNITURE
WOODWORK
AND
UPHOLSTERY
601·FIFTH AVE·NEW YORK
575·BOYLSTON·ST·BOSTON

CHURCH VESTMENTS
Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Embroideries, Silks, Cloths, Fringes
CLERICAL SUITS
Hats, Rabats, Collars
Specialists in Church vestments and Embroideries for a half a century.
COX SONS & VINING
131-133 E. 23rd St., New York

Cassocks
For the Clergy and Choir
VESTMENTS
Altar linens, embroideries materials
Clerical and lay tailoring
J. M. HALL, INC.
174 Madison Avenue
Bet. 33rd & 34th Sts., N. Y.

MEMORIAL TABLETS
"of enduring worth and attractiveness"
in genuine cast bronze
Moderate in Price - Booklet on Request
ELLISON BRONZE CO., INC.
JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

M. P. MOLLER ORGANS
The Pride of the Church
Over half a century of successful organ building have established the Möller reputation for quality and workmanship.
350 Möller Organs in Episcopal Churches alone.
M P MÖLLER
The Artist of Organs — The Organ of Artists
Hagerstown, Maryland

The J. & R. LAMB STUDIOS
NO. 325 SIXTH AVENUE · NEW YORK
STAINED GLASS · MURALS
MOSAIC · MARBLE · STONE
CARVED · WOOD · METAL
ESTD 1857

Heaton, Butler & Bayne
Stained Glass Artists
By appointment to the late KING EDWARD VII.
Stained Glass Windows
Memorial Brasses, Etc.
Designs and Estimates
Heaton, Butler & Bayne
(N. Y.) Ltd.,
French Building
551 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

The
Willet Stained Glass Co.
226 South 11th Street, Philadelphia
Windows of U. S. Chapel, West Point. Front & Sanctuary
St. John's. Wilmington.

R. GEISSLER, INC.
450 SIXTH AVE. NEAR 10TH ST. NEW YORK
Church Furnishings
IN CARVED WOOD AND MARBLE · BRASS · SILVER
FABRICS + WINDOWS
EST 1877

J · WIPPELL & Co LTD
will be pleased to submit designs and Estimates for
Embroidery · Wood
Stone · Metal and
Stained Glass
EXETER · · · Cathedral Yard.
LONDON · · · 11, Tufton St. S.W.1
MANCHESTER · 32, Victoria Street.

The CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD
64 The Oval London SE11
England
CHURCH FURNITURE & PLATE
ILLUSTRATED BROCHURE WILL BE FORWARDED UPON APPLICATION

HALL ORGANS
have gained much prestige because of many outstanding Episcopal installations.
The Hall Organ Company
West Haven, Conn.

MENEELY BELL CO
TROY, N.Y. AND
220 BROADWAY, N.Y. CITY
BELLS

MENEELY & CO.
BELLS ESTABLISHED IN 1826
WATERVLIET, N.Y.
THE OLD MENEELY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS, CHIMES AND PEALS
Unequaled Musical Qualities

ST. HILDA GUILD, Inc.
131 E. 47th St., New York
CHURCH VESTMENTS
ECCLESIASTICAL EMBROIDERY
Conferences with reference to the adornment of churches
Telephone EL-dorado 5-1058

The D'Ascenzo Studios
PHILADELPHIA—1604 SUMMER ST.
Designers of
Historical Windows
WASHINGTON MEMORIAL CHAPEL
Valley Forge, Pa.
Chapel windows,
Riverside Baptist Church,
New York City
Memorial windows, Mural decorations, Glass Mosaics.

AUSTIN ORGAN CO.
Hartford, Conn.
Designers and Builders
of
PIPE ORGANS
noted for their superior tonal qualities and mechanical reliability.
Correspondence Solicited

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

Editor
IRVING P. JOHNSON
Managing Editor
WILLIAM B. SPOFFORD

THE WITNESS

A National Weekly of the Episcopal Church

Associate Editors
FRANK E. WILSON
GEORGE P. ATWATER
C. RUSSELL MOODEY
IRWIN ST. J. TUCKER

Vol. XVI. No. 44 JUNE 23, 1932 Five Cents a Copy

THE WITNESS is published weekly by the Episcopal Church Publishing Company, 6140 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. The subscription price is $2.00 a year; in bundles of ten or more for sale at the church, the paper selling at five cents, we bill quarterly at three cents a copy. Entered as Second Class Matter April 3, 1919, at the postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under act of March 3, 1879.

