

coordinators of First call theological education in regions, to the Rev. Dr. Stan Olson informed and the ELCA Conference of Bishops.

Regarding questioning about the interface of the ecumenical officers, it's already happening.

Regarding the joint production of parish-based materials, it was suggested that could be agenda item for the next LECC meeting.

The matter of reception of members from the full communion partners continues to be under discussion. The local groups have much to offer regarding that matter. The Episcopal bishops have to make it happen.

Regarding the advice from the national group to the local, the best advice was the consensus motto "Just Do It" and in so doing, remember the sibling-cousin. For example, the local organization should contact the Lutheran and Episcopal Life feature writer regarding their local work.

Housekeeping Matters.

For continuity, Nancy Curtis will remain on LECC through the October meeting. The ELCA Presiding Bishop will appoint Elizabeth Eaton (NE Ohio Synod) to replace Floyd Schoenhals. She is married to Episcopal priest. New co-chairs are needed. The Presiding Bishops of the churches appoint members of LECC for six year terms and as other vacancies occur.

It was agreed by consensus that Nancy Curtis will represent LECC at the Canadian joint commission meeting in Toronto this coming June and will provide a report to the committee. Emily Perow attended the previous two Canadian meetings and will provide a report on those two meetings.

The next LECC meeting will be two full days, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 14-15, 2008 with Monday and Thursday as travel days in Des Moines, Iowa.

It was noted that LECC members shared daily Eucharist together at this meeting for the first time.

The meeting was adjourned with thanks to those who have finished their terms as of this meeting.

Respectfully submitted,
The Rev. Nancy M. Curtis, ELCA
