THIRD ANNUAL REPORT.

In presenting our Third Annual Report we feel we have cause for thankfulness that it is the record of an advance in Missionary Work. More missionary boxes have been sent, more money contributed than last year, and six parish societies have been added to our list. With few exceptions all parishes connected with our Diocesan Society have reported work during the year, some have accomplished a surprising amount of it, taking into consideration how small a number has made up the "faithful few." One parish secretary writes, while reporting a box of clothing sent to the Freedmen, that she is sorry they cannot undertake some work for the Indians, but as their society numbers only six regular workers, she thinks they should not attempt anything more this year.

Need any parish feel too feeble to organize a Missionary Society? Are there not always five or six Christian women who, while recognizing that charity has its beginning at home, believe also that its ending is in the uttermost parts of the earth?

Our last annual meeting was held in the Sunday-School room of St. Paul's Church, Rochester, in which city it is our privilege, in accordance with the wish of our Bishop, to be assembled again.

During the year two sectional meetings have been held, at which missionary addresses have been made, and letters from our missionaries have been read. The two special objects for which Miss Emery asked our contributions this past year: The orphanage at Petersburg, Va., and the fund from which the insurance upon the lives of our foreign missionaries is paid, have been remembered, though not quite to the extent that we could have wished. Unhappily the orphanage has not been an entire success owing to the deep rooted prejudice among the Freedmen to institutions; but as we read of the great results attending the work of that faithful missionary of our Church, to the Freedmen—the Rev. G. B. Cooke, and hear him tell of the terrible difficulties that have beset his path and been overcome. We are glad to have helped him a little—even in attempting to add another needed branch to the good work at Petersburg, believing that in time the obstacles to the successful carrying on of the orphanage will also by God's grace be overcome. $418.69 have been given for division between these two objects.

Our excellent boxes sent to Seattle, W. T., reached there safely and were gratefully received.

We have sent to our missionaries 78 boxes at a valuation of $5,126.34. Our contributions in money have been $867.21 for domestic missions; $513.06 for foreign missions; $353.62 for work among the Freedmen; $269.53 for work among the Indians; for Mexico $56.50, which added to our box report makes the money valuation of our year's work $7,280.07.

But this expression of a year of missionary work in figures gives but a faint idea of its real value. What figures can tell the worth of such messages as those contained in the beautiful reply to our letter of condolence sent Mrs. Hill after our last annual meeting, bearing to her our sympathy in the loss of her husband, Rev. Dr. Hill, so long our devoted missionary to Greece. Let me repeat to you her closing words:

“The assurance that the work will be sustained by Christian churchwomen is an anchor of hope. * * You cannot now, dear churchwomen, realize to what a great work you have pledged yourselves. The heart that dictates and the hand which has penned this appeal will soon be silently resting with the loved ones gone before, her work she leaves to the guardianship of the American Church.” When we consider that Mrs. Hill's school for girls of the higher classes, which has been so successful an educator of, not only Grecian women, but also of so many women from other parts of the East, has been allowed to absorb all her private means, and now when that resource is gone, is it strange that in her old age she agonizingly wonders—“Who will carry on the work?” Would it not be a blessed thing if her personal appeal to us, as a society, and her trust in us might meet a fitting response?

But first of all, and before all special objects, let us realize our duty to lay by regularly, as God has prospered us, and give generously to the general missionary work of the Church. Can we not have more system in our parishes in the matter of giving? Will not the members of our Woman's Auxiliary be faithful in this great duty, and taste the pleasure of systematic giving; making principle and duty the motive rather than that our gifts shall be in answer to touching appeals?

Then what valuation shall we place upon these opportunities for meeting together, reading the letters sent from our sisters who are acting as our substitutes in foreign lands, or doing duty for us on the out-posts of the Christian army in our own country, that we may stay at home and yet feel that our Lord's injunction concerning all the earth and every creature, is not forgotten by His Church. So as we estimate the work done by our Auxiliary, let us not forget that it has tried to be faithful at home, by bringing before us in leaflets, and by missionary letters, the work of these, our sisters. Let us for the future increase its opportunities for helping us in these ways. Let us have more frequent meetings. Let us carefully circulate the leaflets sent us, and while we give of our substance to help forward our Master's work among the heathen—who are His inheritance—let us do it more understandingly. Let us know more definitely of our missionaries, about whom we have too often very vague ideas. Should we not wish to do more for them if our personal sympathy with them was greater, and increase this sympathy, let us read carefully the two periodicals issued by the Missionary Board. "The Spirit of Missions" or the "Missionary News" should find its way into every family which numbers among its members one connected with the Woman's Auxiliary. And above all let us believe, with all our hearts, in the blessed cause to which we are pledged, always remembering that our little day will soon close, and before the night shall come, and while we have opportunity, let us rejoice to do good unto all men, especially unto the household of faith.

Respectfully submitted,

SUSAN P. MATHER,

Secretary.