DR. LOUIS B. FRANKLIN, treasurer of the National Council, in reporting the figures for the Whitsunday offering for the deficiency fund, states that "an important feature in balancing the budget with the aid of the emergency fund is that careful economies in every feature of missionary expenditure, whether for administration or for work in the field have produced exceptional savings." A few days later we received a message from a member of the staff at the Church Missions House. For stationery this person had used the back of an envelope; certainly a demonstration of New England thrift. And a part of the message received was in the form of verse which went:

With the most persistent virtue
And with conscientious bonhommie
We may do things that hurt you
But we're practising economy.

This staff member should be encouraged in the art. Then possibly we could find some genius to set the words to music so that at the next General Convention we could present the problems of the Church Missions House in a comic opera, after the manner of Gilbert and Sullivan. Mr. Franklin might play the part of the hard-boiled boss, running about booming in his best bass:

There is need for strict economy
So when the sun is in the sky
Do not think that you will die
If pennies you must save,
In this House so like a grave,
By shutting off electricity.

Old Man Depression, aided in his evil ways by Extravagance and Waste, would of course be the villains of the play, doing their best to persuade secretaries to dine on caviar and to travel on extra fare trains. Caviar and extra fare trains could be personified by fair ladies, which would give us a chance to bring in an attractive chorus, played by members of the Woman's Auxiliary, tempting the secretaries with their charms. Evil at first would appear to triumph but in the end Thrift, Economy and Good Management, played of course by Bishop Perry, Bishop Burleson and Dr. Franklin, would win the victory and everyone would be happy as the attractive evil ones, aware of impending defeat at the hands of the Church, scurried off to Washington where they felt they had a better chance of success—with whatever administration happens to be running things at that time. This is only a rough idea of what we have in mind. But if you feel that it has possibilities we will whip it into shape. Then we will see if we can't have some fun at the Atlantic City convention. After all there is more than one way of handling these serious business problems that arise from the depression and possibly laughing at them is as good as any.

THE DAY APPROACHES when the Church must limit the number of men preparing for the ministry. Up until recently we have felt it necessary to hold conferences for young men in order to encourage them to enter the ministry. Yet a casual examination of the catalogues of our seminaries convince us that more men are now being prepared for the ministry than can ever be placed in parishes. Many bishops, apparently, accept men as candidates without much sense of obligation to place them after they finish their seminary courses. Seminaries are jammed and men are being ordained at a faster rate than places are provided for them. The result in many instances is that older men, after years of service to the Church, are crowded out by the young attractive fellows; or else the young fellows, no matter how attractive, find themselves without a place to function after their expensive preparation. There is little doubt but that there is serious unemployment among the clergy at the present time. One hears it said of course that only second rate men are without churches. We doubt if this is true. Nevertheless, second rate or not, if they were accepted as candidates and found fit for ordination, the Church has a moral obligation to provide for them. The whole question needs careful study.

THE EDITOR OF The Presbyterian Advance, the Rev. James E. Clarke, has recently completed a study of the press of the Roman Catholic Church in this country. During the past fifteen years there has been a steady decline in the circulation of Protestant religious journals. Yet from 1920 to 1930 Roman Catholic journals practically doubled their circulations. Mr. Clarke states that "it is unquestionably due to a church-wide determination on the part of Catholic leaders to create, from the Church point of view, a more intelligent and better informed constituency." They began with a Catholic Press Sunday, when there were sermons on the journals and people were urged to subscribe. This program was later expanded so that now there is a Catholic Press Month when every effort is made to persuade Catholics to subscribe to a Church paper. Mr. Clarke goes on to say: "It seems to me that the contrast between the situation in the Protestant churches and that of the Catholic Church is a matter of intense interest. It is a rare exception that a Protestant minister or Protestant church official makes any effort to push the circulation of church papers. Indeed, it is a very common thing in our church for pastors to refuse to permit their congregations to be canvassed for any church periodicals. But our Catholic brethren give a whole month to arousing interest in their church periodicals. The priests preach on the subject and their young people are faithfully taught the value of a church paper. That is a tremendous significant fact. I might add that the latest copy of the Catholic Press Directory lists 310 Catholic publications. Of the total, 267 report their circulations, giving an aggregate of over 7,100,000." Some day, we hope, the problem may be squarely faced in our own Church.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

DR. FREDERIC C. MOREHOUSE, editor of the Living Church, suffered a severe stroke on June 11th leaving him in a most critical condition. He was slightly improved at last reports but there is but a remote possibility of recovery either for Dr. Morehouse or for Mrs. Morehouse who has been ill for some time. We earnestly request the prayers of our readers for both of them.

CALEB R. STETSON, rector of Trinity Church, New York, died of a heart attack on June 15th. His ministry was not spectacular. His name seldom appeared in the newspapers in spite of the fact that he was the rector of the largest and strongest parish in the American Church. He spoke seldom on controversial subjects out of which newspaper copy is made, but when he did he spoke courageously and as a Christian. Neither was he one to allow his fellows to know of his good works, yet one constantly discovered missions, parishes and Church institutions that received generous support from Dr. Stetson. Sympathetic and understanding always, those who knew him even slightly will be conscious of having lost a friend; whereas the Church, in whose affairs he played a large part, has lost a leader.

THE THREE LEVELS OF LIFE

By

SAMUEL M. SHOEMAKER, JR.

THERE are three general levels of life on which people, as individuals tend to live. The first of these is the level of instinctive desire, the level of instinct, where people frankly want their own way, and so far as they are able, get it. It is the level of sheer desire, where that is the over-mastering concern. It is the level where we most nearly approach the brute-beasts. If a dog is big enough to take a bone away from a little dog, or several little dogs, he takes it. If a man on the level of instinct is economically big enough to take a business away from a man who is economically small, or from several such men, he takes it. If a man in such a day of depression is living on the level of instinct, he will not be much concerned for people who are hungry; he will be saving his money to put it into the first "good thing" he hears about when the tide begins to turn and business improves. The level of instinct ranges all the way from animal sensuality to the most refined types of selfishness. Some people wallow there all their days, pampering their bodies, indulging their fancies and pleasing their tastes. They live on the level of instinct.

Then there is the level of conscience, and here one has moved up from the level of instinct. One has seen its selfishness and its short-sightedness. One realizes that alongside the urge to feather one's own nest and enjoy one's own indulged desires, there is another urge, the urge to character and service and brotherliness. If one knows any psychology, he will know that it is no safer to cause repressions in the moral and spiritual sphere than in the physical. On the level of conscientiousness the dog does not steal the bone from the little dog, though nothing is said about what goes on in his mind as he goes off, lies down and watches the little dog finish it off, while his own mouth drips with water! The man with money in the bank will send more of it off to some charitable organization, because he ought, and his friends are doing it. This kind of a person has a moral code. It may be a family code, or a caste code; and below that code this person will not drop. One simply has certain social, municipal, patriotic and moral obligations. They will be decent people and decent people fulfil those obligations. They think it is not necessary to deal too much with how they feel about these things personally; whether any great amount of heart goes into them, whether there are inner areas which are not touched by them, whether this Stoicism represents the best that life has offered. They live on the level of conscience.

AND then there is the level of grace — the level where God's mind is first believed in, and then sought, in every matter. One has moved up from the level of irresponsibility to conscientiousness; and then one has moved through the level of conscientiousness to the level of guidedness. One may upon the level of conscience bring religion down to life's common affairs: but the level of grace brings life's common affairs up to religion. The man with money in the bank will long ago have given that money to God: and he will anew ask God what He wants him to do with it. There may be a dozen right things for him to do with that money; there is only one guided thing, and God will tell him, if he is open, what that guided thing is. The man who thought of pushing his competitor to the wall will do something more than desist: he will probably go and confess his meanness of spirit, make friends with the other man and bring the relationship to a level of creative spiritual fruitfulness. There is no irresponsibility there, and no hard conscientiousness; there is freedom in the knowledge of God's ideal plan, and our power to realize our portion of that plan if we are willing to realize it, and in that way God is continually taking things from us only to give them back transfigured, or else turn them to help someone else. This is the level of grace.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

All mankind lives upon one of those three levels predominately. The pagans and the heathen, with imperfect gods or none, deify instinct and live by it. The religions of law deify moral code or scruple and live by that: the Law, as one finds it in Judaism, is the outward logic of inner conscience. It pulls men up from carelessness to scrupulosity: but it has no power to pull them further into freedom. Read St. Paul's struggles while he was in the Law, and see the way it was used to show him the difference between right and wrong, but how powerless it was to enable him to do the thing he knew was right. Then came that great day when he moved up to the third level, the level of grace. He stopped struggling morally and handed himself over to God. From then on this divided, scrupulous, torn, conscientious man moved along quietly within, no matter what the tumult without. The level of grace combines the relaxation of the level of instinct with the righteousness of the level of conscience. The guided life takes account of our physical needs and is disciplined without being ascetic. It includes the moral demands of the law, but transcends them, as St. Paul found. It is without question the level on which our Lord has always wanted His Church to live, since He gave us His Holy Spirit.

THERE is but little doubt that ninety-nine people out of every hundred go to church to be lifted off the level of instinctive desire to the level of conscientiousness. They go to be helped to be good. Jesus Christ came into this world to tell people about God and get them to know Him; and only secondarily and as a consequence, to help them to be good. American Protestantism has gone further off the rails in this respect than any branch of the whole Christian Church. What does being a Christian mean to the average American brought up in our Protestant Churches? It means an attempt to live by the ethics of Jesus. That, without the help of Jesus, is an impossibility. And so American Christianity has slid down to a kind of smiling humanitarianism, with no God in it. The thing which men found in Jesus on earth was not another code: they were burdened beyond endurance with a code already, and at times He smashed the code to atoms. They found in Him a principle of life and a power of life. The heart of Christianity is not ethics, it is a laying hold of the supernatural. It is a life lived by grace.

The most important thing is that Jesus Christ did not come to make people conscientious, but to make them God-led. Righteous people, religious people can be unlovely and un-Christlike, while they are highly conscientious: but they can be loving and Christlike if they are living by grace.

How can one move up from conscience to grace? For years one has been a good law-abider. How can he become a good grace-abider? One cannot do that by himself; the grace of the Spirit is a gift and can only be given to a willing receiver, to one who has his hands out. The Holy Spirit was given to a converted Church, and He is still given to converted individuals. Go back to the step of the new birth, with all it means of giving your self to God in complete surrender. Pray that you will move forward from even the Christ of the Resurrection to the Lord Who is the Spirit. Pray for the Holy Spirit in your life, for the honesty that really wants Him by intending to obey Him. His best gifts are not for the gifted but for the given. There is, there actually is that third category, of the Spirit-led, Spirit-taught, free, loving and lovable people who really live by grace.

God help us all to be bouyed above our carelessness, and above our conscientiousness, into the free upper ether of His grace!

A Book Review

By

IRVINE GODDARD

THOSE of us who know Jane Addams recognize in her a great soul. In this book, "The Excellent Becomes the Permanent" (The Macmillan Company, $1.75) she describes the passing of other great souls who have been linked with her in the great work of Hull House. It is self revelatory. How beautiful her religion, how real her prayers, how deeply philosophic her thoughts of death and the beyond, how poignant her grief over the loss of these dear helpmates, all are made clear to us in these memorial addresses with that true simplicity of the great. And yet these memorials have a quality about them so universal that they cannot fail to be of interest to those who have never known or heard of these gracious personalities; and even to those whom absorption in great causes tends to belittle the importance of individual survival.

Copyright 2020. Archives of the Episcopal Church / DFMS. Permission required for reuse and publication.

STUART HALL

By

J. LEWIS GIBBS

